SENATE ASKS HARDING TO WITHDRAW RHINE TROOPS

Muddy Waters of Europe Stirred to Hinder Hughes in Effort to Bring About Peace

BY ROBERT BARRY
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Republican leaders in the Senate were impotent today to prevent adoption of a resolution expressing the sense that American troops should be withdrawn from the Rhine, although both the President and Secretary Hughes regarded the declaration as wholly inadvisable at this time.

The resolution offered by Senator Reed of Missouri was adopted, 57 to 6, with party leaders supporting it, after an ineffectual effort to have it referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations for proper consideration was defeated, 22 to 39.

With all Europe aflame over the prospect of French occupation of the Ruhr, as the outcome of the Franco-British disagreement at the conference of prime ministers over reparations, the Senate proceeded with unprecedented expedition to muddy the waters for Secretary Hughes in his efforts to effect an economic adjustment of far-reaching influence to American agriculture and industry.

EASILY MISUNDERSTOOD

Senate leaders were aware the Reed resolution might do just that. They were advised also that forced American withdrawal might be followed by British withdrawal. Such steps would be construed in Paris, they believed, as an abandonment of the French by the United States and Great Britain and drive Poincare into a more severe policy than he was believed desirous of undertaking. French seizure of the Ruhr coal fields well might mean economic chaos in Germany, the reverberations of which would be felt in American trade, yet they did nothing to support the aims of the Department of State.

Yet, the Reed proposal, presented yesterday for the first time, was taken up by unanimous consent of the Senate because no administration leader or spokesman was there to object to its consideration. Senator Lodge spoke of its inadvisability at this time, but he permitted it to be considered; he made a futile effort to have action postponed by reference to committee, then ended by voting for its passage. The resolution does not have to go to the House.

To offset the possible harm to Secretary Hughes's current negotiations with European powers through such a formal declaration by the Senate, it was stated in high quarters tonight the President would continue to be swayed by what was most compatible with the public interest. He neither is

FRENCH MAY SPEED UP

America's Hand Their Fear

Paris Worried Washington May Protest Against March Into Ruhr

Army Plans All Made for Forward Move, Perhaps Before the 15th

BY HENRY WALES
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Jan. 6.—Fear that the United States may protest openly, or through a veiled suggestion for further reparation negotiations, may push the French to seize gages and military sanctions in the Ruhr before the 15th inst.

From high sources I learn today that Quai d'Orsay is worried that Washington may interfere in the situation, thereby rendering more difficult the application of the Poincare-Foch plan. I understand that no action will be taken until the German delegates have had an opportunity to address the reparation commission Monday, but action may start hourly after the Germans admit default.

The presence of the French already in Dusseldorf affords a deep bridgehead in the Ruhr, enabling a detachment of armored cars and tanks, supported by infantry and machine-gun detachments, to seize Essen in a few hours.

ESSEN OBJECTIVE

The principal military advance of the French will be aimed at Essen, it was learned, which is the nucleus of railway and factory headquarters in the Ruhr. Seiz-

MASK IS TORN FROM KU KLUX IN LOUISIANA OPEN HEARING

Cruelties Practiced on Victims Shown to Transcend Horrors of Spanish Inquisition; Ritual Murders Indicated by Evidence

BY ROBERT LEE
[Copyrighted 1923 by Chicago Tribune]

BASTROP (La.) Jan. 6.—When the public hearing on the murders of Watt Daniel and Thomas Richards adjourned this afternoon it became patent to whomsoever may be concerned that this is an inquisition into the methods of the Ku Klux Klan, that ritual murder may be proved against the Klansmen and that that United States government does not propose to countenance petty obstructions in the way of its share of the investigation.

There were high lights in startling and swift succession. Martial law came within a sarcastic phrase of being declared: Dr. John A. Lanford described the torture and mutilation of the murdered men with such vividness that little remains for the State to show that a premeditated and prearranged ritual was carried out in the executions of Daniels and Richards; Dr. B. M. McKoin took his place in the limelight; and the government took a stand which caused Judge Fred M. Odom to issue a statement, modifying his order which caused deputies to search and disarm Federal operatives.

FARLAND COMPLAINS

Because it is of widest importance as affecting the Federal investigation of the Klan in Morehouse Parish, it seems proper to report first the clash which arose over the disarming of A. E. Farland and his squad of operatives. When Judge Odom opened the hearing yesterday he instructed the Sheriff and his deputies to search and disarm all those who came. This was done.

"But it was done in a very one-sided way," said Mr. Farland. "Our investigation of the disarming showed that some were permitted to pass with a friendly slap on the shoulder. But all Mer Rouge men and all those known to be demanding an investigation of these murders were searched carefully. The Courthouse was filled with hastily sworn deputies with guns in their pockets. Then we were told that we could not carry them. The court insisted on this order. I protested to Washington."

At noon there came a hot wire from Atty.-Gen. Daugherty. It directed Farland and his men to go armed. They were told to submit to arrests and await action by the United States District Attorney. It concluded with the intimation that the Federal courts would be backed to the limit. This was taken to mean that troops would be sent in if necessary.

MARTIAL LAW THREATENED

Previous to this message there was a conference between Judge Odom, Adjt.-Gen. Toombs, Mr. Farland, Atty.-Gen. Coco and his assistants in which it was stated plainly that martial law would be declared if the Sheriff, a known Klansman, was permitted to handle the arms situation. The charge was made that under such an arrangement Klansmen might pack the courtroom and incite to riot. The Mer Rouge people would be without protection.

In this conference the judge held firm, but it was intimated that unless the situation was kept at normal the proclamation for martial law would be published instantly. With things in such a tremulous state with known Klansmen armed

STEFANSSON RETIRES AS EXPLORER

Historian to Prove Value of Arctic Region to World in Campaign

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Arctic explorer, today announced his abandonment of his career as an explorer to devote his efforts to proving to a skeptical world that within a decade or two the North Polar Ocean will be crossed by a network of commercial aviation routes and that the Arctic regions, hitherto known as mysterious, uninhabitable lands, will be the source of developed resources unlimited in magnitude.

The popular attitude toward the Arctic regions, Mr. Stefansson said, was much like the medieval attitude toward unexplored regions beyond the horizon—the terrors in both cases largely being imaginary.

"Fear alone stands in the way of developing a land area twice the size of the United States," he declared. "If you want the truth, assume the opposite of a dozen or so things you have heard about the North.

"Oil, coal and other resources are there. Climatic conditions are conquerable. People are living and flourishing in places where there are colder winters than those at the North Pole. For example, the lowest temperature at the pole is about 60 deg. below zero, while 70 deg. below has been registered in North Dakota, where winters are just as severe as in the Arctic. At Verkhoyansk, in Siberia, the mercury has dropped to 93 deg. below zero.

Civilization inevitably must move toward the North, and Americans, citizens of the nation of progress, must realize this fact."

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—An appeal to pardon three men and two women serving sentences in New York State prison for violation of the criminal anarchy law today was addressed to Gov. COUE GIVES FIRST CLINIC IN AMERICA

Describes Superiority of Imagination Over Will to Twenty-five Patients

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 6. — Emile Coue, teacher of autosuggestion, gave his first clinic in this country today in a private house here. The location of the clinic was kept secret from the press until after they were over, and all information about them came from Oliver S. Lyford, who is in charge of Coue's arrangements.

Mr. Lyford said that two clinics were held, one after the other. About twenty-five patients were at each clinic. Most of them were women. There were a few children. They had been selected by the Coue committee, and admission was by ticket only. Most of them complained of nervous troubles, some asthma, some insomnia, no organic diseases and no cripples.

Coué followed the same method, in the main, as at Nancy. He began by speaking to each patient, asking his or her trouble. Then he described his method of autosuggestion, emphasizing the superiority of imagination over will. Next he caused two of the patients to step up and perform his familiar experiment of clasping their hands, showing them by the example that by influencing their subconscious mind to believe they could not open their hands the will to open them was defeated.

After this, Coue asked the patients to close their eyes, so that they could concentrate better on what he said. He then delivered his address of "curative suggestion," emphasizing the statement that they were getting better and better in every respect. This ended the clinic.

The patients told Coue, it was said, that they had benefitted materially by the experience. There were no miraculous" cures and no demonstration.

She was born on her father's Mississippi plantation and during the administration of her friend, President Polk, was a famous White House beauty.

PEACE OR WAR IS ISSUE AT NEAR EAST PARLEY

Ismet Pasha and Lord Curzon Jockey With Millions of Lives; No Agreement Yet

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LAUSANNE, Jan. 6.—Peace or war was the grave issue placed squarely before the Near East Conference today. Ismet Pasha for Turkey brought this issue concisely before the delegates, when, after refusing all Allied suggestions concerning special courts for foreigners in Turkey, he declared solemnly:

"Gentlemen, the key to peace lies in your hands."

Lord Curzon, accepting the challenge, retorted:

"If peace is to come to Lausanne, it is essential that some arrangement on the question of foreign tribunals be arrived at," and he added significantly: "We hope that time will soften the Turkish attitude and that Turkey will not maintain her position of today."

PASHA PRAISES CHILD

The discussion took place before the full commission on capitulations, which adjourned without reaching any accord on the most vital question on the Lausanne agenda and without fixing a date for the next meeting. The debate on capitulations, during which Ismet Pasha praised the American Ambassador, Mr. Child, for his recent "eloquent address" to the conference on the question of the foreign judicial system, was dignified throughout and marked by no evidence of ill feeling. In this respect it differed greatly from the morning session, which took up the problem of providing a national home for Armenians.

Angry at the Allies' attempt to bring the Armenian question into the official discussion, Riza Nur Bey, the second Turkish delegate, delivered a short but violent attack on the Allies, then brusquely marched out of the hall.

RETURNS WITH SMILE

In consequence of this, Lord Curzon, Mr. Barrere and Marquis di Garroni forwarded a strong letter of protest to Ismet Pasha, requesting the head of the Turkish delegation to write some explanation of his colleague's conduct. Riza Nur Bey, who usually says the caustic things for the Turks when the Turks believe they must be said, was not daunted by the Allied protest, but appeared smiling and gracious at the afternoon meeting when the fateful problem of capitulations was discussed.

The unfortunate incident of the morning, which followed the Allies' request that Turkey give her attention, from the humanitarian point of view, to the question of providing a national home for the Armenians, produced a bad impression. Ismet Pasha's dignified rejection of the Allies proposals on capitulations only served to aggravate this impression.

Riza Nur refused to listen to suggestions regarding Armenia and accused the Allies of intriguing with Armenians and Assyro-Chaldeans during the great war. That is why the Allies felt morally bound to do something for them.

COURT PLAN HIT

In refusing to accept the transitory period in which Turkey would permit foreigners to be tried before Turkish courts with foreign judges present on the bench, Ismet Pasha declared that this would be counter to Turkish sovereignty.

No country in the world, he pointed out, permitted foreign magistrates to administer justice, and the Turkish judicial system offered ample protection to foreigners desirous of carrying on business in Turkey. Turkey stood ready to make separate agreements with powers concerning foreigners, with the understanding that they be based on the kind of stipulations agreed upon with any other nations.

Marquis di Garroni of Italy, replying to Ismet Pasha, voiced the Allied disappointment. The Allies had asked for only temporary guarantees until the world had time to have faith in the Turkish judicial system.

Lord Curzon and M. Barrere, speaking for Great Britain and France, supported Marquis di Garroni and evidenced by their manner and words their deep chagrin at the Turkish attitude.

CHIEF'S MIND ON EUROPE

President's Ideas Told by Fess

Ohio Senator-Elect in New York Says Executive Concern Deep

"American Business" Suggested to Throw Life-Line of Money Overseas

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 6. — President Harding is deeply concerned over the grave turn of events in Europe resulting from the collapse of the conference of premiers in Paris, Senator-elect Simeon D. Fess of Ohio told the National Republican Club today at a discussion of present foreign policy.

His address was interpreted by many as an intimate revelation of the administration's position in the critical period, particularly an assertion that "he should foster the calling of an economic conference."

"We thought a commission of experts to pass on the facts in relation to reparations might be welcome," he said, "but the suggestion was not welcome, and it seems to me the door now is closed. Therefore, what we may now do is not very encouraging."

Senator Fess drew the fire of Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey, when he said:

"We believe that the financing of Europe should not be done by any action of the government, but by American business."

Speaking as a Democrat, Mr. Morgenthau termed the proposed nonofficial reparations commission "a deliberate attempt by the Republican administration to pass the buck at this critical period in the world's affairs to the business men of America."

PREDICTION MADE

Mr. Morgenthau spoke frankly to the Republicans in defense of former President Wilson's policy. He predicted his party would return to power in two years and would find a way to participate actively in European affairs.

Albert W. Krech, president of the Equitable Trust Company, another speaker, held the view that permanent peace in Europe could be established only by putting the currencies of all European nations on a gold basis in direct ratio to the present purchasing power of their existing currencies.

The American people, he declared, "had a moral responsibility in the world's affairs quite apart from their material interests."

Senator-elect Fess asserted that the "crisis in Western Europe is the question we are all thinking deeply about now."

FRANCE DISCUSSED

"I do not know," he said, "whether or not France has closed the door to us; whether the premiers of the Allied nations have

CITY WANTS CASE OPENED

Appeal for Rehearing in Plaza and Grade Crossing Matter Made to Supreme Court by City Attorney

City Attorney Stephens yesterday forwarded to the California Supreme Court on behalf of the city of Los Angeles an application for a rehearing of the court's recent decision setting aside the order of the State Railroad Commission. This directed the railroads to eliminate grade crossings here and to establish and use a union passenger depot at the Plaza.

The Railroad Commission will file at once a similar application for a rehearing of the Plaza case, and in the event that the Supreme Court declines to grant the pleas, the city and the Railroad Commission will take the entire matter to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Ultimate victory for the city and the State Railroad Commission was predicted yesterday by Mr. Stephens.

The application for a rehearing, which was prepared by City Attorney Stephens in co-operation with Deputy City Attorney Milton Bryan and Special Counsel Max Thelen, says:

"It is a serious matter for a court to make an order, the practical effect of which is to deprive a State of its police powers with reference to the regulation of its railroads. The effect of the order herein is to hold that the State of California has lost its police powers as to all matters of railroad freight and passenger service, even in purely local matters, and even in the absence of any action by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"We are confident that when this court gives further careful consideration to this matter and satisfies itself that the order of the Railroad Commission herein does not cover any subject matter as to which jurisdiction has been conferred upon the Interstate Commerce Commission, and that, even if such were not the case, the Interstate Commerce Commission has made no order, as provided by the Transportation Act, this court will conclude that this is a proper case for the granting of a rehearing so that further careful consideration may be given to matters which are of vital importance to the city of Los Angeles and to the State of California."

The city's application declares that the California Supreme Court erred in a number of instances, among which was the declaration of the court that the California commission's order was in violation of the Federal Transportation Act. It cites numerous legal cases to substantiate the city's statement that the Federal laws were not violated by the California commission's Plaza terminal order. City Attorney Stephens's request for a rehearing sets forth also that the and seated at all points in the courtroom, and with the Mer Rouge men, disarmed and grouped together in the little north gallery, the session continued until noon. It was then the order came from the Attorney-General at Washington. In the afternoon the Federal operatives carried two guns each. A little later the judge issued this order:

"The report that the court issued an order to disarm the special agents employed by the government to work in this case is absolutely without foundation. The court ordered that no one be permitted to enter the courtroom armed except the Sheriff and the deputies on duty. I have subsequently modified this order so as to permit the special agents of the government to remain armed while in the courtroom, not because I think they are in danger, but for a reason which I think is good."

JUDGE SHOWS TEMPER

The judge was asked to explain the reason which he "thinks is good," but he declined. He said he didn't have to discuss his actions. The judge was not aware that the order of Atty.-Gen. Daugherty had become public.

Dr. McKoin spent the afternoon in court. He heard himself classified as a member of the Klan and indicated in the sworn testimony of J. L. Daniel as a hooded member of the Klan crew which once captured and disarmed Daniel and a number of his friends.

McKoin reached Bastrop early. He paid a number of personal calls and then visited friends in Monroe. At noon he returned to Bastrop. Before the afternoon session began he was holding an impromptu salon in the south gallery of the courtroom. He was accompanied by a few friends. Several women left their seats on the main floor to hasten to his gallery. One elderly woman kissed him fervently. Several young men shook hands with him. Throughout all this the doctor, who is accused of having, by an alleged bogus report of an attempt at assassination on himself, precipitated the Klan war which resulted in the murders of two of the best known young men in Mer Rouge, laughed and talked without reserve to his friends. He refused to make a public statement.

When the judge's gavel fell, McKoin took on a serious mein. His face relieved of the disguises of laughter and conversation, seemed to relax into an ashen gray. He alternately sat back in his chair and leaned forward with deep interest. He was obviously agitated, though, from time to time he leaned back and attempted a droll sally with a gaunt man who sat next to him.

DRAMA OF THE DAY

Old Mr. Daniel spoke the drama of the day. And it was just at the peak when court adjourned until Tuesday. Monday is a holiday in celebration of Gen. Jackson's victory in New Orleans. The old man, in his tired, halting sentences, once again has told the story of the 24th of August. He was trying, in his gentle, polite way, to answer the questions of the attorneys; he used the small, hesitating gestures that seem to say, "Oh, what's the use," and he was dropping into an occasional and unconscious phrase about Watt; what Watt said and what he said to Watt; Watt called him "papa" as is the custom of grown-up children here; and the thing came out that made the courtroom sit up and stare at McKoin, hunched down in his gallery chair.

"I have paid McKoin hundreds of dollars in doctors' bills," he was saying. "We were fellow-Masons. Watt was one of his best friends. One day Watt told me that he and two other boys had been surrounded by a crew of masked Klux on the road. And he said that he knew one of the men was McKoin. He told me another one of them was Capt. Skipwith. And he named a third man."

"Who was that third man?" asked Asst. Atty.-Gen. Guion.

"That was Lorry Calhoun."

CROWD "SITS UP"

That made the courtroom sit up. It made Dr. McKoin turn a shade grayer. It caused the Sheriff to clear his throat. Skipwith is the Cyclops of the Klan. He stuck his head into the courtroom this morning. It was just for a moment. He came gingerly down the center aisle for a few steps, tossed a newspaper to his son, who sat there, turned and retraced his steps to the corridor.

Watt Daniel had recognized him in that band of masked marauders. McKoin, his laughter changed to a gray note, also had been recognized. And the third was Lorry Calhoun. He is a deputy sheriff, the one sent to Baltimore to bring McKoin back to Bastrop. But because the charges against McKoin were withdrawn on agreement, Calhoun wasn't needed. But he was that deputy.

Thus, on sworn testimony, and more introduced earlier in the day, the Ku Klux Klan and its methods have been definitely brought before the court. They were defined just before old Mr. Daniel began his testimony by W. C. Andrews. He, too, told of that August 24, which to so stamped into the minds of the Mer Rouge people.

KLAN DEFINITELY NAMED

The attorneys thereafter used the word "Klan" without restraint. This is the top of the first hill. It has been expected that trouble would come when the name Klan appeared in the records. But the State softly guided its case up this first hill and the name of the mysterious order of the Invisible Empire, under which the masked men have operated in Morehouse Parish, trickled into the proceedings so gently that before any were aware it had become as definitely a part of the daily grind as the very asking of questions itself.

The corpus delicti has been established. This was the first task of the State.

And it was the task which the Klansmen have regarded as hopeless. Skipwith has repeatedly declared from his impoverished throne room in the court square that it was ridiculous to suppose that anyone of ordinary understanding could identify bodies held under water for four months; and even if they could it was utter rot to charge that such bodies could give evidence of mutilation or torture before death.

"Never heard of such foolishness," he is wont to say. "Why, them bodies has been in La Fourche for four month. And more than a ton of dynamite has been dropped in there. There ain't any such thing as recognizing them. I understand the medical men have found evidence of broken bones and other mutilations. It sounds ridiculous."

KLAN GETS BLOW

If this is the plan of the defense it met a sad blow when Dr. Lanford took the stand. More than fifteen minutes was required to establish the professional capacity of Dr. Lanford. He has been a student in the leading medical schools of the country. He is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, a student in Rockefeller Institute, Harvard University and now is a professor in Tulane University. He showed a record of more than 6000 autopsies.

With this base for expert testimony, Dr. Lanford continued with his detailed testimony. It is contained in the written report made by him and Charles W. Duvall.

Coolly, scientifically, Daniel and Richards were crushed to death by hooded terrorists, the pathologists declared. With barbarous ingenuity hands, heads and feet were wrenched from the battered bodies, the scientific statement explains.

Scientific means were used to break each arm in three places and then the chest cavities of the helpless victims—one a World War veteran and the other his friend—were smashed in by "pressure applied from front and from back," the witness declared.

The most gruesome outrages in the pages of history were outdone that night behind the veil of dense foliage in a sheltered spot in the wooded section near Mer Rouge after Daniel's father had been brutally beaten and two others had been severely flogged by the masked brutes.

The Spanish Inquisition, Turkish outrages and tortures of Apaches in the '49 days were far less inhuman than the tragedy of that black night as described in Louisiana's noted public hearing.

DANIEL MUTILATED

Cloaked in the unemotional language of the man of science, also was described a crude operation, a revolting butchery, which had been performed on Daniel before his life was viciously crushed out. It was a story that evidently was charitable to the band of murderers.

Then, the remains were wired to iron wheels and cast into Lake La Fourche.

The two reports are practically identical, except that the crude operation performed on Daniel was not committed in the case of Richards.

Courtroom interest was immediately drawn to the tragic souvenirs of the night of August 24 by the entrance of soldiers bearing portions of the remains of Daniel and Richards.

While the report of the medical examiners was introduced as evidence, it was only fragmentary when compared to the expanded explanation of Drs. Lanford and Duval. The physicians elaborated on their explanation by pointing out in the bones of the victims the undeniable evidence of the extreme brutality.

Old J. L. Daniel, father of Watt, sat gravely by the side of Adjt.-Gen. Toombs as the medical men described in all distressing detail of clinical frankness the savagery that must have been practiced on the bodies of the victims in order to produce the fractures shown by the mute human fragments.

GOVERNOR HAD "GOODS"

NEW ORLEANS (La.) Jan. 6.—That knowledge three months ago of the horrifying manner in which two Louisiana citizens had been put to death by their fellowmen prevented Gov. Parker resting until he had at least used all the State's power to ferret out the guilty, was believed here tonight as the principal cause for the months of tireless effort on the part of the State's chief executive.

While it was the general opinion until several weeks ago that Daniel and Richards had fled from Morehouse after being severely flogged, Gov. Parker insisted the bodies of the men were wallowing at the bottom of Lake La Fourche after the men had been tortured to death.

"Certain terrorizing outrages have been committed; horrifying crimes have been reported," the Governor was quoted as saying during a visit to Washington six weeks ago when he sought Federal intervention in handling masked band activities in the State.

CALLED OUT TROOPS

It was this belief that the mutilated bodies of the two men were held down by weights at the bottom of the lake that prompted the Governor in calling out National Guard troops to assist in exploring the bottoms.

The Governor's visit to Washington, preceded by a newspaper article given wide publication, that the "Klan had reduced the sovereign State of Louisiana to the vassalage of the Invisible Empire," which was immediately denied by the Governor, drew sharp criticism on the floor of the national Congress.

"The scurrilous story which seriously reflects on the State of Louisiana is false," Representative Aswell said. "It is entirely proper for the Attorney-General of Louisiana to come here and seek the aid of the Department of Justice in law enforcement, but it is another question for the Governor of Louisiana to inflict irreparable injury on the State.

"To the regret of our people the Governor of Louisiana with his insatiable thirst for publicity is responsible for the great injury done our State."

TELLS VIEWS ON STOCKYARDS

Live-Stock Expert Believes Federal Control Will Insure Open Market

In addition to other timely features, today's Times Farm and Tractor has secured a well-known live-stock expert's view of the Federal control of packers and stockyards. A. L. Spellmeyer, who is in close touch with the situation, believes that recent stockyards legislation will insure an open market, free to the small producer as well as the larger ones, where manipulation and discrimination will not be tolerated.

Mr. Spellmeyer also believes that the hostility on the part of the California Cattlemen's Association toward the local stockyards could be better employed in co-operating with government forces to solve some of the production problems of the industry. His article will be read with interest by live-stock producers, and by distributors and consumers as well.

COTTON MILLS PROJECTED

Los Angeles to Become Important Center for Making Standard Cloths; Local Men in Enterprise

Cotton mills of a caliber to rival those of the largest textile manufacturing centers of the eastern and southern portions of the United States, are planned for Los Angeles by a group comprising some of the most widely known business men and financiers in the Southwest.

The enterprise is fairly under way, and officers have already been elected. Edward M. Fowler, president of Edward M. Fowler and Company, cotton merchants and exporers, will be president of the new company; W. H. Whiteside, chief executive of the Westinghouse Electric Company for the Pacific Coast, is to be vice-president, and R. I. Rogers, vice-president of the Merchants National Bank of Los Angeles, will be treasurer. The mills are to be known as the Los Angeles Cotton Mills.

SUBSCRIPTIONS AWAITED

The company has not yet been incorporated, and will not be until subscriptions equalling one-half of the capital stock, $2,000,000, have been received. Immediately after the receipt of the requisite subscriptions, construction work will start on two units of the eight-unit mills. Each unit is to consist of 5000 spindles.

The mills are to be erected on a site in the Eastlake district, near El Monte boulevard. It is estimated that $100 per spindle will be sufficient to construct the mills and to provide primary operating costs. Should $100 prove to be too small an amount for the purpose, John B. Miller, president of the Southern California Edison Company, R. I. Rogers, W. H. Whiteside, Edward M. Fowler, and H. H. Cotton, guarantee such extra funds as shall be necessary to carry raw cotton, yarn and cloth for a period of five years, up to $400,000.

Among the articles manufactured in the Los Angeles Cotton Mills will be lightweight twills, cotton sheeting, dimities, organdies, cotton flannels, scrim, toweling and pillow casing.

Los Angeles is an attractive and logical site for such mills, in the opinion of the organizers, for many reasons, but principally because of the great supply of raw material at hand and because of the lack of manufactories to supply the immense western demand for such products.

SENATE ASKS TROOPS' RETURN

requested nor directed by the Reed resolution to recall the troops.

WILL RENEW FIGHT

Anticipating the possibility of the President's failing to act at once Senator Reed and others announced tonight they would renew the fight when the Army appropriation bill came before the Senate. They will undertake to strike out any and all appropriations for maintenance of the Army of Occupation by inserting a specific provision that no funds shall be available for that purpose.

To some observers there was a certain touch of travesty in the Senate performance. At precisely the same moment the Senate was voting to recall the troops, which have been a stabilizing influence in Europe, it was giving consideration to a proposal to have the United States go into the reparations commission to promote stabilization. One represented extreme isolation; the other "involvement" in Europe's knottiest problem. If the Senate program were carried out the American reparations delegates bound for Europe would meet the American soldiers returning home.

As originally presented the resolution "requested" the President to order the troops back home. Modifications suggested by Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska and Senator New of Indiana were accepted. The resolution as finally passed read as follows:

"Resolved, that it is the sense of the Senate of the United States that the President should order the immediate return to the United States of all troops of the United States now stationed in Germany.

"In giving this expression of its opinion the Senate disavows any unfriendly or partisan attitude toward any nation or nations of Europe."

Senator Lodge said he had favored for a long time the withdrawal of the American troops on the Rhine.

LODGE FOR WITHDRAWAL

"I never have changed my view of that point at all," said Senator Lodge, "and I think they all should have been taken away when the great bulk of the troops were removed, as they were, more than a year ago. My only hesitation about this resolution is the moment at which it is offered.

"Just at this moment a situation has arisen in which I should be very sorry to see the United States take sides—I do not mean as between France and Germany but as between France and Great Britain, who have come to a break on the question of the settlement of the reparations.

"We have an indirect interest which is protected entirely by our unofficial observers who have been there; but I feel that it would be very unfortunate if anything we do today should be construed as taking sides. That is my only objection to the resolution. I think the troops ought to be withdrawn. I wish they had been withdrawn long ago, and that we should put an end to that phase of our connection with the late war."

"I am not here to prophesy a great European war," said Senator Reed of Missouri, "but it is apparent today that there is grave danger of France invading Germany and seizing a large part of that country. If France does that the press informs us she will do so in opposition to the will of Great Britain.

"The press tells us the Greco-Turkish war is to be resumed. We all know to our satisfaction that Great Britain has been morally, if not financially supporting the Turk. With this state of affairs every prudent man must recognize the fact that Europe today is in a highly inflammable state and that trouble may break out at any time."

"PSYCHOLOGICAL MOMENT"

It was Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska who suggested then that the resolution be changed to express "the sense of the Senate" that the troops should be withdrawn instead of "requesting" the President to order them back. He said the "psychological moment" had arrived for some one to say that the troops should be withdrawn.

The fears of Mr. Reed for the American troops in the present crisis were not shared by Senator Wadsworth of New York, who pointed out they were far from the scene of contemplated activities and that this country had maintained troops in China under somewhat similar circumstances.

Senator New of Indiana favored the general proposition of the withdrawal of the American troops on the Rhine but suggested the resolution contain a disavowal of any partisan motive on the part of this country with respect to the nations of Europe. That was then accepted by Mr. Reed.

The Reed resolution was attacked sharply by Senator Jones of New Mexico, as contemplating "a most extraordinary action" for the Senate under the circumstances.

court failed to give heed to the Railroad Commission's finding of fact, which was as follows:

"The existing grade crossings of the Southern Pacific's tracks on Alameda street, between College street and East Fifteenth street, inclusive, in the city of Los Angeles, and also the Macy, Aliso and Seventh-street grade crossings at the Los Angeles River, are unsafe; the continued use thereof for the movement of trains by the respective carriers and the public generally; and public interest, safety, convenience and necessity require that all such dangerous conditions at said crossings be eliminated.

"The existing passenger stations of the Santa Fe and the Salt Lake are improper, inadequate and insufficient to promote the security, convenience and necessity of the public. The existing passenger depot of the Southern Pacific at the Arcade site does not conform to the plan for the elimination of said dangerous railroad grade crossings in the city of Los Angeles found by the commission to be required by public safety, convenience and necessity."

Based upon this statement of facts, the California Railroad Commission issued an order in exercise of the police power of the State and in the interest of public safety and convenience, that the union passenger station at the Plaza should be built and used. The Supreme Court, the City Attorney declares in his application, annulled the commission's order and illegally substituted the court's own judgment for the finding of the commission in a "matter as to which the record contains substantial and, we believe, preponderating evidence, in support of the Railroad Commission's finding."

FRENCH WORRY AS TO AMERICA

ure of these would paralyze any German effort to react or resist.

The French troops already on the Rhine are used to the occupation, have knowledge of the German language and are accustomed to dealings with the Germans. Therefore there is expected to be less friction. Infantry forces have been heavily reinforced, and also armored cars tanks, aviation and some cavalry patrol, but little artillery is deemed necessary.

Emphasis is laid on the fact that the troops will be used chiefly for policing and protecting French officials and workers. Recent attacks on Allied officials in Germany and Bavaria have accentuated the need for safeguarding any foreigners engaged in supervising and controlling affairs.

Premier Poincare expects the reinforcement of a small contingent of Belgians as material evidence of their solidarity, like a single battalion sent to Frankfort in 1920, but not a large force. It is not expected that Italy will be represented militarily, but Italian officials are expected to be included in the Allied committees.

The first signs of coming trouble were reported today, the miners in the Ruhr threatening to strike on the grounds of insufficient pay and bad food. The French plans for the seizure of the zone embrace the provisioning the Ruhr miners to a certain extent, permitting them to purchase their foodstuffs from co-operatives. The value would be deducted from their wages, and if they strike they will not be paid.

The Temps today announces that the exact date of the application of military measures and gages will be kept secret to facilitate pacific operations and avoid incidents. Gen. Buat, chief of staff of the army, virtually has concluded arrangements to carry out Marshal Foch's and Gen. Weygand's operations, and troops already have been moved to the Mayence region to replace units sent forward. The troops in the Ruhr will be sent down the Rhine to Dusseldorf, which already is occupied, as the jumping-off point.

The declaration that Germany is in default of coal deliveries was postponed today following the German delegates' demand to make explanations to the reparations commission. The reparations commission decided to permit Herr Bergmann and Herr Fischer to appear in the Hotel Astor Monday and state their case.

From German sources it is intimated that the German delegates may submit new offers for reparations payments in 1923. Germany is willing to accept a two-year moratorium if the payments in kind are included with the cessation of cash installments, but it rejects gages.

Premier Poincare today outlined the plan of sanctions against Germany to President Millerand and the Cabinet, who indorsed it.

The French President announces that military operations are envisaged sufficient to afford protection to the French technical committees and customs collectors, as well as general control officials.

WARNED LOUISIANAN LOS ANGELES BOUND

SHREVEPORT (La.) Jan. 6.—Warned by a mysterious telephone message to leave here before today, Charles Papa, storekeeper, left late last night for Los Angeles, accompanied by this family, it was learned today.

The departure of Papa came as a sequel to the disappearance last Wednesday of Leslie Leggett, negro, who is said to have resided at the Papa home. Leggett's bullet-riddled body was found Thursday in a near-by wood.

BALTIMORE BANKER DIES

BALTIMORE (Md.) Jan. 6.—John R. Bland, founder and president of the United States Fidelity and Guarantee Company and one of Baltimore's leading financiers, died this evening.

patronage plain. In his campaign against the machine Mr. Richardson asserted many times that he would not, after smashing the old organization, build up one of his own to fatten upon the public purse and thus, in refusing to continue in effect one of the fundamental policies of the machine, he has met the first test successfully.

Mr. Richardson has interested himself, in fact, in but one contest relating to legislative procedure—the speakership—and in doing this he has made plain his desire to have a Speaker free from machine domination and willing to assist the new Governor in his constructive plan for better government at a reasonable cost to the governed.

The extreme bitterness of the fight upon Mr. Merriam and the do-or-die attitude of the McCabe followers have resulted in encouraging a number of hopeful Assemblymen to advance themselves as possible compromise candidates for Speaker, among them Assemblyman Cleary, Coombs and Prendergast. There are others, too, each with his political lightning rod erected for favorable eventualities, but the Merriam bloc of fifty-five votes appears substantial enough to avert the hoped-for debacle. With Merriam elected Speaker the Richardson administration will be launched under auspicious circumstances. Election of Senator Arthur H. Breed of Oakland as president pro tem. of the Senate is assured. The Oakland Legislator has the support of the Richardson adherents in the upper house and has indicated his desire to do all in his power to co-operate with the new administration.

Because of the customary delay in canvassing the votes cast in the last general election and other activities incident to organization of the two legislative houses, it seems probable that Mr. Richardson will not take his oath of office before next Tuesday.

He has received his certificate of election signed by the Secretary of State and by the retiring Governor, but will not officially become responsible for State government in California until his formal oath of office taken before the two houses in joint session. Gov. Stephens will remain in office until his successor is sworn in at the joint meeting of Senators and Assemblymen.

Mr. Richardson's inaugural address will be brief and will discuss the important administrative and legislative problems facing the next executive and the new legislature. The keynote of his address will be economy with efficiency. Quite the opposite of the incoming Governor's to-the-point remarks, it is understood, the retiring Governor's "farewell" address will be of unusual length and will contain a general and specific defense of his entire administration.

More than half of the 120 Senators and Assemblymen are now in Sacramento awaiting the formal organization of the Legislature Monday. From their general conversation in hotel and Capitol lobbies and corridors, it appears that each has a separate and distinct idea of just what California needs most to make it the best and safest and grandest State in the Union. Rumbles of a contentious and recriminative battle on reappointment are to be heard.

Upon one thing alone all seem to be agreed—that the weather is just what was expected and fully as disagreeable as upon any former and similar occasion.

HARDING'S MIND ON EUROPE'S WOE

barred us from further participation in Europe's troubled affairs is in doubt. We do know that the French newspapers do not accept our suggestion of having an economic commission pass on the reparations problem.

"If that represents the stand of the French government, then I say that for the present the door is closed against the United States and it cannot act. We have faced no such problem as that closed door in our time, and perhaps in any time in our history."

Mr. Fess said no country felt the failure of buying power more than Great Britain and because of that her overseas commerce did not return to normal.

England's remedy is a revival of markets hence her concern in the revival of German industry and Russian prosperity," he added. "Her request for a reduction of the burden of Germany is not an excuse for Germany's guilt, nor a lack of appreciation of France's just claim. It is not a desire to relieve Germany for her own sake nor to deprive France of needed reparation, but rather a selfish demand to assure relief to British commerce and the employment of her unemployed. The economic necessity of Britain calls for a rejuvenation of the industrial world including the Central Powers and Russia.

All that England is concerned about, he said, is the world's buying power and she wants it restored at all costs for her own self-preservation.

"France, on the other hand," he continued, "sees only the work of devastation of war's hideous destruction, of the terrorism of German militarism; so she demands that Germany be compelled to make good what the Treaty of Versailles specifically gives her the power to collect with her army, if necessary."

Commerce Secretary Prefers to Finish Work Already Undertaken

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—An offer by President Harding to transfer Secretary Hoover from the Commerce to the Interior Department was declined by Mr. Hoover today because, as he said in a public statement, he has undertaken a departmental reorganization and "the job is not yet complete."

Mr. Hoover's statement follows:

"I actually feel highly complimented by the suggestion of the President and by the large representation from the Western States that I should undertake the direction of the Department of the Interior with its large program of development in the West.

"The President entirely agrees with me, however, that the Secretaryship of Commerce at the present time is of the utmost importance, not only because of the necessity of building up a department that really will meet the service needs of the whole community, but also in view of the economic problems growing out of the war.

"The reorganization of the department has made great progress, but the job is not complete. Many questions before the Administra-

WHO HAS JOB FOR ROSCOE?

Pastors Suggest Reform by Work but Fatty is Positively Incoherent at Mere Thought

If Roscoe Arbuckle is not to go back on the screen it is natural that he is rather concerned about what he is going to do, and, his friends say, he is rather concerned about the matter. With the view of assisting the fat cinema clown in his selection of fitting employment, The Times yesterday inquired about it from several of the city's ministers, who so ardently are fighting against Arbuckle's continuation of his chosen profession.

The statement of the Church Federation issued the other day decried Mr. Arbuckle as a "notorious roue," but declared he should be given a chance to reform.

"There probably is not a pastor in Los Angeles," said the statement, "who would not make gladly every effort to help him clean up and stay clean, and to help him find honorable employment."

② A FULL-FLEGED PLUMBER OR—
③ A REAL-ESTATE DEALER OR—
④ PROBABLY WILL RETURN TO THE MOVIES AS A DIRECTOR

The problem consequently presented itself of just what honorable employment might be in Mr. Arbuckle's case. The Rappe murder case, in which he was accused and acquitted and which started all of Mr. Arbuckle's nowaday troubles, brought out the intelligence that the comedian before his pie-throwing days was a porter in a saloon. To this employment, however honorable it may be since it entails only physical work, and of the meanest sort, Mr. Arbuckle cannot return for the simple reason that there are no saloons. The corresponding job in present day society might be a bus boy in a cafeteria, where the atmosphere is completely respectable and not even smoking is allowed. But Mr. Arbuckle's friends point out that he would suffer greatly through a return to work that would bring a small income, since he has acquired a love for silken underwear and scent in the bath and other quite innocent niceties of upper life.

ONCE WAS PLUMBER

"I understand Arbuckle used to be a plumber," said Rev. J. A. Stevenson, executive secretary of the Church Federation, evidently seeking some highly paid work that the comedian might enter. "But really I am only informed of it, and do not know. I always say that a man can't get a position until he takes a job, and I suppose Arbuckle will have to start with something like that."

Rev. R. P. Shuler D. D. has something practical as a suggestion. "Why not the real estate business?" asks the pastor. "I should think Arbuckle would be attractive in it and could get a lot of people to go out in the buses. That wouldn't affect public morals in any way."

Rev. J. Witcomb Brougher, D. D. sees no reason why Mr. Arbuckle should not stay in pictures, but as a director.

"The idea in objecting to his continuing on the screen," he explains, "is that his face and figure would be idealized by boys and girls, and sometimes older women make heroes of film stars. As I said before I see no reason why Arbuckle, if he leaves booze and wild parties and for a year lives clean and his reformation becomes a fact, he should not go back as an actor. But in the meatime why could he not be a director, and put the genius he used in acting into combinations for others to do?"

WHY NOT BUSINESS

Rev. Hugh K. Walker, D. D. president of the Church Federation, was at a loss to suggest any specific employment for the actor.

"But," he said, "if he has an ordinary education—I really do not know whether he has or not—I should think he could go into business. If he is physically fit—I understand he is a fat man like myself—he could do some out-door work. I would be glad to help Arbuckle in any way; my only point is that he should not continue as a public entertainer."

As an afterthought the matter was put to Mr. Arbuckle himself. But he was positively incoherent about it.

VERDICT OF DICTIONARY IS UPHELD

Defendant Looks Up Word Drunk; Court Sustains Definition

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, Jan. 6.—W. G. Roberts was before Police Judge Rennie this morning on a charge of being drunk.

"What plea do you enter?" asked hizzoner.

"I don't know, judge," returned the defendant.

"That's funny," said the court. "I should think you would know whether you were drunk. Please explain."

The defendant paused a long moment before he replied in a subdued voice:

"Well, judge, it's this way. I looked up the word drunk in the dictionary and it said 'under the influence of intoxicants.' Taking into consideration the stuff I had been drinking and the way I was feeling at the time I was arrested I don't really know whether I literally was drunk or not."

"We will surmise," Judge Rennie returned, "that you were drunk and fine you $10."

And as he wended his way out of the courtroom the judge added, apparently as an after-thought:

"It might be a good idea for you to carry that dictionary with you hereafter and study it more carefully."

Italy to Raise Standing Army to 250,000 Men

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ROME, Jan. 6.—Italy will raise its standing army from 150,000 men to 250,000. A bill was presented at the Council of Ministers by Gen. Diaz, Minister of War, proposing that the duration of obligatory service for all able youths must be eighteen months instead of eight months and three months as first planned.

Gen. Diaz said it was impossible to train men for military service according to modern scientific warfare in less than eighteen months. He asserted that France and Jugo-Slavia have even longer terms.

Gen. Diaz's bill, however, provides for long leaves of absence for peasants in harvest and sowing times and also for those exceptionally important for the nation and for those who have dependents.

APPROPRIATION BILL SMALLER

Independent Offices Measure Shows Reduction

Amount Asked is Below Even Budget Figure

Veterans' Bureau Gets the Largest Part

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The independent offices appropriation bill, making provision for the office of President and the various independent establishments of the government, was reported to the House today, carrying $498,235,771, which represents a reduction of $42,275,151 under last year's bill and a scaling down of the budget figures by $12,105,242.

The largest item in the bill is $428,160,773 for the Veterans' Bureau, which is $10,096,929 more than appropriated last year, but $12,152,227 less than the budget estimates. Reductions were made in the budget provisions for military and naval compensation, medical and hospital services, vocational rehabilitation and minor items, but the military and naval insurance appropriation of $90,000,000 and additional allowances for salaries and other expenses increased the total above that of last year.

The appropriation for the Shipping Board, $50,411,500, includes $50,000,000 for the emergency shipping fund.

The National Advisory Committee for aeronautics would receive $283,000 under the bill, an increase of $73,000. The Interstate Commerce Commission is allotted $4,564,500.

The full Appropriations Committee inserted a proviso in the Veterans' Bureau item that "no part fo the appropriation should be expended in purchasing sites for new hospitals or for constructing or buying new hospitals. Provision was made, however, for improving present hospital facilities.

Appropriations for the 1924 activities of the Department of Agriculture were increased $3,833,000 to a total of $72,900,000 by the Senate Appropriations Committee in reporting today the annual agricultural budget. The total is an increase of $26,000,000 over current appropriations and $3,370,000 over the Budget Bureau's requests.

Of the Senate increases $3,500,000 was for construction of forest roads and trials and $273,600 for extension of the Department of Agriculture daily telegraph market report service across the entire country to the Pacific Coast. No important changes were made in other appropriations.

Two-Named Man Wants Double License to Wed

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 6.—Miss Lillie Belle Grubbs, marriage license clerk in County Clerk Clayton's office, was taken back somewhat this morning when a couple came into the office and the young man requested "two marriage licenses."

Miss Grubbs explained that one license was sufficient legally to marry the ordinary couple, but the blushing groom—not the bride in this case—declared he was aware of the fact, but his case was rather unusual.

His name, he said, was Gerard Vande Gorberg, but for business reasons he had seen fit to drop his last name and for the past twelve years had been transacting real estate business in Los Angeles under the name of Gerard Vande. He explained that as he had two names, one by which he was known and the other totally unknown to California records, he desired two licenses, one for each name, in order to be sure he was married legally.

The license clerk, after some persuasion, finally led him to the belief that one license, giving his true name, would be just as effective as two, at half the cost.

PRESIDENT HAYES LEAVES FOR SEATTLE

PASSENGER ACCOMMODATIONS TAXED FOR FIRST TRIP IN NEW SERVICE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—The Shipping Board steamer President Hayes, departed from here today under the house flag of Swayne & Hoyt, San Francisco shippers, to inaugurate a combined freight and passenger service between the Pacific Coast of the United States and the east coast of South America. The President Hayes leaves with the assurance that before she has cleared from her last Pacific port every cabin will be filled and the last available inch of cargo space will be taken.

The passengers, for the most part, will be made up of a trade delegation of Pacific Coast chambers of commerce, the steamer going first to Seattle to pick up the chamber party at that point. A big tonnage of apples from Washington and California will be part of the cargo.

When the President Hayes returns she will bring one of the first big consignments of South American grapes and other deciduous fruits back to the home ports. She has a cold-storage space approximating 1300 measurement tons, permitting the shipment of California fruits to South American markets.

CAPTAIN NOT SERVING TERM AS REPORTED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Capt. C. E. Black, in connection with whose prosecution by the government five El Paso merchants have been indicted in cases growing out of alleged fraudulent sale of government property at Fort Bliss, is not now serving a thirty months' term in Leavenworth penitentiary as was stated in the dispatch announcing the indictments, but is at liberty on bail and has six months to perfect his appeal.

Black was sentenced to two years and six months.

BANK THIEF MAKES HAUL WITH EASE

Scoops Up $8000 at Portland; Shortage Not Discovered for Hours

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Jan. 6.—More than $8000 in currency was stolen from the Ashley and Rumelin private bank just before the closing hour at noon today by a thief who opened a teller's wicket, scooped up al the money in sight and escaped. News of the robbery, at first suppressed by request of bank officials, was made public by police tonight.

The crime, according to officers working on the case, was executed so cleverly that it was not discovered for several hours. No employee of the bank was suspected, officers said.

H. G. Butts was the teller in charge of the booth from which the money was stolen. He left for lunch just before noon, leaving his window wicket unlocked but with the key in it. It was not until he started to make up his cash in mid-afternoon that he noticed the currency was gone from his counter. An investigation then disclosed that the wicket had been opened by someone from the lobby of the bank.

BOY DEAD FROM AUTO ACCIDENT

Another Painfully Hurt in Unusual Traffic Crash; Pole Falls on Him

Bernard Singar, 12 years of age, died at the Receiving Hospital yesterday evening two hours after an automobile accident near his home in which he received a skull fracture. He was unconscious when taken from under the wheels of the machine and failed to rally after surgical attention.

Police, investigating the death were told that young Singar was knocked to the pavement while crossing the intersection at Forty-ninth street and Vermont avenue. He lived at 5020 South Vermont avenue.

The automobile which struck the boy was driven by Mrs. L. Rudduck of 4906 Budlong avenue.

In another accident at the intersection of Western avenue and West Adams street, Regis Jones, 10 years of age, 2674 South Vermont avenue, suffered severe contusions and abrasions. An automobile driven by T. T. Ouderkirk, 2250 Twenty-ninth avenue, collided with a telephone pole. The pole snapped at the base and struck young Jones. He was attended at the Receiving Hospital by Dr. Dunsmoor.

Fake Lip-Fur Slips, Giving Swindler Away

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, Jan. 6.—Because of nervousness and the fact that black gum used in attaching a false mustache to his face became soft and showed about the edges, a man giving the name M. E. Metcalf failed to collect $5322 from the county of Orange here today on a forged warrant.

The man presented the warrant and it was about to be paid at the Treasurer's office when Mrs. Marjorie Joplin, chief clerk, noticed the man's mustache about to come off. She sent him to the Auditor's office next door to have the warrant verified. The man disappeared and an immediate search failed to locate him.

The warrant had been drawn to E. I. Crook of 411 West Pico street, Los Angeles, in payment for a tractor purchased by the county.

In some manner the warrant came into possession of Metcalf, who forged Crook's assignment. Two telephone messages, purporting to be from Crook, reached the Courthouse in regard to the warrant, prior to Metcalf's arrival. Crook this afternoon said the warrant never had reached him and that the messages were not from

WOMEN READY FOR LABOR CONFERENCE

DELEGATES FROM THIRTY-FIVE STATES TO MEET IN WASHINGTON

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Credentials of nearly 300 women, delegates from thirty-five States, have been issued by the Woman's Bureau of the Department of Labor, for the women's industrial conference which will open a three-day session next Thursday. The list includes State labor officials, women experts on industrial questions and industrial physicians, and representa more than fifty national organizations of women active in business, industrial, professional and civic affairs.

"What women workers mean to industry and what industry means to women workers" will be the subject for the first day's sessions, at which Secretary of Labor Davis will be the principal speaker.

Miss Mary Anderson, director of the women's bureau, which called the conference, will bring the delegates squarely up to the question of how to secure industrial equality for men and women.

"At present the wages of women are far below the wages of men," she declared, "and the longest hours and lowest wages are found, as a rule, in the industries that employ chiefly women. Generally speaking, the States where the eight-hour day prevails for both women and men are the States that have the eight-hour law for women. Likewise the best wages for women are found in the States that have minimum wage laws for women."

Litigio Petrolero en un Cementerio

Las revelaciones que se hicieron hoy de que una empresa cuyo nombre no ha podido saberse tiene el propósito de iniciar perforaciones en el Cementerio de Sunnyside, en busca de petróleo, precipitaron un litigio judicial que promete ser uno de los más reñidos en la historia del petróleo en California. El cementerio citado está en el distrito de Signal Hill.

La primera indicación de que iba a buscarse petróleo en el campo santo fué el haber visto esta mañana temprano buena cantidad de materiales, de los que se usan en la perforación de pozos, depositados junto a la orilla de la necrópolis. El terreno en donde van a comenzar los trabajos ha sido ya cercado con alta valla de madera, y dentro del cerco se ha descargado toda clase de maquinaria perforadora. No se sabe de qué compañía se tratará, pero se ha oído decir que una empresa petrolera ha estado gestionando por conducto del abogado George Spicer el arrendamiento de los terrenos del campo santo.

Hállase Preso Blessing

Charles J. Blessing que, según las autoridades federales, era el gerente del Sanatorio Barker, Calle North Gates, 145, en el que fué atendido Wallace Reid de manía de narcóticos, se ha entregado en San Francisco, el día de ayer, al Marshal Federal, como resultado de la orden de prisión dada contra él por el delito de violación de la Ley Harrison contra Narcóticos. Al propio tiempo, John Scott Barker, que, según las mismas autoridades, es dueño del referido sanatorio, así como de otro análogo en Oakland, compareció en esta ciudad, citado por la autoridad, y fué procesado por el mismo cargo que se le hizo en Oakland el martes. La fianza de Blessing será de $5000; la de Barker, había sido ya fijada en $7500.

La orden de aprehensión de Blessing fué firmada a raíz de la incautación de legajos de notas practicada la noche de año nuevo en las oficinas del Sanatorio de la Calle North Gates, legajos que fueron llevados a San Francisco por los Agentes Federales de Narcóticos.

DEPORTES

Pugilato

Kid Chili quiere un match con Benny Marks. Chili es uno de los más completitos boxeadores de la ciudad, y su encuentro con Benny Marks habría de resultar muy interesante.

Jimmy O'Neal, bravo pesogallo del este, se presentará la semana venidera en Vernon. Su apoderado, Carlo Curti, dice que, tan pronto como entre este muchacho en el tablado, mostrará a algunos de los aficionados de Los Angeles lo que es pelear como Dios manda.

Bud Ridley y Danny Kramer pelearán en Vernon la próxima semana en el número principal, para disputarse el campeonato de la costa del Pacífico. Kid Mexico y Tom Kelly se las verán en el penúltimo.

El marinero Smith combatirá con Eddie Gleason en las próximas peleas del Club Atlético. Será ése el más duro encuentro de la carrera de Gleason. Los dos adversarios están muy bien casados, y es de esperarse un buen asalto de campanillazo a campanillazo.

Baseball

En el clou de los juegos semiprofesionales de hoy, el Club Atlético de Cleary se encontrará con la novena de Standard-Murphy. Estos equipos han demostrado en pasados juegos que son de categoría, y es de esperarse que la lucha de hoy sea una verdadera tromba.

La triple división A de la Asociación de Empresarios presentará en el número principal a los de Sawtelle, que son los líderes de la liga, contra los Bailarines del Rose Room. Estos dos equipos tienen plazas que disputarse por lo cual se espera una ruda batalla.

Golf

Para últimos de semana hay preparado un torneo mixto de cuatro en el parque Griffith. Ya ha habido muchos inscritos, y siguen inscribiéndose más. Créese que logre hacerse de éste el más grande de los torneos que se han presentado.

"THE MIRACLE MAN OF FRANCE"

ARTICLE II

...right, 1922, United States, Great Britain, Canada and South America by ... Newspaper Alliance and New York World (Press Publishing Company). All rights reserved. Unlicensed reproduction in full or in part expressly ...ited.)

...fore beginning to explain the practical application of ...ggestion and the extremely simple method by which it ...ible for everyone to gain complete mastery over his or ... physical organism, I must speak of the all-important role ... imagination.

...ry to the generally ac... theory the will is not the ... force it is claimed to ... that, whenever Imagination ... come into conflict it is ... imagination that triumphs. ... do something while you are ... "I cannot do it"—and ... see this truth confirmed. ... idea of inability to ac... a thing paralyzes the will ...

...mastery is attained when ... imagination has been directed ... trained to conform with our ... for although, in one sense, ... imagination is contained in the ...ious, yet it dominates the ... and therefore, if we know ... to guide it, our subconscious self will take charge of our material being and do its work just as we wish it to be done; or in other words exactly in conformity with our conscious suggestions.

I cannot too strongly insist that, in the practice of autosuggestion the exercise of Will must be strictly avoided, except in the initial phase of directing or guiding the imagination on the desired lines. This is absolutely the only manifestation of Will necessary, or even desirable. Any other voluntary effort is positively harmful in connection with autosuggestion, and will almost certainly have a contrary effect to the one desired.

Analyze the so-called strong-willed characters of history: Napoleon, Caesar, etc. You will find that they were all men of big imagination. Certain ideas were implanted in their minds, and their tenacious suggestions impelled them to action.

This, however, is a disgression.

"CONVERTED EFFORT"

What I want to drive home for the moment is the law of what my friend Charles Baudouin calls "converted effort." Suppose a man suffering from insomnia decides to try the effect of autosuggestion. Unless previously warned, he will repeat to himself phrases like this: I want to sleep; I will sleep; I am going to sleep. And all the time he will be making desperate efforts to coax sleep. That is fatal. The very fact of exerting efforts has converted the latter into a force acting in a sense contrary to the original suggestion, with the result that the poor man tosses and turns in his bed in sleepless wretchedness.

Let the imagination do its work alone, unhindered. Be quite passive. Through mysterious, still unexplained processes, our subconscious self accomplishes its marvelous things. Think of the very commonest movements of the human body and ask yourselves how they are operated. What has set in motion the complicated mechanism when you stretch your arm to reach a glass on a table or when you take a cigarette from your case? No one knows. But if we cannot explain the phenomenon we do know that, in actual fact, it is an order resulting from a mere suggestion which is transmitted through the nervous system, and translated into action at a speed infinitely greater than that of lightning.

Thousands of examples of the power of imagination may be found in everyday life. There is the one given by Pascal, and so often cited, but which I cannot help repeating here, because it is such a perfect illustration. No one would have the slightest difficulty on walking along a foot-wide plank placed on the ground. But put the same plank across a street at the height of one of your American skyscrapers. Blondel himself would not have dared trust himself on it. Anyone who did would assuredly fall to death. No clearer proof of the power of an idea could be desired. There is, however, another striking example in the impunity with which sleep-walkers perform the most perilous feats, such as wandering about on a roof, hugging the extreme edge of it, to the terror of their friends, who may happen to perceive them. If awakened suddenly a sleep-walker in such a position would inevitably fall.

OUR IMAGINATION

Here is another: Dr. Pinaud in his book "De la Philosophie et de la Longevite" relates that in the middle of a large dinner party the cook rushed in to announce that she had made a mistake and mixed arsenic with the food instead of some other ingredient. Several persons were immediately seized with pains and sickness, which only ceased when the cook came back to say that it was a false alarm; there had been no such dreadful error!

I have said enough to prove the irresistible influence of the idea, or imagination, over the physical organism. It determines pain, movement, emotions, sensations. Its effect is both moral and physical. We may logically conclude, therefore, that human ailments, which are nothing but disturbance of the natural equilibrium of all the elements of our being, can be cured by the right kind of idea or suggestion.

To begin with, there is in every disease, of no matter what nature, a moral factor which no doctor can afford to ignore. Some medical authorities in France estimate this moral factor as representing from 40 to 50 per cent of the chances of recovery. A patient who says to himself "I am getting better" vastly increases his vital forces and hastens his recovery. By gently putting your imagination on the right track we are sure of aiding Nature, who manifests herself through the medium of our subconscious self. The instinct of self-preservation is but a manifestation of Nature. At the first sound of alarm she hastens to the rescue. A cut finger or other wound is followed by a rush of red globules to the injured part. That wonderful subconscious self of ours does it. For it knows and commands every movement of our being, every contraction of our heart, the minutest vibration of every cell in our organism. It is the sublime instrument which we are so apt to misuse by allowing bad, disturbing or discouraging thoughts to interfere with its work, instead of allowing it to function smoothly and harmoniously.

Miracles are attributed to the fakirs of India. Legend or fact, I know not, but it is certainly true that they do some most wonderful things simply because they are taught from their infancy to know and make use of the limitless unseen and yet unexplained forces latent in us—which can be awakened by thought.

"CURES AMAZING"

I am often asked: What are the limitations of autosuggestion? I reply: I really do not know. The cures I have seen have appeared sometimes so amazing, so incredible, that I decline theoretically to place any limit at all, although, of course, I must insist, nothing must be expected from autosuggestion which is obviously outside the domain of material possibilities. For instance, it would be absurd to ask for a growth of a new arm or a new leg—despite the fact that the lobster seems to know how to grow a new claw when it is necessary!

There are persons who, by long practice and concentration, have acquired an amazing power over their bodily functions. Cases are known to the medical faculty of Paris of men able to increase at will the speed of their heart beats from 90 to 120, or diminish it to such a degree that the heart seems almost to stop still.

In another article I shall talk of the diseases actually cured by autosuggestion, and in general of its sphere of curative possibilities. Let it be thoroughly realized that thought, or suggestion, is able to mold the human body, as a sculptor chisels his clay. Thought is an act; it is more than Bernheim believed when he wrote: "Suggestion is an idea which can be transformed into action."

Certain it is that cases declared to be incurable have been cured by autosuggestion. And not only diseases of a functional nature. Sores and wounds of long-standing which had resisted all other treatments have been healed rapidly by suggestion. Was it not Dr. Carnot who said "the wounds of victorious soldiers heal more rapidly than those of the vanquished"?

I can declare without hesitation that whatever the illness the practice of rational autosuggestion will always effect an appreciable improvement in the patient's condition, even if the disease itself be materially incurable.

(The next article by Prof. Coue will apear in The Times Tuesday. In it he will give precise directions for applying his methods.)

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 6.—Two Milwaukee women were named as heirs of the $100,000 estate of Mrs. Maude Fuller Delius, elder daughter of the late Chief Justice W. M. Fuller of the United States Supreme Court, in a Chicago Probate Court. They are Miss Cony Moore and Mrs. James B. Blake, both living at 337 Prospect avenue, daughters of the late Mrs. Pauline Moore of Milwaukee, half-sisters of Mrs. Delius.

DAIRY STOCK BURNS

ST. PAUL, Jan. 6.—Four head of pure-bred Ayreshires, all registered, perished in a fire on the M. E. White farm, Havana township. The cattle, which were often shown at the Steele county fair, were valued at $3000. The fire started when one of the cows overturned a lantern.

IF RHEUMATIC EAT NO SWEETS

Says glass of Salts helps to overcome Rheumatism acid.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly, keep the feet dry, avoid exposure, and above all, drink plenty of good water and avoid eating sweets of all kind.

Rheumatism is caused by body waste and acids resulting from food fermentation. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this poison from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this waste and acids, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove waste matter, also to stimulate the kidneys, thus often ridding the blood of rheumatic poison.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.—[Advertisement.

SELZNICKS ARE BUSILY MOVING

Epoch-Making Transfer is Under Way

Distribution Here Expected to be Huge Success

Members of Organization Full of Optimism

Immediate inauguration of plans for the transference of the entire distributing organization, general offices and eastern producing companies of the Selznick and Select Pictures Corporation from New York, followed the arrival in Los Angeles yesterday morning of David O. Selznick, vice-president of both corporations and pioneer in the movement that ultimately is expected to make this city the undisputed film distribution capital of the world.

Expressing both enthusiasm and extreme optimism over the project of the corporation to concentrate its entire activity in its main producing field, as announced in The Times several days ago, Mr. Selznick stated that every step in the proposed change had been studied carefully for months previous to the decision and that no time would be lost in effecting its completion.

PRESIDENT IN EAST

Myron Selznick, president of the organization, left a fortnight ago for New York, where he will supervise the eastern angle and arrange for moving the mammoth business, entailing the expenditure of millions of dollars every year with city business firms, in its entirety to the Coast. Several months must elapse before the change can be completed, Mr. Selznick said yesterday, as each department and division must be moved and taken care of separately to avoid any interruption in the present business.

David O. Selznick

"We expect to have a hard road with our pioneering at first," Mr. Selznick stated, "but there is no reason why we cannot make it a success. Any sudden revolution from the normal demands time to see its benefits. This move of ours not only means that millions of dollars of new business will be brought here through our activities, but that the buying and purchasing from all over the country, formerly made in New York, will move coastward.

MEANS BIG BUSINESS

"We have about thirty distributing organizations throughout the United States, six in Australia and others scattered throughout the world. Men and business from outside this country will naturally come here instead of making the trip to New York. Not only will business connected with the industry be transacted here, but other lines will also be diverted."

General offices for the distributing and financial end of the business will be established some place downtown, Mr. Selznick stated. No place as yet has been selected by officials of the organization, and will not be attempted until plans materialize more definitely. Erection of an office building to house the special interests of the organization will not be attempted save as a last resort, it was said.

Regarding an enlargement of studio facilities Mr. Selznick would make no statement. It is said that with the new policy other grounds will be found, as the crowded conditions of the United Studios will not admit the fullest development of the new undertaking.

"We annually went to an enormous expense to maintain organizations at ends 3000 miles apart." Mr. Selznick stated. "Co-ordination and co-operation, of course, could not be of the best. I have unbounded faith in the ultimate greatness of Los Angeles. The move would have had to be made some time, so why not now? Your Chamber of Commerce played a big part in showing us the advantages of a complete business here."

HELP TO INDEPENDENTS

That the move initiated by the Selznick's will prove of indisputable value to the numerous independent producers who release some of their pictures through the Select Pictures Corporation, was stated by Mr. Selznick. Formerly through the red tape involved by having the two main centers so widely separated it was impossible for producers to rectify mistakes, sense the pulse of the public throughout the country and to make decisive and progressive plans for the future without taking a chance. Now with the arrival of all branches on the home ground pictures naturally will increase in elaborateness, worth and value, and show a corresponding decrease in costs.

Along with the Selznick enterprises will come to Los Angeles half a dozen subsidiary companies all interested in various branches of the motion-picture industry, bringing with them a capitalization of many millions of dollars. Other industries closely allied with the industry also are bound to come to the Coast, it is said, if the Selznick move proves a success.

Since the announcement in The Times of the decision of the Selznick enterprises, the offices in the United Studios, where the Los Angeles companies have been located, have been besieged with offers from real estate men, bankers, industrial and business houses and even actors, all recognizing the merit of the change and eager to get a finger in the pie.

THEDA COMING SOON

Theda Bara who at present is filming the "Easiest Way" in the East for Selznick pictures, the only picture the Selznicks have in progress at present there probably will be the first to arrive on the Coast, it is said. She may arrive next month and other stars now in the East are expected to follow soon after.

Mr. Selznick stated that the next few months will see unbounded activity here. Either he or his brother, Myron, will be here at all times.

Business incident to the removal naturally will keep one or the other in the East some of the time, Mr. Selznick said.

Mr. Selznick only recently came into the vice-presidency of the corporation. Several weeks ago Lewis J. Selznick, father of the enterprise, resigned from active control but remained in an advisory capacity as chairman of the board of directors. Myron Selznick became president of both corporations and his brother, vice-president. A. George Volck became vice-president in charge of financial affairs of both corporations. He was formerly vice-president in charge of production.

Both of the Selznick brothers worked up from the bottom in the industry, passing through every phase of the work.

Mrs. Lewis J. Selznick, wife of the retired president, also arrived with her son yesterday morning and will remain here for some time.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—The Southern Pacific Company petitioned to the State Railroad Commission today for the right to make adjustments in class freight rates north of Chico and Corning, in accordance with a ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission November 6 increasing the rates from San Francisco and California inland points to points on the Oregon line. The adjustments will mean a 15 per cent increase over the rates fixed by the State Commission in 1916, and will eliminate alleged discrimination in favor of Portland shippers, the State body said.

THE MISTAKES OF THE KAISER

AN ANSWER TO THE KAISER'S MEMOIRS

BY RENE VIVIANI
Premier of France When the War Broke Out

[Copyright, 1922, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.]

HUMAN BESTIALITY SPEAKS

What, then, had happened at Berlin to cause such a change in the drama? Here is what happened: and it is an event of the utmost importance for understanding the war and as a contribution to history.

On the evening of that day—July 29th—on which Count Pourtales, at about 4 o'clock, had delivered the ultimatum to Russia, there had been a meeting of the Council at Potsdam. There were present at it the Crown Prince, the Chancellor, Herr von Jagow, Herr von Moltke, Chief of the General Staff, the Minister of War, Admiral Tirpitz, Admirals Pohl and Muller.

THE COUNCIL OF WAR

What was it that the said Council was going to do? Of what was it going to speak? The list of those present shows what the object of debate was to be. Diplomacy, having played its part, was now to report humbly, on what it had done, to the army, which was now about to act. No soldier, no sailor, would have succeeded in getting into that Council—at which, in addition to the chiefs, less important collaborators were present—had its object been to discuss purely political matters. There, on that terrible evening, was war decided upon.

But suddenly, when the Council had barely come to an end, Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg departs in great haste. He goes to Berlin, and, in the middle of the night, summons the British Ambassador (correspondence of the British government with its Ambassador, No. 85.) Then it was that the attempt was made to divide the forces of the Entente. Before starting the war it was necessary to find out more exactly what England wished. The British government had not made a definite pronouncement; it had been unwilling to bind itself to anybody. It had rightly described the ultimatum to Serbia and called for a meeting between the four Powers involved, but had remained, up to that moment, a calm looker-on. If England would only remain neutral, anythig would be possible.

TALK BEGINS

The talk between Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg and the Ambassador began. It may be summarized as follows: Germany will make no territorial annexations at the expense of France in case of a war. But how about colonies? No assurance concerning them can be given. Any military operations that may become necessary in Belgium will not prevent restoration of Belgian integrity after victory (Blue Book, 85.) In view of this, will not England remain neutral in case of conflict? This is what the British Ambassador, with the contempt felt by a diplomat for a broker, called a high bid. But, at the same time, he said that England would preserve her liberty of action and he would not promise that his country would keep out.

Thus, at one fell swoop, everything was changed. If England was going to hold back, if she did not lose her liberty of action, if it was not enough to tempt her in order to get her to bargaining, what was she going to think, what could the world think, of the ultimatum to Russia? If Russia was dragged into the war against two nations attacking her, it would mean that France also would be dragged in. How was this to be explained? Germany was not confronted with a mobilization threatening her own frontier. Austria has said nothing. How then, was the peace of the world to be disturbed under such conditions? All would be well, to be sure, if England were to look on unmoved at the spectacle, but—she was not to be bought! The old conception of honor was not dead, nor was the ancient hatred of that noble country, England, for every threatening hegemony, nor her natural solicitude for her own interests.

Then Count Pourtales called upon M. Saznoff, having received from his chief orders to do so. No longer is the brutal demand made upon Russia to disperse her forces while those of Austria stand arrayed against her; she is now asked upon what conditions she will suspend her preparations.

BLOW FAILS TO FALL

So the blow had failed—on that day, at least. But who will maintain that it was not a case of war, of war having been decided upon? What was the use of that council hastily called together that evening, after the delivery of an insulting ultimatum, if it did not mean war? Why that supremely important conversation with the representative of England, the statement of conditions, discounting of war as a possibility, the proposed division of the spoils over the table of victory, if war had not been decided upon?

Decided upon? It was ready to be launched. In fact, the next day, July 30, a fearful proof of this was to be given to the world.

On July 30th, at noon, the "Local Anzeiger," a semiofficial paper, in close relations with the German government and with its columns at the latter's disposal, published the official order of mobilization of the entire German army on the Russian frontier. This paper, moreover, was not the only one to publish this piece of news, which, false on that day, had been true the day before. It certainly looked as if the paper had the news from the German government, so much so that it was possible to keep the paper on sale all that afternoon, to offer it to the embassies, feed it to the entire population. Not until much later—when the harm had been done—was it suppressed by Herr von Jagow. The latter, to be sure, summoned M. Jules Cambon for the purpose of protesting to him against the publication of the news.

WHAT WAS SOURCE

But who had given the paper the chance to do this bad deed? Who has provided it with the means? On the day before, July 29th, war had been decided upon, as we have just seen, and the plan had not failed until three days later, when the Chancellor learned the, to him, unexpected state of mind of England. The order for mobilization had been got ready—possibly it had been prepared a long time before.

In any event, because of this new feature, the Russian Ambassador at Berlin, who had not been informed by Herr von Jagow (though mobilization concerned Russia) telegraphed his government.

Let us forget nothing. The Czar, deeply impressed by the ultimatum, telegraphed on July 29th to Emperor William: "It would be better to entrust the Austro-Serbian problem to the Hague Conference. I trust to thy wisdom and friendship." No answer was made to this telegram! Not even did it receive the honor of being included in the 1914 White Book! This supreme proposal of mediation did not become known, in fact, until the war was in progress, when it appeared in the official Russian newspaper.

SUPREME PEACE EFFORT

In addition, two more conciliatory proposals were made at that time; that of Sir Edward Grey, backed by King George, and addressed to Emperor William, and that of M. Sazonoff, to the same individual, with the backing of the Entent. Neither was accepted. Herr von Jagow, the presumptuous spokesman for Austria, refused even to transmit these proposals. And this occurred between the 29th and 31st of July! During those dreadful hours, when the life of nations depended on minutes, Austria answered not a word. Germany was silent and refused to co-operate. The soldiers marched, war broke out. And yet it was Austrian mobilization which caused Russian mobilization! And Serbia had been invaded. Nevertheless, we allowed nothing to daunt or stop us: the efforts of Sisyphus to move his rock up the slope were not more desperate than what was now being done by human strength, strained to its utmost, in the cause of peace.

On July 30th, however, there came a ray of hope. Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg, in view of the attitude of England brought to his knowledge by the German Ambassador at London, and aware now that Sir Edward Grey did not wish to forfeit his freedom of action, but would, nevertheless, not remain aloof if France's duties as an ally involved her in the conflict, decided to yield in the face of this new situation and to act at last—or, at least, try to act!

SPURNED ADVICE

So far he had spurned the clear-headed advice of the German Ambassador at London, listening rather to the mediocre and selfish reports of the delegates who had been set to watching his chief there, and he had also believed the tales of Prince Henry of Prussia who prophesied English neutrality as a certainty. But now Bethmann-Hollweg, realizing at last—and too late—in what direction he was going, telegraphed to Vienna.

Then he sent this second dispatch (July 30th, 1914,) which reached Vienna the 31st at 3 o'clock in the morning:

"If England is successful in its efforts (toward conciliation) whereas Vienna refuses, Vienna will prove absolutely that she desires war, into which we shall be dragged, while Russia will be entirely free from guilt. Thus, we find ourselves in an absolutely untenable position before our own country, and can but insist energetically upon the acceptance by Austria of the proposal of Grey, who still keeps it open in its entirety."

WHY PROCRASTINATION?

Why did he not speak earlier? How valuable that advice would have been had it been given on July 26th! Granted, even, that it had not been given until the 28th or 29th, even after the armed intervention of Austria in Serbia, what a difference it would have made! If the occupation of Serbia by Austria seemed to Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg, on July 30th, sufficient for disposing Austria toward conciliation, why were forty-eight hours lost before such advice was given to Austria?

It will be seen that—even assuming the hypothesis most favorable to Herr von Bethmann and to Germany—what we point out is of prime importance.

As a matter of fact, all of a sudden, he sent also, on July 30th, 1914, (German Documents, No. 45,) a dispatch whereby he retracted the telegram which he had just sent. The man was drawing back! He was afraid of peace! So he sent that other telegram, revoking the one which had preceded it, and this, of course—having been revoked so promptly—was not delivered to the Vienna government by the German Ambassador at Vienna.

Thus, the Chancellor, on the same day, sent to the German Ambassador at Vienna a conciliatory telegram and then revoked it. This vitally important telegram (No. 441) left Berlin at 9:00 p.m. and arrived at Vienna the 31st at 3:00 a.m. This was the dispatch advising negotiation. As to the second telegram (No. 450,) cancelling the advice to be moderate which had just been sent, it was dispatched from Berlin on July 30th at 11:20 p.m. Thus, during that night of July 30th-31st, the entire burden of responsibility falls upon Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg.

If, on the 30th, he thought it his duty to advise moderation, why did he not give this advice earlier, putting an end to the state of general nervous tension and preventing the situation from growing worse? And, particularly, having given the advice tardily, why did he retract it that same evening, between 9 and 11:20 o'clock?

TRIES TO COVER

The truth is that Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg sent his first telegram merely to cover himself, merely to give the appearance of wishing intervention in the interests of peace. He was not even able to carry out this Machiavellian attempt to the limit. The German General Staff interfered, demanding war; it alleged as a reason the preparations of Russia and France, on July 30th, at the very moment when the French government had caused its troops to withdraw ten kilometers, and when M. Sazonoff, in agreement with the German Ambassador at St. Petersburg, was dictating to the latter a conciliatory formula which Herr von Jagow refused to transmit!

That 30th day of July was twofold in character. On the one hand, Germany pretended to wish peace, advised moderation, and later revoked the telegram counseling moderation at the very moment when it had been dispatched! Russia asked that negotiations be started and France exposed her frontiers! On that day it was that Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg started the war. He started it on that day by his fatal telegram; he gave the order to begin the massacre; he hurled the world toward the charnel-house. Did he yield to the German General Staff, which, the day before (July 29th, in the evening,) already desired war? Was he irresolute, incapable, a slave to that docility which, in Germany, is typical of statesmen? The grave is a refuge into which Herr von Bethmann has taken his secret.

His crushing responsibility for the war, of course, falls also upon the German General Staff. The latter wished to put an end to the period of waiting. Slowly but surely the good sense of Europe, piercing into this chaos of violence, would succeed in clearing up everything. And that would mean—already, in fact, peace was beginning to dawn!

No! This must not be! So the General Staff now adopted a most formidable threatening tone toward the poor vacillating civilian official. "Germany is menaced! She is being encircled! Deutchland uber alles!"

And Herr von Bethmann took up his pen and withdrew those two first dispatches. After that, he remained silent.

It was now the turn of human bestiality to speak!

LOS ANGELES SAN FRANCISCO PORTLAND DETROIT

MICHIGAN SEEKING NEW TAX SOURCES

DETROIT, Jan. 6.—The salient features of the new tax plan submitted to the Legislature at its opening session at Lansing are: That gasoline be taxed 1 cent a gallon, to yield about $3,000,000 annually; that motor trucks using the State highway be taxed from $25 to $250 each, the revenue to go into the State highway fund; that the Legislature repeal all existing laws exempting State and local government bonds from taxation.

Distinguished Cartoonist Is Here for Visit

Another distinguished guest has arrived in the city with the intention of making this his winter, if not his permanent home. He is Grant E. Hamilton, looked upon as one of the leading cartoonists of America, and whose work is well known to the public through his political cartoons in Puck, Judge Leslies, Life and other national periodicals.

Hamilton has just completed thirty years on the staff of Judge and is spending his well-earned rest in Southern California. However, he no more than arrived than he was engaged to conduct a unique advertising campaign for a syndicate of local capitalists. His drawings are appearing almost daily in The Times in connection with this campaign. They are cartoons of current events and of local politicians.

It is understood that Hamilton has received several flattering offers to work in conjunction with one of the political parties and his acceptance or rejection of these offers will determine whether he makes Los Angeles his permanent residence.

DANCE UNDER BAN BY COLLEGE HEADS

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 6.—Putting learning ahead of dancing ability, President A. E. Whitford of Milton College has issued an edict prohibiting students dancing in public or semipublic places. The Seventh Day Baptist institution is stirred by the order which restricts what some students call personal liberty.

BACK PROSECUTOR

United Church Brotherhood is Pleased With "Dry" Work

The United Church Brotherhood of Los Angeles warmly indorses the work being carried on by the District Attorney's prohibition forces in a circular letter sent to all local ministers asking their co-operation even to the extent of seeking out and reporting offenders of the Wright law.

The letter, which is signed by Charles F. Nelson, president of the organization and J. P. Robertson, secretary, commends the selection of Dep. Dist.-Atty. Burke for the job of enforcing the law and prosecuting its offenders. It gives a short history of Mr. Burke's career in the Anti-Saloon League and similar organizations.

SUE HOSPITAL OWNERS IN DEATH OF CHILD

Suit for $10,000 was filed yesterday against Cecil J. Dashforth and his wife, Alice, by Mr. and Mrs. Carl R. Everett, who assert that negligence of a nurse in Santa Monica Hospital was responsible for the death of their newborn baby.

The defendants are being sued as owners of the hospital. According to the complaint, a nurse in the hospital placed a hot water bottle too close to the body of the infant, inflicting burns which caused death.

DES MOINES, Jan. 6.—The first shovel of dirt for the new million-dollar hospital for disabled soldiers was dug at Knoxville by Col. C. A. Darlow.

Teacher's Wife Says Husband Was Too Rough

George Ira Johnstone, a teacher in the Hollywood High School, was in the habit of beating his wife, according to a divorce complaint filed yesterday by Mrs. Nona Jewell Johnstone. He is accused of being possessed of a violent temper and to have abused his wife both verbally and physically since their marriage in 1920.

According to the complaint Mrs. Johnstone charges that her husband once became very angry and went into the basement of their home at 1524 Sierra Bonita avenue to sleep. During the night Mrs. Johnstone heard someone prowling about the house and called her husband from his retreat. He emerged just long enough to beat his wife and then crawled back by the furnace and locked the door, the complaint avers.

There is said to be $37,000 community property of which the wife asks a division.

URGE STREET IMPROVEMENT

Complaining that school children and teachers are required to make a two-mile detour to reach the Saticoy-street school in the San Fernando Valley district, during rainy weather because Saticoy street, between Diaz and Bellaire, is then impassable, the Board of Education yesterday asked the City Council to improve Saticoy street.

SHEEP KIDNEY TRANSPLANTED

Operation is Success, but Poison Takes Victim

First of Its Kind Tried in United States

Patient's Blood Circulated Through Organ

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The death of Mrs. Adele Robertson at Bellevue Hospital Thursday has been followed by the disclosure that she had undergone an unusual kidney operation in a desperate attempt to save her life from the effects of bichloride of mercury poisoning.

The operation consisted of transplanting a sheep's kidney into the woman's body. It was performed by Dr. Sellan Neuhof, assisted by Drs. Sinclair Wilhelm and Ransom S. Hooker. It was, perhaps, the first time that the kidney of an animal ever had been transplanted into the body of a human being in this country.

Medical observers report that the operation itself, technically considered, was a success, but that the progress of the mercury poisoning had been so great that nothing could counteract it.

Mrs. Robertson was 23 years old and the wife of Edward Robertson, a real-estate man. According to the history of Mrs. Robertson's case at Bellevue Hospital, she returned home with her husband late on the night of December 28, after a Christmas party, and mistook a bottle of mercury tablets for calomel.

TREATMENT FAILURE

The usual treatment for mercury poisoning failed to improve the woman's condition. Her kidneys ceased to function and it was apparent she would die of uraemia unless a miracle of surgery could be performed. Dr. Neuhof decided to attempt the organic transplantation.

A sheep free from disease was taken to the laboratory. Before Mrs. Robertson was taken into the operating room an incision was made in the side of the animal, and its right kidney was exposed so that it would be ready for immediate transplanting.

Then Mrs. Robertson, under the influence of an anesthetic, was moved into the operating room. An incision was made in her right side while the animal, sacrificed to medical science, was held close to her bedside. Then the sheep's kidney was removed and placed in the woman's body.

According to physicians the object of the operation was achieved—that is, to cause the patient's blood to circulate through the newly acquired organ. It was said that a day or two after the operation the woman's kidneys, which previously had failed to function, began to do so again, although slightly. The transplanted kidney also began to function slightly, but the effect of the poison had gone too far.

EXTRADITION SOUGHT IN KIDNAPING CASE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 6.—Charles F. Larrabee, deputy sheriff, left Riverside this afternoon for Sacramento with requisition papers for the extradition of Mrs. Marie Bilts, being held in the Maricopa County Jail at Phoenix, charged with kidnaping 9-year-old Ruth Elizabeth Wagner, daughter of Harry Wagner of this city.

Mrs. Bilts decided yesterday afternoon to fight extradition, according to word received here by Dist.-Atty. Kelley.

When Gov. Stephens's signature is attached to the proper papers, Deputy Sheriff Larrabee will proceed at once to Phoenix in an effort to get similar papers signed by the Governor of Arizona. So far as has been learned here, Mrs. Bilts has not indicated yet whether she will attempt to escape jail through the habeas corpus route prior to the arrival of the papers.

CHINA'S NEEDS ARE DISCUSSED

Place of Nation Assured, Speaker States

Canton College Head Talks at City Club

Education and Real Leader Giant's Hope

"Political unification of China can never be accomplished until the provinces and people are united commercially and industrially through the establishment of adequate transportation facilities. In this regard American capital has an opportunity to play an important part to the mutual advantage of America and China."

This statement was made before members of the City Club yesterday by Dr. Charles K. Edmunds, president of the Canton College in China, in an address on "Political Social and Economic Conditions in China."

"Among the greatest needs of China today are popular education and more and better leaders," said Dr. Edmunds. "When I last saw President Li Yuan Hung I asked him what message I should bring to America from the Chinese republic. His answer was: Tell them to lend us a hand in our effort to educate our people and to give us time to bring about complete unification.'

CHINA'S PLACE SURE

"China's place as a great and powerful nation among republics is practically assured, but it will be at least twenty-five years before the governmental system will be firmly and orderly established," said Dr. Edmunds. "However, it is not for us to point a finger of scorn at China, for it required longer than that for us to accomplish political unity among the States.

"China will be unified in time, and it is only a question of who is to be the oriental Moses to lead the people out of the wilderness of contention and misunderstanding. The President is a strong man and a good man, and so is Sun Yat Sen, but at present there is no one man who, apparently, is capable of handling the situation.

"The purchasing power of China as a whole, is comparatively small for the prevalence of poverty among the masses is appalling," said the speaker. "Among the needs of the country which, if adequately provided, would go far toward relieving poverty and disease, are the control of the rivers for irrigation purposes and power development, the introduction of more modern industrial machinery, biological control of silk production and the improvement and development of the stock-breeding industry.

"Opportunities for the manufacture of cotton and silk goods are practically unlimited, for production is increasing at an enormous rate. China today stands third among nations as a cotton producer, and she could, and probably will, attain first place in this respect.

EDUCATION REAL NEED

"However, the underlying need of China, which, when supplied, will bring about the solution of all her problems, is education. China is making rapid progress, it is true, but it behooves America to 'get in the game' with every assistance that it is possible to render, and forever cement the friendship between China and the United States."

The Canton College, of which Dr. Edmunds is president, and in the interests of which he now is in America, is a Christian, though nondenominational, educational institution; an intercollegiate mission, which ten American colleges and universities are helping to support. It is the only college among 30,000,000 Cantonese. It has a staff of fifty Americans and 100 Chinese, and boasts 1000 students. All branches of learning are taught. The college receives the largest support from the Chinese government of any institution of learning in the land.

Dr. Edmunds will speak Tuesday afternoon before the Riverside Women's Club, and Tuesday evening will give an address at the La Casa de Flores Hotel, 340 West Adams street, before the China Club. At noon Wednesday he will speak before the University Club on "Dynamic China."

C. A. Dykstra, secretary of the City Club, anounced yesterday that the club has gained 356 new members in the last year. Before the club on Monday of next week, Julius Schneider, Seward Simons, Col. J. W. Everington and William G. McAdoo will discuss: "Is False Publicity Democracy's Menace?" At the luncheon next Wednesday Louis V. Eytinge will speak on "Behind Prison Walls," and Friday evening Charles G. Adams will speak on "Landscape Architecture."

LOST NERVE FOILS BANK HOLD-UP PLAN

ASSERTED DRIVER OF BANDIT CAR CONFESSES, POLICE SAY

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 6.—A confession that the Bank of Elk Grove, at Elk Grove, south of Sacramento, was to have been held up at 12:05 p.m. last Thursday by five negroes, and that he lost his nerve at the front door of the bank, was made today by Jess Walker, 21 years of age, a negro, driver of the bandits' car, following his arrest by police officers, Corp. L. E. Warren announced.

Three other members of the party with Walker are in jail. They are: Bob Stepp, reputed leader of the gang; George Thompson, alias Boyd, ex-convict, sentenced from Sacramento in 1912, and Allen Leavy.

When the negroes drove through Elk Grove Thursday, with the intention of stopping in front of the bank and staging the hold-up, four officers were stationed in concealed positions, armed with sawed-off shotguns, and prepared for a street battle if the "job" went through.

The officers are Corp. L. E. Warren and Frank Rutherford, patrolman of the Sacramento police department, and Clay Cann and Harry Bryant, deputy sheriffs.

Thompson and Leavy were arrested last night in possession of a stolen automobile, the officers announced today.

Many of my professional friends to whom I have recommended Derwillo use it in preference to [illegible] other beautifiers."

"The first application of Derwillo will astonish you. It imparts instant beauty to the skin and makes a rosy-white complexion everyone will admire. Use it before going to the theater, dance or afternoon call and note the favorable comment of your friends.

"It puts a life-like tint on your cheeks [illegible]; takes the place of powder and stays on until you wash it off. Perspiration does not affect it nor [illegible] it rub off on clothing. MOTHER OF FOURTEEN DIES

Fifty Grandchildren and Fifteen Great Grandchildren Survive Mrs. James C. Dutton of Montebello

Mother of fourteen children, grandmother of fifty and great grandmother of fifteen, was the record set by Mrs. Rebecca Jane Dutton, 68 years of age and prominent in Eastern Star circles, who passed away New Year's Day after a short illness at the family home in Montebello. Funeral services will be conducted from the undertaking parlors of W. A. Brown, 1335 South Flower street, tomorrow at 2 p.m.

Mrs. Dutton, who had been a resident of Southern California for the last ten years, married James Cass Dutton, a blacksmith, in Spring Valley, Ark., Feb. 5, 1871. After residing in that city for several years, she and her husband moved to Moody, Tex., where twelve of her children were born.

Desiring a change they transferred to Cleveland, Tex., where they remained until 1912 when they moved to Southern California.

Since their arrival here Mr. Dutton has been engaged in the blacksmith business owning his shop in Montebello. Previous to this time he worked as a horseshoer and reared his large family on his earnings at the shops he managed. While he was laboring over the anvil his wife was carefully watching his children at home. As a result of her faithful care, all of her children are alive and will attend the funeral tomorrow.

The services will be conducted by Rev. William T. Sterling, pastor of the Euclid Heights Methodist Episcopal Church and a friend of the family for many years. Six of the sons will act as pallbearers and six of her grandchildren will act as honorary pallbearers. Interment will be at the Odd Fellows' Cemetery.

The surviving children are Mrs. Lulu Brown, Mrs. Tennis Little, Byron Dutton, William D. Dutton, Claude J. Dutton, John C. Dutton, Mrs. Frances Berry, E. Boone Dutton, Mrs. Minnie Melugin, Mrs. Annie Gibson, Mrs. Gertrude Bobbitt, D. K. Dutton, Mrs. Elida Lippert, and Mrs. I. M. Logan.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—California and Australia still dispute the open golf championship of the Golden State, for, after a thrilling finish, MacDonald Smith and Joe Kirkwood are tied for the highest honors of 299 each. There is also a quadruple tie between Walter Hagen, Eddie Loos, Hutt Martin and Joe Novak for second place, two strokes behind the leaders. The playoff will be decided next Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock on the course of the San Francisco Golf and Country Club, which this championship will in due season render world-famous.

The very good reason of this proud claim was found not only in the scores recorded which demonstrate that throughout the four rounds of the championship no golfer equaled the par of 71 of the 6600-yard course, but that four of the seven best golfers in the world declared that Skokie, on which the last national open was played, was comparatively "pie" to Ingleside.

LOOS TAKES LEAD

When three-quarters of the long, stern chase was covered, both the gallery and the experts thought that the championship lay between Walter Hagen, the British open champion and by most critics thought to have only one peer in George Duncan and Eddie Loos, the stylish and steady young golfer who won the California title in 1921 and who last year annexed a set of big purses in the East and Middle West.

Loos led the field by two strokes at this juncture, two strokes in front of Hagen, with Kirkwood a stroke behind his team-mate, and our own MacSmith and Hutton Martin, the champion of Southern California, trailing the Australian by the same narrowest of margins.

Here was the tally at the lunch hour:

Loos	72	73	72—217
Hagen	75	74	75—224
Kirkwood	80	73	72—225
MacSmith	74	76	76—226
Hutton Martin	76	77	73—226
Sarazen	77	77	73—227
Hutchison	77	77	73—227
Novak	78	76	73—227

Hagen caught Loos at the second hole after lunch and then they swapped the honor till the eighth hole apositively fatal spot for Loos, who lost the championship there and then by displaying poor judgment. His second almost carried to the saucer green, but slid down the bank and he tried a run-up shot which just failed and returned to his feet. Still he attempted the same perious shot and the ball returned a little farther than before. At last he pulled a niblick out of his bag and pitched, the hole costing him a silly six and two of his lead of three strokes over Hagen had vanished.

THIRTEEN UNLUCKY

But Loos is no regretful golfer, for he hit out two of the proudest shots of the tournament from the backset ninth tee and wound up with a very sorry 40 against Hagen's 39.

Similarly it might be said that Hagen lost the title at one hole on both of today's rounds, at the ominous thirteenth. In the morning he putted boldly for a two, taking every chance by which such stroke competitions can be won, especially if one is coming from behind, and the hole cost him five. In the afternoon he again burned up his chances on this same green by taking three putts. And Hagen is the greatest putter in the world. The truth is that the precious "touch" just left him today when he most needed it. His tee shots were beyond any other hitters in this tournament. A few drives of his were equaled by Loos and on the ninth in the afternoon he was away by just half an inch Loos' ball lying parallel within a foot. He did not have the best of the breaks and the sixth in the last round was a cruel experience for his long drive found a divot and his second a trap to the left. He chipped apparently with perfect skill from the trap, but the ball just overran the far bank and the hole cost him.

FIGHTS HARD

However, Hagen fought the last inch of the battle. When told after his last drive that he needed an eagle 3 to tie Kirkwood and MacSmith he let out a poetic brassie that sailed past the pin with the gallery of 2000 spectators praying that it would not over-run the green. It just did so and Hagen missed, one more putt leaving him two strokes behind the leaders.

Kirkwood, full of confidence after finishing the final nine holes of the morning round in 33, played amazing golf at the start of the afternoon and took but 34 strokes to the turn. News that Kirkwood was beginning his seconds up the pin and going remarkably, traveled fast, the crowd behind the Australian and the popular California favorite, MacSmith growing at each green.

Kirkwood was leading Smith a shot as they started the final round, and, as he began to gather more strokes on Smith, members of the gallery, faithful to the "home town" professional became discouraged. They enjoyed Kirkwood's grand golf, but would have felt better if Mac had been doing as well.

FAULTLESS GOING OUT

Kirkwood was faultless going out. He was but 34 strokes at the turn, and as Smith took 38, Kirkwood had a lead of five shots with nine holes to play. Then, to the joy of the gallery, Smith began to bring out his finest colors. He got a stroke at the tenth when Kirkwood faltered on a four-foot putt. shot against the fence. It cost Smith hit a grand iron to the eleventh and his three was easy. Then he got a stroke on Kirkwood at the twelfth when Joe used a spoon for his second and found his him a six. They got their threes at the twelfth when Joe used a Mac holed a birdie three at the next and cut Kirkwood's lead to two strokes. The fifteenth was done in two fours and the sixteenth yielded a birdie to Mac, when he slashed a mashie beside the pin. What did Joe do but take three putts and these great golfers were all level with two holes to play and out in front of the field.

It was one of those situations all golfers love and when they come about the people are quick to learn of it and gather about to see the finish.

To the seventeenth, Smith had all the advantage off the tee and was on in 2, whereas Kirkwood, short in 2, required a 5. Smith ran his approach putt within two feet and he appeared sure of getting a 4. But who can tell at what time a putt will slide by the cup, causing anguish to many, and Smith missed, so they were all level with a hole to go.

BOTH DRIVE WELL

Both drove well, were on in 3 and down in 2 putts for 5's at the eighteenth. Joe had the last putt, a ten-footer for a 4, but it did not drop.

Ping Bodie's Stars Tackle Colored Club

The Los Angeles White Sox will attempt to make it two straight over Ping Bodie's all-stars in their game at the White Sox Park this afternoon. "Rube" Curry blanked the Stars yesterday, 13 to 0, but Bodie says his team will finish on top in today's battle.

Ray Keough, Norwalk star who was recently signed by the Los Angeles Angels, attempted to pitch yesterday's game with a sprained thumb which he received last night while boxing, but the injured member kept him from gripping the ball or throwing his best bet, a curve. Keough should not have pitched yesterday's game, but he has too much "guts" to quit anything. Keough also had a finger broken on his right hand yesterday when he stopped a line drive.

"Hunky" Schoor, Seattle south-paw, will be pitted against Jose Mendez, famous colored star, in today's battle. Following is the line-up for Bodie's Stars: Smith, Oakland, ss; Williams, Buffalo, 2b; Don Rader, Dallas, 3b; Woolums, Toronto, 1b; Hood, Los Angeles, lf; Bodie, Vernon, cf; Bribeck, Bridgeport, c; Boelzle, Vancouver, c, and Schoor, Seattle, p.

TILDEN DIVIDES HONORS OF DAY

National Tennis Champ Wins Over Francis Hunter

Indoor Titleholder Beaten in Three-Set Match

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Young Vinny Richards of Yonkers, N. Y., soared high in the net firmament tonight, and the resulting effect sent World's Champion William T. Tilden II tumbling into defeat, 4-6, 6-0 and 6-3 in the feature match of the evening at the Drake Hotel. It was the first setback Tilden has received in his grim quest to regain his throne in the comeback campaign he launched following the partial amputatoin of the middle finger on his stroking hand, two months ago.

Richards played a sensational game and accomplished the exceedingly rare feat of taking a love set from the national champion. In justice to Big Bill it must be admitted that the injury seemed to bother him. Apparently heedless of it in the earlier games, it was apparent he favored it. His famous steel grip on the racquet was shaken and almost completely loosened several times.

FIGHTS BACK HAND

The national titleholder took the first set by clever placement shots along the base line. Richards braced and starting a run handled everything in sight. He repeatedly feinted Bill to one side and then left him flatfooted with a beautiful back-hand shot to the other corner.

Tilden fought back savagely in the third set but Richards with victory almost in his grasp continued his wildfire tactics and swept on to his triumph. Tilden called on his reserve power, but fagged from a gruelling battle with Hunter earlier in the day was unable to stem the tide. The defeat was lightly taken and Tilden was the first to congratulate his former protege.

In the initial evening skirmish Howard Voshell and Sam Hardy, veteran Davis Cup captain of 1920, defeated Richards and Francis Hunter, 6-3, 6-3.

CHAMP PRESSED

The afternoon fray again found Big Bill triumphant over Hunter 3-6, 8-6, 8-6 and the New Yorker duplicated his feat of Friday by pressing the champion every minute.

In the other matinee match Voshell and Richards hooked up in what seemed destined for an endurance test, but with the score standing one set apiece, were forced to call a halt due to the lateness of the hour. Vorsheil won the first set 6-3, the second set going to the Yonkers lad, 8-6.

SUZANNE FORCED TO HER LIMIT

French Tennis Star and World's Champion Meets a Tough Opponent

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

CANNES (France) Jan. 6.—Suzanne Lenglen defeated Mrs. Satterthwaite of England in the finals of the women's singles of the Cannes lawn-tennis tournament today. She won in two sets, 6-4, 6-3, but against stubborn opposition such as she has seldom met. In the first set, indeed, with the Englishwoman leading at four games to two, Mme. Lenglen looked like a loser; her play had become ragged and she seemed to lack confidence and accuracy.

She took the first game but her drives lacked length and speed, her service was poor and her usual uncanny placements were lacking. Mrs. Satterthwaite, overcoming her stage fright, carried the next two games. Mlle. Lenglen made it two all, but the Englishwoman rallied again and took the next two by her nervy playing. Suzanne then steadied down and won the next two games after each had gone to deuce. Continuing her steady play, the French girl captured the final two games without difficulty.

The champion's superior condition told in the second set. After the score had reached two games all, Mrs. Satterthwaite weakened and Suzanne took four games in a row.

Spectators remarked that never since Miss Kathleen McKane carried Mle. Lenglon to a score of 10-8 in the first set of the Brussels tournament last May has the French star been so evenly matched. Mrs. Satterthwaite ranks No. 5 on the Englishwoman's ranking list, coming after Miss McKane, Mrs. Lambert, Mrs. Chambers and Mrs. Beamish.

COMEBACK OF SMITH THRILLS BAY CITY FANS

BY EDDIE LOOS
"Times" Staff Correspondent
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—Joe Kirkwood and McDonald Smith tied for the California open championship here today and they will meet Tuesday afternoon to play off their tie. Their total score of 299 was just two strokes better than the 301 scored by Walter Hagen, Hutt Martin, Joe Novak and myself.

Gene Sarazen, national open champion, and Jock Hutchison finished in the money, but at no time threatened the leaders. Both Gene and Jock are in rather poor condition and they could hardly drag themselves around this afternoon. I sympathized with their fatigue for I, too, tired greatly in the final round.

McDonald Smith of San Francisco, is a wonderful golfer and his excellent comeback in this tournament has given the folks of this city a thrill they will not forget for years to come. I expect Mac will leave within the next couple of weeks for the Texas open championship and then he will go abroad to play in the British open. I surely hope he will do well for he is a mighty fine fellow and an exceedingly good golfer.

Joe Kirkwood has 100 shots in his bag and today he was playing all of them. His tee shots were long and straight and he played his irons well up to the pin. When Joe gets off on the right foot he will hold his own in any company and I, for one, was mighty glad to see him come through today.

FORMER VERNON STARS TO HELP COLLEGES

Irving Glasser, former Southern Branch boxing instructor and star boxer of Vernon at various times, has decided to help out the Berkeley squad this season by doing some work with the 110-pound division.

Jimmy Brenton, another former Vernon star, has entered the college of medicine at the University of Southern California and has hopes of making the 122-pound team at the local institution. As California and U.S.C. are to meet in a big boxing show soon, it is expected that these two boys will give the home folks here something of a treat.

KIRKWOOD IN TIE WITH SMITH FOR GOLF TITLE

Playoff Will be Decided Tuesday on Bay City Course; Four Claim Second Honors

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—California and Australia still dispute the open golf championship of the Golden State, for, after a thrilling finish, MacDonald Smith and Joe Kirkwood are tied for the highest honors of 299 each. There is also a quadruple tie between Walter Hagen, Eddie Loos, Hutt Martin and Joe Novak for second place, two strokes behind the leaders. The playoff will be decided next Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock on the course of the San Francisco Golf and Country Club, which this championship will in due season render world-famous.

The very good reason of this proud claim was found not only in the scores recorded which demonstrate that throughout the four rounds of the championship no golfer equaled the par of 71 of the 6400-yard course, but that four of the seven best golfers in the world declared that Skokie, on which the last national open was played, was comparatively "pie" to Ingleside.

LOOS TAKES LEAD

When three-quarters of the long, stern chase was covered, both the gallery and the experts thought that the championship lay between Walter Hagen, the British open champion and by most critics thought to have only one peer in George Duncan and Eddie Loos, the stylish and steady young golfer who won the California title in 1921 and who last year annexed a lot of big purses in the East and Middle West.

Loos led the field by two strokes at this juncture, two strokes in front of Hagen, with Kirkwood a stroke behind his team-mate, and our own MacSmith and Hutton Martin, the champion of Southern California, trailing the Australian by the same narrowest of margins.

Here was the tally at the lunch hour:

Loos	75	73	7[illegible]—2[illegible]
Hagen	75	74	75—2[illegible]
Kirkwood	80	72	73—[illegible]
MacSmith	74	76	76—226
Hutton Martin	76	77	73—226
Sarazen	77	77	73—227
Hutchison	77	77	73—227
Novak	78	76	73—227

Hagen caught Loos at the second hole after lunch and then they swapped the honor till the eighth hole apositively fatal spot for Loos, who lost the championship there and then by displaying poor judgment. His second almost carried to the saucer green, but slid down the bank and he tried a run-up shot which just failed and returned to his feet. Still he attempted the same perious shot and the ball returned a little farther than before. At last he pulled a niblick out of his bag and pitched, the hole costing him a silly six and two of his lead of three strokes over Hagen had vanished.

THIRTEEN UNLUCKY

But Loos is no regretful golfer, for he hit out two of the proudest shots of the tournament from the backset ninth tee and wound up with a very sorry 40 against Hagen's 39.

Similarly it might be said that Hagen lost the title at one hole on both of today's rounds, at the ominous thirteenth. In the morning he putted boldly for a two, taking every chance by which such stroke competitions can be won, especially if one is coming from behind, and the hole cost him five. In the afternoon he again burned up his chances on this same green by taking three putts. And Hagen is the greatest putter in the world. The truth is that the precious "touch" just left him today when he most needed it. His tee shots were beyond any other hitters in this tournament. A few drives of his were equaled by Loos and on the ninth in the afternoon he was away by just half an inch Loos' ball lying parallel within a foot. He did not have the best of the breaks and the sixth in the last round was a cruel experience for his long drive found a divot and his second a trap to the left. He chipped apparently with perfect skill from the trap, but the ball just overran the far bank and the hole cost him.

FIGHTS HARD

However, Hagen fought the last inch of the battle. When told after his last drive that he needed an eagle 3 to tie Kirkwood and MacSmith he let out a poetic brassie that sailed past the pin with the gallery of 2000 spectators praying that it would not over-run the green. It just did so and Hagen missed, one more putt leaving him two strokes behind the leaders.

Kirkwood, full of confidence after finishing the final nine holes of the morning round in 33, played amazing golf at the start of the afternoon and took but 34 strokes to the turn. News that Kirkwood was beginning his seconds up the pin and going remarkably, traveled fast, the crowd behind the Australian and the popular California favorite, MacSmith growing at each green.

Kirkwood was leading Smith a shot as they started the final round, and, as he began to gather more strokes on Smith, members of the gallery, faithful to the "home town" professional became discouraged. They enjoyed Kirkwood's grand golf, but would have felt better if Mac had been doing as well.

FAULTLESS GOING OUT

Kirkwood was faultless going out. He was but 34 strokes at the turn, and as Smith took 38, Kirkwood had a lead of five shots with nine holes to play. Then, to the joy of the gallery, Smith began to bring out his finest colors. He got a stroke at the tenth when Kirkwood faltered on a four-foot putt. shot against the fence. It cost Smith hit a grand iron to the eleventh and his three was easy. Then he got a stroke on Kirkwood at the twelfth when Joe used a spoon for his second and found his him a six. They got their threes at the twelfth when Joe used a Mac holed a birdie three at the next and cut Kirkwood's lead to two strokes. The fifteenth was done in two fours and the sixteenth yielded a birdie to Mac, when he slashed a mashie beside the pin. What did Joe do but take three putts and these great golfers were all level with two holes to play and out in front of the field.

It was one of those situations all golfers love and when they come about the people are quick to learn of it and gather about to see the finish.

To the seventeenth, Smith had all the advantage off the tee and was on in 2, whereas Kirkwood, short in 2, required a 5. Smith ran his approach putt within two feet and he appeared sure of getting a 4. But who can tell at what time a putt will slide by the cup, causing anguish to many, and Smith missed, so they were all level with a hole to go.

BOTH DRIVE WELL

Both drove well, were on in 2 and down in 2 putts for 5's at the eighteenth. Joe had the last putt, a ten-footer for a 4, but it did not drop.

Gene Sarazen, the national open champ, who took fourth place in the State open tourney at San Francisco. Sarazen will in all probability appear in several exhibitions at local clubs in the near future.

Ping Bodie's Stars Tackle Colored Club

The Los Angeles White Sox will attempt to make it two straight over Ping Bodie's all-stars in their game at the White Sox Park this afternoon. "Rube" Curry blanked the Stars yesterday, 12 to 0, but Bodie says his team will finish on top in today's battle.

Ray Keough, Norwalk star who was recently signed by the Los Angeles Angels, attempted to pitch yesterday's game with a sprained thumb which he received last night while boxing, but the injured member kept him from gripping the ball or throwing his best bet, a curve. Keough should not have pitched yesterday's game, but he has too much "guts" to quit anything. Keough also had a finger broken on his right hand yesterday when he stopped a line drive.

"Hunky" Schoor, Seattle southpaw, will be pitted against Jose Mendez, famous colored star, in today's battle. Following is the line-up for Bodie's Stars: Smith, Oakland, ss; Williams, Buffalo, 2b; Don Rader, Dallas, 3b; Woolums, Toronto, 1b; Hood, Los Angeles, lf; Bodie, Vernon, cf; Bribeck, Bridgeport, c; Boelzle, Vancouver, c, and Schoor, Seattle, p.

KNOCKOUTS GALORE FEATURE RING CARD

The decision in the main event at the Lyceum Athletic Club last night between Sailor Victola and Ad Rubidoux met with disapproval of the fans when the verdict was given to Rubidoux. In a well-matched fight, both fighters showed considerable fighting spirit. In the semi-wind-up Scotty Diest won over Joe Grim in a well-fought battle.

Mike Fujier was knocked out in the second round by Jimmy Douglas, in the special event. Castus Brown met with defeat at the hands of Benny Shannon in the third round. Earl Lee substituted for Herb Miller and knocked out Earl Little. Young Burns meted out much punishment to Eddie Huston, whom he sent down for the count in the first round.

TILDEN DIVIDES HONORS OF DAY

Vincent Richards Vanquishes Philadelphia Star

National Tennis Champ Wins Over Francis Hunter

Indoor Titleholder Beaten in Three-Set Match

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Young Vinny Richards of Yonkers, N. Y., soared high in the net firmament tonight, and the resulting effect sent World's Champion William T. Tilden II tumbling into defeat, 4-6, 6-0 and 6-3 in the feature match of the evening at the Drake Hotel. It was the first setback Tilden has received in his grim quest to regain his throne in the comeback campaign he launched following the partial amputatoin of the middle finger on his stroking hand, two months ago.

Richards played a sensational game and accomplished the exceedingly rare feat of taking a love set from the national champion. In justice to Big Bill it must be admitted that the injury seemed to bother him. Apparently heedless of it in the earlier games, it was apparent he favored it. His famous steel grip on the racquet was shaken and almost completely loosened several times.

FIGHTS BACK HAND

The national titleholder took the first set by clever placement shots along the base line. Richards braced and starting a run handled everything in sight. He repeatedly feinted Bill to one side and then left him flatfooted with a beautiful back-hand shot to the other corner.

Tilden fought back savagely in the third set but Richards with victory almost in his grasp continued his wildfire tactics and swept on to his triumph. Tilden called on his reserve power, but fagged from a gruelling battle with Hunter earlier in the day was unable to stem the tide. The defeat was lightly taken and Tilden was the first to congratulate his former protege.

In the initial evening skirmish Howard Voshell and Sam Hardy, veteran Davis Cup captain of 1920, defeated Richards and Francis Hunter, 6-3, 6-2.

CHAMP PRESSED

The afternoon fray again found Big Bill triumphant over Hunter 3-6, 6-4, 6-6 and the New Yorker duplicated his feat of Friday by pressing the champion every minute.

In the other matinee match Voshell and Richards hooked up in what seemed destined for an endurance test, but with the score standing one set apiece, were forced to call a halt due to the lateness of the hour. Vorshell won the first set 6-3, the second set going to the Yonkers lad, 8-6.

SUZANNE FORCED TO HER LIMIT

French Tennis Star and World's Champion Meets a Tough Opponent

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

CANNES (France) Jan. 6.—Suzanne Lenglen defeated Mrs. Satterthwaite of England in the finals of the women's singles of the Cannes lawn-tennis tournament today. She won in two sets, 6-4, 6-3, but against stubborn opposition such as she has seldom met. In the first set, indeed, with the Englishwoman leading at four games to two, Mme. Lenglen looked like a loser; her play had become ragged and she seemed to lack confidence and accuracy.

She took the first game but her drives lacked length and speed, her service was poor and her usual uncanny placements were lacking. Mrs. Satterthwaite, overcoming her stage fright, carried the next two games. Mlle. Lenglen made it two all, but the Englishwoman rallied again and took the next two by her nervy playing. Suzanne then steadied down and won the next two games after each had gone to deuce. Continuing her steady play, the French girl captured the final two games without difficulty.

The champion's superior condition told in the second set. After the score had reached two games all, Mrs. Satterthwaite weakened and Suzanne took four games in a row.

Spectators remarked that never since Miss Kathleen McKane carried Mle. Lenglen to a score of 10-8 in the first set of the Brussels tournament last May has the French star been so evenly matched. Mrs. Satterthwaite ranks No. 5 on the Englishwoman's ranking list, coming after Miss McKane, Mrs. Lambert, Mrs. Chambers and Mrs. Beamish.

COMEBACK OF SMITH THRILLS BAY CITY FANS

BY EDDIE LOOS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—Joe Kirkwood and McDonald Smith tied for the California open championship here today and they will meet Tuesday afternoon to play off their tie. Their total score of 299 was just two strokes better than the 301 scored by Walter Hagen, Hutt Martin, Joe Novak and myself.

Gene Sarazen, national open champion, and Jock Hutchison finished in the money, but at no time threatened the leaders. Both Gene and Jock are in rather poor condition and they could hardly drag themselves around this afternoon. I sympathized with their fatigue for I, too, tired greatly in the final round.

McDonald Smith of San Francisco, is a wonderful golfer and his excellent comeback in this tournament has given the folks of this city a thrill they will not forget for years to come. I expect Mac will leave within the next couple of weeks for the Texas open championship and then he will go abroad to play in the British open. I surely hope he will do well for he is a mighty fine fellow and an exceedingly good golfer.

Joe Kirkwood has 100 shots in his bag and today he was playing all of them. His tee shots were long and straight and he played his irons well up to the pin. When Joe gets off on the right foot he will hold his own in any company and I, for one, was mighty glad to see him come through today.

Irving Glasser, former Southern Branch boxing instructor and star boxer of Vernon at various times, has decided to help out the Berkeley squad this season by doing some work with the 110-pound division.

Jimmy Brenton, another former Vernon star, has entered the college of medicine at the University of Southern California and has hopes of making the 122-pound team at the local institution. As California and U.S.C. are to meet in a big boxing show soon, it is expected that these two boys will give the home folks here something of a treat.

SO many of the men who bought Certified Studebaker Sixes have suggested to their friends that they patronize our Used Car Department that we broke all previous records for Used Car sales in 1922.

These buyers were satisfied with the economy of their investment and the performance of the cars or they would not have contributed so much to an increase of our business.

They have found the Certified Light-Six in the late models a wonderful buy at $795 and the Certified Special-Six in the 1921 models an unequalled investment at $1035.

The Big-Six Certified models are scarce as few are traded in. They sell around $1150 with Certified Guarantee and Hoffman Service.

Snow Fails to Keep Fans Away From Show

Twenty-third Annual is a Riot of Color

No Radical Changes Noted in 1923 Models

BY PAUL LOWRY
"Times" Staff Correspondent
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—New York forgot the snow, the slush and the wet slippery streets to pay homage to the automobile industry today. Even the admonitions of the health commissioners to keep the tootsies dry as a preventive against flu bugs which are bustling around the city failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the thousands who poured their way into the Grand Central Palace. The onslaught on the turnstiles began promptly at 2 o'clock and before an hour was up the crowd was so dense that one needed a snow plow to budge his way from one exhibit to another. There must have been enough six-bit pieces taken in at the gate to stretch from here to Los Angeles and back. Their tinkle provided all the music. The orchestra vied with the efforts of the smooth-talking salesmen to draw customers into their web.

RIOT OF COLOR

The twenty-third annual show is a riot of gorgeous color. It is a [illegible] production in a Ziegfeld setting. Seventy-nine exhibitors are showing 350 different models of passenger cars ranging in price from [illegible] to $11,156. These cars compete in every detail are on all four of the floors devoted to the exhibits but on the third and fourth floors are exhibits of parts produced by 357 manufacturers, the total of which has not been computed.

The biggest delegation of automobile men which has ever come to New York is on hand. Hotel lobbies are full of chatter about engines, motors, body designs and other automobile whatnots. Indications are there will be 75,000 persons identified with the automobile industry here by Monday. The show is not open tomorrow and many of the biggest men in Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland and Toledo did not leave the factories until this afternoon. But if some of the biggest officials are not here their subordinates are—in flocks and droves. For example, Dodge Brothers Company alone will be represented by about 500 men and most of them are on the ground.

SCRIBES GALORE

Over 100 newspaper men are here to "cover" the show, the "farthest-from-home" delegation being the Los Angeles congregation of three—Nelson Lally, Fred Wagner and Paul Lowry. The New York newspapers make capital mention of this fact. With so many talented newspaper men on hand as well as an enormous batch of automobile men the larger hotels are filled to capacity and the smaller ones are doing a land-office business.

The appeal of the automobile show and the industry at large this year is epitomized in a short, but pithy, sentence, which graces each of several prettily framed placards hung on the walls of the Palace. It runs as follows:

"People did not have trains, doctors, telephones, electric lights or automobiles years ago. They do not consider them luxuries today."

NO CHANGES

With one exception no radical changes are noted in the models of 1923. Most of the manufacturers are satisfied with what they are selling today and the trend is toward refinements, comforts and conveniences. Most of them are going in for big production on closed cars and sport models.

The exception is the new copper-cooled motor announced by the Chevrolet Motor Company. The General Motors research laboratory has discovered a metallurgical process with which it is now feasible permanently to unite copper with iron, and the engineers, in effect, have removed the radiator from the front of the hood and wrapped it around the cylinders, thus eliminating the water and water jacket.

LOW-PRICED CAR

It makes the Chevrolet, in effect, the first low-priced car to come out with an air-cooled proposition, although they prefer to call it copper-cooled. There are other changes in the new car, as for example, the multiple disc clutch, emergency brake on the driveshaft, and a different spring suspension. The transmission is practically the same, but not interchangeable with that on the other model. It will be some time before deliveries are made on the car. It is to sell under $750 f.o.b., for the touring car.

The Studebaker came out with a complete line of thirteen new models featuring a lower, more graceful sweep to the body design and many refinements. The Willys-Knight has three newcomers that are wonderful—a seven-passenger sedan and a coupe-sedan. The Buick has increased its number of models up to fifteen by the addition of a four-passenger sport roadster to the new line, which was announced last week. No price has been quoted on this yet by the factory.

Reindeer industry in the Northwestern Territory of Alaska will, with proper development, have an annual output of meat within a few years that will probably exceed in value the present gold or fisheries, says one observer.

DUNDEE'S TITLE OF MEXICO LOST

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 6.—Johnny Dundee lost the lightweight boxing championship of Mexico last night to Merced [illegible] of San Antonio, Tex., in the fifty-first round of their bout here, when he was knocked down for the count by a blow to the jaw. The men tore at each other continuously.

SPORT SHRAPNEL
By
HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Here is a football follower of the deepest dye. Also, he seems to have the courage of his convictions, and to be somewhat analytical. Otherwise he would not have taken the gratuitous task of selecting an all-California high-school eleven. Edward W. Bents of Darwin avenue, this city, claims to have seen practically all the leading teams in action. Undoubtedly his two selections, first and second, will cause a flood of fireside comment, some commendatory and some adversely critical. It will surprise many to find that he has placed only one City League player on his first eleven, the same being Drury of Long Beach. Mr. Bents claims that his two elevents will call attention to a number of real gridiron stars who have been overlooked.

This is an undertaking which has been sidestepped by such Walter Camps of the West as Joe Bush, Bob Ray and Johnny Parsons. Here is the Bents up-and-down of the State, with his comments appended:

FIRST ELEVEN	SECOND ELEVEN
Hansen (Bakersfield) center.	Tatsch (Gardena) center.
Ducazau (Gardena) quarterback.	Laraneta (Jefferson) quarterback.
Galindo (San Diego) fullback.	Downs (Pasadena) fullback.

"As Bakersfield and Berkeley High had the two best, or supposedly the best, elevens in the State, these two squads have the largest quota of men on my mythical all-State elevens. The first duty in picking any eleven is to find a good center, as the man to hold this position takes part in every play, must be able to pass with speed and accuracy, must be a good lineman and must be able to knock down short passes and follow the ball over the line. Three good men crop up as aspirants for the center job. They are Hansen, Bakersfield; Bob Green, Berkeley, and Tatsch, Gardena. Because of his brilliant play in his games I have witnessed Dutch Hansen is awarded the center position on the first eleven. Hansen is 6 feet 5 inches tall, his passing for the season has been wonderful and he is without a peer as a roving center. Tatsch, the lanky Gardena pivot man, is given the job on the second eleven. As Bob Green, who captained and played center on last year's Berkeley squad is too good a lineman to be overlooked, he is given the right-guard position on the first eleven.

"The other position at guard on the first team goes to Post, plucky Berkeley forward, who almost ruined Bakersfield's chances of being State champs. It was Post that blocked the punt which paved the way for the first Berkeley touchdown. Two other good guards are Brice of Bakersfield and Cox of Los Angeles Polytechnic.

"The two tackle positions on the first team are given to Red May, Bakersfield tackle, who is considered the best prep tackle on the Coast, and Lyle Sheldon, brilliant Gardena player. On running interference May cannot be beat. The red-haired Driller clears away a path large enough to send a parade through and he was mostly responsible for the Bakersfield offensive power. Sheldon was a bear on defense and could snag passes with the best of them during his games with Gardena. These two, with their fighting spirit and natural ability, could make a good eleven into a championship aggregation. Williams of San Diego and Fletcher of Bakersfield are put on the second eleven. Fletcher was on the first all-State eleven last year, but did not improve enough to keep ahead of May and Sheldon.

"Morley Drury, Long Beach wingman, and Hanning of Bakersfield are named ends on the first team. Drury is a whole team in himself and can play most any position on a football team with equal brilliance. The Jackrabbit star can punt, pass, carry the ball, snag passes and tackle and would be a big help to any squad. Hanning, although not so brilliant as Drury, knows how to play a wing position and is fast on getting down under punts. Scarlett of Berkeley and Godett of Franklin High were two other good ends.

"Johnny Ducazau is the best prep drop-kicker in the State and knows how to run a team as well. Aside from these qualities Ducazau can carry the ball, is a punter and can run back punts with the best of them. Ducazau would also be captain of the first eleven. Manuel Laraneta, speedy Jefferson back, is awarded the quarterback berth on the second team.

"Spud Murphy of Berkeley and Willie Lewis of Bakersfield are named halfbacks on the first squad. This pair could run any team ragged and both are really varsity men right now. Murphy scored both of Berkeley's touchdowns in the 1922 battle for the State championship. Lewis is Bakersfield's best ground gainer and is even better than Murphy. Bob Lee of Franklin and Caldwell of Bakersfield are put on the second team. Caldwell is the best prep punter in the State and can pass the ball fifty yards.

"Charles Galindo, San Diego star, is awarded the fullback berth and would do the line-plunging for the first team. Galindo, who weighs 185 pounds, can make yards through almost any line. Willard Downs, Pasadena star, is named fullback on the second squad. Downs would also be captain.

"Perhaps better teams could be picked than the ones I have named, but I would be willing to bet that there is not a prep squad in the United States that could beat the first eleven."

GRAPPLERS PARK HERE

With all the principals for the big world's championship wrestling show to be held Wednesday night at the Hollywood American Legion ring arrived in Los Angeles, the event is about ready for the tap of the first gong.

Ed (Strangler) Lewis with his bagful of headlocks is putting up at a local hotel. Yesterday he was around greeting old friends. He will do a little light training in his rooms at the hotel and the heavier work he will do probably at Hollywood.

Demetrius Tofalas, the Greek strong man, who meets Lewis, will also work out at the Hollywood stadium. Likewise Jimmy Londos and Augelo Taramascki, the two light-heavyweights, who meet in the semi-wind-up.

Bull Montana, he needs no further introduction, has been chosen to referee the championship match, while Eddie O'Connell of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, may referee the Londos-Taramascki go.

To start off the show, Promoter Umberto Rovere has a jiu-jitsu match scheduled. Either an American schooled at jiu-jitsu will meet a local Japanese, or two Japanese matmen will do their stuff.

RIDLEY TO TAKE ON SOUTHPAW SLUGGER

Bud Ridley, the battling 128-pounder, and Danny Kramer, the featherweight kayoe king, will meet for the Pacific Coast featherweight championship in the main event at Vernon next Tuesday night. Kramer arrived in Los Angeles from Portland recently where he defeated several of the Northwest prides. Ridley has won both of his recent starts here and is all set for Kramer.

Kid Mexico and Tom Kelly, two middleweight scrappers, will hook up in the semi-wind-up. The other bouts follow: Al Grunan vs. Louie Garcia, 135 pounds; Young Wallace vs. Louis Stefmeyer, 155 pounds; Bud Manning vs. Art Springer, 115 pounds; Johnny McGraw vs. Harry Turner, 138 pounds, and Billy Velardi vs. Leonard Melody, 133 pounds.

MIXED FOURSOME AT GRIFFITH PARK

According to Ike Wentworth, who is managing the midwinter golf tournies at Griffith Park this season, the midwinter mixed foursome tournament will be staged over the municipal course on the 13th and 14th of this month.

There has always been a great deal of interest in these mixed foursome affairs, and it is believed that there will be a number of fine players enter this season. In the meantime the annual midwinter handicap tourney is progressing at a good rate.

PLAN HUGE BOWLING ASSOCIATION HERE

According to Nick Schaffer, manager of the Broadway Bowling Alleys, present plans of the Southern California Bowling Association call for the erection of a huge building which will include twenty-six alleys. It is also planned to make the organization one of the largest of its kind in this country, and a goal of 8000 persons has been set.

Schaffer plans to finance the building of the bowling alleys and has behind him a large number of bowling fans who have a desire to see the sport grow in Southern California. Among those who indorse the plan are: Sullivan Brown, A. H. Coney, Ernie Shay, Harold Lloyd, Onie Gregg, Ben Fahy, Forrest Hershey, Robert Bole, A. A. Anderson, Frank Brane and Bob Jones.

JIMMY O'NEAL TO APPEAR AT VERNON

Jimmy O'Neal, clever Chicago 126-pounder, who is being managed by Carlo Curtis, has arrived in Los Angeles and will appear at Vernon a week from Tuesday against some speedy local bantam. Curtis says O'Neal will be showing a lot of the so-called wise birds some real stuff once he gets into the padded square. O'Neal has a long string of victories from his battles in the East.

SOCCER GAMES ON FOR TODAY

Two Big Clashes Carded at Washington Park

Samson Tire Company in Front by Short Margin

Scots Are Hitting a Fast Pace Just Now

Two big soccer games are carded for Washington Park this afternoon. Beginning at 1 p.m., Pasadena and L. A. United will tangle, with the afterpiece devoted to the L. A. Scots and Samson Tire Company.

Here are two games that should satisfy the most exacting fan. All four clubs are showing to excellent form and are closely bunched. Samson has the edge by half a game, and this precarious lead will be seriously threatened this afternoon when they take the field against the Scots.

LINE-UP CHANGE

The Tiremen will present a new backfield, according to report, with possibly some changes in the half-line. Kozma, Samson pilot, has lined up two or three new players who may be given a chance against the Scots. The defeat of the Tiremen at the hands of Pasadena weakened their stock somewhat, and they are out to redeem it.

Scots are hitting a fast pace and are favored by many to take the measure of the leaders. They may not win, but they will most certainly force the Tiremen to the limit.

SOME GOALERS

The game will afford an opportunity to witness the two best goalers in action. Murray, who showed to such excellent advantage in the recent intercity series in San Francisco will be between the posts for Samson, with Edmundson opposing him.

Flushed by their victory over Samson, Pasadena will endeavor to slip the same bitter pill to the local United. It can be said at once, however, that they have cut out for themselves a man-sized job, and should experience considerable difficulty with the fast and elusive Uniteds. The latter are not in the least discouraged at their reverse by the Athletic Club, and are confidently looking forward to today's game.

ON SICK LIST

There will be but one change in the United line-up. Archie Brown is on the hospital list. His substitute has not yet been named by Danny Hall.

A third game will be played at Maier Park with the Overseas and Rangers in competition. The fourth match of the day will be played at Long Beach between the beach United and Sons of St. George. Both these games will start at 2:30 p.m.

CHAMPIONS TO TANGLE IN BIG GO

Sawtelle and Shell Oil Nines Will Appear in Feature Ball Tilt

Tomorrow when the triple A division sounds off, all titles, pennants and prestige, that goes with a championship, will be at stake. As a result several big games are on tap.

The best game in the series will be played at Sawtelle when the local squad players the Rose Room Dancers. Both these teams are good and as they both have something to fight, for a fast and furious tilt may be enjoyed by all.

Another fast game is scheduled in the Shell Oil and Hammond Lumber Company game. Both these teams are rarin' to go. If the Shell Oil men win they will be tied for first place with Sawtelle. The Hammond Lumber men report that they are in the best of shape and have been doing some snappy practice for this tilt.

Other games in the league are; at Ventura the Cox-Haas team will meet the Ventura Elks. The fourth place title is at stake in this game. At Huntington Beach the locals will take on the Santa Fe Reds, Guy Cooper, star hurler, will be in the box and his opponents will have to step to take the game.

Vernon Club to Put On a Shoot Today

A lot of red-hot trapshooting competition is looked for today at the Vernon Gun Club, when the reopening shoot is held.

Two shoots are on the card, the first a contest for hams and bacons and open to all shooters and the second a team race between Vernon and Upland.

In the ham-and-bacon event, the shooters will line up at sixteen yards in a 100-target contest. High guns will have first choice of the hams and bacons. There will be enough bacons on hand for all shooters that compete through the program.

The team race will be for ten-men teams at fifty targets a man. Trophies will be awarded to the members of the winning team.

SUNSET CLUB HOLDS OLD-TIME PEP MEET

One hundred members of the Sunset Canyon Country Club met last night in Hollywood to discuss the financial standing of the club. It seems that the members are dissatisfied with a one-man rule of the club and are trying to get a representative form of government. Also there was some talk and protest of a rise in dues. The future of the club is in some doubt so a meeting was called for the evening of the 10th inst.

MANY RECORDS ARE APPROVED

Amateur Athletic Union in Busy Session

Weissmuller's Performances Most Sensational

Miss Sybil Bauer Holder of Three Marks

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The amateur Athletic Union, through Louis Goldsmith, chairman of the rules committee, today approved fifty-one record-breaking performances, forty-seven in swimming and four in track-and-field events, made last year. Thirty-three of these marks will go down as American records, while eighteen will be registered as noteworthy performances, a category including feats under conditions or over distances not recognized as standard.

All of these performances are in addition to about 100 others in track-and-field and swimming events, to which official recognition was given by the A.A.U. at its annual meeting last November.

SOME SWIMMER

The predominance of swimming marks is due chiefly to the individual exploits of Johnny Weissmuller of the Illinois Athletic Club, one of the most sensational aquatic performers of all time. The Chicago star is credited in the new list with twenty-five American records, twenty-one at free style and four at backstroke swimming, over distances ranging from fifty to 500 yards, bringing the total number of new marks he has established within the past year to forty-five. These do not include a long array of noteworthy performances, eight or more of which are added to his string in the new compilation.

Weissmuller also helped to establish an American record for the 400-yard relay over a twenty-yard course. The Illinois Athletic Club team, of which he was a member, setting a mark of 3 minutes, 42 3-5 seconds at Chicago, last March. The other swimmers of the quartet were Harry Hebner, Perry McGillivray and A. Siegel. With McGillivray, Siegel and W. L. Wallen of the I.A.C., Weissmuller aided in a noteworthy performance for the 160-yard relay event over a short course of 1 minute, 16 seconds, also at Chicago.

MERMAID SHINES

Three American records and six noteworthy performances are credited to Miss Sybil Bauer, premier backstroke star of the Illinois Athletic Club, at distances ranging from fifty to 400 yards.

Other noteworthy performances for men include two backstroke marks at 200 and 400 meters, established by Harold Kruger of Chicago, at Milwaukee, and a 440-yard breast-stroke figure by Robert Skelt of the Illinois A. C., over a short course at Detroit. Two of the new American track-and-field records displace standards recognized last November.

Through a confusion in data submitted to the rules committee, the Penn State College quartet was erroneously credited with a record of 7m. 54⅘s. for the two-mile indoor relay, at a meet here Feb. 1, 1922. Investigation revealed that this time was three seconds faster than actually made and the record now is placed to the credit of the University of Pennsylvania team, which hung up a mark of 7m. 55 1-5s. at an indoor meet here March 11, 1922.

The other record changing hands is the indoor running high jump standard, Leroy Brown of Dartmouth, leaping 6ft. 4⅝in. at a meet here March 11, 1922, to replace the mark of 6ft. 4⅜in. made by John L. Murphy of Notre Dame, Feb. 1, 1922. The other two records approved are:

Four-mile relay, outdoors, four men, each running one mile, 17m. ⅘s. made by University of Illinois team (Howard Yates, Bruce Patterson, Gordon McGinnis and Russell Wharton) at Drake University relay carnival, Des Moines, Iowa, April 29, 1922.

Javelin throw, with javelin held in middle, 202ft. 9½in., made by Milton Angier, University of Illinois, at Drake relay carnival, Des Moines, Iowa, April 28, 1922.

OCEANSIDE GOLFERS PICK THEIR OFFICERS

At the annual meeting of the Oceanside Golf Club, held at the First National Bank at Oceanside, last night the following were elected as directors for the coming year, 1923: W. S. Hargreaves, C. T. McKeehan, A. V. Nichols, H. C. Hargreaves, A. S. Glasgow, C. C. LeBas, H. W. Laskey. The directors in turn elected the following officers: W. S. Hargreaves president; W. V. Nichols vice-president, while C. T. McKeehan was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

The Oceanside Golf Club closed a very successful year and has one of the best dirt golf courses in California. It is situated on the edge of the Pacific Ocean, which gives the course quite an advantage over other courses, as the climate is ideal the year around. The Oceanside Golf Club was organized a year ago by public-spirited citizens of Oceanside and at the present time has a substantial membership and is growing rapidly.

POLOISTS TO START OFF TODAY

Two Crack Teams Will Clash on Pinkerton Field at Riverside

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 6.—"Pinkerton Field," one of the finest polo fields in America, will be formally opened tomorrow afternoon when two polo teams made up of stars who are wintering in Riverside and in Southern California will clash in the opening battle.

Six Riverside players, all of whom have performed for the past few years on Chemawa Park Field, will be numbered among those from whom the two teams are selected and it looks like a real "hot" battle for the opener.

Those of the polo colony who are here for the winter from the East and other points are: Barry Huston, Denver; Capt. Irwin, North Island, San Diego; Harry East, Newark, N. J.; Arthur Perkins, Midwick, Pasadena; Max Fleischmann, Cincinnati; H. B. Albright, New York.

From this list of players and the six Riverside men, Hilliard Lett, H. G. Pattee, F. D. Hudson, Thomas Mangan, C. M. Dammers, the latter of Argentina, the two teams that will play in the opening game will be selected.

KID CHILI IS AFTER BENNY MARKS'S SCALP

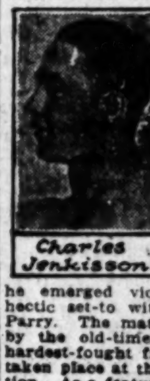
Kid Chili, local southpaw flyweight scrapper, is gunning for Benny Marks's scalp. Chili and his manager, Carlo Curtis, have been chasing Marks around in hope of getting him to take on Chili. Chili says that all he wants is a chance to show the fans that he can knock out Battling Benny. The two scrappers will probably be matched at either Vernon or Hollywood in the near future.

SUPREME TEST FOR MITT MAN

Eddie Gleason is to Show Mettle Thursday

To Box With Sailor Smith in Main Event

Corking Card is Scheduled at L.A.A.C. Gym



Charles Jenkisson

Eddie Gleason, the demon 130-pound mitt artist of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, will be given the supreme test of his ring career next Thursday night when he clashes with Sailor Smith in the main event of the fistic program that will be held in the L.A.A.C. arena.

Smith won a home with local fight fans at the last Mercury Club boxing program when he emerged victorious from his hectic set-to with rugged Harvey Parry. The match was acclaimed by the old-timers as one of the hardest-fought frays that has ever taken place at the Mercury institution. As a feature go, Matchmaker George Blake could not have chosen two more worthy battlers.

EVENLY MATCHED

Gleason has been cutting down his opponents in a consistent and knockout fashion, but in facing Smith, many of the wiseacres figure the Sailor has too many heavy duty guns for the L.A.A.C. boxer. They are evenly matched and there should be little to choose between them when the final gong is sounded.

Sailor Piccano of the good ship Mississippi will endeavor to get even with Joe Schlocker for the many beatings he has handed a few of the Sailor boy ringsters. Piccano is an apt boxer who packs a good wallop and his boring in tactics are being counted on to force Schlocker to the limit.

IN FINE TRIM

Another interesting contest should result when Sailor Jones trades blows with Charley Jenkisson. The latter is in old-time fighting trim and a lively encounter is anticipated when these two classy welterweights take the ring. Fidel LaBarba will appear in the semi-wind up with Rudie Reco as his worthy adversary. The list of bouts:

Joe St. George vs. Ned Golden, 118 pounds.
[illegible] vs. Sid [illegible], heavyweights.
[illegible] vs. Sailor [illegible] (U.S.S. [illegible]
Joe Schlocker vs. Sailor Piccano (U.S.S. Mississippi,) 135 pounds.
Charley Jenkisson vs. Sailor Jones (U.S.S. Idaho,) 142 pounds.
Joe [illegible] vs. Sailor [illegible] (U.S.S. Mississippi,) 126 pounds.
F. La Barba vs. Rudie Reco, 118 pounds.
Eddie Gleason vs. Sailor Smith (U.S.S. Idaho,) 130 pounds.

BRENTWOOD PLANS FOR LADIES' DAY

According to Mrs. John Byers, chairman of the Brentwood Women's Golf Committee, the first of a series of Ladies' Days will be held Tuesday when a sweepstakes tournament will be held over the newly-constructed course of the Brentwood Country Club. A number of prizes have been offered to the best scores which are turned in and the affair promises to be very interesting.

"We plan to have the second Tuesday of each month set aside as Ladies' Day," said Mrs. Byers, "and we want every woman to be sure to come out this month and start the new year and the new scheme right."

SPEEDY CLUBS IN BIG TILTS

Standard-Murphys Take on Cleary Athletic Club

White Kings and Azusa in Wicked Battle Today

Inglewood Legion Players Journey to Lynwood

BY JOE BUSH

The Cleary Athletic Club ball squad and the Standard-Murphy club will meet today in the feature game of the Greater Southern California Baseball Association's round of play. The Clearys and the Standard-Murphys have met twice before with each team taking a verdict, so today's tilt at La Habra will decide the three-game series. Doc Crandall will be on the mound for the Standard-Murphy crew while "Moose" Trautwein will chuck for the Clearys.

Another fast game scheduled for the morrow's round of pleasure will be between the White Kings and the Azusa Merchants on the latter's lot. Both of these clubs have been going along at a fast clip lately and should put up an exciting battle today. The Inglewood American Legion club journeys to Lynwood to take on the fast traveling Lynwooders in what should also be a gripping encounter.

The Amalgamated Oil Company ball tossers will play hosts to the I. O. Foresters at Olinda in another fast tussle. The U.S.S. Oklahoma squad will make its debut in Greater Southern California Baseball Association circles at Bellflower in the game with the club there. Norwalk, the league leader of the County League, will face the recently rejuvenated Hynes batters on the Hynes diamond in what should be a battle for blood. Norwalk will be without the services of its star twirler, Ray Keough, Angel recruit, who "Red" Killefer forbade pitching until spring practice starts.

Joe Pirrone will take his major and Coast League All-Stars to San Diego where they will tackle the speedy Balboa Park nine. Pirrone's club will be at its best and the San Diego club will probably run into a defeat. Ping Bodie's All-Stars clash with the White Sox in the second of the two-game series between the two fast aggregations. The feature battle in the City League will be played by the Southwestern University and the Fraternal Brotherhood nines. Following is the schedule:

OMAHA CRUISER WILL SET PACE

New Scout Ship Expected to be Hard Fighter

Boat's Cruising Speed to be Thirty-five Knots

Sailors Nickname Vessel "The Irish Navy"

The light scout cruiser Omaha, about to go into commission at Tacoma, is expected by seamen to be the hardest fighting ship in the United States Navy. "The Irish Navy," they have dubbed the Omaha in the fleet, even before she is completed.

One reason for her nickname is that her first commander is to be Capt. David C. Hanrahan, known throughout the Navy as "The Irish Grand Duke." Capt. Hanrahan acquired his expressive cognomen during the World War when he commanded an American destroyer squadron, he being given a characteristic Irish reception on the occasion of his landing at Queenstown.

OMAHA IS FLAGSHIP

But the fighting spirit of the 200 enlisted men now on board the dreadnaught Texas for assignment to the Omaha has also been responsible for the new cruiser's nickname. Red hair and adventurous spirits predominate among the lively draft of sailors who came around from Hampton Roads a month ago on the transport Henderson.

The Omaha, first of ten ships of her type now being built, is to be flagship of the destroyer squadrons of the battle fleet, relieving the old cruiser Charleston about March 1. She will also be the fastest warcraft afloat above the destroyer class, her 90,000 horsepower turbines being expected to drive her at a cruising speed of thirty-five knots an hour.

The Omaha's crew will go north to Puget Sound on the Texas on the 18th inst. While the dreadnaught is being overhauled at the navy yard, the crew will remain on board until the cruiser is ready for her acceptance trials at Tacoma, about February 15.

The two-starred flag of Rear-Admiral R. H. Jackson, commanding Battleship Division Three, was transferred from the Texas to the New York yesterday, following the flagship's return from northern waters. Division Three is complete for the first time in several months, the Oklahoma, New York and Texas being scheduled to fire secondary battery practice this week.

To assist in these exercises, Destroyer Division Thirty-four, consisting of destroyers Yarborough, Sipat, Wood, Lavallette, Shirk and Kidder, arrived from San Diego yesterday in charge of Commander W. S. Anderson. A squadron of seaplanes, also to participate in maneuvers of the next fortnight, will come up from the south tomorrow.

CANADA TO PUSH SHIP LINES HERE

First Vessel of Fleet From Orient to Arrive Shortly With Valuable Cargo

Expansion of freight service maintained to Los Angeles Harbor by the Canadian government merchant marine was announced yesterday by E. W. Hardie, local manager for Dodwell & Co., Ltd. The first vessel of the dominion's fleet to call at Los Angeles from the Orient, the Canadian Winner, will arrive from Dairen on the 20th inst., while the Canadian Volunteer, an 8000-ton craft, is due early in February from Montreal.

The 2500 tons of local cargo coming from the Far East for this port on the Canadian Winner is said to be valued at approximately $500,000, one of the most valuable single cargoes ever brought here. It consists of costly sesame seed, rape seed, Chinese flax seed and other oriental products.

The arrival of the Canadian Volunteer will mark also the first call here of a Canadian government vessel from the east coast. She is bringing 5000 tons of freight for Coast ports.

The freighter will be added to the line's present fleet of steamers operating in regular service between Los Angeles, Ocean Falls and Vancouver, Mr. Hardie said. The other vessels in this service are the Canadian Farmer, Canadian Rover and Canadian Observer.

SMUGGLING REPORT TO BE SIFTED

Investigation of Buried Crown Jewels Rumor Will be Made

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. — No matter how fantastic may be the report that Russian crown jewels, valued at $4,000,000, are buried with an American seaman in a Brooklyn cemetery, Nathaniel G. Vandoren, chief of special customs agents, said today a thorough investigation will be made by his force.

Because of constantly recurring reports of the smuggling of the Russian jewels into this country, Mr. Vandoren said it had become a standing joke in the office. Despite that, and the apparent improbability of the current rumor, he said the customs service always made an investigation of the reports, without results to date.

In the event the investigation developed sufficient evidence to justify such an extreme, Mr. Vandoren said, steps would be taken to open the grave of James Jones, the American sailor, in whose coffin the jewels are asserted to have been buried.

DAMAGES ASKED BY BRITISH

Unexpected Claims for Reconditioning German Ships Filed With Shipping Board

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—British claims totaling nearly $8,000,000 for the reconditioning of ten former German ships used by the United States in the handling of American troops for after the war, were filed unexpectedly with the Shipping Board today.

Chairman Lasker said no record of the transactions had ever been brought to his attention, but there was no doubt that the United States obtained the vessels after the armistice and later turned them over to the British at the instance of the Allied commission.

The ships, which included the Imperator, now the Cunard Liner Berengaria, sister ship to the Leviathan, were some of the vessels seized by the Allies in German harbors after the war and allocated under the direction of the commission set up to parcel out German spoils.

Something just short of an international incident was caused by the delay of the United States to return the vessels when the Allied commission thought they were due. John Barton Paine, then chairman of the Shipping Board, declined at first to turn them over to the British crew sent to New York to man them. Satisfactory adjustment was reached through diplomatic channels, but no claim for reconditioning the vessels, either before they were assigned to the United States or after they were back in the possession of the British, was forthcoming and the incident was considered closed here.

The claim filed today by the British Board of Trade makes the flat charge that in some cases the vessels when returned by the United States were "an an exceedingly bad state, caused apparently by negligence, neglect and willful damage."

BLESSING IN CUSTODY IN DRUG FIGHT

Federal Authorities Fix Bonds at $5000 for Sanatorium Manager

Charles J. Blessing, said by Federal authorities to be the manager of the Barker Sanatorium at 145 North Gates street, where Wallace Reid was once treated for the narcotic habit, surrendered to the United States Marshal in San Francisco yesterday after a warrant had been issued charging him with violation of the Harrison Anti-narcotic Act.

At the same time John Scott Barker, asserted by the same authorities to be the owner of the sanatorium, as well as a similar one in Oakland, also appeared and was arraigned on a like charge which was preferred against him in Oakland Tuesday.

Blessing's bonds were set at $5000. Barker's bonds had already been placed at $7500.

The warrant for Blessing's arrest was issued after sheaves of records seized in the offices of the North Gates street sanatorium on New Year's night, had been taken by Federal narcotic agents to San Francisco.

The raid upon the Barker sanatorium in Los Angeles followed immediately after the news had reached this city of the arrest in Oakland of the reputed head of both the Oakland and Los Angeles establishments.

Blessing had gone to Oakland two days previously and yesterday Federal narcotic agents declared that he had refused to return here for questioning. His arrest in San Francisco followed.

LOVE-NEST TALE TOLD BY WOMAN

Druggist Sued by Eleanor Hassell, Who Asserts Wrongful Marriage

What appears to have been the love-nest of Harry A. Dutton, druggist, and Eleanor Hasselrus, known as Eleanor Hassell, received publicity when Miss Hassell yesterday sued Dutton on a contract and charged that she married him in Santa Clara June 29, 1916, and lived with him in the home she says he provided at 1322 Coronado Terrace.

The breaking up of the romance was due to the fact, Miss Hassell declares, that she discovered that Dutton already had a wife. He admitted, she says, he was married and not divorced at the time of the Santa Clara marriage.

Miss Hassell, who sues on a contract for balance due amounting to $5110, asserts she was tricked into the marriage. Dutton's only excuse, the complaint states, was that he was infatuated madly with her and promised to do everything in his power, financially and legally, to make amends for the purported wrong. He told her he was unhappy with his wife, would not live with her and would take action to secure his freedom.

The couple entered into a purported agreement June 1, 1922, which she says she signed because she was sick and nervous. Under this agreement she relinquished any claims on receipt of $600 and the payment of $150 a month until $5400 had been paid. It is asserted that Dutton refused to continue the payments.

Milton Cohen is attorney for Miss Hassell.

Constipation

Constipation of the bowels is a stoppage of the sewerage system that removes waste matter from the body. It is as necessary that your bowels move regularly once each day to carry off this waste, as it is that the waste pipes of your home be kept open and carry off the waste from the house. If you would enjoy good health keep your bowels regular by taking Chamberlain's Tablets when needed.—[Advertisement.

FIND BODY OF MISSING MAN

The body of Joseph Watson, a gardener missing since New Year's Day from his home in Valley Drive, Eagle Rock, was found yesterday in a canyon between Occidental College and Oak Grove Drive. The throat had been cut with a razor which lay some distance from the corpse, which evidently had rolled fifteen feet down the slope.

The body was taken to the undertaking establishment of C. F. Lamb & Sons, and Marshall Claude S. Bramble of Eagle Rock made an inquiry which satisfied him that the death was due to suicide. Watson leaves a widow, who says she cannot account for her husband's act. He was about 45 years of age.

MAYOR BACKING CRIME CRUSADE

Expresses Hearty Approval of Campaign

Co-operation Pledged in Drive on Undesirables

Police Department Lauded in Letter to Commission

Mayor Cryer yesterday forwarded to the Community Development Association a letter expressing his hearty approval of the organization by the association of an Anticrime Commission. The Mayor declared that he welcomed the "advent of an unbiased body, equipped and qualified to determine the true conditions in our community and to fix responsibility for any unsatisfactory conditions that may be found to exist" and assured the association of his whole-hearted assistance and co-operation in their efforts to "better conditions and rid our fair city of vice and crime and suppress the vicious and criminal element."

The association's investigation, the Mayor said, will serve to advise the people of Los Angeles as to the true conditions and will combat "sensational statements spread abroad to serve personal and political ends."

The Mayor's letter was as follows:

EXPRESSES APPROVAL

"Permit me to express my hearty approval of your plan for the formation of a commission consisting of members of your organization to investigate crime conditions and law-enforcement agencies in the city of Los Angeles, and to assist in the enforcement of the law.

"While I have stated, and still feel, that conditions in our city compare very favorably with conditions as they exist in other cities of similar size, that is very far from saying that they cannot be improved. I am convinced that we are here to combat the anomalous condition resulting from the annual winter influx of the criminal [illegible] seeking climatic conditions afforded by this locality. These men and women seek to prey upon our people.

PRAISES POLICE

"I am satisfied that so far as our police department is concerned it is functioning better at the present time than it has for a long time past. The department as a whole [illegible] its present Chief and there is a high degree of harmony among the men. However, there is room for improvement. To that end we welcome constructive criticism and suggestions for improvement in the department.

"Furthermore, we welcome the advent of an unbiased body, equipped and qualified to determine the true conditions in our community and to fix responsibility for any unsatisfactory conditions that may be found to exist. We furthermore welcome the creation of such an agency for the reason that it will serve as a means of advising the people as to true conditions, and of combating sensational statements spread abroad to serve personal and political ends.

"In assuring you of the whole-hearted assistance and co-operation of this office, in your efforts to better conditions and rid our fair city of vice and crime, and suppress the vicious and criminal element, I am, yours sincerely,

"GEORGE E. CRYER, Mayor."

MAN MISSING; POLICE SEARCH

Southern California police authorities yesterday were requested to assist in the search for Frank Ernest, 71 years of age, who disappeared Tuesday.

Mr. Ernest came recently from South Dakota. He has been living at the home of his niece, Mrs. C. D. Raindille, 1734 West Fifty-second street. At the time of his disappearance he had about $50. The missing man is described as [illegible] 3 inches tall, young in appearance, smooth shaven, sparse hair, gray at temples, false teeth with lower front tooth missing. He wore a blue serge suit, felt hat and a small Masonic emblem.

TAKES POISON; CALLS FOR AID

After swallowing seven grains of bichloride of mercury, Mrs. [illegible] Hensen, 1020 Manzanita, met police officers at the door of her home and accompanied them in an ambulance to the Receiving Hospital, where a stomach pump was applied.

Mrs. Hensen's mother told the officers that her daughter's husband had recently left her after a quarrel. On taking the poison Mrs. Hensen became frightened and told her mother, who telephoned the police.

Gland Treatment "Rejuvenates" Broker

"I'm just as young as I used to be, and it's all due to gland pills. Though I am 72, and I feel just as young and full of vim and pep as if I were only 30 or 40."

This testimony to the virtue of gland treatment was voiced recently by Robert George Laws, a noted London stock broker, during a short visit to this country.

"I was in the Kingston hospital in London when I first tried the tablets," said Mr. Laws. "After I had taken the fifteenth tablet I left the hospital and haven't been sick since. I still take a tablet now and then, and I think they are the real fountain of youth."

Such a treatment is now obtainable in the form of Glandogen, a highly concentrated glanular product prepared from the glands of healthy young animals. Glandogen has had remarkable success with thousands of people who have used it. Procurable at Henderson-Sutherland Drug Co., 3rd and Main; Sun-Chambers Drug Co., 9th and Spring and 6th and Los Angeles, and the Chambers Drug Co., 7th and Broadway. AGRICULTURE IS FIRST

Claims of State Industry Presented by Regional Farm Bureau Federation

Adequate financial provision for the support and maintenance of the various State agencies created to aid agriculture is urged in a series of resolutions adopted by Region No. 1 of the California Farm Bureau of Federation and its recent convention in El Centro. The resolutions point out that agriculture is "California's greatest industry" and that the State budget for the ensuing fiscal year should include a sufficient sum to keep their effectiveness unimpaired.

The commodity department system in farm bureau work was also indorsed at the regional conference. Support was pledged to the Dairy Department of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau in its efforts to eradicate tuberculosis in dairy cattle.

The resolutions follow:

"Whereas, agriculture is California's greatest industry and its future basic to the prosperity of the entire State and

RESEARCH IS VITAL

"Whereas the various research and regulatory institutions operating in this State are vital and essential to the future of California's agriculture,

"Be it therefore resolved, that Region No. 1, representing the Farm Bureau of Los Angeles, Riverside, Orange, San Bernardino, San Diego and Imperial counties, does hereby urge that the State budget for the ensuing biennial be made adequate to safeguard those agencies which are essential."

"Whereas, the commodity system in farm bureau work is now recognized as a potent factor in the development of this movement, and

"Whereas, intercounty departments are developing in Region No. 1 at the present time,

"Be it resolved, therefore, that this Region indorse this department system, and undertake a special study of this plan of farm bureau endeavor at an early date, in order that all farm bureau departments may be organized along the best lines and may be of a uniform type and purpose.

Be it further resolved, that Region No. 1 indorse intercounty departments, help in their organization and keep in close touch with their operations."

BOVINE TUBERCULOSIS

"Whereas, the prevalence of tuberculosis in dairy cattle is a serious menace to the future of the dairy industry in this State, and

"Whereas, there are many evils at the present time resulting from the sale of tubercular cows that have been rendered immune to the tuberculin test by 'plugging,'

"Be it resolved, therefore, that it is the sense of this meeting to support a law proposed by the Dairy Department of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau and the Southern California Purebred Livestock Breeders' Association, to enforce the branding of all grade cows reacting to the tuberculin test and providing for the registration of all pure-bred reactors."

TRADE AIDES CONVENE AT EL CENTRO

Thirty-five Commerce Men Are Shown Advantages of Imperial Valley

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL CENTRO, Jan. 6.—Thirty-five representatives of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Southern California convened in monthly meeting here today and were entertained by a committee headed by James T. Coyle, Secretary of the local Chamber. The business session was held this morning at Barbara Worth Hotel and a dinner was served at noon with delegations present from every city in Imperial Valley. The afternoon was spent in touring the valley and visiting points of interest.

The meeting here was obtained against opposition of other cities near Los Angeles only after a spirited fight on the part of the Imperial Valley delegation at the last meeting at Long Beach. It was desired especially to have this meeting conducted in Imperial Valley in order that secretaries of Chamber of Commerce, over the southern half of the State might obtain a proper conception of the valley and leave boosting for it. A comprehensive idea of the importance of the valley industries and products was furnished by the local program committee.

WAR "BUDDIES" TO THE RESCUE

Displaying that "buddy spirit" which carried them cheerfully through the sacrifices and hardships of war, ex-service men of Post No. 8, American Legion, today will take up the burden of helping one of their number and show that peace has not made them callous to misfortune.

R. A. White, 9010 Orchard avenue, did his share of the fighting and was disabled. Undaunted by his failing strength he began to build a home for his wife and babies a few months ago. But he couldn't finish the job, and the family was compelled to move into the makeshift structure.

Dr. Fred Barnet, chairman of the post medical committee, called on White and took steps to relieve the distress of the small family. Members of the post today will finish the building and install a modern bath room, kitchen and living room.

The work will be supervised by Post Commander-elect J. W. McKinley, M. J. Hendricks and Fred C. Wilson. The materials have been contributed. Among those who will don overalls and complete the home are Dick Kemp, Barney Nemeroff, Thomas Austin, Clyde Horton, Capt. Ryan, C. W. Maples, Col. LeRoy Smith, William J. Shackleton and Robert W. Holliway.

Miss Ann Harrington and other nurses of the United States Veterans Bureau staff will serve dinner to the White family.

SAILORS' EFFECTS SOLD

The effects of four dead sailormen were sold at public auction by Dep. U. S. Marshal Menick, yesterday, and brought $17. The successful bidder was J. A. Woolley, a broker of this city.

BOY CROOK SUSPECTS ARRESTED

Officers Assert Youths Have Confessed to Many Hold-up Crimes

Capturing three youths suspected of participation in the robbery of the owner of an oil station in South Pasadena Friday night, deputy sheriffs announced yesterday that they had confessions from the youths that they had taken part in from thirty to forty such robberies in and near Los Angeles in the last few months. The three under arrest are Jack Graham, 19 years of age, Leon Jenkins, 21, and Henry Benz, 24. The deputies are searching for a fourth youth, said to have been a member of the asserted gang.

The arrests followed the capture Friday night by Deputies Richard, Jones, Taplin, Motorcycle Officers Marty and Weeks and Constable Anderson of Belvedere Gardens of Jack Graham. The latter is said to have admitted his asserted part in the hold-up of J. B. Reylye, in charge of an oil station at 804 Pasadena avenue, South Pasadena, Friday night. Later Deputy Jones arrested Leon Jenkins.

Graham was captured after a revolver fight between him and the officers near Evergreen Cemetery. Three other men and women with him at the time escaped, it was stated. It was learned the men and women were in an automobile said to have been stolen from an Owensmouth farmer. The capture of Graham and Jenkins was followed by the arrest of Benz. The three youths were questioned by Deputies Wright, Davidson and Jones, after which they were placed in the County Jail. A further investigation of the activities of the three will be made.

FIRE CHIEF IN ACTION AT FRESNO

Sweeping Changes Ordered in Department by Recent Appointee

FRESNO, Jan. 5.—Thomas Baird, brought from Los Angeles recently and made chief of Fresno's fire department, yesterday announced a sweeping program of changes to modernize the force and wipe out "obsolete" regulations.

Physical training and intensive training in the technique of fire fighting are major points in the new code, which the city commission will be asked to adopt in the form of an ordinance.

Company officers recently were given intensive training in calisthenics and now are passing their knowledge on to their men, by means of daily "physical jerks."

Expulsion from the department will be the penalty for eighty demerits, under the new rules. Demerits will be given for infractions of discipline proved by investigation. Merit marks will be used to offset demerits, and sixty merit marks will entitle the holder to special privileges.

A standard uniform has been adopted by Baird and an order issued under which all members of the department must reside within the city.

Baird was made chief after reports of inefficiency and insubordination had led to investigation, the resignation of one assistant chief, the ousting of another and the voluntary demotion of Chief William Berkholtz, now an assistant chief.

SEWAGE OUTFALL ALLOWED

State Board of Health Grants Permit for City Plant at Hyperion

The State Board of Health yesterday granted the city a permit allowing the location of an outfall for the disposition of municipal sewage at a point in the Pacific Ocean near Hyperion, according to information given out at the board's local offices in the Pacific Finance Building.

The location of the outfall for long has been a subject much agitated and various beach communities, through representatives from time to time have appeared before the State Board of Health to protest against the selection of an outfall site in their several vicinities.

The State health board, in granting the permit, makes it subject to strict sanitary conditions designed to protect the beach and water at Hyperion from disfigurement and contamination.

It is stipulated that the outfall must discharge into the bottom of the bay at a point at least 5000 feet from the low-water shore line. Construction of the sewer and treating plant, it is estimated, will involve a cost of approximately $12,000,000.

FALL ON ICE BASIS FOR LARGE SUIT

Let Us Hasten to Add Climate Didn't Cause the Unusual Mishap Here

Mrs. Eva C. Ingham did not expect to encounter icy pavements in Los Angeles as she crossed Fourth street and Broadway November 21 last, but that is exactly what happened, she averred in a suit for damages filed yesterday against the United Cigar Stores, Inc., and the Los Angeles Creamery Company.

The ice to be sure was not the fault of the elements, she asserted, but due to the negligence of the creamery company in delivering ice cream to the cigar store lunch counter.

The ice, it was charged, fell on the pavement from the ice-cream containers. She slipped and suffered injuries which may permanently incapacitate her, according to the complaint. She asks $50,000 damages.

T. S. Ingham, the husband, asks an additional $10,000 for the loss of his wife's services, and $100 for expenses incurred through the accident. The suit was filed through Attorney J. M. Fursee.

BLAST KILLS MAN

Exploding Tire Responsible for Fatal Injury

An exploding tire cost the life of John H. Nuttman, 38 years of age, in his garage in Laurel Canyon yesterday morning.

Nuttman was rushed to the Receiving Hospital, where Police Surgeon Norman Dorn performed a futile operation in an effort to save his life.

According to George Zeigler, a witness to the accident, Nuttman was pumping a tire when it blew up, breaking the rim, a part of which struck the man on top of the head, fracturing his skull.

He spoke also before the faculties at Oxford, Cambridge, Edinburgh, Paris, Leipsic, Berlin and Rome University, and at Rome was given a reception at the Vatican Observatory.

Mr. Williams heard the highest praise of his work from geographic societies of France, Scotland, Germany and Italy, and from the ministers of education and commerce of all the countries visited. After a few weeks rest Mr. Williams will go to Washington to resume his researches in his laboratories there.

BRITISH DEBT IS DISCUSSED

Plans Perfected for Joint Conference Monday

English Banker is Strongly for Agreement

Great Importance Attached to Definite Program

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Members of the American debt funding commission prepared at a three-hour conference this afternoon for the opening Monday of formal discussions on an arrangement for funding Great Britain's war-time debt to the United States. Their views, members said on leaving, were "in accord, on general policy."

While the commission was in session Governor Norman of the Bank of England, a member of the British delegation, was a caller at the treasury. In the course of a talk with newspaper men, he expressed hope of an early agreement on British funding questions, adding that if it so happened it would be a great step toward solution of existing world problems.

"We view the situation as a great vicious cycle of debts," Governor Norman said, "and it looks like here in Washington is the place to make the first break in that cycle."

Governor Norman said, in effect, that the British delegation would enter the Monday conference with a clear slate. American commissioners likewise said they were ready to sit at the tables and talk it over. There were continued reports, however, that the foreign representatives were prepared to lay down a program as a basis for beginning the negotiations.

Recent suggestions here that any Anglo-American agreement reached would probably serve as a guide for future funding by Great Britain as well as the United States were given support in several quarters after today's meeting at the treasury. It was explained that every nation owing the United States also owes Great Britain, and it was said to be only natural to suppose that the forthcoming negotiations, if successful, would lay down a precedent.

SKELETON IS IDENTIFIED

Inglewood Man Who Lived in Fear of Ventura Gangsters is Slain in Canyon, Officials Believe

The letter "R" on a belt buckle, a bullet-pierced gray hat—a plate of gold false teeth and the efforts of Deputy Sheriff Richard Paul Jones are believed to have solved the mystery surrounding the discovery of a headless skeleton in the wilds of Santa Susanna Pass last week.

The skeleton is asserted to be that of Willis Raymond, high-jacker—fugitive from justice—wanted in Los Angeles on a charge of robbery, and buddy of Herb Wilson, convicted highwayman, under sentence to San Quentin.

Everett Raymond and wife, 321 Lime street, Inglewood, yesterday identified pieces of clothing, the belt buckle and soft gray hat as the property of Willis Raymond, a brother.

Deputy Sheriff Jones's investigation further reveals the strong possibility that Willis Raymond was taken to the lonely spot in Santa Susanna Pass by a body of Ventura gangsters, where he was murdered and his head severed and carried away to prevent positive identification of the body.

According to the story told to Deputy Sheriff Jones by J. N. Encell, Myrtle street, Inglewood, who is the father-in-law of Everett Raymond, Willis Raymond for some time prior to his death had lived in constant fear of a band of Ventura gangsters who had threatened to "get" him.

This is further strengthened by a letter received yesterday by Mrs. Everett Raymond from Mrs. N. F. Richy, Laguna Beach, on whose farm near Laguna, Willis Raymond had worked.

The letter is as follows:

> Dear Friend: In yesterday's Los Angeles Times was an account of the finding of a man's body in Santa Susanna Pass which seems to us should be investigated as so many things coincide with things we knew of Will. We've always had the idea that he might have been murdered as he told Mr. Richy "They were trying to frame him, but would find that they couldn't." Well, if he knew anything on anyone of that stripe his life was as nothing. His suit case is on the honey house where he slept. We've been sure if he is alive he would have sent some word. If you learn anything reply.
> [Signed]
> MRS. N. F. RICHY,
> Laguna Beach.

According to Mr. Ancell's story Willis Ramond had often told the Richys about his fear of the Ventura gangsters.

Willis Raymond with a man by the name of Thompson was arrested by Constable Purrier of Lankershim several months ago and placed in jail to await a charge of robbery. It was asserted at the time that Raymond and Willis called upon a woman in the Lankershim district who was supposed to be selling illicit whisky. They visited her in the role of Federal officers and demanded her money. Thompson was convicted and sent to San Quentin, but Raymond never appeared for trial, which had been set for the Friday following last Labor Day.

It is asserted that Thompson was released from jail on the robbery charge through a bond signed by Herb Wilson, convicted highwayman, and although the Sheriff's office has not verified the fact by an inspection of court records, it is asserted by Deputy Jones that Wilson was also bondsman for Raymond. On his record in the Sheriff's office Raymond is noted as "an accomplice of Wilson."

It was asserted that a Coroner's inquest will be held early next week. The remains now are at a mortuary in San Fernando.

The headless skeleton, ravished by coyotes, was found 200 yards from the Santa Susanna Pass roadway last week by picknickers, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Thompson, 209 North College View avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Avey, 220 West Lorraine station, with their children.

They reported their grewsome find to the Sheriff's office and Deputy Jones was assigned to make an investigation.

BRAZIL TRIP PLANNED TO AID LEPERS

Memphis Woman Going Into Unexplored Wilds to Fight Spread of Disease

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MEMPHIS (Tenn.) Jan. 6.—Miss Ethel Canary of Memphis will say good-by to home and loved ones on the first of April and travel to the little-known regions of the interior of Brazil to hunt out and colonize the lepers of that territory.

She goes as a missionary of the Inland South American Missionary Union, an interdenominational organization that is extending its fight against the most grewsome and most dreaded of all diseases into every section of the known world.

Miss Canary will be the union's pioneer in the Brazilian country, many miles removed from the nearest railroad. She has been engaged in leper work in this country for several years and until a few weeks ago was secretary of the American union, with headquarters at Chicago.

Miss Canary came to Memphis with her parents from St. Louis in 1913 and has made Memphis her home since that time.

She was graduated from the St. Louis schools and then entered the Moody Bible Institute at Chicago to perfect herself for missionary work.

MAY TURN TEXAS GAS TO POWER

Angeleno Offers Plan to Electrify Santa Fe Lines From Panhandle Field

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

AMARILLO (Tex.) Jan. 2.—Utilization of the natural gas of the Amarillo field for generating electricity on a scale of great magnitude is being considered by large financial interests, according to S. J. Keese, an engineer of Los Angeles, Cal., who has been investigating the available gas supply of the existing wells and the cost of the proposed electric project. It is stated that there is now a production of 1,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day from twenty-seven wells that are scattered over the proved territory of 1200 square miles in the Panhandle of Texas.

Mr. Keese's surveys have had in view the feasibility of using natrual gas for generating sufficient electric power to operate the trains of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, between Kansas Ciy and Albuquerque, N. M. It is stated that the Santa Fe is favorably inclined to the proposition, provided the power cost is not too great. While Mr. Keese's figures are not as yet available it is known that with natural gas so abundant and cheap the initial cost of electric power will not be much in excess of that derived by hydro-electric means.

The project of laying a pipe line from the natural gas field to Denver, Colo., is still in abeyance, it is announced. The estimated cost of the proposed pipe line and other necessary equipment is $16,000,000, which is believed by some engineers to be prohibitive. The wells of the Amarillo field are of enormous production, the largest one gauging 180,000,000 cubic feet a day. The underground reservoir of the fuel has been barely touched, it is asserted. The supply is being carefully conserved, all of the wells being capped as fast as brought in.

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 6.—The United States Naval Training Station on Point Loma will be commissioned between April 15 and May 1, it was announced today by Rear-Admiral Rogers Welles, commandant of the Eleventh Naval District.

Admiral Welles will be the first commandant of the station, having been given this assignment in addition to his duties as head of the naval district.

Construction of remaining units of the station is being rushed to completion. These include four buildings for officers' quarters.

TWO DIE AS AUTO RUNS INTO TRUCK

Crash in Fog Near Santa Ana Brings Tragic End to Dance Party

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, Jan. 6.—Miss Pauline Morehouse, millinery clerk, and Ralph Smith, 914 South Van Ness street, ignition shop worker, are dead and Mrs. Minnie Woodward, Norvel Allcock, 812 North Birch street, and their cousin, J. E. Ferguson of Wichita, are badly injured, the result of an accident caused when the automobile in which they were riding struck the rear end of a heavy truck, which was laden with pipe. The crash occurred during a fog on the Westminster-Huntington Beach Boulevard, as the party was going to a dance at Long Beach.

Allcock said he was going slowly on account of the fog when the car struck the rear of the truck, which, it was said, was stopped while its lights were being repaired. Allcock and Smith were taken to the Huntington Beach Hospital, where Smith died; the end of a length of pipe had gone through the left eye and pierced the brain. The others were brought to Santa Ana Hospital, where Miss Morehouse died almost immediately as the result of a piece of pipe driving into her head. Mrs. Woodward is in a serious condition from a fracture of the skull.

Miss Morehouse recently had returned from a visit to her brother at Wichita, Kans., who now is rushing to Santa Ana for the funeral following telegraphic notification. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Morehouse.

Smith leaves his parents, who live at Tustin, and a wife and baby. Mrs. Smith was to have joined the party at Long Beach. The inquest will be held Monday at 10:30. The driver of the truck, W. E. Wells of Huntington Beach, was arrested in Long Beach, but released on his promise to attend the inquest Monday.

BEAR VALLEY WATER COMPANY ELECTS

CONTROL OF FLOW IN SANTA ANA CANYON IS DISCUSSED

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Jan. 6.—H. H. Garstin, for several years president of the Bear Valley Mutual Water Company, again was elected to that office when the directors held their annual meeting today. E. M. Lyon was chosen vice-president, and I. M. Lamb, secretary and treasurer.

G. S. Hinckley, City Engineer of Redlands, who is in charge of the water spreading in the upper Santa Ana Canyon at Barton Flats, spoke to the directors of the company. The Bear Valley Mutual owns Big Bear dam and lake and supplies most of the water used in irrigation of the orange groves of the San Bernardino Valley.

Mr. Hinckley urged the support of the company, financially, in the spreading of water in gravel beds in the upper Santa Ana so that as much of the water as possible could be saved and also prevent floods. He stated the company would benefit more than anyone because the company always will get the first 5500 inches' flow from the mouth of the Santa Ana Canyon. Mr. Hinckley said that the $6000 available from the counties of San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange is not sufficient to do the work that should be done.

Directors of the Bear Valley Mutual discussed the matter, but made no decision at the meeting.

CEMETERY OIL FIGHT IS SEEN

Citizens Oppose Proposal to Drill in Graveyard

Appeal is Made to City Attorney to Block Plan

Bitterest Legal Controversy of Kind in State Looms

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Jan. 6.—Disclosures today that a concern, the identity of which has not been learned, intends to begin drilling for oil in Sunnyside Cemtery, located in the Signal Hill section, precipitated what promises to be one of the most bitterly contested legal fights in California's oil history.

First intimation that the quest for oil is to be pursued in the cemetery came early today when a quantity of materials used in drilling wells were found on the outer edge of the cemetery. The section of land where the operations are to begin has been enclosed by a high wooden fence. Oil drilling machinery of all kinds had been dumped on the ground, enclosed by the fence.

It was learned that an oil concern has been negotiating through Attorney George Spicer for a lease on the grounds in the cemetery. It is believed that the company has placed the materials there pending the completion of the deal for the land on which it is to drill. It is rumored that the United Oil Company is behind the project.

Terming the project a desecration, a group of prominent residents, whose relatives are interred in the cemetery, called upon City Attorney Hoodenpyl and demanded that the city take immediate action to stop operations.

Demands were made upon the City Attorney that he bar the oil concern from transporting its materials over city property adjacent to the cemetery. The only other entrance to the cemetery is controlled by the Sunnyside Cemetery Association, which has already declared that it will not allow the company entrance through its grounds.

It is believed here that the company which brought the drilling materials to the cemetery either bought the lots upon which it intends to drill or is about to lease them, and that the only way to stop the projected oil search is by legal action.

MOTHER IS IN JAIL AS THEFT AID

Fresno Woman, Husband and Two Sons Held in Stolen Car Parts Affair

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FRESNO, Jan. 6.—Mrs. Molly Sawings, mother of two youths held in connection with wholesale automobile thefts here, and Hugh Sawings, her husband, proprietors of a store at Auberry, today formally were charged with receiving stolen motor car parts believed to have been loot of a gang that operated virtually throughout California.

S. L. Richmond, 17 years of age, Mrs. Sawings's son, is held on a charge of grand larceny and Ernest Richmond, 12, another son, is in the detention home. Albert Hall, 16 years of age, and Robert Kiesling, both of Fresno, also have been arrested. Ed Richmond, oldest brother of the two detained youths, was questioned by the Sheriff today.

Arrest of the Sawings followed two searches of their store and the recovery of many automobile parts and accessories. The Richmond boys and others, ten or more altogether, made a regular business, the authorities believe, of stealing automobiles, buying junked ones, getting permits to rebuild the junk and substituting the stolen machines for those covered by the permits.

The arrests are all the result of an investigation started a week ago when a car, said to have been stolen and driven by S. L. Richmond, collided with another machine and caused fatal injuries to Mrs. Mary E. Beason of Fresno.

PASADENA, Jan. 6.—Pasadena's burglar fraternity apparently experienced a sudden reformation early this morning, according to reports to police.

Three business places and one home were broken into early this morning, but nothing was taken. The safe in the offices of the Edgecomb Manufacturing Company at 404 South Broadway was found open, but nothing had been taken. The Inyo Chemical Company at 309 South Broadway and the home of C. Ryan at 250 Rosemont avenue also were broken into, but in neither case was anything taken.

CHAUFFEUR FOR McADOO PAYS FINE

Appears in Tulare Court and Pleads Guilty to Speeding Charge

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VISALIA, Jan. 6.—Leo Walter Streeter, chauffeur for William Gibbs McAdoo, appeared unannounced before Judge J. S. Clack at Visalia this morning, pleaded guilty to speeding in Tulare county and was fined $51, thereby defeating curiosity seekers who had planned to be present Wednesday morning and hear his case.

Charles W. Hill, prominent Fresno attorney, represented Streeter. Streeter was cited to appear before Judge Clack November 27 by Jack Hagstotz, Tulare county traffic officer, who stopped the McAdoo car while en route to Fresno where Mr. McAdoo was to address the bar association of four counties.

Hagstotz declared they were making fifty-one and fourteen hundredths miles per hour. Attorney Hill appeared for Streeter on December 2 and asked that the case by continued until the 10th inst., as neither Mr. or Mrs. McAdoo could appear as witnesses for Streeter before that time in case he asked for a jury trial. Streeter was granted the privilege of appearing in person before that date and this morning exercised that privilege. It was reported that Mr. Hill called Hagstotz over long distance a few nights ago and asked that the speed rate be placed at forty-nine miles and that Streeter be allowed to plead by mail. Hagstotz replied that the case had gone to the judge and was out of his hands.

Heroic Friend Saves "Buddy" From Waves

OCEAN PARK, Jan. 6.—John Fairbanks, 22 years of age, of 53 Navy street, was saved from drowning off Lick Pier yesterday by the heroism and presence of mind of his room-mate, Thomas T. Atkins.

Fairbanks and Atkins, who are employed at the Demi Tasse Cafe, were chasing each other in play near the edge of the pier, Fairbanks stumbled and fell into the water below. His companion unhesitatingly plunged after him. He grasped the drowning youth and swam with him to one of the pier supports.

For fifteen minutes Atkins clung to the support with his unconscious room-mate in his arms. He finally attracted the attention of H. C. Symes of 159 Kinney street and C. Peak of 1133 Euclid avenue, who succeeded in dragging the two men from the water. Atkins was exhausted. Fairbanks was resuscitated with the aid of a pulmotor.

Public Comfort Stations to be Built at Beach

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Jan. 6.—Five public comfort stations to be erected in various parts of the city at a total cost of more than $60,000 have been authorized by the City Council, it was announced today. Immediate construction of two of the stations, one in Bixby Park and the other in Santa Cruz Park, was ordered by the Council.

One of the stations will be erected on Belmont Pier, one on the beach at the foot of Cherry avenue and the third in East Long Beach, it was said.

Only three comfort stations were contemplated in the bond issue, which provided $50,000 for this purpose. The additional $10,000 or more will be provided for, according to city officials.

Bond Provided by Barnett in Cactus Tangle

K. S. Barnett, 30 years of age, residing at 626 South Hill street, Los Angeles, was given his liberty at Santa Ana when he provided $500 bond after surrendering to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of Miss Glenys Smart, 19, pretty half-sister of Madalynne Obenchain. His preliminary hearing was set for February 9 when Barnett appeared before Justice J. B. Cox today.

The charge was sworn to by J. A. Porter, City Marshal of Newport Beach, following Miss Smart's statement that Barnett had given her liquor.

After drinking the liquor, the girl was found near Newport Bay, almost nude and her skin pierced by hundreds of cactus needles. She told fishermen, who heard her screams, that she fell over a fifty-foot cliff shortly after drinking the liquor and while attempting to free herself of a cactus bed. She denies that anything but wholesome motives prompted Barnett and her to take an automobile ride, and declares that her partner did not make improper advances to her.

MAN ARRESTED IN KILLING CASE

Murder of William Dabelich Cause of Action

Indianapolis Police Capture William Walker

Relative Taken in Oakland Soon After Crime

Word was received from Indianapolis yesterday that William Krice, alias Walker, wanted in connection with the death of Nicholas S. Dabelich, wealthy Oakland hotel-keeper, whose body was found under the Ballona Creek bridge on Angeles Mesa Drive November 2, had been arrested and is being held for local officers.

The arrest of Krice, or Walker, as he was known here, is the second in connection with the killing of Dabelich. Jack W. Allen, a brother-in-law of Walker's, was arrested in Oakland several days after the finding of Dabelich's body and now is held in the County Jail.

HISTORY OF CRIME

Three days following the finding of a body under the Ballona Creek bridge, Mrs. Mary S. Dabelich of Oakland identified it as that of her husband. It was believed at the time that robbery was the motive for the crime.

Dabelich left his home in Oakland, telling his wife he was going north. The same evening he departed Allen and Walker are asserted to have left Oakland in an automobile and it was the theory of local officers that they had induced Dabelich to come to Los Angeles by train.

Dabelich was said to have arrived about 10 o'clock the night of November 1. Police believed that Allen and Walker met him at the train and took him for a ride, later to attempt a robbery.

He was supposed to have had several hundred dollars on his person and a diamond ring valued at more than $3000. It was when Allen attempted to pawn a ring said by police to have belonged to Dabelich that he was arrested. Walker, reading of the arrest of his brother-in-law, fled, the police say, and all attempts to find him failed until yesterday, when he was arrested in Indianapolis.

DOCTORS AROUSE IRE OF HEALTH BOARD

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 6.—Dereliction charged to some doctors in officially recording births has aroused the ire of members of the State Board of Health, and the board has decided to use the "big stick" as represented by the majesty of the law to secure a more prompt filing of birth certificates with district registrars, it was announced here today by Dr. George E. Ebright of San Francisco, president of the health body. Forty-eight hours is the limit provided by law for the filing of certificates, but doctors in many cases, according to Ebright, take several times this long to turn over the record to the proper authority.

NEIGHBORS FIND AUDIENCE HERE

Coast Counties Send Envoy to Los Angeles

Proselytes Sought in Mecca of Homeseekers

Chamber of Commerce Bureau of Information

Of what use is a lecture without an audience?

Demosthenes roared at the ocean and there was no come-back. There were white caps but no ears; whispering protests but no tongues.

Harry Main is some speaker. He is secretary of the Chamber of Commerce at Santa Cruz, but around Monterey Bay he could find no audience but the waves of the local Sardinia, so, as he has much to say about the central coast counties, he has come to Los Angeles to get his audience.

This quartet of coast counties comprises Monterey, Santa Cruz, Santa Clara and San Luis Obispo, and as they have certain valuable things to offer visitors and homeseekers in the West, they have planned a great series of daily lectures in the assembly hall of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and have selected Harry Main as the one live-wire spouter to "sell" their virtues to the thousands coming to Los Angeles. Every morning at 11 o'clock Mr. Main will give an attractive illustrated lecture, to which admission is free. The public is invited.

The recognition of Los Angeles as the mecca for multitudes of our northern citizenry is another testimonial to the remarkable progress of the city. It is a confession by our northern neighbors who have ceased to be competitors and fain would seek some of our thunder. The general lectures of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce have attracted 157,- [illegible] registered visitors during the past year. By careful analysis and intimate personal touch with the individual visitor it was found that there was a greater percentage of homeseekers in the lecture halls than in any previous year. CHICAGO SHOWS WHAT A CRIME BOARD CAN DO

Commission Like That Just Formed Here Reduces Law-Breaking and Speeds Up Justice

Warm popular approval has greeted the formation here by the Community Development Association of an Anti-Crime Commission of ten prominent citizens whose business it will be to see that the machinery of the law functions with efficiency and dispatch in serving notice on the criminal world that Los Angeles has no room, save in jail, for lawbreakers.

The question has been asked whether such an experiment has ever been tried in other cities and, if so, what the result has been. To answer this, The Times has been at some pains to collect the facts regarding the Chicago Crime Commission, which is similar in its organization and purpose to that formed here under stress of similar need and the accomplishments of which have been remarkable.

IN CHICAGO

In 1917, a series of bank and pay-roll robberies, because of their spectacular features, aroused the attention of the Chicago Association of Commerce. The daylight pay-roll robbery and murder at the Winslow Brothers plant, then engaged in government work, brought about the appointment of a committee to investigate the cause of lawlessness. On June 13, 1918, the association's committee on prevalence and prevention of crime, made public its findings in a report which recommended the formation of a commission, to be organized by authority of the association, and to be charged with the duty of considering the subject of crime suppression and prevention.

The Chicago crime commission then came into being. With a personnel of more than 100 men, representative of the banking, business and professional interests, giving of their time liberally and gratuitously and backing it with their money, operating through a staff of investigators, statisticians and clerks, it has made notable progress.

It has not completely driven out the gunman, the burglar and the automobile bandit but it has made a comprehensive start.

CRIME IS REDUCED

As concrete evidence of its effectiveness the crime commission submits the following figures on the decrease of major crimes in Chicago during a four-year period, the diminishing totals showing despite the fact that the city's population has increased by not less than 50,000 a year:

	Murders	Burglaries	Robberies
1919..	330	6108	2912
1920..	194	5494	2782
1921..	190	4774	2558
1922..	228	2588	2007

ORATORY BRINGS HONORS

Silver-Tongued Professor of Commercial Branches Made Executive Secretary of U.S.C.

One of the highest honors bestowed by the University of Southern California has fallen to a well-known Los Angeles man who is a member of the faculty of the university of which he himself is an alumnus, in the appointment of H. J. Stonier as executive secretary of the university and assistant to the president in university administration.

Dr. Stonier has been connected with the university in an official capacity for three years, having been Professor of Finance in the College of Commerce before his appointment as Director of University Extension last year, when he organized that department, which now has 1500 men and women enrolled for work toward university degrees and 800 men and women enrolled in business courses and vocational work.

In this work Dr. Stonier has cooperated with many local institutions in giving extension work and the department carried on the educational work of the American Institute of Banking, which is the educational branch of the American Bankers' Association.

Dr. Stonier is already widely known in Los Angeles as an eloquent speaker and won two silver cups at the State convention of Advertising Clubs, one for the most instructive address on retail advertising, and also the cup presented by the City of Tacoma for the most eloquent and inspirational address in the convention.

He graduated with high honors from the university in 1913 and later was connected with the junior high schools of Los Angeles and the Junior College of Manual Arts as professor of economics. He was engaged in bond business for three years and is a member of the Advertising Club, the University Club and the San Gabriel Gold Club.

In his new capacity Dr. Stonier will take a prominent part in the organization of the Greater Alumni Association and in the general work of the university in its contacts with the public. Next Thursday evening he will be the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Sons of the American Revolution and on the 16th inst. will address a special luncheon of the San Francisco Real Estate Board at the Palace Hotel.

Mark's Decline Is Reflected in Offers by Mail

The downfall of the German mark is being emphasized to Los Angeles residents by the receipt of literature from German merchandising companies offering German-manufactured products by mail in return for American currency.

A flood of postcards to persons of German extraction offer supposedly good bargains in clothing and haberdashery by mail in plain envelopes, the inference being that no customs duties need be paid thereon.

Most of these cards offer free goods to persons who will solicit orders among acquaintances. All are emphatic in the statement that payment must be made in real United States money.

CITY'S MEMORY LAPSES KEEP HUNDREDS BUSY

Purses, Parrots, Books, Babies--All Jam "Lost and Found" Department Shelves

BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY

When the Public Library and some of the railroads did their New Year's housecleaning the other day, carelessness got a hard jolt. Wagonloads of Christmas presents that never were mailed, and a wide assortment of personal belongings that never got back to their owners, were given to the Salvation Army and the Children's Hospital, but even then the full extent of public carelessness was not revealed.

The lost and found departments of libraries, hotels, restaurants, railroads, laundries and clothes-cleaning establishments are bulging with property that has been left behind by people who are in a hurry to reach their destination. One woman left a big green parrot in a gilded cage on a street car. Another woman left her 3-year-old daughter in one of the theaters for two hours. Still another lost a beaded handbag containing her divorce.

It is safe to estimate that the people of this city lose $500,000 worth of personal property every year by their own carelessness. They probably get 50 per cent of it back, either by personal search or through the tireless efforts of persons in charge of lost and found departments in public places.

Probably the record for carelessness and good fortune combined is held by a local woman who lost her purse, containing $800 in bills, on a Los Angeles railway car during Christmas week, and got it back in ninety minutes. Two hundred umbrellas in local railway offices, worth from $1 to $25 apiece, bear silent witness to the fact that

Dance Act Not Impersonation, Declares Swan

Paul Swan, sculptor and artist, who is to appear as a dramatic dancer at the California Art Club benefit, strongly objects to a reference to his number as a female impersonation. Mr. Swan appears in Egyptian and Greek costumes and does pantomimic dancing. As there was slight difference in the headdress of men and women in that period, his photos caused a natural error.

Mr. Swan attracted the attention of critics and art lovers overseas by two paintings which he exhibited last year in the Autumn Salon in Paris, and by his sculpture in the National Academy. He volunteered to appear as a dramatic dancer and actor in a number that was highly applauded on the other side of the water. But he protests against having this act termed a "female impersonation."

AH, ROMANO, YOU LUCKY--

But Read Again Proof That "the Course of True Love Never Did Run Smooth"

D. Cupid swept into Los Angeles yesterday on a speeding mail train. The little rosy god brought a letter destined to make Southern California the scene of one act of an Italian melodrama. Back to the country of ardent romance will haste one Romano Salvatore, erstwhile Italian exile of love.

In Sorrento, Italy, within sight of Vesuvius' black waving plume, lives the dark-eyed Lucia Carovassi. Retrace your steps in the hall of time to the early days of the war, and regard Lucia sitting disconsolate on the high white cliffs of that opalescent coast, looking out over the blue waters of the Mediterranean. But, be it known, her thoughts were not centered on the magic of the view her eyes beheld.

She "had lands," as they say over there, and she had two suitors, to wit, Romano Salvatore and Pasquale Francisco. Romano was poor and served in the navy. Pasquale "had lands" and was a reservist in the army. Lucia, despite their entreaties and declarations, feared the poor one wanted her money and that the other believed devoutly in "to him that hath shall be given." So she said "Nay" to both and let the war continue.

But the thought of Romano fanned ardent fires within her.

Came the end of the war. The rivals returned. Again Lucia said "No" to Pasquale. To the other she said, "I love Pasquale, and if you love me as you say you do, you will go away and allow me to be happy with Pasquale."

With the blood of seafaring ancestors in his veins, Romano turned his back on his native land and answered the lure of the ocean. But the new life offered him in America led him to "jump ship" and seek a home in New York. Then when California called to his comrades, he beat his way with them to Los Angeles. For three monhts he has worked in a restaurant on Fifth street near Olive as a waiter.

Yesterday came a letter postmarked "Sorrento, Italy," and it was not addressed in the hand of any of the Salvatore family. Romano ripped it open. And—well, don't expect to read here the contents. They were meant for one and only one mortal's eyes.

A cry of "Spaghetti—pick up!" from the kitchen brought Romano back to earth. Somehow he finished the day's work. And then, unable to hold his joy longer, he told his employer the gist of the letter. It takes but a slight effort of the imagination to guess that the letter, freely translated, said:

"I was only testing you. Just learned your address. Come back to Italy. Your girl wants you."

SOUTHLAND HAS PHOTOS IN CONTEST

Chamber of Commerce Given Many New Entries From Lower Counties

Announcement that the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce picture contest will not close until the 23rd inst. brought a large assortment of pictures from southern counties.

For the first prize picture $25 will be paid, $15 for the second and $10 for the third. The ten adjudged next best will be awarded $5 each.

More than 125 pictures of Southern California sports, industries, memorable events and historic spots are included in those submitted.

Commercial and amateur photographers both have entered pleasing pictures, but it is announced that thtre will be no distinction in judging the entries except as results appear to the contest committee.

RETURNS ON SEALS FALL FAR SHORT

Curtailment of Program Necessary Unless Support is Forthcoming

Plans to keep open the Children's Open Air Health Camp and Preventorium in San Gabriel Canyon the year around will be consummated if the Los Angeles Tuberculosis Association raises its full quota of $50,000 from the mailed-in returns for the Christmas seal sale, according to Mrs. Daisy Canfield Danziger, the chairman of the finance committee.

To do this a special appeal has been issued asking all who have not done so to send their dollar for the seals mailed them early in December to the association headquarters, 522 Chamber of Commerce Building.

To date the returns are slightly in excess of $33,000 and the full quota is needed to make efficient the campaign of the society against tuberculosis. There are still nearly 20,000 persons who have not yet responded to the letters containing seals mailed to them.

Every cent received is spent in Los Angeles relief and prevention work, according to Mrs. Danziger, and in no way does the association receive financial aid from the American Red Cross. She states that although the work of the association has grown 300 per cent in the past four years the executive staff of administration has not been increased and the expense of administration is still less than 10 per cent.

MASONIC CLUB MEET

The Times Masonic Club will hold its next meeting Wednesday evening at the Masonic Club of Los Angeles, Hotel Alexandria. A dollar dinner will be served at 6 p.m. after which Mr. Reynold Blight will speak on "Americanism."

I. W. W. PLANS TERROR REIGN

Organization Building Up Machine, Townsend Says

Former Member Warns the Public to be on Guard

Declares Teachings Grounded on Moral Degeneracy

BY W. E. TOWNSEND

[The writer of this article was an active and trusted member of the I. W. W. for many years. He recently has testified at trials of I. W. W.'s here, in Sacramento and in Oakland.]

Since I have testified against the I.W.W., its members and a few radical journals in many parts of the United States have tried to place me and my crimes outside the veil of the I.W.W. They have said that my acts of sabotage were committeed as an individual, a "free agent."

Now, I have testified to committing many terrible crimes and I realize that many people will question the truth of them, but I have not told all. The crimes that I have committed or seen or know about were all done by members of the I.W.W., loyal, true "class-conscious" revolutionists, recognized and known throughout the world as such. Every criminal act, such as sabotage, destruction of property, robberies, "hijacking" workers and others, that I have done were known and sanctioned, yes, boasted of and glorified in by hundreds of the leading members of the I.W.W. from Haywood down to the lowest skid-road wobbly "cat." And my every criminal act is the direct result of the teachings of the organization, and every crime I ever committed was taught me by the I.W.W. And I know hundreds of members of the organization who are far worse criminals than I ever was, although I was bad enough.

KNOWN AS GUNMAN

I was known by thousands of members to be a gunman. They called me a good fellow-worker, thought I was a thief even when I was not, and respected me for it. They knew all about my thirteen enlistments in the military service, and I was a hero, a real revolutionist, trying to educate the military into wobblyism. Instead of condemning me for it, they told me I was a real, true rebel when I left my wife and child so as to devote my entire time to lining up workers and "hijacking" Hoosiers and destroying farmers' grain and machinery I was a trusted member of the Haywood-Galligher group of Chicago during the war period, a group of several hundred extreme I.W.W.'s. This group knew every one of my crimes even things that I have not told on the stand, nor ever will.

I want it understood that I was a sincere member; I believed it; I have even prayed for the I.W.W. and then turned and cursed the God that I had just asked for help. I would have sacrificed my life for the I.W.W., from 1915 to about 1920. I changed voluntarily, with absolutely no pressure from any source. I just quit. I began to think why I had lived such a life for fourteen years, taught other mothers' sons and daughters to lead it. And now I am their most hated enemy.

Now it is for me to aid in re-

Operation, Not Opiate, is Need of Nations

"In a general meeting and discussion which were held at the 18th annual convention of the American Economic Association, which was held in Chicago last week, H. Parker Willis, now of Columbia University but formerly chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, stated the United States, particularly the East, would feel a slight depression within the next three or four months unless certain definite adjustments in the trade relations of Europe and the United States should take place without delay," said Professor Emory P. Olson, of the College of Commerce of the University of Southern California yesterday on his arrival here from Chicago.

According to Professor Olson, Chicago was the Mecca for students of business and economics last week when they flocked there in great numbers to hear some of the foremost economists of the world air their opinions on the conditions of the world today. Not only were the delegates to the convention professors of economics, but there were many big business men, also, who came as much to learn as they did to speak.

At a dinner which was given under the auspices of the Bureau of Education of the United States Government, W. E. Hotchkiss, director of the Industrial Clothing Manufacturers, with offices in Chicago, was the main speaker. Mr. Hotchkiss was formerly the dean of the College of Commerce of the Northwestern University, and is recognized as one of the greatest economists in the United States today, according to Professor Olson.

"Mr. Hotchkiss's attitude toward business education and university education could not help but enrich those who had a chance to hear him," stated Olson. "It is a new day in business education when meetings of this kind can be held, and it bodes well for our American educational institutions when they can attract as full and part-time instructors, men with both practical and theoretical knowledge.

"Benjamin Anderson, Jr., economist for the Chase National Bank, discussed in detail and in an illuminating way Europe's financial disorganization and possible remedies. His attitude was based on the theory that what we need is not new economics but more of fundamental economics. From his point of view, the nations of Europe, as well as the United States, have been too ready to use opiates instead of operations in making proper adjustments.

"Anderson expressed himself as being strongly against the cancellation of European debts, and believes that as long as Europe can buy some of the luxuries of life she can pay her debts. He declared that the gold standard is necessary before real prosperity can be secured."

"Henry R. Seager, dean of Columbia University, was another of the speakers, and attacked the labor unions for their actions during the past year, especially the railroad strike last summer. He made it a point to call the attention of the working man to the fact that when they join a trade union they at once start to work against themselves. Alvin H. Hansen of the University of Minnesota stated that in his opinion labor conditions should reach normal in the summer of 1923."

MME. CALVE IN "CARMEN" FOR WOMEN

Noted Diva to be Heard in University Club Concert Friday Evening

Mme. Emma Calve, famous grand opera star, will be the second attraction in the artists' series being given by the Woman's Club of the University of Southern California when she will give a recital next Friday evening in Bovard Auditorium.

The recital is to be made quite a social event, a large number of parties being arranged to be preceded by dinner parties given by many of the patronesses for the series.

This will be the famous prima donna's last appearance in Los Angeles and her program will include some of her famous arias, including the "Habanera" from Bizet's Carmen, which she made an operatic classic many years ago.

The program will be as follows: "Aria de Santuzza," Mascagni; "L'esclave," Lalo; "Le Roi Renaud" (thirteenth century) anonymous; "Serenace," Bizet; "Spanish Song," de Falla; "Aria Bijoux de Faust," Gounod; "Amour que veux tu de moi," Lulli; "Tie des Haleones," Carissimi; "Canto del Presidario" Alvarez; "Habanera," Bizet.

Miss Ruth Hall will act as accompanist and will play as a piano solo "Sonata," Scarlatti, and "Toccata" by Paradisi.

The proceeds from the series of concerts being given under the auspices of the club will be used in the erection of a woman's building on the campus, the project being sponsored by the club under the leadership of Mrs. R. B. Von KleinSmid, president of the club and wife of the president of the University.

Mrs. Von KleinSmid is acting as musical impresario for the series of five events, which are proving very successful and it is expected that several thousand dollars will be added to the building fund through the concerts.

GAMBLING'S END IS SEEN BY POLICE

Chief Oaks Asserts Large Places Closed, Small Ones to be Raided

"Gambling on a large scale in Los Angeles is a thing of the past and all of the large clubs have closed for good."

This statement was made by Chief of Police Oaks yesterday following an investigation of the gambling situation made by the Police Commission and Lieut. Lyons, head of the police vice squad.

The investigation showed the four large gambling places, known as social clubs, operating in Los Angeles for ten years, closed their doors following police raids more than a week ago. The raids that closed the clubs for the first time in years were made by the police under the "social club" ordinance.

Lieut. Lyons declared yesterday that small gambling dens still are conducted, but that all of the larger establishments are closed. He said that small games are being checked up by the police and that raids will be made as soon as evidence is obtained.

From information in the hands of the authorities, the larger gambling clubs have opened places in the county outside the city limits.

MAH-JONGG SCORE SHEET AND SUGGESTIONS GIVEN

Directions for Playing Complicated and Fascinating Chinese Game Explain Moves

Since the publication of the first installment of the Mah-Jongg rules last Sunday the attention of The Times has been directed by the Mah-Jongg Sales Company of America to the fact that this company has a copyright on these rules, under the name of Babcock's Rules. Essentially these are identical with the wording of the so-called "Drennan Rules," supplied by Capt. Drennan of the Pacific Mail steamship President Lincoln to Capt. John D. Fredericks and by him given to The Times. The fact of this copyright was of course unknown to Capt. Drennan, Capt. Fredericks or The Times. Under the circumstances the company, represented here by E. B. Rose, has consented to the completion of the rules by the publication herewith. Subjoined is the score sheet for the Chinese game and some suggestions for beginners:

Suggestions for play: You will notice from score sheets that threes or fours of a kind in the hand score twice as much as the same hand on the table. If one player who is entitled to chow a discard for a sequence says "chow" and picks it up he will give way to another player who calls "pung" and who can use that piece to complete three or four of a kind. This, even though the player who pungs may be rather slow in claiming the pung. In this same way a player may pung, even though the player at the right of discarder may have drawn from wall and even looked at his draw, but a reasonable amount of promptness is expected of each player and no player has the right to pung a discarded piece after the next draw has been placed with the following player's hand on the table.

While not obligatory, yet as courtesy to other, each player usually names his discard in placing it on the table. Each discard should be placed face up where all may see it plainly and not placed or shoved among other discards. Sometimes a player holds four of a kind in his hand for a time instead of declaring it at once hoping to use the pieces or parts of them to complete one or more sequences. This is allowed and is sometimes useful. But if another player completes his hand and wins, the four of a kind left in the hand count only as three of a kind or one-fourth what they would count if they had been declared and promptly placed on the table. It is obviously impossible for a hand to be completed for Mah-Jongg with four of a kind in hand as a winning hand must consist of four sets of three and one pair. Each set of four must be on the table and a loose tile drawn from each set before a hand can be completed. The total number of pieces held by each player, including these he has in hand and on the table, must always be thirteen, except that for every four of a kind a player holds he will have one piece more. If a player has four of a kind he will therefore have in all fourteen pieces.

Dead hands: Should a player's hand at any time contain more or less than the right number of pieces his head is dead. He must continue to draw and discard but cannot, of course, complete his hand. The penalty is that he must pay winner and pay each other player total score of that player, the "dead" hand counting as nothing. No player pays him.

SCORE SHEET FOR MAH-JONGG

Combination on table—completed from discards that you "pung" or "chow." These apply to all hands. A run or sequence has no value except to complete a hand.

Three of a kind of 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 or 8	2 points
Three "ones" or three "nines"	4 points
Three of a kind of any wind	4 points
Three of a kind of "Red," "Green" or "White" Dragons	4 points
Four of a kind of 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 or 8	8 points
Four "ones" or four "nines"	16 points
Four of a kind of any wind	16 points
Four of a kind of "Red," "Green" or "White" Dragons	16 points
A pair of Dragons or of player's own wind	2 points

Combinations in hands completed by drawing from the wall; these apply to all hands. A run or sequence has no value except to complete the hand.

Three of a kind of 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 or 8	4 points
Three "ones" or three "nines"	8 points
Three of any "Winds"	8 points
Three of a kind of "Red," "Green" or "White" Dragons	8 points
Four of a kind of 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 or 8	16 points
Four "ones" or four "nines"	32 points
Four of a kind of any "Winds"	32 points
Four of a kind of "Red," "Green" or "White" Dragons	32 points
A pair of any color or players own wind	2 points

Scores: These apply to winning hand only.

"Game" or "Mah-Jongg" (for winning hand)	20 points
No scoring combination in hand or on table	10 points
Winning piece not "punged" or "chowed"	2 points
Filling only possible place to win as completing a pair or filling a straight in the middle or open on only one end	2 points
Winning piece on special draw of a "Lose Tile" after four of a kind	10 points
No run in hand or on table	10 points

Double honor scores: These apply to all hands.

Three or four of own wind in hand or on table	Double total score
Three or four of "Red," "Green" or of "White" Dragons	" " "
Hands of one suit except any number of winds or "Red," "Green" or "White Dragons"	" " "
Hand entirely of one suit	Double score three times
To win on original hand (this is very unusual)	" " " "

Should a hand contain more than one doubling honor the score is doubled for each combination according to the above table. Thus if a hand scored 40 and has for example three Red Dragons, four or your own Winds and all other pieces of the same suit, you double 40 three times making your score 320.

forming society in return for crimes I have committed; but I expect I still will be an outcast from this same society—how can I expect forgiveness for the things I have done. But I can devote the rest of my life to the destruction of the organization that made me what I was.

But the real cause of it is the public itself, which permits such an organization to survive. So you respectable citizens, you are to blame for all my crimes, and for the crimes of others who will be led astray by the teachings of the I.W.W.

The I.W.W. thrive on hate, they teach hatred, teach one to hate all society, even his father and mother, brothers, sisters and his children. Can such an organization build a new society except one grounded on moral degeneracy.

During the war the I.W.W. was almost exterminated. But in the last two years they have been busy in reorganizing, strengthening and educating their new members. That is the reason why little "rough stuff" is being pulled just now. They are waiting until they are strong enough, and then there will be another reign of terror, worse than the disturbances in 1916, 1917 and 1918 when millions of dollars worth of property was destroyed by them.

NEIGHBORS FIND EVIDENCE HERE

proximately 175,000 visited the great floor, where are preserved specimens of the produce of the county that ranks first in agriculture in the United States. There were more than 15,000 volunteer registrations in the huge registry book, which is the largest bound volume in the world. These books vary in thickness and weight from 175 to 450 pounds. The binding is reinforced by rods and straps of steel and the covering is of selected California hides. Two men have difficulty in carrying some of the volumes. In the eleven huge books already used are more than 1,500,000 names.

It may be imagined what an intensified "high school" course is the exhibits and lecture schedule at the Chamber. The moving-pictures, with scenes from everywhere, are literally concentrated travel studies and the fact that the pictures and lectures are absolutely authoritative attracts only serious-minded homeseekers and industrial scouts skirmishing for home and factory sites. Visitors last year took away, on their own selection, more than 500,000 pieces of advertising literature.

The publicity department mailed 2,366,058 pieces of literature during 1922 in response to specific requests. Among the booklets most popular were, "Do You Know? 38,000; "Farm Bulletin," 42,000; "Los Angeles Today," 191,022. In addition to these, close to 150 magazines published in twenty-two cities used hundreds of cuts and big stories concerning this section.

Postoffice activity for the year presents some interesting figures, and as the Chamber of Commerce is a heavy contributor the receipts at the Los Angeles Postoffice for the last eleven years is of intimate concern to it. The receipts for 1922 totaled $5,313,139.01, which is double those of 1917 and more than three times the receipts of 1912, which were $1,906,398.91

MAN OF NORTH MADE CONVERT

Albertan Enthusiastic in Praise of South

Desires Eternity in New Residence

Summons Friends to Share Discovery

That scores of wealthy and middle-class families of Alberta, Can., will establish their homes in Los Angeles and contiguous territory within the next six months is the optimistic prediction made yesterday by M. T. McKay, formerly editor of the Albertan, who recently came to Los Angeles to live.

"I lived in Alberta for seventeen years, but I expect to live in Los Angeles for the next seventy-seven years," said Mr. McKay. "The Midwinter edition of the Los Angeles Times ought to open the eyes of my fellow-citizens of Alberta, and I hope my letters to friends up there will also help some.

"I can hardly believe my eyes when I survey the remarkable development of Los Angeles since my [illegible] here five years ago," said Mr. McKay. "In fact, it would be unbelievable were it not for the evidence, which is more convincing than all the argument and boosting that the people of this section might summon in favor of their wonderful land.

"The greatest joy of all to me, however, was to have come down from a frostridden, icebound region, to have taken a 100-mile auto ride on New Year's Day and to have seen every acre of land, on either side of the boulevards, under the highest state of cultivation," said Mr. McKay. "It was a revelation—a revelation which I would that all my northern friends might share. I am going to write to them, as many as I can, and send them instructive literature, but I am too selfishly happy ever to sacrifice my joy to the extent of going back north as a missionary to preach about the glories of Southern California. However, if I could have my way about it, the Albertans would all be Southland-bound before another winter rolls around."

DELAY VOLSTEAD CASE

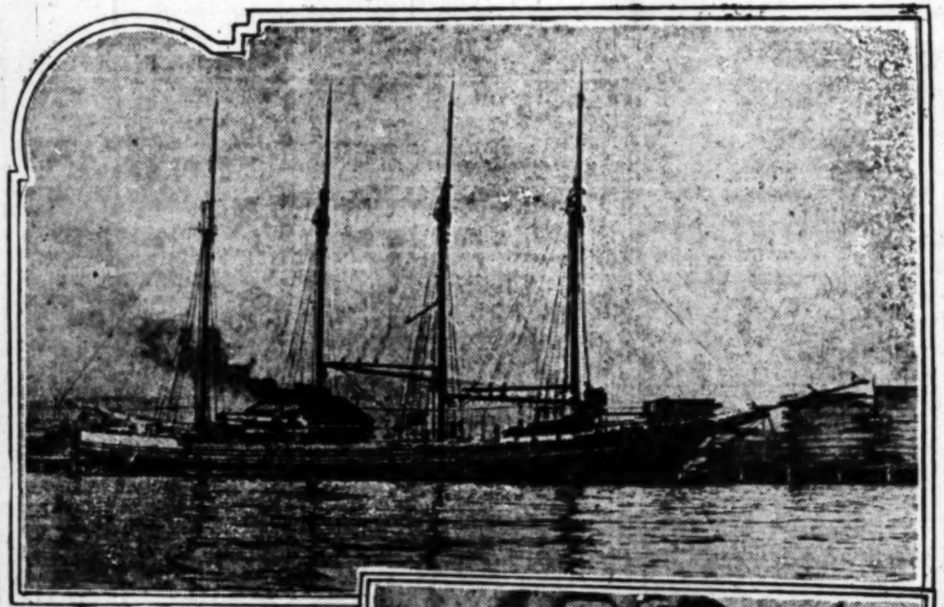
Government Not Ready to Take up Case Against Seamen

When the case against John H. McCathron, part owner of the gasoline launch, Saucy Jane, and W. J. Witham, captain of the craft, charged with violation of the Volstead law, in bringing a cargo of alcohol from a Mexican port to San Diego, was called in Commissioner Long's court yesterday, the government was not ready and the matter went over for a week.

The bond originally set at $10,000, was reduced to $5000 in each case, and was furnished. Both defendants assert they are innocent.

STILL MASTER OF SHIP AT EIGHTY-THREE

Capt. Abrahamsen Spends 66 Years "Before the Mast"



Four-masted Schooner Alvena

Captain P. L. Abrahamsen, 83 years of age Master of Alvena.

Ye can have your steam-boat racing, but gimme the run in a gale
Of a well-geared able clipper what is driven by snow-white sail.
For I've known the thrill of a piling sea and the sky in a cloud-flecked gown,
And fourteen knots in a wind-bag when she's running her Easting down!"

Down at Los Angeles Harbor this morning a trim four-masted schooner—the Alvena—is tied up at a lumber wharf. Unless one notes her spotless rails and deck or the neatness of her gear, the Alvena appears to be just an ordinary wind-jammer, unloading a cargo of fir from Aberdeen. That is, until one meets her master, Capt. P. L. Abrahamsen, 83 years of age.

For Capt. Abrahamsen is claimed the distinction of being the world's oldest active master mariner. Most skippers go into dry-dock or Snug Harbor before they reach the threescore mark. But watch the bright blue eyes of Capt. Abrahamsen and you'll understand why the dean of all American sailormen is still the skipper of his ship at 83.

OLD LIGHT SHINES

Those eyes sparkle with the romance of the old clipper-ship days, when the California clippers and the peerless tribe that manned them ruled the seas. For sixty-six years Capt. Abrahamsen has gone to sea and his proudest boast is that he has never walked the deck of a "steamboat."

Romance has trod the path and sailed the seas for sixty years with this old man and yet he doesn't know it. For he tells a tale brimful of swashbuckling adventure with the air of a clubman ordering a meal.

He left Swden in 1855 on a Danish baak and landed in New York in early June; 17 years of age, broke and full of determination to quit the sea-faring game and become a banker. A fortnight later he fell in with a new-found friend and the next morning woke up to find himself "Shanghaied" on board the American clipper ship, Young America.

STICKS TO OCEAN WAVES

The Young America was the pride of the California fleet and under Capt. David S. Babcock had already made some fast passages around the Horn. On that particular voyage she came in the Golden Gate on October 14, 1856, 107 days from New York. Young Abrahamsen went back to New York on her and immediately shipped out on the famous clipper Dashing Wave, having found his heritage despite his wishes.

He became a mate on board this dashing wind-jammer under Capt. Young and sailed on her throughout the Civil War, being in both of the brushes she had with the Confederate commerce raiders, the Alabama and Florida.

Capt. Abrahamsen has watched America's glory on the seas fade and wane, has seen the smudgy steamer take the place of the white-winged clipper, with her skysails and ringtail spankers and Jamie Greens and Jib-o-jibs.

He still walks the deck of a wind-jammer, a sailor of the sail at 83, but the Young America and the Dashing Wave are gone—behind the mist that hides the fleet of phantom ships of the past. Both of the famous old flyers ended their careers as Capt. Abrahamsen says he wants to go—lost at sea.

LONG BENEATH SEA

After thirty years of continuous service in the California trade, during which she made fifty trips around the Horn, the Young America was sold to an Austrian firm with the condition that her name be changed. She was renamed the Miroslav and foundered with all hands in 1888.

The Dashing Wave finished her career on the Pacific Coast, as a lumber carrier. Two years ago she went down in a gale off the Alaskan coast. But it was a fitting end, for there was nothing left in the scarred lumber carrier to suggest the beauty and grace of the Dashing Wave of fifty years ago. Her back was broken and her lofty rig cut down to bring it within the handling power of ten men before the mast—a fourth of the crew she carried in those days when she was young and romance really sailed the seas.

The Alvena has been Capt. Abrahamsen's home for fifteen years. The jaunty old four-master has gone out to Australia, the Philippines and Hawaii; she has figured in more than her share of gales and typhoons, but she always comes back to Aberdeen looking as trim as the day she was launched at Fairhaven in 1901.

Last year the Pacific Coast was tied up in the throes of the nation-wide seamen's strike. Capt. Abrahamsen brought his ship and a cargo of lumber to Los Angeles Harbor with a crew totalling three men and "Boy," his dog. There is some touch about the Alvena that suggests youth and life.

HE'S A BACHELOR

Capt. Abrahamsen wears glasses while on deck. When he reads, however, the glasses are shoved back on his forehead.

"They're a nuisance," he says, "and always in the way—like a woman—but we've got to have both around."

Which bit of philosophy brings out the fact that he is a bachelor. He has been too busy, Capt. Abrahamsen explains, to worry about finding a wife.

When Capt. Abrahamsen retires, which he thinks will be in about twenty years, he plans to spend his days in a cottage which he has built on the shores of Puget Sound.

The clipper ship is gone, a memory of the days when the starred banner ruled the seas, but this picturesque dean of sailormen will have lived and died, true to the Heritage of Tyre.

Vigor of Youth In A New Discovery

Science Produces a Vitalizer Superior to Famous Gland Treatment—Magic Power of a Bark From Africa.

Have you lost your youth, vigor and "pep"? Does life seem dull and work a grind? Don't worry. Science has discovered a new vitalizer superior even to the much discussed "goat gland" and "monkey gland" treatment. Anyone can now quickly and easily regain the vitality and eagerness of youth and do it in the privacy of the home.

The principal ingredient is an extract from the bark of an African tree. It is said to be the most amazing invigorator ever discovered. Combined with it are other tonic and vitalizing elements of proved merit. In most cases the compound produces marked improvement in a day or two, and in a short time the vitality is raised, the circulation improves and the glow of health is felt in every part.

The laboratories producing this new vitalizer, which is called Re-Bild-Tabs, are so confident of its power that they offer new customers a large $2 supply for only $1 and guarantee to refund the money if the remedy fails to give results in one week.

Any reader of this paper may test the new discovery without risk. Send no money, but just your name and address, to the Re-Bild Laboratories, 292 Gateway Station, Kansas City, Mo., and a full $2 treatment of Re-Bild-Tabs will be mailed. On delivery, pay the postman only $1 postage. If not delighted with the results at the end of a week, notify the laboratories and your money will be refunded in full. Do not hesitate about accepting this offer, as it is fully guaranteed.—[Advertisement.

Woolwine May Accept Place in Film World

Whether or not Dist.-Atty. Woolwine will resign his office to accept a position as head of an organization of independent motion-picture producers will not be decided until after a conference Monday night, he stated yesterday.

A meeting will be held then in the Hollywood office of Herman L. Roth, attorney for the producers. About fifteen heads of independent companies will attend, it was stated.

Mr. Woolwine conferred yesterday with Mr. Roth, after which it was stated that the position offered Mr. Woolwine still was in abeyance. Mr. Woolwine stated that certain details were being gone over, but that the terms had been agreed upon. If he accepts the place he would be the advisory counsel, as well as executive, of the organization.

CITY STILL HAS MARGIN FOR BONDS

Auditor Reports More Than $50,000,000 Available for Improvements

That Los Angeles has an adequate bond margin under the law to permit an additional issue for public improvements, such as, for example, a new City Hall, was shown yesterday in a tabulation of bonded indebtedness compiled by Dep. City Auditor Marshall. On January 1, the report showed, outstanding nonrevenue producing bonds amounted to $2,051,483, while the nonrevenue producing bonds authorized but not issued, which includes $12,000,000 sewer bonds and $2,500,000 fire-department bonds recently authorized, totaled $16,500,000, making a total of nonrevenue producing bonds outstanding or authorized of $18,551,483. The bonding limit of the city for nonrevenue producing bonds is now $34,827,813. This figure will be larger next year under the steadily increasing of assessed value of property in the city.

Of revenue producing bonds for harbor, water and power enterprises there were outstanding on January 1 bonds amounting to $45,036,318, while there was authorized but not issued, which includes the $5,000,000 water bonds recently authorized, a total of $9,101,000, or a total of revenue producing bonds, autnorized or issued, of $54,137,318. Under the present assessed valuation of property, the bonding limit for revenue-producing bonds is $99,311,252, which leaves a margin of $45,173,934 of bonds which can be authorized, when voters desire, for making improvements at the harbor or extensions for water and power departments.

Bleeding Gums the First Sign of Pyorrhea

NIGHT RIDERS

It is said that a lot of Ku Klux propaganda was circulated by a cotton manufacturer who had 1,000,000 nightshirts on hand and threatened to go broke when the South took to pajamas. But who wants to belong to a lodge where the members wear their nighties on top of their overcoats?

ANGELA GROWING

It must be confessed that Angela looks good. She is growing so fast that her stockings wear out before we can find new shoes to fit her. According to the testimony of the revenue collectors the population of Los Angeles has advanced 55 per cent since the census of 1920 was taken. Possibly this is straining it a bit, but the records show that we are registering a 55 per cent increase on the dial of prosperity. Look what our little Angela has grown to!

THE EMPTY PITCHER

President Harding decided that it would be lost motion to hold conference with the Molly Pitcher Club. This organization is made up of representative women who are opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment. The President feels that nothing is to be accomplished by crusading against prohibition at this time and that the amendment must be really enforced before it can be said to have had a test. The President was polite to the little Pitchers, but he made it plain that only embarrassments and misunderstandings would follow a conference. The Pitcher will remain empty.

LOGANSPORT CHALLENGES US

Los Angeles is so used to applying superlatives to itself and its own that it is rather disconcerting to read a press dispatch from Logansport, Ind., telling that back there a prisoner dug his way out of jail with two pewter spoons.

It's a shock. Here we'd been thinking we had the most insecure jails in the world, but Logansport jumps up with an incident which fairly challenges us. We may yet be able to dig up evidence, of course, that Clara Phillips used hairpins instead of saws in making her famous jail break, but what are even hairpins compared to pewter spoons?

It looks as if we can't claim a clear title to the most insecure jails on earth so long as Logansport is on the map. If we were out to establish a world's record in that line we are abruptly halted.

And yet, to be typical of Los Angeles, everything here must be the "mostest" of its kind. So it looks as if we'd have to turn around and make our jails the most secure. We simply can't stand this thing of taking a back seat for Logansport.

SPEEDING THE FINISH

Rum-runners took $7,000,000 worth of liquor into New York during holiday week. The New Year's celebration in Washington was one of the wettest in history. Chicago was still wetter that same day and in St. Louis there was a riot in a fashionable private hotel in which, a prohibition officer asserts, he was attacked by 250 drunks.

It surely looks as if the folks who sell the stuff which inebriates but no longer cheers were doing their best to bring on a fight to a finish, even though it is bound to be their finish. They are tempting fate a little too far and are bound to get what they persist in looking for. They don't seem to realize what Uncle Sam can do when he is roused, but they will very soon learn, for such events as have taken place during the last week are enough to rouse Rameses I, let alone Uncle Sam.

Unthinking wets may glory in the fractures of the law recently, but the drys are the ones who really ought to give three cheers, for nothing on earth could have been better calculated to speed up the finish and bring about more drastic measures in the interim.

THE STUNT PERFORMER

The professional stunt man in the movies is to be called in. The accidental death of one of these hardy and reckless performers has put a damper on the industry and word comes from headquarters that the special hazards given to "doubles" must be cut out. The daring athlete who disguised himself as Fairbanks and tobogganed across the Grand Canyon on a cloud is to no more find a market for his spirit of adventure. Some of these wild blades earned as much as $500 a week as a reward for their courage and capacity and there was a lot of money in the business. The accidents were not nearly as numerous as they might be because the hazards were taken by experts and trained professionals. But if the movies are made safe for democracy nothing more dangerous than a custard pie will find a place in the films. The business of doubling will be discouraged. The professional who will jump from an airship into the heart of a blast furnace for $50 will no longer be in demand, and the guy who will go over Niagara Falls with a length of stovepipe under each arm will have no market for his nerve. The principals and stars will still be able to get away with their sword play and hard riding, but it will be impossible to hire a double to jump from the maintop with an anchor chained to his neck. The pictures may not be as exciting or interesting, but they will be less hazardous for the performers and therefore more pleasing to the life-

A HAZARDOUS VENTURE

Paris is again quivering with excitement over preparations for a military excursion across the Rhine. It is the third time such a mobilization has taken place in a period of a little over fifty years. The mobilization of 1870 resulted disastrously; for the Germans were first across the Rhine and dictated a victorious peace in the French capital. The mobilization of 1914 resulted in a long and bloody war, from which France emerged exhausted and bled white, but, thanks to the Allies, victorious. What the third mobilization will bring forth is the secret of the future.

France is now proceeding against the counsel of all her late allies. If she invades the Ruhr district she must march alone. But it is apparently the will of the French government that it shall be so. Germany is defaulting in her cash reparation payments and in her promised deliveries of lumber and coal. So the French purpose to take what they term "productive guarantees" that Germany will fulfill her obligations.

They will assume control of the German fuel supply. They will send into France the amount of coal stipulated in the reparation agreement; and they will levy tribute on all the coal that passes the Ruhr district into the rest of Germany. Whether German industry can survive such a blockade is problematical. The country is now in a bad way economically; and the seizure of the coal fields will have the same effect as a successful strike of the coal miners.

If France adheres to this policy she will disregard the well-meant protests of the British government and the unofficial advice of American representatives and American financiers. Perhaps it is because the French have been goaded to desperation by the failure of the Germans to keep their treaty pledges. Their attitude recalls that of a man who approaches another and says, "You owe me money and you are seeking to evade me. Come through or I'll take it out of your hide."

Such is the French challenge. Germany has failed to pay and they are going to take it out of her hide.

But it appeals to us at this distance as a hazardous experiment. There is an element of danger in attempting to further oppress a desperate people. The Germans outnumber the French by about 2,000,000 fighting men. The German government is bankrupt and German paper is almost without value; but the French should themselves remember that when the French assignats were almost as low in 1794 as the present German mark the French assembled an army that dominated Europe.

Germany is now in no condition to resist an invasion. She has a standing army of but 94,000, while France has more than 800,000 troops under arms. But there is a potential strength in Germany, due to her superior numbers, that may be materialized.

Russia will render Germany what aid it is possible for her in her demoralized condition to give. It may be little; but it might be a great deal. And to whom would France turn for support? Has she a right to expect it from the friendly nations that have joined in counseling her against so hazardous a venture?

One would think that the French would remember the late experience of the Greeks in Asia Minor. Clemenceau has hardly returned to his hermit abode after appealing to us to protect France against a German invasion; and here are the French preparing to cross the Rhine.

Premier Poincare is not to blame. He is but doing the will of the French Parliament. If he were to shrink from the military occupation of the Ruhr district his government would be overthrown. Bonar Law, on the other hand, could not have sent British troops to co-operate with the French in the further occupation of German territory if desired. For the British Parliament and people are fixed in their purpose to give German industry an opportunity to recover. They are sincere in the belief that Germany could not pay now if she would.

As France assumes full responsibility for her action she must be prepared to abide by the consequences. France and Germany will be left to settle their differences alone. It is a situation that every true friend of France views with regret; but their counsel has been rejected and they must now retire from the arena, leaving the French and the Germans to their own resources. For the present the French are burnishing their arms and marking time. January 15 is the date fixed for further German reparation payments; but the German government has announced in advance that she cannot pay. It is apparently the intent of the French to consider this defalcation as an overt act.

One wonders what the French expect to win, unless it be revenge. They may be intent upon making the Germans endure what they endured during the three terrible years that followed 1914. We are convinced that there is a better way to settle the dispute; but we fear the French have determined on a single course and will accept no other.

If France wins she will secure a blood revenge. If she loses the sacrifices of the World War were made in vain. One wonders if the French have stopped to reflect on what will be the comments of the specters of the English and American dead sleeping in French soil as they see the lilies of France advancing on a new crusade and marching alone.

DALLYING WITH CRIME

Where the enforcement of law is lax there is an added incentive to irresponsible members of the community to live by their wits in place of by honest effort. Crime is on the increase in Los Angeles. The number of criminal acts going unpunished grows larger weekly. No other section of the country has a greater proportion of law-abiding citizens; but in few other sections is the criminal element more active.

Southern California is far-famed as the garden spot of America; and, as in all gardens, constant care and tending are necessary to uproot the weeds and protect the flowers. Whenever Winter marches down from the North there follows in his train a motley division of camp followers, criminals in greater or lesser degree, who seek to prey for a season on the honest folk who dwell amid the flowers and the sunshine.

They are here now in large numbers; and they are emboldened by the success tion or evading punishment after they are once arrested. Their defiance is a challenge to the enterprise of the reputable citizens of the community. And that challenge has been accepted by the organization of a law enforcement committee, composed of alert, public-spirited citizens who are not connected officially with either the city or county government.

This committee holds and exercises no official authority. Its members are concerned solely with the public interest, with the vigorous enforcement of the law. It is a committee for inspection and conference; to assist the police and the courts by securing larger appropriations where the funds are too limited to permit a department to function officially and to inform the public where officials or departments are not giving efficient service.

As told elsewhere in The Times today, the experience of Chicago is one by which Los Angeles may profit. Facing a crime situation similar to ours, the leading business men of the Windy City got together and organized a Crime Commission which has now been in active operation for about four years. This unofficial body has so far strengthened the hands of the police and the courts that Chicago's crime is now only about half what it was in 1918, despite the fact that her population has increased by approximately 200,000 in that interval.

Probably the newspapers have a more acute realization of the increase of crimes of violence with robbery as their motive than the rest of the community; for their police reporters bring in every day the ever-increasing list of crimes of this nature. So the publishers of the Los Angeles newspapers have agreed to serve on the committee and to contribute as far as lies within their power to backing up the officers of the law in apprehending criminals and the courts in securing speedy conviction.

There have been entirely too many jail breaks, too many instances of insufficient bail; too many straw bonds have been accepted; and juries of citizens have been influenced by maudlin appeals of attorneys to the extent that they have lost sight of the public safety and the public interest.

Whenever a malefactor is permitted to escape adequate punishment through a hung jury or through insufficient penalty the number of malefactors increases. It is time that the manhood and womanhood of Los Angeles should assert itself, that lax enforcement of the law should cease. Criminals should be made to find that the winter climate of Los Angeles is not only warm, but scorching hot for all breakers of the law.

It is not the intention to organize a vigilance committee that shall take the law into its own hands—for that in itself would be a negation of the law—but a committee that shall act through the machinery of the law, shall support those working diligently for rigid enforcement, and expose the individuals and groups that are winking at crime and encouraging lax enforcement.

RICH UNCLE'S DIFFICULTY

America is just beginning to learn what it means to be a rich uncle. It is somewhat bewildering for a nation that formerly attracted but scant attention on the other side of the Atlantic to be suddenly courtesied and fawned upon; to be invited to affairs at which our presence would have been roundly resented but ten years ago.

As far as the average Americans are concerned we are in no better position financially than we were before the war began. Getting into a European war and getting out again cost us a matter of $35,000,000,000, including our loans to the associate powers. We are now paying interest on more than half that sum and have the principal to repay.

It is true that it is a debt that all of us owe to some of us, that nearly the whole of the outstanding government bonds are held by American citizens; but it is an indebtedness that must be discharged. Some statisticians have estimated that the increase in the national wealth has been equal to what we still owe on the war account; but that, for the most of us, is only problematical wealth.

When we begin to take stock the most of us feel that we were never before so poor. But our European cousins have become imbued with the idea that we are fairly rolling in riches. Because we have about half the world's gold supply they imagine that we have half its wealth.

And the more we protest that we have serious financial and economic problems to solve, that some of us must hustle to keep as much as three leaps ahead of the sheriff and the tax collector, the more convinced they become that we are scandalously rich and are protesting poverty to avoid a touch.

Little wonder that some members of the Cabinet are inclined to give short answers to invitations to our government to take part in a new European conference. They know that the prime object of that conference would be to borrow money of the people of the United States, through the medium of our government.

The President and his advisers know that the American people are not minded to purchase any more bonds for the purpose of enabling our government to lend money to Europe. They know that such a conference would be very likely to break up in a row, and that it would result in estranged relations with our late allies. But they cannot make the European Cabinets understand.

Getting a reputation for fabulous wealth may tickle the pride of some of us; but it is the kind of reputation that it is difficult either to live up to or live down.

RIPPLING RHYMES

THE POET

I read an ode by Seacook-Sage—it is the proper thing to read him; his works just now are all the rage and wild applause the highbrows feed him. I read that epic to and fro, from right to left and down the middle, I greatly strove its sense to know and still it was a beastly riddle. "The way this poet fumes and rants, imputing souls to tiger lilies," I said in anger, to my aunts, "must give all thoughtful men the willies. One line in ten is fine and grand and might be written by a master; if t'other nine you'd understand you'd have to wear a porous plaster. Life is too short to read a bard who balls you up with far-fetched phrases; I'll throw this volume in the yard and Seacook-Sage may go to blazes." When I am talking to my aunts I tell the truth, as I descry it; but when I go to Culture's haunts I know the truth and yet deny it. That evening at the Highbrow Club I boosted works of Seacook-Sage's and said he was a gifted dub whose fame would thunder down the ages. I feared they'd think my brow was low if once I started to jaw him, they'd say I lacked the sense to know a first-class poet when I saw him. I wouldn't give ten cents a ton for all the odes this bard is showing, but we are rabbits, every one, and follow

SAGE TIP TO REPORTERS

The following remarks by M. de Blowitz, the famous journalist, are reported:

"When a man gives a correspondent an important piece of news the latter should continue to remain with him for some time, but change the conversation and not leave him until it has turned upon something quite insignificant. Blowitz explains why. If the correspondent, he says, takes his departure abruptly, a flash of caution will burst upon his informant. He will reflect rapidly and will beg the journalist not to repeat what he has said till he sees him again. The information would be lost and the correspondent would suffer annoyance that might have been avoided had he known nothing. For, adds Blowitz very wisely, a newspaper has no use for confidential information it cannot transmit to its readers."—[Harpers.

CHICAGO'S CRIME BOARD

How Citizens of Windy City Handle Problem Like That of Los Angeles

In connection with the figures Frank Hanna, assistant to the operating director of the commission, states: "With the exception of murder, which has shown a increase every year of the four-year period except 1922, the major crimes show a constant decrease. There has been a 41 per cent decrease in motor car thefts in Chicago as compared with last year, and a 29 per cent increase in the number of stolen cars recovered.

"The percentage of convictions in the criminal court has increased.

"The percentage of cases in which penalties were inflicted has increased.

"Bail bond scandals have been almost eliminated.

"Unwarranted probations are fewer.

"Petitions for releases on parole are examined individually by the crime commission which is represented at every meeting of the division of pardons and paroles.

"Unwarranted applications for pardon are publicly resisted by the Chicago Crime Commission."

The crime commission has been especially useful and effective because it has not been a captious and unreasoning critic of the police department and other crime prevention agencies but on the contrary has ably co-operated with these forces and has aided with a fundamental and basic knowledge of crime conditions and the approved methods of combatting them.

PURPOSE OF BODY

Outlining the purpose of the commission, Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director, states:

"In its by-laws the Chicago Crime Commission seeks 'to promote the efficiency and activity of all officers and departments of the State, county and city administration charged with the duty of the suppression, prevention and punishment of crime.' A brief study convinced the operating department that the officers at the head of the various branches of government charged with this duty desired to perform well. None denied that the community was confronted by a situation which was becoming more and more serious. None questioned the necessity of immediate action to prevent a complete breakdown of law and order.

"The police told about their wornout automobiles which should be junked and sent to the scrap heap, and how the modern hold-up man found it easy to escape in a stolen motor car traveling sixty miles an hour while they followed in a 'tin Lizzie' capable of traveling about one-third as fast.

LIKE LOS ANGELES

They also complained that after criminals were captured the courts frequently ordered their release before the police had time to gather evidence sufficient to hold them, that political and other influences aided in this process, that convictions were rare, court procedure slow and witnesses were worn out and discouraged long before the case had run the usual course—a course mapped out for it by the attorneys of the professional crook for that very purpose.

"The State's Attorney complained of an overload of accumulated cases, a crowded jail and an appropriation too small to provide a sufficient number of qualified assistants, the haphazard release by judges of professional criminals on worthless bonds and other abuses. The judges said that there were not enough magistrates in the criminal court to handle the business, that no matter what the actual merits of each case might be or how bad the general situation, that they were compelled to proceed in accordance with the law as it appeared in the statute books, and that delays could not be avoided. They said that too many prisoners were paroled from the State penal institutions and that if crime was on the increase the solution should be sought elsewhere.

"The division of pardons and paroles replied that perhaps the abuses of the probation act administered by the judges, rather than the release of convicts on parole would reveal the cause. The division also said that if the judges and the State's Attorney complied with the law requiring them to forward complete records in all cases committed to the State penal institutions, the board could have all of the evidence before it instead of only part. The judges and the State's Attorney responded by saying that the reports were as complete as facilities for making them permitted.

"It was a bad mess. The capture and punishment of criminals and protection of life and property of the community was everybody's job, with everybody doing something, but with little accomplished in the aggregate.

WHAT IT DID

"A diagnosis was needed. The commission called for the facts. The police department had some. The State's Attorney, the Criminal Court, the Municipal Court, the Sheriff, the Coroner, the County Board, the Penal Institutions and other public agencies had some. There was duplication, overlapping, confusion of terms, omissions inaccuracies—almost everything except an orderly arrangement of data upon which a reasonable deduction could be made. The city, the county and the State kept figures. None of the records were entirely useless. Most of them had a purpose. Some of them performed that purpose well; yet, there was no single agency which could supply data in a form which made it comparable with other relevant data given in a way which would indicate the cause for a given condition."

It was this situation which the commission met with intelligent action. Mr. Chamberlain explains. It brought about an arousing of public interest and support and through these forces afforded aid and co-operation to all the law enforcing agencies. It has never nagged. It has never let politics influence it. It put its support behind a movement for a large and much needed increase of the police department and co-operated with the police superintendent in increasing the effectiveness of the department; it helped to arouse a somewhat dilatory judiciary to more industry on the bench and was instrumental in getting the bar association to send many of its ablest members to the aid of a State's Attorney confronted with a crowded jail and clogged Criminal Court calendars and with an entirely inadequate force of prosecutors at his command.

And the Chicago Crime Commission has never been known as a "reform" organization in the irritating sense which so often attaches to the term.

WILL FETE MARINE GENERAL

National Order Aegis Given to U.S.C. Chapter

Word was received here yesterday by the officials of the college of music of the University of Southern California that the Alpha Kappa Omega, local college of music fraternity, had been made a chapter of the national music fraternity, the Phi Alpha Mu.

This action was taken at the twentieth annual convention of the Phi Alpha Mu, which is being held at present in Chicago under the auspices of the college of music of the University of Chicago.

Phi Alpha Mu is one of the oldest and largest music fraternities in the United States and although there are chapters scattered throughout the country the newly accepted chapter is the first one to be established in California.

B. S. Hartern, manager of the U.S.C. Glee Club and president of the Alpha Kappa Omega, will continue to hold the chair until the expiration of his term. Two other factulty members who are members of the Alpha Kappa Omega and will be taken into the new chapter with the students are W. S. Field and A. M. Perry.

It has been suggested that a national home for the fraternity be established at the University of Southern California and the plan is now being considered. At any rate it is hoped that a new home can be erected in the near future.

Would Divert Cahuenga Pass Traffic West

A plan under which the enormous amount of traffic now coming into Hollywood and Los Angeles over Cahuenga Pass may be diverted to Laurel Canyon while the new Cahuenga Pass road is under course of construction, was advanced late yesterday by Capt. George K. Home, head of the Hollywood police division.

Capt. Home, after a thorough check of traffic conditions in Hollywood, announced that the Laurel Canyon idea was the only feasible plan that has yet been worked out. He stated that he believed Laurel Canyon road could be put in shape to handle at least the greater part of the traffic now coming through Cahuenga Pass, if an expenditure of from $10,000 to $12,000 was made in widening the road.

Fraternities' Clearinghouse Established

University men and women from every section of the country are making inquiries regarding Los Angeles alumni chapters and their headquarters through the information bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, according to officials of the organization.

Never have there been such numbers of winter visitors with college connections seeking out Los Angeles friends, and it is suggested that all alumni associations, fraternity and sorority secretaries make known their names and addresses to the chamber's information officials in order that newcomers may be directed to old friends.

NYIREGYHAZI KHJ ARTIST

Weird Musical Figure Gives Pleasing Concert

Max Amsterdam Again Shows Skill With Bow

Others Present Programs to Cheer Radio'and

To give the listening public the brightest stars in the musical constellation is the ambition of KHJ. Last night Radioland, which has heard from KHJ such leaders in the operatic world as Edith Mason, Joseph Schwarz, Marguerita Sylva and John Charles Thomas, was able to listen to the newest figure who has flashed suddenly into the pianistic heavens—Nyiregyhazi (pronounced Near-rej-har-ze.)

Playing through the courtesy of the Fitzgerald Music Company and using the Knabe piano, which he is employing exclusively in his concert tour, Nyiregyhazi, who gives a concert at the Philharmonic Auditorium tomorrow evening, gave listeners-in an advance concert over KHJ. His is a name that logically follows the great line of Liszt, Rubinstein and Paderewski.

The mere recording of facts concerning this genius reads like the fanciful dream of an enthusiastic press agent. Beginning his studies as a mere baby with the leading virtuoso of his native Budapest, Nyiregyhazi soon became the pupil of the world-celebrated Erno Dohnanyi, who wisely gave his pupil's unique abilities free rein. A technical and temperamental giant while still in his teens, this remarkable youth actually played the piano at the age of three and interpreted the Beethoven C Minor concert with orchestra at the age of six.

Today Nyiregyhazi is a strange figure of the musical world. Tall, thin almost to the point of emaciation, and with long tapering hands, he has much the same weird atmosphere that marked Paganini. With an air of utter, weary indifference to all external influences, he seems almost to have reached the impassive calm of the oriental, yet his Hungarian youth, for he is hardly more than a boy, flames in an instant, electric vitality once he sits before the keyboard.

Brilliant runs, thunderous bass with lyrical melodious passages, with lyrical melodius passages, marked throughout with an individuality of interpretation that distinguishes the player as a pianist of keen intelligence, as well as of passion. It is as if his entire mental and physical resources were held in reserve until he plays. Then it is that he seems to pour forth his whole soul into the music.

Another of the outstanding features of last night's concert was the reappearance of Max Amsterdam, first violinist with the Philharmonic Orchestra, at KHJ. Recently Mr. Amsterdam gave a concert program over The Times radio to help increase the music department of the public library. Since that time many requests have come that he be heard again.

EARNS NEW ADMIRERS

Among the reports coming to The Times radio department was one which told of the remarkable clearness with which Mr. Amsterdam's solos were heard in Nova Scotia the last time he played. He has a complete mastery of the violin, faultless techinque and an expression distinctly individual. Accompanied by Carrie Preston Rittmeister last night, Mr. Amsterdam gave a group of selections that carried the arme of appeal and earned for his additional admirers.

The remainder of last night's concert bill was arranged through the courtesy of Chaffey College of Ontario, presenting members of the musical department under the direction of S. Earle Blakeslee, who accompanied his vocalists. In this group of artists are Frederick Trunkfield, tenor, Irma Jacobs, mezzo-soprano, Grace Hoskins, 'cello soloist, Geneva Moremen, coloratura soprano, and a men's glee club. All of the vocalists, as well as the chorus, are students of Mr. Blakeslee's department in Chaffey College, where they get vocal training as a part of the regular curriculum.

SING FOR KIDDIES

Frederick Trunkfield, tenor, favored with three solos, Irma Jacobs, mezzo-soprano, gave beautiful interpretation to three selections, and a reading as well, Geneva Moremen sang three selections, and the Glee Club put real harmony into its four numbers on the final broadcast period, and also sang one number—"Mammy's Lullaby," by Jamison, for the kiddies in the 7 to 7:30 p.m. period.

Grace Hoskins, accompanied by Miss Vinal Palmer of Chaffey College faculty, gave superb expression to Colderman's "Cantilena from Fourth Concerto," and to "An Old English Folk Song."

Little Emerson Frome, artist-pupil of Marshall Stedman, who came in for much favorable comment for the part he took in the Christmas Eve concert bill, came to KHJ again last night and gave the lads and lassies of radioland one of Mr. Stedman's poems—"The Man in the Moon." Little Emerson gives expression to his recitations that would be worthy of one many years his senior. His work presages a brilliant future for him, his charming personality winning him many friends and admirers. It is expected that he will be seen shortly on the silver sheet.

BLIND PIANIST PLEASES

Yesterday afternoon KHJ broadcast the excellent artistry of a blind pianist, Allen Spurr, who is organist at the Alhambra Theater, Alhambra. This young man is both a composer and an interpreter.

Yesterday, in response to numerous telephone requests, he favored with an extra number—"The P.-T.A. Song," dedicated to the Parent-Teacher Association, and adopted as a California State song, which is his composition also. Among his numbers yesterday were "March Triumphant," "Love's Contentment," "Dance Antique" and "Melody for the 'Cello."

As an extra on the afternoon concert program, KHJ broadcast two superb tenor solos by Harold Proctor, whom radioland has heard many times from KHJ. Mr. Proctor, accompanied by Bertha M. Just, sang two old Irish songs—"She is Far From the Land," by Lambert, and "The Old Plaid Shawl."

Peace Sought for Industries by New Plans

Amicable adjustment of union labor disputes is the work mapped out for a committee of the National Industrial Peace Association which P. J. Scullin, its general secretary and manager, is attempting to organize in Los Angeles. Since forming the national association in 1904 Mr. Scullin has organized committees in practically all of the larger industrial centers on the Pacific Coast, and recently came to Los Angeles to establish a local body.

According to his plan, a general committee meets in December of each year to hear arguments and fix a wage scale for each craft for the coming year. Should a strike occur committees are appointed by workmen and employers to meet with men selected by the general committee and an effort is made to reach an amicable settlement.

Many corporations employing large numbers of men, labor unions and workmen are affiliated under Mr. Scullin's scheme. Members of the local committee soon are to be selected.

FUGITIVE IS CAUGHT AT BANK HERE

Detectives Say Young Man Admitted Safe Robbery at Wyoming Fort

Detectives Wilde and Dryden yesterday arrested C. E. Davis, alias Jim McLean, 23 years of age, wanted at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., for the theft last November 14 of $1600 in cash and bonds from the fort postoffice safe.

Davis is also a deserter, according to Detective Sergts. Lloyd and Roberds, who reported that Davis confessed the whole affair to them. He is held here under a Federal charge, the matter having been taken over for the government by Postal Inspector Walter Grant.

In Davis's statements, as given out by the officers, he found the postoffice safe open one night, and could not withstand the temptation of appropriating the contents. At Salt Lake City he bought an automobile and drove it to Los Angeles. Pressed for money he sold the car, and had spent all his cash at the time of his arrest.

He was trapped by the officers at a bank, where he was awaiting the receipt of $100 which he had drafted from an account of a Wyoming bank.

NOTABLES SCHEDULED TO SPEAK

William G. McAdoo and Mayor Cryer to Dedicate Home for Aged

William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, and Mayor George E. Cryer are scheduled to speak today at the ceremonies incident to the laying of the cornerstone of the new dormitory to be erected at Fourth street and Boyle avenue by the Hebrew Sheltering Association and Homes for the Aged.

The structure is to be of brick with two stories fronting on Boyle street and four on Bodie street. Its construction will follow the general plan of a bungalow court, at a cost of approximately $65,000.

In addition to sleeping quarters there will be two reading-rooms, a laundry, a sewing-room and a spacious dining-room, all constructed to permit the inmates plenty of sunshine.

The home now shelters fifty-four persons permanently. While primarily a Jewish refuge, it is nonsectarian. Those without funds or a home are given aid until they can re-establish themselves.

"There is an erroneous report to the effect the inmates of the home are required to pay an entrance fee," said President Horwitz. "Regardless of the motive of those responsible for such statements they are not true."

The corner-stone-laying ceremonies will start at 1 p.m. Sunday. Maurice J. Finkelstein, grand president of the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, will preside. The Polytechnic High School Band will furnish the music. Miss Rosan Meyers, violinist, will play a solo.

STEP TO THEIR MUSIC TUESDAY NIGHT

Kings of Syncopation Will Furnish KHJ Dance Incentive

Vincent Rose-Jackie Taylor Montmartre Orchestra

DON'T make any engagements that will keep you away from your radio receivers next Tuesday evening beginning at 8 o'clock. Roll up the parlor and living-room rugs, invite your friends and dance to the superb syncopation which the Vincent Rose-Jackie Taylor Orchestra will produce before the KHJ microphone from whence the mighty voice of The Times radio will carry it into infinity.

This orchestra is playing the second week of an extended engagement at the Kinema Theater, through the courtesy of which Radioland is to enjoy them Tuesday night. This musical organization is famous in the world of syncopation, and Vincent Rose and Jackie Taylor have recently given their orchestra the name Montmartre to be in keeping with the style of the cafe where they open for a long-time engagement immediately following their Kinema contract. They open Brandstatter's new Montmartre Cafe in Hollywood, the 17th inst.

Vincent Rose is known from coast to coast for his original compositions which have been used by every big-time syncopated organization in the United States. Among his hit compositions are "Avalon," "Arabaiana," "Once Upon a Time," "I'll Promise," "I'll Keep On Loving You" and others. Rose recently wrote "Silver Canoe" and "The Montmartre Walk," which are being used by his orchestra during their engagement at the Kinema Theater. Rose has constantly supplied the biggest song publishers in the United States for the past four years and his number, "Avalon," originally introduced by the famous Hickman Orchestra of San Francisco, scored an instant success.

Jackie Taylor has long been a popular figure locally, and was successfully starred over the Orpheum Circuit for two years, appearing with Nora Bayes. As a gymnastic violinist and eccentric artist, he has gained fame all over the country. The combination of such unusual talent as Rose and Taylor possess, makes them an inimitable duo.

Supporting members of the Rose-Taylor Montmartre Orchestra include Prof. Moore, Mel Pedesky, Ernie Williams, Henry Yaeger, Buster Johnson, Harry Owens; every one a soloist and a musician of the first water.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Receipt to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.—[Advertisement.

What Guns Bring Down on Kenai

ADVENTURE ISLAND, HO!

Rich Alaska Land of Game and Wealth is Goal of Los Angeles Hunting Expedition

Many miles to the north, just this side of the Kenai Peninsula, is Montague Island. They call it a hunter's paradise. One day's travel by boat from Cordova, on the Alaskan coast, with the Japanese current bringing to its rocky shores driftwood of every description, this island abounds in game.

Stories speak of it as the haunt of a giant bear which has torn to pieces four men who came to seek him. The prowess of this bear has become a legend and the possession of his skin the dream of many hunters. There is one such in Los Angeles. He is Ralph Trumbower, big-game hunter and the owner of a little hardware store at 1586 West Washington street.

Next spring, when the snow is breaking on Montague Island and before the leaves and sprouts have appeared on the willows and undergrowth, Trumbower will sell his hardware store on Washington street and start out with a party of three on a long trek to the north. His companions will be A. C. Carson, 1456 Echo Park Road; Detective Carroll of the Los Angeles police fore, and a young man whose father is sending him on the trip because he thinks a little adventure won't hurt anybody.

TRIP WILL BE CHEAP

The four men do not expect to spend more than $500 each on the trip. They will go to Seattle by rail, then to Cordova in Alaska, and at this point charter a little thirty-five-foot gasoline-propelled boat to carry the party to Montague Island.

Headquarters upon the island will be in a cabin built by Trumbower on a previous visit some years ago. Already prepared for the cook of the party is a kitchen range taken from one of the derelicts which lie rotting on the shore. For, due to the vagaries of the Japanese current, Montague Island is also a beachcomber's paradise. It gives up such strange bits as a ton of coal, a log of teakwood valued at $500, and a box of cocoanuts. Trumbower vouches for these.

"We found a fragment of a hand-cut mast," he says, "which must date back to the Armada. It was buried deep in the drifts."

GAME PLENTIFUL

Montague Island is especially noted for its brown bears. The party will search elsewhere for seals, walrus and grizzlies. They plan to hunt near Kenai Lake on the Kenai Peninsula for moose and black bear. Bighorn sheep and mountains goats (Trumbower has magnificent heads of each mounted in his Washington-street store) are to be sought in the high mountain recesses of the northern country. The hunters must go by government railroad all the way to Mt. McKinley for their caribou shooting.

Then, finally, they will go to the Matinuska Glacier. Few men have heard of it, fewer still have explored the country beyond; for a man must go 100 miles from the anchorage at the head of Cook's Inlet before he reaches the glacier. Quicksand extends almost half this distance. Trumbower tells how a man on his first trip became insane when caught in the dread grip of these sands.

GOLD LURE URGES

It is the hope of finding gold that inspires the party to undertake this last dangerous journey. Rumor tells of a lake there, formed by the ever-shifting back waters of the glacier, which recedes and leaves in its bottom a rich sprinkling of the yellow metal. Trumbower is not oversanguine as to this report, but thinks that the party may at least discover some quartz beds in the unexplored country. He exhibits a letter from a friend who has crossed the glacier and reports the discovery of good quartz on the other side.

The party plans to return to this country about next September. Trumbower will then open another hardware store, he says.

RED PEPPER FOR COLDS IN CHEST

The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering from a cold, rheumatism, backache, stiff neck or sore muscles, just get a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, at any drug store. HOT TEA BREAKS A COLD—TRY THIS

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of this hamburg tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacupful at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless. —[Advertisement.

UNIVERSITY EDITORS TO UNITE WORK

Various Publications to be Consolidated in Junior Class Edition, El Rodeo

Now that the football season is over and the semester is drawing to a close, the juniors at U.S.C. are turning their attention toward gathering material for their annual publication, El Rodeo. Although it is a junior class publication it represents every department of the university.

This year the various colleges are uniting with the College of Liberal Arts, and instead of putting out several publications they intend to put out one large book combining them all. According to Editor Metcalf this year's book will far surpass any previous publication.

This year has been marked by many university parties and dances. By these parties the different colleges have become better acquainted with each other, and a strong unified feeling has already been observed.

Many parties are scheduled after examinations are over and the students look forward to good times which will help them recover from the effects of those "horrible exams."

NEW FIELD IN TROPICS IS SOUGHT

Chamber of Commerce Looks Up Possibilities of Trade With South America

Information gathered by Clarence H. Matson, manager of the foreign trade department of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, to the effect that new markets were available for certain products of the Pacific Southwest in the ports of the east coast of South America, caused him to wire the United States Department of Commerce for detailed information. The report has been just received by the Chamber of Commerce here.

With so few producers and shippers having any intimate knowledge of the present markets of South America, much less what the great possibilities are in the huge marts of the tropical continent, the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce is drawing particular attention to the subject, and with the installation of the new Shipping Board line of steamships to ply between Los Angeles and the east coast of South America beginning January 27, a great progressive step is registered.

Vol. V. Published Weekly in L. A. Times, Sunday, Jan. 7 Number 8.

Start your spring planting now!

Sow in hot bed or cold frame

Tomatoes, Cabbage and Peppers should be started now in hot beds, or cold frames, and later transplanted to open ground. For variety and succession of crops, plant the following—any 3 10c packets, 25c postpaid:

Germain's New Stone Tomato—best of beefsteak variety—very meaty; an excellent general cropper.

Germain's Earlyana—choicest of early round tomatoes—a favorite with home gardens and market growers.

Germain's extra early Winningstadt Cabbage—best of sugar loafs and first to mature—about 3 months.

Germain's Copenhagen Market—matures in 100 days.

Germain's Cannon Ball Cabbage—matures in 4 to 5 months.

Since variety is the spice of the garden—plant Peppers.

Germain's Perfection Pimiento is meatiest of all peppers; always mild and sweet; delicious green, or when red and thoroughly ripened.

Germain's Bull Nose—thick, sweet, delicious meat—the variety generally used for baking and frying.

Germain's Anaheim Chilli—hot pepper, cayene type—spiciest for flavoring.

BE SURE TO SPRAY!

Dormant trees, rose bushes and all plant growths should be sprayed now. This will prevent the maturing of millions of pests which would later on attack your prized plants. Ask our experts for specific spraying information.

BE SURE TO PLANT LONG LIVED ROOT CROPS

Asparagus will continue to produce for 25 years or more. Since it is one of the most delicious and healthful of vegetables you will do well to plant both of these varieties:

Germain's Palmetto—crisp, tender and green—excellent canners—50c doz. $2.50 per 100.

Germain's Argentieul—largest asparagus grown—thick, tender and white. 50c doz. $2.50 per 100.

Rhubarb is a long producer—Germain's Panama holds the record for long life, flavor, size and marketability. Choice roots are 50c each.

Wagner Giant Rhubarb and Crimson Giant are 15c to 25c a root.

Horse Radish is also long lived—Germain grown roots 20c doz. $1.50 per 100.

Add sufficient for postage. Any overpayment will be returned.

These are golden growing hours—so don't waste them. Get out your garden tools and prepare the soil. Add a little Nuvida to enrich the ground and hasten germination. The following varieties of each vegetable are listed in the order in which they will mature. Plant them all for succession of crops:

CARROTS—Germain's French Forcing; extra early, sweet, tender, brilliant orange, small and round.

Germain's Oxheart Carrot—short, thick, heavy cropper, fine flavored—best market variety; ideal for home gardens.

BEETS—Germain's Crosby Egyptian—small, round, very sweet and tender—a quick grower. Tops make excellent greens.

Germain's extra early Egyptian—rich, dark red—flat in shape, fine grained meat of excellent flavor.

PEAS—Germain's American Wonder; small podded, extra sweet, bush variety; Germain's Dwarf Telephone, pods somewhat larger, also sweet and bush type. Bears two weeks later. Germain's Admiral and Stratagem peas—two extra choice varieties that need no introduction to California growers.

Germain's Alderman and Prizetakers. The latter are by far the largest, sweetest and finest flavored peas grown. They are a distinct improvement over all other varieties.

PARSNIPS—Germain's Hollow Crown—a culinary delight when quickly parboiled, lightly sprinkled with flour and fried a delicious light brown in butter. Try this!

PARSLEY—a necessity for flavoring and garnishing. Two types—Germain's tightly curled and fern leaf varieties. Plant both.

GIVE YOURSELF AND KIDDIES A TREAT

See pets—dogs, cats, monkeys, parrots, etc.—under ideal conditions—visit Germain's Pet Stock Shop, the most up-to-date department of its kind in the west. Just the kind of a place you would like to buy a pet from—or leave your pets to be sold.

KILL THE ANTS AND BE RID OF APHIS

Aphis, the little green or black bug that feeds on new growth, are called "Ant's cows." Ants carry these pests into the branches and later come and "milk" them. Universal Ant Exterminator is made from a government recipe and is put up in specially patented, safe jars which can be distributed about the house or grounds. Price 25c. Talbot's Ant Powder is 15c, 25c and 40c can.

GERMAIN'S SUGGESTIONS FOR FLOWER GARDENS

COSMOS—extra early, large flowering, pink, white and crimson—10c packet, or 3 for 25c, postpaid.

CALIFORNIA POPPIES—These seven beauties in Germain's famous large flowering strain should find their way into every California Garden: Lovely Mauve Queen, Purple Glow, Scarlet Beauty, Tango, Geisha and Vesuvius. Because they are an improved variety and very rare, they are 25c a packet—or the entire collection $1.25, postpaid.

One of the most exquisite developments of recent years is Germain's Giant Tuberous-rooted Begonia. Especially desirable for beautifying shady spots or for growing in pots. Blossoms are mammoth in size, exquisitely curled and fluted and come in the most delicious shades of pink, scarlet, yellow and white. The price is small for so much beauty—35c for extra choice bulbs. (Mailing, 5c extra.)

3 Garden Necessities

RADISHES—always best when forced. If soil is enriched with a little Nuvida you will have earlier, larger radishes, crisp, tender and mild. The first early variety is Germain's Epicure; next, Germain's Scarlet Turnip; and then Germain's delicious white Icicle radish.

LETTUCE—Germain's L. A. Market—big, solid heads with creamy white centers—earliest of large crinkle heads. Germain's Big Boston—smooth leaves, largest head lettuce grown; excellent shipper, long keeper, best variety for heavy dobe soils. Germain's French Cos—best heat resister grown; erect in growth, soft heads, creamy white and mild.

ONIONS—Germain's Leek, very mild, indispensable for soups. Germain's Sweet Spanish Onion can be eaten like an apple. It is extra sweet, mild, a quick grower and attains a mammoth size. Packets 15c postpaid. Germain's Australian Browns are medium sized, round; excellent keepers and best for dried onions. Germain's Southport White Globe is large, round, white, a good keeper and much used for drying. Germain's Bunching Onions are best for extra early "little greens."

Any 3 10c packets Germain's seeds, postpaid 25c.

BULLDOG NURSEMAID ON THE JOB

Keeps Ambitious Youngster Guarded

Peter Mauss and His Guardian, Tops

IN the distraction of these days, dizzy with the feverish effort of attempting to solve the servant question, one little woman in West Hollywood goes serenely about her business, for she has a perfect nursemaid; one who never complains, who is never impudent, who never dreams of time off, in fact, she insists on being on the job twenty-four hours a day. This acme of perfection necessitates no outlay in weekly wage, or in the provision of food—she joyfully eats the scraps from the table.

The name of this paragon is Tops, and she is a pedigreed bulldog, who lives at 1456 Orange Grove avenue. The name of her charge is Peter Mauss, an adorable little 3-year-old towhead. But he is a boy and therefore no angel. In fact, he is full of life and needs watching. His mother, however, never worries, for she knows that Tops will look out for him, and see that he gets into no trouble.

TOPS IS GUARDIAN

Automobiles are constantly whizzing past the house. Peter has been told many times not to cross the street, but he frequently disobeys. His mother has often been obliged to run and bring him back. One day while she was in the house she heard Tops barking. The barks became more and more shrill, not unlike the crying of a child. Then qunite suddenly all was still.

Frightened, she ran out of the house. Peter was making a determined effort to cross the street, and Tops was grimly hanging onto the seat of his abbreviated trousers. The youngster tried desperately to run, but it was no use, for the dog hung on until the boy's mother came and escorted him into the house. Another day Peter and his four-footed friend were playing behind the garage, where they were quite out of sight. His mother came out and called, but there was no response from the boy. She called again and again, a proceeding from which the boy apparently derived much joy. It finally dawned on Tops that her little charge had no intention of answering, so she ran out barking.

From the time the boy's big brown eyes open in the morning until he is tucked away in his little bed at night these two are inseparable. When the little lad plays in the sand pile Tops lies very close and watches. There are times when she seems asleep, but were the boy to make any attempt to steal away, Tops would become very much awake.

BRINGS MASTER AID

In the neighborhood a house is in process of building. Here the other children like to play. Peter, of course, is much too small to do this with safety. One day when no one was near to interfere, he climbed the stairs to the second floor. When he was ready to come down he evidently could not find the stairs again. He felt that he was a long way from the ground and he was alone. It was getting dark. This was surely enough to strike terror to the heart of any 3-year-old. He began to cry. Tops could do nothing but she knew some one who could, however, and ran home as fast as she could. When the child's mother saw her alone and wildly barking she knew that something was very much the matter and followed Tops, who led her to the house, and a frightened little boy was soon being comforted.

Anyone who watches the dog must wonder about the processes of her mind. Surely this little boy is going to be a better boy than he would have been had he not been fortunate enough to have so loyal, faithful and courageous a friend.

The Observance of the Sabbath

Jesus and the Sabbath—Text of Today's Bible Talk by Mr. Bryan

(Luke xiii:10-17)

And He was teaching in one of the synagogues on the Sabbath.

And, behold there was a woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise lift up herself.

And When Jesus saw her, He called her to Him, and said unto her, Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity.

And He laid His hands on her; and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God.

And the ruler of the synagogue answered with indignation, because that Jesus had healed on the Sabbath day, and said unto the people, There are six days in which men ought to work; in them therefore come and be healed, and not on the Sabbath day.

The Lord then answered Him, and said, Thou hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the Sabbath loose his ox or his ass from the stall, and lead him away to watering?

And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo, these eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the Sabbath day?

And when He had said these things, all His adversaries were ashamed; and all the people rejoiced for all the glorious things that were done by Him.

What more appropriate text for our thoughtful consideration as we start the New Year than one which focuses attention upon one of the most important of religious subjects—the observance of the Sabbath? Luke, in the thirteenth chapter, records an incident in Christ's ministry which aroused discussion then, and the dispute has not yet been settled.

Christ was teaching in one of the synagogues on the Sabbath day, as he was wont to do, "and, behold, there was a woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together and could in no wise lift up herself. And when Jesus saw her he called her to him, and said unto her, Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity. And he laid his hands on her, and immediately she was made straight and glorified God."

In many cases in which Christ exercised His healing power the sick came to Him or were brought to Him by friends of the sufferer, but in this case Christ did not wait for an appeal; He was touched by the sight of this poor woman, who for eighteen years had been so afflicted that she could not lift herself up.

The text does not disclose the precise character of the disease; it is enough to know that it differed from the ordinary disease that comes upon one suddenly, reaches its crisis in a short time and then either disappears or proves fatal. The woman had been in bondage for nearly two decades; she was bowed together so that her affliction was as apparent to others as it was enslaving to herself, but it did not keep her from attendance upon the synagogue.

AN EXCELLENT TEXT

This poor woman's example furnishes an excellent text for the minister when he desires to upbraid those of his congregation who allow themselves to be kept away from the house of worship by inclement weather or Sunday sickness.

If one who for so long a time stooped beneath the weight of a seemingly incurable disease could be faithful in attendance upon the sanctuary the robust Christians who permit trifling indispositions and Saturday night dissipations to keep them in bed on Sunday morning ought to be shamed into renewed zeal for God's house.

As the woman in this case was rewarded by the touch of the Savior and loosed from her infirmity, so many a Christian might be spiritually rewarded and "made straight" by the influence that pervades the house of God if his zeal were equal to this poor woman's.

If curvature of the moral nature were as easily discernible as curvature of the spine, if the diseases of the soul were as painful as the diseases that twist up our bodies, our religious gatherings would be as crowded with sinners as are the halls occupied by those who manifest power to save us from the aches and pains of the flesh. And yet what physical afflictions can compare with sin?

"THOU HYPOCRITE!"

It would be hard to believe that the gracious and sympathetic act of Christ in loosening this sorely afflicted woman from her distressing infirmity could have excited criticism if we did not know the extent to which the Jewish authorities had carried formality.

In other places we read of the minute details with which they enforced obedience to the letter of the law, while they ignored the spirit of the law. Jesus on many occasions gave proof of His thorough understanding of all that was written and frequently used the ordinances to answer the authorities, disclosing by comparison their misrepresentation of God's will and word.

So here, when the ruler of the synagogue, indignant because Christ had performed an act of healing on the Sabbath Day, admonished the multitude that there were six days for work and that they should come to be healed during these days and not on the Sabbath, Christ rebuked him and those who joined in the protest:

"Thou hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the Sabbath loose his ox or his ass from the stall, and lead him away to watering?"

CHRIST'S SOLICITUDE

This was an illustration that struck home. According to Alexander MacLaren, "the Talmud has minute rules for leading out animals on the Sabbath. An ass may go out with his pack saddle if it was tied on before the Sabbath, but not with a bell or yoke. A camel may go out with a halter, but not with a rag tied to its tail. A string of camels may be led if the driver takes all the halters in his hand, and does not twist them, but they must not be tied one to another."

And, yet, with all this solicitude for the beasts of burden they seemed relatively indifferent to the sufferings of a human being. An ox or an ass could be led to water lest it might for a few hours endure slight suffering from thirst, but a woman, who had borne her affliction for eighteen years, must wait until the next day for her cure.

As in many other instances, Christ used the argument—one of the strongest in the realm of reasoning—from the less to the greater. Comparing the ox and the ass with the human being and the brief suffering of the animal with the woman's many years of pain, Christ asked:

"And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan had bound, lo, these eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the Sabbath day?"

THOSE WHO LIE IN WAIT

Christ's question contains a thought which is sure to furnish an opening to those who lie in wait for an opportunity to question the justice of God.

In most communities there are those who, claiming a superior sense of justice, seize upon such a passage as "Whom Satan hath bound" to indict the Almighty on the charge of cruelty. "Why," they ask, "should a loving God permit Satan to afflict an innocent woman for, lo, these eighteen years?"

It is easy to ask questions. A 5-year-old child can ask questions that no grown person can answer. There are questions that require for their answering infinite knowledge and are therefore beyond the range of a finite mind. Only an infinite conceit can make a human being question the wisdom of an infinite God.

As the child at maturity understands many things that were mysterious to it in its youth and, understanding, is grateful for a parental love that ignored the ignorance of childhood, so the Christian, as he walks the upward way, grows in knowledge and appreciation of God's wisdom and love, but he may never in this life be able to satisfy all his questionings. He knows enough to trust until his knowledge is complete, and that trust is strengthened by this incident.

It not only proves the tenderness and the power of the Savior but it has given hope to many sufferers. They have been able to bear their afflictions—whether they have come from conscious disregard of the rules of health now known or from causes still unexplainable—buoyed up by the hope that their petitions may be heard and that the Great Physician, who straightened up the bowed form in two synagogues, may yet speak the healing word.

"LAWFUL TO DO GOOD"

Two questions suggest themselves. What is it proper to do on the Sabbath Day? And how can proper observance of the Sabbath be secured?

The first question is easily answered—Christ answered it. Matthew records an instance in which the question was asked directly and Christ answered, "It is lawful to do well on the Sabbath Day."

The word "well"—or "good," as the revised version has it—may need interpreting, but there should be little disagreement among those who include the spiritual in their estimation of human life. That is "good," which contributes to the highest welfare of self or others.

The body needs rest; it cannot work unceasingly without inviting premature decay. Experiment has proven that a certain amount of rest is daily needed and that, in addition to the daily rest, periodical rest is necessary to keep the body up to its maximum in producing power.

Eight hours in twenty-four are the normal daily requirement for rest and one day in seven has been proven to be necessary. Besides the daily rest and the weekly rest, there should be an annual period of rest and recuperation. And the tendency now is to add a half holiday on Saturday or at the middle of the week.

Experience has also shown that the mind's need of rest is as imperative as the body's, and the daily, weekly and yearly suspension of intellectual effort is even more of a custom than the supplying of rest to the body. Children have their play hours while in school and their summer vacations, not to speak of the Christmas holidays and the rest days at Easter. Teachers quite generally recognize that health requires the systematic suspension of the work of instruction.

SPIRITUAL SUPERVISION

It would be well for society if as much attention were given to spiritual needs as is given to the demands of the body and the requirements of the mind. Few will, upon reflection, deny that spiritual control of the body is essential if its powers are to be prolonged and its enjoyments are to be raised to their maximum. Spiritual supervision of the mind is just as essential to the highest and best use of our mental faculties.

How, then, can the need of a Sabbath be disputed? There are few in the world who are without some form of religion; is one day in seven too much to devote to that which must exert the largest influence upon every well-ordered life?

Disputes in regard to the proper observance of the Sabbath arise over methods proposed more than over the abstract question of religious needs. Little opposition will be made to persuasive efforts and these, of course, must furnish the basis for all Sunday legislation.

Legal enactments are but the crystallization of public sentiment; the cultivation of that sentiment naturally and necessarily comes before any legal enactment. The church must lead in the teaching of Sabbath observance because it leads in the teaching of religion, and religion is the largest factor in Sabbath observance, but religion finds powerful allies in industry and in education.

The Christian will observe the Sabbath because he is commanded to observe it. It will not be necessary to prove to him that observance is either a physical, a mental or a moral need. If he accepts the Bible as authority, he will obey without waiting to reason it out—just as a child obeys the parent without fully comprehending the reasons therefor. But the Christian has no difficulty in bringing into co-operation with him those who speak with authority in the labor world and among the intellectual.

AN INDEFENSIBLE SITUATION

There is certain legislation to which there should be no opposition whatever: The law should provide that no employee shall be denied time for rest and opportunity for worship. Any employment that is continuous to the extent of denying time for rest and opportunity for worship is indefensible in our land and age.

This will be accepted by most people as the least that can be done, and yet Rev. Charles E. Jefferson is quoted as saying that "two million people in England are obliged to labor seven days out of every week and that 300,000 men in Greater New York have no day of rest."

Surely there is need of legislation if such conditions exist in two of the leading Christian nations.

If a day is to be designated for rest, it is proper, as well as natural, that the day selected should be the day generally observed, care being taken to protect the rights of those who as a matter of conscience observe another day.

As legislation can only be expected to carry out a definite and permanent sentiment, so-called Sunday laws will vary as the sentiment varies in the several States and in local communities. In practice it will be found that the real contest is not so much between persons who differ in opinion as to what they themselves should do on the Sabbath or as what should be regarded as improper interference with opportunity for worship, but between those who unselfishly seek to promote the public good and those who for selfish reasons seek to convert the Sabbath into a day for money making.

In the constant effort to subordinate spiritual improvement and soul nourishment to sordid money making we find new proof of a Bible truth, viz., that love of money is the root of all evil, or, as the new version has it, a root of every kind of evil.

Every Christian should stand behind a world-wide movement to teach and emphasize the spiritual need of the Sabbath Day—the children being the first to be impressed; every Christian should use his influence to secure legislation which will give to all time for rest and opportunity for worship. If time and opportunity are assured, the spirit of worship can be relied upon properly to improve both the time and the opportunity.

SULPHUR CLEARS ROUGH, RED SKNI

Face, Neck and Arms Easily Made Smooth, Says Specialist

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation begins at once to soothe irritated skin and heal eruptions such as rash, pimples and ring worm.

It seldom fails to remove the torment and disfigurement, and you do not have to wait for relief from embarrassment. Improvement quickly shows. Suffers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.—[Advertisement.

VICTIMS OF MASSACRES NEED HOME

Near East Relief Measures Only Palliative in Absence of National Refuge

While the Near East Relief stands solidly behind the proposal now before Congress to temporarily lower the immigration bars to permit Armenian and Greek refugees to enter this country, the organization is sounding an appeal that care be taken not to encourage the measure as a substitute for an Armenian national home. The aid being sent to the Near East will be without avail unless the rehabilitation of those countries is accomplished, the welfare society believes.

Word to that effect has been received at the local Near East Relief office, in the Wright and Callender Building, from New York headquarters, and the workers in this city are now centering their efforts in a new drive, especially among the Armenian element, to procure funds for the purchase of farming tractors. The need of temporarily raising the immigration quotas for Armenians and Greeks is imperative, the relief agency proclaims, especially in view of the number of refugees already at Ellis Island. But, the organization explains, the United States must not lose sight of the fact that its greatest task in aiding the Near East is to make it possible for the inhabitants to be self-supporting.

Speaking along that channel yesterday, C. H. Emmons, field director of the local office, said:

"The Near East Relief is making an earnest appeal to this government and to the citizens for influence and financial aid in securing a protected national home for the Armenians. Except for the aid from this country, the stricken people find in soviet Russia their only friend. Los Angeles may well be proud of the amount of food and clothing it has already shipped to the distressed country, and how we are in hopes that the work we are starting to secure tractor funds will be as successful as our other endeavors in the past. We are much indebted to the churches of Los Angeles for what we have accomplished."

"Sun-Beams" —a column of good cheer

I wonder if our friends of good cheer won't try a little experiment with me?

This is a day of much pessimism. All the occurrences of an abnormal nature are featured.

The many good things that occur, the many kindnesses that one meets, the scores of happy people who pass by are all forgotten in the horror of the unusual.

I wonder if it will not be possible for the people of good cheer to go about placing emphasis on the better things.

So many things will appear to those who seek the happy endings and the gladsome by-plays of life.

It was only yesterday that I had evidence of this in a small happening at one of the Sun Drug Co.'s Stores. A lady came to one of our clerks and asked for a very old fashioned remedy. She was "old fashioned," too, and I was glad to see that she was in the hands of one who had real sympathy for her.

It is not often that we make a five-cent sale of the drug she wanted. But she was waited on for that five cent's worth in a way that made me proud of that clerk.

I was on the street car, only a while back when just such an old person boarded the car. Several men moved to help her up. As she fumbled in her purse for the 5c fare, a look of dismay passed over her sweetly wrinkled face. The conductor knew, and I knew, and so did the woman standing beside me, that the old lady was without car fare.

Who was the first to supply it? Why, the conductor himself. He, of the three, could probably least afford it.

I have seen policemen go out of their way to help women folks and children across the street. I have watched blind men piloted through traffic by busy business men. I have seen Luncheon Club members raise thousands of dollars for charitable causes. I know women who are doing heroic work in relieving the needs of the poor people. I never met a man yet who could not be appealed to for those in distress.

Just a little evidence on the pleasant side of life. We need more of it and if we seek it we will find it.

CARELESSNESS RECEIVES JOLT

a lot of people never do find their lost articles again, even though the railroads make every effort to locate the owners of such property.

The Public Library affords some of the most interesting incidents concerning lost property. A lot of dull and uninteresting books that are taken out by flappers return full of rare and racy literature. Not infrequently, after getting an envelope full of heart throbs from George, little Miss Los Angeles will tuck it inside the copy of Lorna Doone which she borrowed from the library, and in the course of time take the book back without removing the sacred letter. This, as one may well imagine, is the centipede's slipper buckles for the girls who redistribute the books at the library.

WELL CIRCULATED

It not infrequently happens that some person will borrow a library book and some department store will return it. People tuck a book under their arm as they go shopping, and in the course of their rambles in the big stores, lay it down upon a show case and forget it.

About once a month, according to the lost and found department of the public library, the department stores send in a bundle of fifteen or twenty books that have been picked up around the store. One day, in such a lot, the librarian found books from the public libraries of Los Angeles, Sacramento, Glendale and Detroit.

A rare volume of fingerprints, borrowed from the local library, was returned the other day through the mail by a second-hand dealer in San Francisco, who said that he bought it as part of the private library of a man who moved there from this city.

Occasionally someone will mark his or her place in a book with a $5 bill, and forget to remove it before returning the book to the library. Quite frequently people use passports, deeds and options for bookmarks, and lose them.

SAFETY DEPOSITS

Just inside the cover of borrowed books the librarians have found such things as spectacles, silver coins, powder puffs, water melon seeds, hairpins, army discharge papers, chewing gum, theater tickets, pencils and pens of all sorts, and handkerchiefs and embroidery.

One boy left his football in the reading room. A girl took off her hat in the reference room, and went home bareheaded. There are about sixty pairs of nose glasses at the library which have been gathered up in the reading rooms.

Library attaches say that one day an elderly man who reads there almost every afternoon went to the lost-and-found department, explaining that he had left his glasses "at hum" and would like to see if some of the lost spectacles wouldn't serve him well enough for that afternoon.

When permitted to look over the array of "specs," he clawed them around a bit and then exclaimed:

"By cracky, them's my 'specs!'" indicating a rusty old pair in a battered case. He was able to prove his claim, and the problem solved itself automatically.

On a shelf in the lost-and-found department at the library is a leather case containing a full set of fine drawing instruments. If the owner of them reads this he will know where to find them.

PRESENTS SHUNTED

A lot of Christmas presents intended for other people were given to children in the hospitals because persons who remembered to purchase gifts for their friends forgot to mail them to the people they remembered.

It might have been such a woman who borrowed the book called "Aids to Memory," and left it on a street car. The Los Angeles Railway tags every lost article as soon as it is brought in, and makes an effort to return it to its owner. If the owner is not found within thirty days the article is given to the motorman or conductor who turned it in. More than half of the property is returned, but the other day the company gave back to its trainmen half a wagonload of miscellaneous articles, chiefly saws, hammers, plumbers' tools, suit cases, traveling bags and handbags.

On the shelves at the Los Angeles Railway lost-and-found department are scores of valuable articles, including bird cages, tennis rackets, plumbers' torches, teddy bears, overcoats, auto tires, bootblack boxes, stove pipe, monkey wrenches, school and library books, ball bats and sand shovels.

CAP EXCHANGE

Roy Miller of Miller's and the California theater runs a regular cap exchange for the benefit of small boys who wear their caps in their pockets most of the time. One day, after a children's matinee, he says it took him three hours to get fifty-three boys' caps back into the hands of the rightful owners.

A few weeks, ago, according to Mr. Miller, a prominent woman appeared at his office and said she believed she had lost a $3000 diamond brooch in one of the loge seats. The head usher got spotlights and conducted a careful search. The sweepings were sifted, and all employees were queried, but the brooch remained among the missing.

The woman went to her insurance agent and put in a claim. The agent visited the theater and thought that the brooch might have gotten crowded down into the folds of the cloth upholstering of the loge chair. Mr. Miller told him to go ahead and look, and he did. He tore all the upholstering off the chair and shook it all out on papers, but failed to find the lost diamonds. It cost him $33 to reupholster the chair.

GREAT FUR MYSTERY

Mr. Miller recalls an unusual incident which is still a mystery. One night the head usher found a marten fur on the back of a seat, and turned it in. Next day a young man with an attractive young woman appeared and inquired if such a fur had been found. They described it identically, even as to its peculiar shade, and the property was delivered to them. Within two hours another young couple came and called for the same piece of fur, describing it in detail. The young woman wept bitterly when she heard it had been delivered to another person.

"The incident often comes back to my mind," says Mr. Miller, "and I wonder which young woman the fur really belonged to."

The laundries have a great deal of trouble in tracing the owners of lost articles and in hunting for things people think they sent to the laundry.

The Diamond Laundry says that one of its big problems is that of locating laundry which strangers, here for a few days, drop into the boxes at the little doorway agencies on the street. The bundle dropped, the place often is forgotten. When the stranger wants his bundle he can't remember which agency was given it.

RINGS IN NIGHTIE

One day a wealthy woman reported to the Diamond Laundry that she left two valuable diamond rings in a pocket of her nightie and sent it to the wash. The laundry had reward cards printed and posted all over the building, and on Sunday it removed the vibrators from its big washers and searched the tubs carefully for the rings, but they were never found. It is believed that they were carried into the sewer by the wash waters.

A leading Spring-street hotel tells of a motion-picture actress who laid down her fur in the rest room. It was a peculiar kind of fur, and not mistaken easily. Another woman found it and took it to the office. Still another woman saw her find it. The woman who saw her find it appeared at the lost bureau next day and asked if such a fur had been found. She described it and got it. On the lost register she signed a Hollywood address. That same day the film star returned for her fur and wept copiously when she heard that it was gone.

WIFE CONFESSES

The man in charge of the bureau went to the address in Hollywood to find the women who got the fur, but nobody seemed to know her. About two months later, he was standing in the lobby when the woman with the lost fur strolled in with her husband. The young man took a long chance. He asked her if she wasn't the woman who lost a fur one day. She replied that she was, and he took her to his desk.

Calling the house detective, he told the woman to leave the fur with him. She refused at first, declaring that it had been given her by another woman. Her husband was puzzled deeply. Finally he suggested that they leave the fur and return next day. When he came back he told the hotel man that his wife "fessed up" to him that she claimed the other woman's fur because she admired it and didn't think she would be caught.

SAWTELLE SEEKS LOAN

In order to start proceedings toward purchase of the water system of Sawtelle, the Sawtelle Chamber of Commerce yesterday asked the City Council for a loan of sufficient funds to take over the water system, to be repaid when the $275,000 in bonds authorized by the Sawtelle voters, are sold.

Handsome New Stores Will be Built at Venice

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, Jan. 6.—Three new buildings, valued at $55,000, will be erected on the Ocean Front. Work was begun on the first of these at noon today when D. D. Smith of the Fireproof Contruction Company began tearing down a number of small structures at the interesection of Clubhouse avenue and Ocean Front. A new store building, costing approximately $20,000, is to be erected on this corner by C. V. Drazan of Canada.

The second will be erected by Dr. H. W. Kendall and Mrs. H. Pearson on the adjoining property. Contracts were signed last night and construction will begin at once. This building will cost in the neighborhood of $15,000.

In keeping with its policy to match every building erected on Ocean Front with one as good or better the Crescent Bay Investment Company has signed contracts for the erection of another store building to cost approximately $20,000 at the interesection of Thornton avenue and Ocean Front.

ELECTED TO VACANCY

Director to Succeed Montgomery Named by Board

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, Jan. 6.—At a meeting of the board of directors of the Santa Monica-Ocean Park Chamber of Commerce today, Henry J. Englebrecht was elected to fill the chair on the board made vacant by the death of Albert M. Montgomery.

The board unanimously adopted a set of resolutions lauding the life work and character of Mr. Montgomery and extending sympathy to his family.

NORMAL HILL AUTO PARK NOW PLANNED

The board of library directors yesterday asked permission of the City Council to lease for several months part of Normal Hill for a public auto parking station. This is suggested pending the razing of the old city building on the hill and the starting of grading work which will precede the building of the new $1,500,000 central public library and the cutting of Fifth street through the hill, from Grand avenue to Flower street.

The auto park, the library board said, would in no way interfere with the grading operations.

'MURDERED' POLICEMAN QUITE ALIVE

Missing Officer Shows Up With Story of Auto Crash and Hospital

What started out to be a great "murder mystery" collapsed forlornly yesterday when Harold C. Titus, police officer, the supposed vcitim, came into Central Station and presented himself as the ambulating corpus delicti for which detectives had searched during a busy morning.

Titus explained his absence from duty during the last ten days by the account of an automobile accident, which he said befell him on the afternoon of December 26 last when he was struck by a car driven by Mrs. O. L. Landis. The accident occurred in Santa Monica, and Officer Titus since had been in the government hospital at Sawtelle.

Ivan F. Moore, who was discharged from the police department on orders of Capt. G. O. Daudel, commander of Wilshire station, was arrested yesterday by Detectives Aubrey and Rooney, who had investigated Titus's disappearance. It had been reported to them that Moore and Titus had quarreled.

Released from the hospital yesterday, Titus went to the City Hall to draw his pay. When he made his demand for the check he was confronted with a newspaper account of his suspected murder. Astounded, he hastened to Detective Capt. Grant Roberds to squelch the report before it had gone so far as to prevent him drawing his pay.

Moore was released from the City Jail within a few hours upon orders of Detective Sergt. Longuevan.

Co-Eds of South Plan Conference of Sport Teams

Formation of the first Southern California conference of women college students to foster keener athletic competition among "co-eds" is now well under way, following the adoption of a set of rules.

The rules, which were drawn up at a recent meeting of representatives from the University of Southern California, Redlands, Occidental and Whittier colleges, set forth that hockey, basketball, indoor baseball and tennis are to be the main sports; that points for the winning of letters and sweaters shall be awarded, that games must be played according to schedule and that students who attain places on teams must live up to training rules.

The basketball schedule will be drawn up at another meeting to be held later this month.

SEPARATED SCORE OF YEARS

Motion-Picture Seen in Wisconsin Brings Untold Joy to Two Lonely Hearts

"Daddy" Dick's Christmas is a story of the screen. But it never will be shown in motion-picture theaters for it contains no spectacular settings, no mob scenes and no bathtub episodes. It is only a true chronicle of two aching hearts, of sorrow, of hopeful waiting, of a lonely father whose religion was the memory of his missing son, of the son whose shine of worship had always been the cherished thoughts of his father.

For twenty years the father believed the son was dead. Through twenty years of a lonely life the son had thought his father was dead.

The story of "Daddy" Dick's Christmas has reached its climax. Father and son were united on Christmas Day.

MARRIES ORGANIST

The stage was Dick La Reno's world. All his life he had lived in it—alone, until he entered the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City almost thirty years ago. Then he married the girl who played the tabernacle organ.

He was a juggler in those days. His chin was as strong as the blacksmith's anvil and upon it he balanced heavy farm implements—wagon wheels, a heavy plow, and a paper cone.

Then Leo came. Grandma made tights like "Daddy" Dick's for him. A ladder was added to the act when Leo was 6 years of age and the boy would perch himself on the highest round while the ladder swayed on "Daddy" Dick's powerful chin.

Father and mother quarreled. They separated. Leo's mother discarded her pink tights which she wore in the juggling act and went away. She took Leona, the "Incubator Baby," and the boy's adopted sister, with her. "Daddy" Dick kept Leo, but he abandoned his chin-balancing feats. He came manager of Madison Avenue Park in Burlington, Iowa, where the boy revelled amidst the colored night lights, the merry-go-round and the Ferris wheel.

LENT CHILD TO MOTHER

Leo was still 6 years old when "Daddy" Dick received a telegram from the mother of the boy. It stated she was dying and she yearned to caress her son before she died.

Grandma hastily washed Leo's face, wrapped her warm "fascinator" around his neck and sent him to his mother.

"Daddy" Dick had never seen his son since that day. He was told three years later by one of the Dayton sisters, a "sister team," that his boy had died.

Alone, the father wandered about the world. He put his powerful chin to work again, but the boy on the swaying ladder was missing and the act's popularity decreased.

After years of roving, he came to Los Angeles nine years ago. Long before, in 1902, he had appeared in Col. Selig's "Humpty Dumpty," the first successful motion picture produced. So he resolved to enter again the motion-picture profession. He was the first person employed by the Lasky company when he was given the part of Big Bill in "The Squaw Man." Since then he has played "heavies" on every motion-picture lot in and around Los Angeles. For the past year he has been the big-hearted sheriff in Westerns produced by the Universal Film Company.

Christmas came. His only yuletide present was a brief letter from West Allis, Wis., and written in a strange hand:

"Dear Daddy Dick,

Won't you please write to us? Lovingly, Your Son and his Wife."

"Daddy" Dick read and re-read the letter, and the pancakes he was cooking in his little bachelor apartment at 652 North Vermont avenue, were burned to a crisp.

The son, after years of aimless wandering, finally had located his lost father. He had found him in a motion-picture theater, regaled as a Sheriff in Hoot Gibson's motion-picture play, "Trimmed," and he was gazing out from the silver sheet of the town theater. He recognized his father's chin with the strength of the blacksmith's anvil, though he had not seen it since he was 6 years old.

ANOTHER LETTER

Another letter arrived from Leo yesterday.

"Dear Dad—Your letter has made this the best Christmas I have ever had.

"I have longed for you for a good many years and have often wondered where you were. I never heard anything of you until a short time ago when I saw you in the pictures."

When he found his father in the shadow drama, he wrote to all the studios, to every answer man, but received no replies to his letters of inquiry regarding his father. Then he wrote to Universal City again and they gave him his father's address.

He had remained with his mother and a stepfather until he was 13 years old. For many years he had traveled with them, appearing in "kid" parts in melodramas. Then he reached the "awkward age." He was too old for "kid" parts, too young for other dramatic roles, and his "dandy voice" changed to a man's rasping voice.

MARRIES AFTER WAR

"I was no longer a help to them, so I've taken care of myself ever since."

After the close of the war he met the "only girl," started to think of his future, and married her.

"If I could only see you I could tell you so much—things that I can't write about. Writing and I don't seem to get along very well, anyway.

"I know you are going to like my wife because she is a real pal. I want you to know I love you, and I am longing for the day I can see you.

"Your Loving on,
"LEO REMINGTON LA RENO,
"6222 Greenfield avenue, ...
"West Allis, Wis."

"Daddy" Dick's boy still cherishes the one thing he inherited from his father—a powerful chin. He is supporting his bride with the act made famous by his father a quarter of a century ago. He is touring eastern circuits, balancing a ladder, a plow, a wagonwheel and a paper cone upon his chin.

Naval Medical Officers Given Change Orders

Several additional changes in the medical personnel of the Pacific Battle Fleet are noted in Navy orders received at fleet headquarters yesterday. Lieut.-Commander Jasper V. Howard of the medical staff of the dreadnaught New Mexico has been assigned to duty aboard the Idaho, of the same battle division. He will be succeeded aboard the New Mexico by Commander John T. Kennedy, who has been detached from Marine Corps recruiting duty in the Los Angeles district. Both officers are well known in fleet and local shore circles.

Lieut.-Commander Edward C. White of the Medical Corps, now serving aboard the Idaho, will go to the U.S.S. Ortolan, station ship at the submarine base. Other changes include the transfer of Lieut. John S. George of the Dental Corps from the U.S.S. Arostook, tender for the navy air squadrons, to the Arizona. He will succeed Lieut. Frank L. Morey, who goes to the Arostook.

CONTEMPT HEARING DISMISSED BY COURT

JUDGE DECLARES CASE SHOULD BE DECIDED ON MERITS

A long drawn-out hearing covering some days, involving the question of contempt of court, asserted to have been committed by the Union Tool Company, arising out of a violation of an injunction heretofore issued in the action brought by Arthur G. Willard and William W. Wilson, was decided yesterday.

The injunction forbade the infringement by the defendant, the Union Tool Company, of certain claims of a patent relating to oil-well machinery, covering what is known as a two-piece bushing that had never been submitted to the court.

Judge Bledsoe said that the right of the defendant to manufacture a two-piece bushing ought to be decided on a hearing on the merits, rather than in a summary proceeding for contempt.

The order to show cause why the Union Tool Company should not be punished for contempt of court was therefore dismissed without prejudice.

The manufacture of confections was originally done by apothecaries, who disguised the taste of their medicines with sugar.

Marines Pick Cracks to Enter National Meet

The crack shot of the Marine Corps, who will compete against the riflemen of other services in the national matches of 1923, will be chosen this spring, it was stated at the local recruiting office of the Corps.

The personnel of the rifle and pistol teams will be determined by a series of competitions from coast to coast. In the past year the Marines won forty-eight out of eighty-four matches entered, and broke several world's records.

Because of a new rule barring a certain number of veteran shots from participation on the national match team, half of the team must be selected from raw material, giving the new recruit a chance to make the team.

BOND QUOTATIONS

Reactionary Tone

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Extensive selling of foreign bonds, particularly the French and Belgian issues, caused considerable irregularity in today's bond dealings with United States government issues showing moderate improvement and the rest of the list developing a reactionary tone.

Losses of 1 to 1 3-8 points were registered by the French 7½s and 8s and the Belgian 7½s with fractional recessions in the other active issues. United States government bonds showed gains of 2 to 6 cents on $100 at the close.

Principal weakness in the railroad list was noted in St. Paul debenture 4s, Kansas City Southern 5s, International and Great Northern adjustment 6s and Denver and Rio Grande refunding 5s. Delaware and Hudson refunding 4s and Grand Trunk Railway 7s closed early a point higher.

In the industrial and public utility divisions, Third Avenue adjustment 5s, Pacific Power and Light 5s and Chile Copper 7s dropped a point or more, while Fisk Rubber 8s and Consolidation Coal of Maryland 6s improved a point.

Total sales (par value) were $[illegible],000.

ORANGES

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6.—(Office of the Fruit World.) Navel oranges never faced a more problematical winter market. Florida has 5,500,000 boxes of navels to go forward during winter and spring. If climatic conditions are to continue as they have been thus far in California the eating quality will be so improved that the demand may be doubled.

The recent rains, followed by warm sunshine, have been swelling the buds and otherwise increasing the size of the fruit. The size of the crop of navels is thereby already increased about 10 per cent above former estimates. In some parts of Los Angeles the peach trees are showing occasional blooms and a greater spring-like activity has never occurred here at this season. This is fraught with grave danger. If cold rains follow, with snow in the mountains, very light frosts could do greater damage than more severe freezes of bygone days. It is well to change the orders on the smudging program at once. A frost of 28 deg. is apt to do more damage to the trees in the present condition than a frost of 28 deg. during a cold season when the trees are hardened up, instead of budding. Growers are therefore praying for gentle rains. It is just ten years ago since the great freeze of 1913 when Southern California lost $15,000,000 worth of navels.

Navel growers can afford to double their smudge pots in the orchard and be prepared to make the fight against frost with renewed intensity. They will gain tremendously if the frost comes, and if we escape frost, the wonderful quality of the fruit thereby will provide compensation for the increased outlay.

In eastern markets, Florida is the dominating factor for January and February. Florida oranges are beginning to show decay at eastern markets and the crop may have to be rushed.

Climatic conditions in Florida will gauge the size of the daily output from that State. The question of snow and blizzards in eastern markets will affect the situation from time to time. During the past week heavy snowfall affected only such points as Boston, Buffalo, etc.

Fancy California navels are bringing $4.50 to $5 per box delivered at eastern points. The high grade fruit is in demand. There is a large percentage of off-grade navels in the auction offerings meeting with slow sale. Prices on the poorer fruit is correspondingly low. As a whole, eastern prices show little variation over last week. That the situation is improving is evidenced more in the ability of shippers to clean up on cars that had been difficult to move.

F.o.b. quotations on Southern California navels, usual terms, are as follows: Cars running 10 per cent 126s and larger, $3.50 per box; 30 to 35 per cent 126s and larger, $3.25, and 50 per cent 126s and larger, $3. Scale price ranges, $2 per box for 80s size; $2.50 for 100s, $3 for 126s and $3.25 for smaller sizes.

Cash quotations are mostly at $2.75 per box for cars running not over 10 per cent 100s, 20 per cent 126s, balance smaller. Practically no cash business is reported.

The size situation will necessitate the packing of straight carloads of 126s and 150s size navels.

Growers are generally holding for 3 cents per pound for navels. Present market prices do not seem to justify a 3-cent basis to growers.

There is no speculative buying. Growers and buyers are both waiting developments.

LEMONS

The market on California lemons is strong. There is a good demand at prevailing quotations. F.o.b. quotations are on a basis of $4.50 to $5.75 on extra-choice fruit. Choice stock 50 cents per box less.

Jobbers are paying a premium for California lemons, notwithstanding the reported splendid quality of the foreign lemons offered. The dumping of heavy quantities of foreign lemons on the market is not looked upon with favor by the trade. A steady supply of California lemons can be depended upon.

The January 1 estimate on lemons shows an increase of 375 carloads over the November estimate. This brings the estimated total for the 1922-1923 season over 11,000 carloads.

There are on hand and available for sale within the next thirty days approximately 87,000 boxes of foreign lemons.

WEEKLY LIVE-STOCK MARKET SUMMARY

[Furnished by Federal-State Live-stock Market News Service, 1026 Pacific Finance Building.]

WEEKLY LIVE-STOCK MARKET SUMMARY

Cattle—Receipts have expanded somewhat the past week over the small holiday curtailed run of the week previous, but have hardly been in keeping with trade requirements, and the market is on a generally strong to 25c higher basis on everything of desirable killing quality, while there is noted a broadening demand for stockers and feeders that is holding that trade in a strong position.

The week's supply at the Los Angeles Stockyards consisted largely of northern steers of medium and good beef grade. A six-car string of strictly good native Utah steers, fattened on a mixed ration of wheat tailings, bran, shorts and alfalfa hay, and averaging 1082 to 1146 pounds, sold Thursday at 8.50@8.65, topping the week's trade. They were among the best cattle received since the opening of this market. Nine loads of 1111 to 1169-pound Nevada fed steers scored 7.75@8.10, with one load of 961 pounds at 7.50. Another string of 175 Nevada fed steers, averaging 1118 pounds, sold Monday at 8.00, with 75 of the same average weight, but in less desirable killing condition, going at 7.50. Good, tidy 1031-pound dehorned fed steers from Utah sold Tuesday at 8.00, with horned 1063-pound steers of medium grade in the same shipment at 7.40. Eight dollars was paid for 1133-pound locally fed Idaho steers at midweek. Several lots of medium grade light and medium weight steers, both grassers and shortfeds, cashed at 6.75@7.50, and a few light steers on the feeder order went for slaughter at 5.75@6.25. Practically no Arizona cattle arrived.

Inquiry for stock and feeding cattle was broader than at any preceding time this season, but supplies were very light. Thirty-five head of well-bred 682-pound Colorado feeder steers, yearlings and twos, cashed 6.00. Numerous sales of Arizona stock cattle have been made recently on the range for coast shipment. Two thousand 2 and 3-year-old steers sold at 35.00 per head, f.o.b. Willcox.

Supply of cow stuff has been light. Good 991-pound fed Utah cows and heifers sold up to 6.00, a string of five cars of Idaho cows made 5.50 straight, averaging 1079 pounds, and a load of 1046-pound cows from that State sold at 5.00, with four of 957 pounds out at 4.75. Colorado and Texas heifers, the latter pastured in the Imperial Valley, sold at 5.50, averaging 725 and 672 pounds, respectively. They were well bred, but in only medium killing flesh. A few common and medium butcher cows sold at 3.50@5.00, while some shelly Old Mexico canners found outlet at 1.50@1.55, decent canners selling upward to 2.50@3.00.

Calves—No veal calves have arrived. Choice light vealers are nominally quoted up to 8.00. Thirty-three head of well fleshed 450-pound Colorado calves on the yearling order sold at 5.50 for slaughter.

Hogs—Supply on hogs has been very light and the market is closing 25@50c higher than a week ago, with strictly good 202-pound Idahos selling Thursday at 10.20 and some desirable 200-pound drive-ins at 10.00. Stock pigs have been in fair supply, with sales largely at 8.50@9.25 for medium and good 70 to 90-pound averages.

Sheep and Lambs—Three decks of 92-pound California fed lambs, lacking good finish, at 13.50; two decks of only medium killing grade, averaging 90 pounds, at 11.00, [illegible]

Bulls Retreat as Grains Are Moved Lower

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Grain markets continue under pressure with the foreign uncertainty preventing aggressive buying on the part of the bulls. May wheat dropped to 1.17⅝, a new low on the present down turn and 9⅝c under the recent top, and closed 1c lower for the day, with deferred deliveries ⅛@⅜c lower. Corn was off ⅜@½c, oats ⅛@⅛c, and rye ⅝c. Lard lost 7½@12½c, while ribs were unchanged.

Scattered liquidation and realizing sales occurred during a good part of the past week, and while there was a moderate rally from the inside figures, the undertone was none too strong at the last. For the week wheat showed net losses of 3⅝@4⅞c, corn 1⅝c, oats ⅛@⅝c, and rye 2⅝c.

Bearish sentiment predominated in wheat and while there was good support around 1.17½ for May on resting orders and from shorts, the bulk of the business throughout the day was of local character. Deferred deliveries are attracting a little more attention from investors. Weakness in the stock market had some effect on values.

While export demand at the seaboard was reported as slow, Kansas City reported inquiries there for around 1,000,000 bushels, and May in that market has gained 1c on Chicago recently, partly as a result of a marked falling off in interior offerings. No moisture fell over night in the dry sections of Western Kansas.

May corn sold at a fractional discount under the July for the first time, but recovered the loss later. There was a fair commission house trade with the selling slightly better than the buying. Local traders generally were on the bear side, despite the reports that outside markets outbid Chicago as much as 4 cents per bushel in parts of Illinois last night. Cash prices were slightly firmer than the close of the previous day.

Oats held within a moderate range and in the main reflected the action of corn.

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEW

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The first week of the new year began with rising prices in stocks and many commodities but these gains were largely wiped out by the week-end reaction resulting from speculative fears that the British-French disagreement over reparations may lead to more serious trouble. While the financial community apparently shows no alarm over the situation, professional interests are not inclined to materially extend their commitments pending more definite developments.

The domestic situation, however, is encouraging. Steel production continues at a high rate, railroad traffic is unusually heavy, holiday business was better than usual and manufacturing lines report a large volume of new orders. Failures during the first week of the year were approximately 10 per cent less than those of the corresponding period a year ago.

LIBERAL OFFERINGS WEAKEN COTTON MART

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Cotton futures closed unchanged to 12 points lower. The market presented the customary week-end evening-up. An opening bulge of 4 to 11 points was due to scattered Liverpool demand and buying for account of commission and wire houses. The South, Wall street and local room longs offered rather freely on the way up and the market gradually lost all of its gain and dropped 10 to 23 points below Friday's final. Nearer positions received the heaviest pressure. Professional give and take and scattered evening-up predominated at the close and finished up about 10 points from the day's low.

Cotton Industry Gravitating Toward Los Angeles

Many Elements Favor New Era of Manufacturing

Oil Merger Talk; Crop News; New Branch Bank

Another step in the transference of industrial activity from the East to the West is visioned by cotton merchants of Los Angeles in the prophecy that the existence of cheap power and satisfied labor will in time cause a wholesale migration of eastern cotton mill spinners to this city. These attractions originally drew the spinning mills from New England to the South, but now with the recognition of the Southwest as the greatest consuming center in the United States, is it only a matter of a comparatively short time the industry will be transferred here.

At present there are a few scattering mills located in and near Los Angeles, but they are only manufacturing the cheaper grade of cotton goods. The Imperial Cotton Mills and two other located at Downey and Orange are operating now, and the establishment of a new mill to be called the Los Angeles Cotton Mills has been announced. The enterprise will be financed largely by Los Angeles capital, but Eastern mill experts will be associated in the operation of the plant.

According to a leading cotton merchant, the existence of over 100,000 bales of cotton in territory adjacent to Los Angeles is not the prime motive that is attracting the attention of eastern spinners. The difficulties that have hindered the efficient operation of the New England mills for years, labor and cheap power, would be eliminated here, as they are in the Carolina milling district. It would be a comparatively simple matter to transport the cotton from the South to Los Angeles by either rail or water, it is claimed, since the expense entailed in the transportation would be absorbed in the cheap manufacturing, and the existence of a highly desirable market.

The beginning of any new milling center is said to accompanied by the manufacture of the cheaper grades of cotton goods, which demands the inferior grades of staple. As the output of the Pacific Southwest is of an especially higher grade, the spinners would be forced to draw largely upon southern cotton for their needs.

The addition of the new Los Angeles Cotton Mills to the ranks of textile manufacturers in this city is predicted in some quarters to be the precursor of the anticipated westward movement of the spinning industry.

OIL MERGER

Republic Petroleum officers are seriously considering a proposal from eastern men, said to represent Pure Oil interests, for the purchase of their outstanding stock at a price said to be close to 50 cents per share, it was learned yesterday. Details of the offer are to be considered Monday and a final decision is expected by Tuesday.

Although no confirmation of the negotiations could be obtained from the officers of the Republic Petroleum Corporation, it was admitted that some kind of a deal is being considered, but not with the Pure Oil Company representatives. However, it is known that the Pure Oil Company, operating largely ni the mid-continent field, has been anxious for some time to gain a foothold in Southern California, and has made advances to various local companies in the past.

Republic Petroleum has a daily production at present of 500 barrels, but when all of its wells are on production, it is claimed that the output reaches 1000 barrels. The company has two wells at Huntington Beach, and an additional one expected in at any time. Forty wells in the Newhall district are shut down, and others are owned in the Midway field.

Pure Oil is one of the large eastern companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange. It owns and controls various artificial and natural-gas companies, and pipe-line and producing companies in the United States and Europe.

DAILY TRADE TALK

Los Angeles Oil Leads the World; New Rail Tributary; a Forward Look; Banks

Although State production figures for the month of December will not be available for almost two weeks, a fair indication of how California, and particularly Southern California, went over the top in the matter of oil production for the last month of 1922, is given in the monthly operating reports of Union Oil Company of California, which show that its local pipe-line system handled during December approximately 4,100,000 barrels of oil.

As this company has consistently taken care of slightly less than 40 per cent of the production of fields within a radius of forty miles of Los Angeles, indications would point to a total production in excess of 10,000,000 barrels for the Santa Fe, Signal Hill, Huntington Beach, Redondo, Los Angeles, Montebello, Whittier, Fullerton, Coyote and Richfield districts. This production, added to the practically constant 5,000,000 or more barrels which can be counted on from the Coast and San Joaquin Valley fields, would point to a monthly total of over 15,000,000 barrels, or 500,000 barrels daily. However, although daily production is now running over this figure, and has been doing so since before the new year, it is expected that the monthly average will fall about 10,000 barrels short of this mark.

Few enthusiasts realize what the past year has meant to the oil industry of California and more specifically to the standing of Southern California in this respect. In the latter part of 1920, Oklahoma, with her great Osage Nation field, forged ahead of California in State production, and, with the aid of the California strike in the San Joaquin Valley field, was able to end the year 1921 as the leading petroleum-producing State in the Union. As 1922 closed, and 1923 began a clean slate, California, due to Santa Fe, Signal Hill and Huntington Beach fields, is leading the Oklahoma producers by approximately 80,000 barrels daily, and seems the likely leader in the closest yearly race yet staged by the oil-producing States of the Union.

NEW LAURELS

The great gains made in the Santa Fe and Signal Hill fields in the past several months have added new laurels in the oil territory adjacent to Los Angeles in the placing of these two sections as second and third largest producing oil fields in the United States. The largest producer today is the Osage Nation territory of Oklahoma, which is running in the neighborhood of 125,000 barrels per day. Next comes the Long Beach Signal Hill entrant which is giving up slightly better than 100,000 barrels of oil daily, and which is followed for third place by Santa Fe Springs with 90,000 barrels daily. Huntington Beach and the Midway-Sunset California fields and the Smackover field in Arkansas are fighting it out for the fourth place national honors, with the Midway leading.

The freely made accusations that Long Beach and Santa Fe Springs are flush fields whose production would very shortly fall off materially, have not been borne out. After over a year of producing the daily average per well for Long Beach is around 800 barrels, while the seventy-five Santa Fe Springs producing wells are doing better than 1300 barrels for a daily average. The monthly statistics for these two fields also show a consistent gain for the entire year of 1921, there not being one month when the monthly yield fell below those of the previous month, nor have the figures jumped in any but a consistent ratio.

Of the 4,100,000 barrels of oil handled by the Union of California's Los Angeles Pipe Line system during December, which figure represents a gain of 750,000 barrels over November oil receipts, about 2,500,000 barrels were shipped from the Los Angeles Harbor in tankers of the company to northern points. To assist in the carrying of this oil, the two giant steamers, Cathwood, and Utacarbon, recently purchased at Mobile, Ala., from the United States Shipping Board, will be ushered into the harbor service before the end of January. As each of these twin tankers will transport better than 80,000 barrels of oil per trip, the handling of the beach oil will be greatly facilitated by their initiation into the Coast service.

CLOSING THE GAP

J. A. Clay, general manager of the Western Colorado Power Company of Durango, Colo., brought to Los Angeles yesterday news of a contemplated railroad development in the Southwestern part of that State, which he expects will soon open to this market a wonderful new area of back country in Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and Utah.

The new road is to be standard gauge, connecting the Santa Fe at Gallup, N. M., with the Denver & Rio Grande at Farmington. It will be 115 miles in length and will cut the distance between Los Angeles and the point of tapping the Denver & Rio Grande to 700 miles as compared with 800 miles to Kansas City, where 80 per cent of the live stock is now being shipped. The distance to Denver is 500 miles, but this stretch includes 200 miles of narrow gauge over an elevation of 10,000 feet with a 4 per cent grade which, for perishable, including live stock, is practically non-negotiable from middle December to March. Last year, Mr. Clay says, a trainload of sheep was marooned in the snow on this line for six days and finally had to be returned to the ranch after half the sheep had died from exposure.

"All this wonderfully rich area," said Mr. Clay, "is naturally tributary to Los Angeles, or will be within six months when our line is completed. It takes five to seven days to reach Kansas City with our live stock as against a run of about sixty hours to Los Angeles. This is due to the grade on the narrow gauge which requires the use of three locomotives to haul nine cars of live stock.

"The new line runs through a level country across an Indian reservation in northern New Mexico, but the rest of the area affected is wonderfully rich virgin territory. It is known as the San Juan basin. In this section we have the finest hog raising area in the West and to the northwest in Montezuma Valley, the finest section in the West for hard wheat. This is a rich [illegible] land with a rainfall of about twenty inches over the thermal belt which makes it ideal for dry farming. The new line will go right across one of the best coal fields in Colorado and will make smelting and coke coal easily available to the Los Angeles industrial district.

"We believe that with this line established, the Los Angeles Union Stock Yards will be the logical place to market our live stock. I am impressed with the completeness of the facilities here. This central market certainly will quicken and stabilize the live-stock industry throughout the West and by concentrating the supplies bring about the development and broadening of the entire packing and marketing system, so as to afford a steady, sure outlet for our live stock."

Mr. Clay was the guest at a luncheon given at the Stock Yards Inn by J. A. McNaughton, general manager of the Los Angeles Union Stock Yards Company.

LOOKING FORWARD

Continued activity and a wider field for the functions of bond houses in 1923 was the prediction made by D. T. Babcock, resident partner of Blyth, Witter & Co., at a get-together dinner of the organization's salesman last night at the California Club.

Regarding the outlook in Los Angeles, Mr. Babcock was particularly optimistic. He pointed to the immense strides made by this city in the past year, and the large number of new industries which are locating here. Many of these, he asserted, are doing a profitable business, but because of the lack of capital are unable to expand as rapidly as is justified by the demands of their business.

Charles E. Driver, resident partner for the company at Chicago, drew some interesting comparisons between the size of the present local organization and the amount of business now transacted by Los Angeles bond houses with conditions as they existed only five years ago when he was associated with the local branch.

This city, he asserted, offers the greatest possibilities in the United States for bond salesmen, and, he claimed, eventually will be the greatest bond-distributing center of the nation.

CAPITAL INCREASED

At a special meeting of the stockholders of the Continental National Bank yesterday afternoon an increase of $200,000 in capital stock was authorized from $300,000 to $500,000. Old stockholders will be given preferential rights in the purchase of the new stock at the rate of $125 per share, which equals two-thirds of a share for each one held. One hundred dollars of the new stock will go to capital and $25 to surplus. The increase became advisable, according to President Howard, because of the splendid growth made by the bank during the past year, and to more nearly meet the requirements of a new year, which officers of the institution think is exceptionally promising.

DARK DAYS FOR OLD CLUBDOM

Famous Organizations Are in Last Throes

Prohibition, Autos, Golf, Cabarets to Blame

Times Have Changed; Out-of-Doors Has Call

BY RICHARD SPILLANE
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—These are sad days in clubdom. They are made darker because no one can see a ray of light or hope.

In one of New York's famous clubs, where the dues now are $300 a year and most of the members are reputed to be millionaires, the finance committee reported such a deficit that a meeting was called to increase the dues. So vigorous was the protest and so plain the threat of wholesale resignations that the proposal was not put to a vote. Now there is suggestion of a merger with another club once famous for its exclusiveness and where it took years from nomination to election to membership.

All hands say prohibition is hurting the clubs. That is one of the reasons, but there are many others. The city has changed. Habits have changed. But the clubs have not changed. They have no more to offer than they had twenty years ago and really much less.

Once the club was the favorite dining place of men. That was when the city had comparatively few great restaurants. The club chefs had high reputations. So had the wine cellars of some of the clubs. Now great restaurants abound. They have music, dancing and other entertainment to garnish the meal.

Of course, some men have private supplies of liquor at their clubs, but some members not only object but protest.

The clubs have been sacrificed on the altar not only of prohibition, but of golf, the automobile and a lot of other things, among them high prices. Thousands of men who formerly never felt the day was complete without dropping in at the club, now find a run out to the links in the automobile, the playing of nine or eighteen holes, and dinner at the golf club more enjoyable than the old system. What's worse, the rich young men have little or no use for the city club. It is dreadfully dull and prosy to them. They are inclined to be iconoclastic and do not look upon the noted clubs of New York as sacred institutions, as their fathers or grandfathers did.

LATTER DAY PROBLEMS

There are in the city of New York some hundreds of clubs, some very big, some of medium size and some of rather modest proportions. Of the latter not a few have prided themselves on their exlusiveness. Some are dry, some are a bit damp, some are said to have been quite wet and some alternately damp and dry.

In all of them there has been more or less friction over the liquor question. This has subsided somewhat, not because of the weight of argument of one faction or the other, but owing to the fact that a gentleman no longer can put his trust in his bootlegger.

The question of expense has added to the perplexities of clubmen. Taxes have gone up outrageously. So have wages of club attaches, the cost of supplies, etc. Nothing has been added to the attraction of the club and all the while the finances of the institutions have become more involved.

It is not so bad with the downtown clubs. They, as a rule, rent the space they occupy and have little more than luncheon patronage, but their overhead is not so heavy proportionately as that of the big uptown clubs for the waiters employed in downtown clubs find work at night in uptown restaurants and hotels.

Whether viewed from the uptown or downtown angle, the club situation in New York is bad financially and gives no promise of improvement. There was a time when some men were proud of the number of these fine aristocratic organizations of which they were members. Now men pride themselves on the number of golf clubs of which they are members.

Increasing Earnings Through Sound Business Judgment

Last year the Western States Gas & Electric Company purchased 60% of the power it sold to its own consumers. To meet this stable and consistently growing demand, it is necessary for the company to build its own hydro-electric plant.

Anticipating this necessity, the company for five years has been engaged in preliminary work for the construction of a new hydro-electric plant on the south fork of the American River.

Here the company can generate power cheaper than it can purchase it. And the saving will be reflected in its earnings. Based on today's present business the company should inc its annual net earnings $400,000 per year by gen its own power.

For the past 9 years the av age annual net earnings were proximately two times the av age annual interest charges the Company's total inte bearing debt.

We recommend for inv ment the Western States Ga Electric Company Fifteen-Y 6% Gold Notes, Series "A" due 1937 at 96 and accrued terest to yield 6.40%. Co plete information will be on request to our office.

For Diversified Investments

YOU SHOULD HAVE A GOOD BUILDING BOND

The reason for diversification is, primarily, one of safety—to so arrange your investments that no one event in any one industry, in any one locality, or at any one time can affect more than a small percentage of your total holdings. A good closed mortgage building bond possesses several distinctive features which contribute to its soundness. The security is in a simple form—a straight mortgage on real estate—and, provided the location is choice, practically nothing can materially diminish its value. In fact, it has a maximum opportunity to increase in value and thereby strengthen itself as security. Such is certainly the situation in the case of—

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Fears that French determination to exact penalties from Germany for the latter's inability to meet the January 15 reparations payment may lead to serious consequences induced heavy selling of stock for both accounts in today's brief session of the market, declines of 1 to 2 points being quite common. French and Belgian bonds also weakened, as did the foreign exchange.

The selling was conducted, however, in an orderly fashion, although it was apparent that the buying support which had been furnished by professional interests to stem yesterday's short selling was considerably less effective today. News that the Turkish delegation had walked out of subcommittee meeting of the Near East conference at Lausanne also was a disquieting factor.

Industrial stocks, particularly the speculative favorites were the hardest hit in the reaction. Baldwin, which only recently had sold above the 140 mark, closed at 133 1-4 for a net loss of 2 3-4 points. Studebaker closed at 114½ for a net loss of 1 7-8 points. Losses of 2 points or more also were recorded by American Can, American Car, Consolidated Gas, Woolworth, United Fruit, Postum Cereal, Dupont and Delaware and Hudson.

Steel and oil shares also showed material recessions. U. S. Steel fell back to 106 1-4 for a net loss of 3-4; Gulf States Steel dropped 3 points, Crucible 1 1-4 and Republic 1 1-8. Pan-American A and B, Standard Oil of California, California Petroleum and Houston all showed losses of 1 to nearly 2 points. Producers and Refiners gained a point on overnight announcement of the payment of an initial quarterly dividend of $1, but fell back with the other oils later, for a small fractional loss on the day.

Foreign exchanges sold off slightly. Demand sterling dropped about ⅛ a cent to $4.64 1-2; French francs slumped from 7.08 cents to 6.96 and Belgian francs from 6.55 to 6.41½. The German mark was down to 1.16 cents a hundred as against the new low record of 1.15 cents a hundred established yesterday.

The clearinghouse statement showed decreases of $31,772,000 in loans, discounts and investments, $67,227,000 in the reserve of member banks in the Federal Reserve Bank, $37,746,000 in net demand deposits and $10,567,000 in time deposits. Aggregate reserve totaled $497,742,000, making a deficit in reserve of $37,012,940 as against an excess reserve of $24,943,130 last week.

Today's total sales, 524,000 shares. Twenty industrials averaged 97.77. Net loss, 1.11. High, 1922, 103.43. Low, 78.59. Twenty railroads averaged 85.46. Net loss, .50. High, 1922, 93.99. Low, 73.43.

Chicago Grains all touched new low levels for the year yesterday and will probably sell still lower before the 1923 Bull market sets in. But when it starts on its major upward movement you can accumulate a price with a certainty of good profits.

We accept orders from 1000 bushels and upwards. Main 45.

Let Your New Investments Earn 12%---Plus

Some cautious investors are not accustomed to the idea that an Industrial Investment paying 12% Annually can be a Sound and Seasoned Investment, and not a Speculation.

Just because you may not have had an opportunity to make a really sound investment in such an Industry heretofore is all the more reason why you should investigate the merits of the Common Stock offered by an established Refinery, for the purpose of building, here in Los Angeles, its third large plant.

AN ESSENTIAL INDUSTRY

Refining Crude Oil into marketable products is an Industry just as essential and just as sound as the fabrication of steel, or the packing of meats. It should not be confused with the hazard of Oil Production or Drilling Operations, any more than the making of flour should be condemned because of speculation in the wheat pit.

Recent announcements of the large stock dividends paid by Refining Companies—ranging from 100% to 600%—give reliable information on the unusual profits made in the Refining Industry.

THE OUTSTANDING FEATURES OF OUR COMPANY ARE:

A Corporation, established in 1916 with originally $10,000 Capital. Have had seven years successful and highly profitable operations. Own and operate two Refining Plants. Present invested Capital over $500,000. Annual sales approximately $2,500,000. Every share of stock outstanding has been bought at par, for cash. Profits and Stock Dividends, from earnings, have increased the original investment so that each $1000 of the original holding has in seven years become $12,000 in Stock, and has paid $4800 in Cash.

The Directors have established a policy of Cash Dividends at the rate of 12% Annually (3% Quarterly,) and stock dividends as surplus accumulates.

The Officers and Directors stand 100% high as men of Integrity and Ability and as conservative Managers.

The Company issues only Common Stock, which is being sold at par—$100 per share. It participates in the Earnings of all three plants.

BEFORE YOU PLACE YOUR INVESTMENT FUNDS

Get full information. A call at our office, or a mail inquiry will give you full information and a copy of "Gasoline Profits," and will prove the merit of this investment.

Land Owner's Oil Royalties
Santa Fe Springs and Signal Hill

Participate with the Land Owner in the gross production of oil and gas and other hydro-carbon substances. They are protected with the Land Owner's rights which are exempt from all expense. The Land Owner, in assigning a portion of his interests, appoints a Trustee which is either a bank or trust company. The pipe line company that purchases the oil pays for same direct to the Trustee and the Trustee mails your check giving you certified copy of pipe line run, etc. There is no chance of juggling your portion of the income derived from the sale of oil and gas. Our broad experience in California oil fields enables us to give you an unbiased opinion in either Signal Hill or Santa Fe Springs. By consulting with us on the purchase of royalties, oil leases or units you will obtain accurate and reliable information that will prove an asset and safeguard to your investment.

We offer subject to prior sale:

1% Land Owner's Royalty in Transport-Walker Well No. 2, which is being deepened to the 4000 barrel pay. 30 days' production will practically pay for this royalty.

1% Gross production in Kirkpatrick Petroleum Well, corner Gardner St. and Norwalk Road, Santa Fe Springs.

1% In Tri-Field Producers' lease on Norwalk Road—well now drilling at approximately 3600 feet depth.

1¼% gross production in Pacific States Oil Co. lease in direct line with the biggest production in the Santa Fe field.

20 Acres in fee—Santa Fe Springs—in line of big production. Price $8000 per acre.

We have a number of other royalty offerings at Santa Fe Springs, Signal Hill and Huntington Beach.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE

Aside from the strenght in Goodyear Tire and Rubber and Goodyear Textile, the market on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange yesterday developed some heavy losses. United Eastern dropped 14 cents to a close of 1.95 and General Petroleum and Republican Petroleum in the oil group ended the day with decreased price quotations.

General Petroleum was heavily dealt in, and quotations were forced down to a closing price of 38 3-4, a loss of 1 1-4 points from the previous day. Republic at 18 was off 3 1-2 cents, although rumors were current that an eastern oil company is negotiating for the control of the company. United States Royalties lost 3 cents on a close of 57, and Union Oil of California declined 1-2 point to 107 1-4.

In the mining list, Oatman was off 1-2 cents at 12, Oatman Gold sold at 13 1-2 and accumulated 2 cents, selling at 33. Telluride increase 1-2 cent to 31.

Goodyear Tire and Rubber continued to manifest strength on the report that dividends would be resumed in a few months, and sold up to a close of 32, 1 3-4 points above the previous closing prcie. A lack of stock prevented greater activity in the issue, holders evincing a tendency to retain their shares. Goodyear Textile was sympathetically stronger, advancing 2-4 to a closing price at 90. Southern California Edison at 104 was off 1-4.

MARKET REVIEW

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—An irregularly distributed downward reaction on the stock exchange and a decline in French government bonds made up today the home market's particular week-end comment on the European situation. Wall Street continued, however, to pay special attention to the foreign exchange market, where Thursday's decline was renewed in sterling, francs, lire and the German mark. French exchange lost all of the previous day's recovery, touching the lowest price of the week, and the mark nearly reached the low figure 1 1-8 one-hundredths of a cent on November 8. The curious cross-currents in the markets were shown by the fact, that at Paris, the only large European market which was open today, Bourse prices were firm and sterling moved sharply in favor of Paris.

The weakness of the mark would have had sufficient explanation in the reparations deadlock, but it must have been helped by publication of the Reichsbank statement for the last week of 1922. That week has always been distinguished at Berlin, even in prewar days, by the largest note expansion of the year; it was not to be supposed, therefore, that the figures on this occasion would be of modest proportions. As a matter of fact, the paper currency was increased in that week by 148,185,000,000 marks; a figure which, as recently as last May, represented the total of such currency outstanding. Somewhat to the surprise of people who have watched the German currency movement, however, this was not a "record." The preceding week's expansion had been 166,700,000,000. It is not apparent why there should have been this slower pace of output when the bank's discounts increased 212,892,000,000 marks in the week of December 30, as against only 143,829,000,000 in the week of December 23. But one can only make guesses when dealing with such a situation.

Except for a few of the foreign bonds, mostly French and Belgian, the bond market was firm. The new United States 4¼ per cents went to par again and the fourth Liberty 4¼s reached the highest price since the downward reaction of last Autumn. One statement of passing interest, illustrating the large demands on credit for the year-end settlements, was a decrease of $61,956,000 in the surplus reserve account of the clearinghouse banks, creating a deficiency of $37,012,000. This, as the statement shows, was wholly due to $67,227,000 reduction in reserve credits at the Federal bank, following an increase of $99,000,000 during the four preceding weeks. Under the old-time banking system, such a showing would have caused dismay; it would not, in fact, have occurred except as a consequence of panic strain. Nowadays it means only a temporary miscalculation of immediate requirements, and the deficit will be canceled in a week or two.

INTERNATIONAL MOVIE SCREEN

Diplomats Are Playing Their Game of Bluff

Stage Stretched Across the Mouth of Volcano

Menace of War May Put Stop to Rebuilding

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Those trained animals that we call diplomats are playing an interesting game on the international movie screen. It is a bluff game played in whispers or in a sort of pantomime, and there is no music. But there are whispers, which have a frightfully ominous sound, like the low moaning of one of those theatrical machines that are presumed to imitate the sound of wind. The children on the front seats are not alarmed but amused, although they have some appreciation of the fact that the stage is stretched across the mouth of a volcano.

Comments on the show are colorless. It takes football or baseball to arouse real American enthusiasm. There will be more life if the United States decides to block the crater with money based on gold. We are told that Washington will protest strongly against military action by the French, but the troops are moving and conferences with Belgium and Italy are going on across the flats and through the mountain passes.

It should be presumed that Wall street has the function of telling us whether to laugh or to weep over this exhibition, indeed it has done so to some extent, but in this city one sees people buying stocks just as if the future of mankind were not pivoted on the small point of one of those conferences which thus far have proved so little efficacious in the salvation of mankind.

WHAT OF THE FUTURE

As to what will happen to us if a military movement against Germany takes place those men of good information and steady judgment that one talks with do not speak definitely. Indeed, statesmen, financiers and the man on the street stop almost at one common point in their forecastings. The dissolution of Europe as now constituted is one of the possibilities, to be followed by a grand aggregate of ignorance and hostility to good order sweeping over the central and western countries from Russia.

But also we all know that the German statesman is constantly glancing over his shoulder to see whether revolution is dogging his steps.

Mostly for the immediate future the collapse of government treasuries and consequent general bankruptcy among the people of more than one European country are the nightmare in the mind of the financier. That would cause a sharp decline in the demand for American goods and a sharp increase in the demand for American money for rescue purposes.

When one reads these thoughts in the minds of so many persons and sees how much basis there is for them, he marvels that the quantity of our exports is so large, latterly increasing a little. Whatever the outcome shall be, we may be sure that there can be no war boom of any consequence in our commodities such as we had in 1914-1918 for even the astonishing vitality of Europe is not such as to afford of acceptable funds with which to pay for munitions. Doubtless there would be some increase in the demand for certain of our commodities, but it would be inconsequential compared with the damage to us in other ways.

MENACE OF WAR

At times during the postwar period there have been large transactions in equipment for the repair of the damage to public utilities in Europe, such as telephone and telegraph service and the railroads, considerable quantities of it coming from producers in this city, but this occurred from the expectation of a recovery from the evils consequent upon the war and not in the expectation of another war.

The status is now such that hardly can we look for this class of business to continue. One would say that all ideas of rebuilding must be abandoned in Europe for the time being. A nation is not going to improve itself very much if it stands a chance of having a portion of itself cut off and handed to somebody else any day. For the present it would seem that few in this country other than the farmers would get much profitable trade from that part of the world. Food the Europeans must have.

The general impression is that the United States government will presently take a hand in the game—probably in no distinctly visible way but by means of some action which will imply a threat against any nation designing to disturb the peace of the world.

BUSINESS NEWS OF BUSY MARTS

California crop about three-fourths picked, cotton growers are turning their attention to the new corp. Financing arrangements are being drawn up, and provisions for planting the crop considered. While the great majority of the growers have come through the season in excellent financial shape, reports are now current to the effect that a small minority will experience losses from the poor yields received. The hot weather in August and early November frosts fell upon some of the planters harder than was expected. However, the prospects for higher prices for the coming cotton season are causing a general movement towards substantial expansion in acreage, even though losses were taken in some cases this year.

The New York market this week maintained a strong undertone between 26 and 27 cents. Spot cotton closed at 26.42 cents, unchanged from the previous week. The January option ended the week at the same price, and was also unchanged from the preceding week's close. March at 26.67 was off 2 points, but May at 26.81 was up 2 points, while July gained 15 points on a close of 26.55.

Cotton climbed to 27 cents twice during the week, but at this point spinning demand refused to compete. The heavy stocks of spot cotton which are now held in the hands of the country merchants of the South are offered in volume at the 27-cent mark, but the absence of trade and speculative buying at this level allows prices to slip. The unsold part of the crop in second hands appears at this time, according to cotton merchants, to be the controlling feature in the market.

CRUDE PRICES CUT

Reductions in the price of crude oil ranging from 1 to 50 cents, according to the gravity, were announced yesterday morning by the Standard Oil Company of California. The cut effects especially the Santa Fe Springs production as the grades between 28 and 32 degrees are reduced the greatest amount. The price revision is attributed to seasonal causes, in the opinion of oil men, and is part of the general movement that has touched all of the American oil fields.

While no announcements relative to fuel oil was made, it is expected that it will be dropped correspondingly.

The new schedule effective January 6, and the old price list follows:

Hollensteiner, assistant cashier at the Long Beach branch, has been appointed manager. His assistant is H. H. Ingold. The new branch is located at 2222 Atlantic avenue. This will make three branches of the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank in Long Beach. The Belmont Heights branch was opened recently.

CASH DIVIDEND

Directors of the Moreland Motor Truck Company have announced a cash dividend to be paid February 15 to stockholders of record December 31 on the common and preferred stock. The Moreland Truck Company has earned an average of 38 per cent yearly since 1921, and has prospered even though the truck business was severely hit during the depression of 1920. Dividends were suspended for a time in 1921 and during 1922, but now earnings are reported to reach substantial proportions, and sufficient to warrant the extra dividend.

TICKER TICKS

Class 1 railroads of the United States report a net operating income of $78,860,000 for November, an increase of $12,000,000.

Car loadings for the week ended December 23 totaled 834,591, an increase of 167,986 over the corresponding week in 1921 and 186,185 over 1920.

Bradstreet's reports 448 failures in the United States for the week against 368 for the preceding week and 509 a year ago.

Dun's review says: As results of 1922 are analyzed, it becomes increasingly manifest that the early promise of commercial revival was exceeded in different instances and that the adverse failure exhibit is mainly a reflection of past depression.

BOULEVARD JUNCTION IS PLANNED

Sunset and Hollywood to Join as Traffic Aid, Chamber Idea

A plan by which the western end of Hollywood Boulevard may be extended so as to join Sunset Boulevard at an acute angle instead of at a right angle, as is now the case, is being worked out by Hollywood Chamber of Commerce officials.

At the point where the junction is suggested, the tract to be cut through is only two blocks long and owned by a very few holders. This fact is thought to make the proposed improvement even easier than was expected at first. There are no houses or other buildings in the way of the prolongation of Hollywood Boulevard, which has been suggested, but inasmuch as development in that section would make the improvement almost impossible, it is thought that the work will be undertaken at once.

It has been pointed out that by making the extension and joining Hollywood and Sunset Boulevards a very large percentage of the traffic from the beaches and points west would be carried on Hollywood Boulevard instead of diverting through other routes to Los Angeles.

FILM STAR DENIES ENGAGEMENT REPORT

EMPHATIC "NO" IS REPLY OF CONSTANCE TALMADGE TO RUMOR

Constance Talmadge says "no."

In that manner the film star entered an emphatic denial of the Paris dispatch which stated that she was engaged to William Rhinelander Stewart, Jr., wealthy New Yorker.

"I am not engaged to Mr. Stewart, or anyone else," said Miss Talmadge. "I do not contemplate taking such a step and would like to deny this report as well as others which state that I am engaged or am about to be engaged."

"You Can Afford to Wait"

Folks, I have fifty inquiries every day as to when I am going to make my new offer at Santa Fe Springs, and here is my answer to that. Just as soon as I have completed Well No. 4, which won't be long now. I'm a great believer in properly completing one job before taking on another.

Well No. 4 is drilling today at 4615 feet and showing up great. "hold your tickets on this Filly," you know the race is won twixt the flag and the wire.

Well No. 2 is standing up like our American army did at Chateau Thiery. Well No. 1 is looking wicked; I smile as I imagine I hear her roaring in for five or six thousand barrels from that—"Big Meyer pay."

Well No. 3 is rigging up, my "Bearcats" are raring to give her the fog, we won't be long driving her down to the grease.

Right here I want to declare myself to each and every one of my loyal backers, and this is what I have to say.

Until each of my projects are brought to a successful conclusion I stand ready and willing at all times to spend every dollar I own or can scrape together, "trying."

First in the World in Advertising

For the second consecutive year, the LOS ANGELES TIMES has printed more advertising than any other newspaper on earth, its volume for 1922 reaching the colossal figure, 26,795,244 agate lines.

This achievement, significant of vast equipment, multitudes of workers and millions spent in wages and materials, is a tribute to the policy which THE TIMES has pursued for over two generations:

> That since Southern California is inherently a Zone by Itself, with sharply-defined boundaries, special climate and many sectional interests and occupations, any Southern California newspaper can best serve both readers and advertisers by focusing its energies on this one wonderful region.

Adherence to this policy has made THE LOS ANGELES TIMES the compelling business force in the richest area on earth, winning the corresponding prize, World Leadership in Advertising.

Cocoanut Oil Fine
For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo which is pure and entirely greaseless, is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing. This cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub the Mulsified in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces will supply everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—[Advertisement.]

Crenshaw, who celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary Sunday. A reception to include all their friends had been planned, but owing to the condition of Mrs. Crenshaw's health it was thought best to confine the guest list to only the members of the immediate family and a few close friends. WHITTIER

The visit of Miss Elsie Corrin of Coronado was the incentive for many interesting affairs given during the holiday season when Miss Corrin was the house guest of Miss Rhea Johns at the Johns hospitable home on North Comstock avenue. Miss Corrin arrived from the Southern city Friday evening in time for the social section dance at the Whittier Woman's Club. Saturday evening a congenial coterie of young people motored to Long Beach for the evening and Sunday evening the Johns gave a New Year's dinner party in compliment to their guest. This party consisted of the Misses Rhea Johns, Elsie Corrin, Geraldine McDonald and Laura Moon. The young men were the Messrs. Ralph Rampton, Stanford Rohrbaugh, Raymond Johns and Alex Clark. of their friends on the occasion. Bridge, complimentary to Mrs. J. Schalter of Nebraska, mother of Mrs. Wilcox, who is wintering in California, occupied the early evening in honor of Mrs. Schalter's birthday. As the clock struck the note of twelve, the passing of the Old Year and the advent of the New was pleasingly kept. A delightful buffet supper was served.

One of the most delightful of a series of social functions given for the young men and ladies home from college for the Yuletide was the dance given at the Tulare County Golf and Country Club house Friday evening by about a dozen of Porterville's popular young men. Patronesses were Mesdames Jane Peery, F. W. Velie and A. J. Newbury. Christmas greeneries and colors transformed the attractive clubrooms into an oasis of holiday cheer. A buffet supper was served at midnight to the 150 young people present.

Five generations gathered at the Mack Sentry country home west of Porterville on Christmas day, about seventy-five being seated at the bountiful repast, which was typical of olden festivals. Grandman Vincent took the place of honor at the head of the table.

LINDSAY

One of the outstanding features of the Lindsay club calendar is the holiday dance given annually by the Tuesday Club for members, their families and house guests. The party this year was given Tuesday evening at the Aboretum under the direction of Mrs. W. B Kiggens, assisted by the social committee. Christmas wreaths, fir trees and colored lights and streamers were used in the decorations. Punch was served during the evening, and a buffet supper at midnight. Nearly 200 guests were present, including the Business Girls' auxiliary and a number of college students home for the holidays.

Frank B. Clewett and Miss Florence L. Widlund, both living near Lindsay, were quietly married by the Rev. M. S. Frantz of the Church of the Brethren on Christmas Day, at the home of the bride's foster parents. Mr. Clewett is a successful young vineyardist southwest of Lindsay, and with his new wife will make a home on his ranch.

A happy family reunion was held Christmas Day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Dressel on Mirage avenue, twenty-four members of the family being seated at the gaily appointed table. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dressel and family, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Young, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Dressel of Fresno, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cumberland and daughter of Fresno and Mr. and Mrs. William Drewwell and family, and Miss Clara Sinell of Le Sueur, Minn.

ONTARIO

Prominent among the many enjoyable society affairs of the holiday season was the dinner-dance with which Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Harris Frankish entertained Thursday evening at The Sycamores at Red Hill Country Club. Tall baskets of bright poinsettias added to the attractiveness of the reception room, while potted palms and greenery were used with artistic effect in the dining-room, where the tables were arranged about the walls leaving a broad space in the center for dancing. Red carnations and fernery were used in table adornment and place favors were in the shape of tiny cauldrons, done in red and green, containing blanched nuts and hung on tripods over bright red candles to resemble glowing coals. Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Frankish were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Latimer, Charles Frankish and Leonard J. Frankish. Dinner was announced at 8:30 and was served in six courses. Dancing was enjoyed between courses and at the close of the menu. Those who enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Frankish included Mr. and Mrs. S. The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Vaughan, 314 West H street, was the scene of a pretty wedding Thursday evening when their daughter, Miss Eunice Maurine Vaughn, became the bride of Dwight Nelson. The Rev. Dr. C. F. Seitter, pastor of the First Methodist Church, was the officiant. Just before the ceremony, which took place promptly at 8 o'clock, Miss Darline Nelson of Los Angeles, a sister of the bridegroom, sang D'Hardelot's "Because" and Charles Wakefield Cadman's "At Dawning," and the approach of the bridal party was heralded by the Wedding March from "Lohengrin," with Miss Hazel Vaughan, a sister of the bride, at the piano. The bride was gowned in a creation of white satin, heavily beaded, and wore the conventional veil, caught to the coiffure with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and maidenhair fern. She entered on the arm of her fa-

ATASCADERO

The Community Center kept open house on New Year's Day. In the afternoon and evening, the picture, "When Knighthood Was in Flower," was given, and at 6 o'clock the member of the Loyal Workers' Sunday-school class gave an oyster supper to the Men's Bible Class. The tables were spread in the clubroom upstairs, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion with holly and pepper berries and crepe-paper streamers. Places were laid for 140, and as the first strains of the music furnished by Miss Zella Williams, Mrs. Georgia Caldwell and Miss Ruth Beers, on piano and violins began stealing out into the corridors, the guests came marching in and found their places at the tables by means of place cards. Mrs. George Newton of the Loyal Workers' Class presided, calling upon their teacher, Mrs. James Hanna, to ask the blessing, after which they all sang the Doxology. At the conclusion of the supper, short addresses were made by the pastor, Rev. H. J. Loken, Mr. George Davis, president of the men's class and Dr. John Calhoun, in which appreciation and thanks were expressed, with a handkerchief salute to the ladies, and an invitation given by the men and accepted by the ladies to another oyster supper on next New Year's night.

On New Year's Eve, a watch-night service was held in the auditorium of the Community Center, consisting of a devotional service, vocal music by Mrs. G. E. Carlisle, a motion picture, "Jimmy's Prayer," and a reading by Mrs. H. J. Loken, "In the Desert of Waiting." After a short recess, during which the audience walked about and visited, a seven-reel picture was given, "The Vicar of Wakefield," after which they all joined hands and sang, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," just as the old year passed away and the new year slipped in.

Monday evening the families of Rev. H. J. Loken, G. F. Fort, Dr. Carl Bryant, C. R. Howe and Mrs. Louise Hasty enjoyed a progressive New Year's dinner, in compliment to the Howe family, who are spending the holidays in Atascadero. Each course was eaten at a different house, and little gifts presented at the last one on the list.

Los Angeles Sunday Times FEATURES OF WORLD WIDE INTEREST

JIM JEFFRIES TURNED BOOKWORM--HISTORIAN

Writes Seven Volumes of History and Prophecy While Dempsey Turns Philosopher

BY D. G. FITZPATRICK

Jack Dempsey and Jim Jeffries—the two greatest gladiators the world has ever known—in Los Angeles in new roles.

Jim Jeffries has turned historian and prophet like the hebrew prophets of old, thundering out warnings to the world.

Dempsey has become a cynical philospoher — flinging embittered jests at mankind—turning to the birds and the sunshine for fellowship and inspiration.

Evidently the seeker for the higher thought should hunt up a prize fighter somewhere with whom to commune. Why bother about universities!

We communed first with Jack Dempsey, champion of the world. Back-stage along photograph-lined walls our guide led us. We came to a dark room before which we paused. The guide drew back the curtain.

BEHOLD THE CHAMP

Then the sun came out. For there, throned on high in glittering sable, was the world's champion, Jack Dempsey! We blinked, were dazed, like any one suddenly gazing upon the sun, and only recovered when a huge paw engulfed our own and a deep voice bade us be seated.

Jack was waiting his turn in the vaudeville program.

"These vaudeville engagements make no difference in my way of living," he said. "I live now the same as before. I always live a clean, wholesome life. At the present time I'm obliged to stay up late in order to complete my acts, but I sleep late mornings to make up for it. It seems that I just work, eat and go back to the theater." And, he might have added, receive visitors. For troops of visitors were ushered into his presence, and to these, after a cordial greeting, Jack unfailingly promised, "See you in a minute."

HAS LOST MONEY

"What do you do with your money?" we queried. His face registered an amused tolerance. "I haven't got any money! I don't make any!" he proclaimed. "But how do you spend your money, large or small, that you earn?" we persited. "Oh, I don't have to worry how to spend money," he replied cynically. "Others take care of that!"

Jack was absorbed in sober reflection. We wondered if he had lost any money.

"Yes, I've lost a bit of money," he responded. "It was in oil stocks and bonds—gushers that didn't gush."

Jack refused to name the sum, but his friends say his losses amount to more than $200,000.

GUSHLESS GUSHERS

"Are you going to lose any more?" we asked.

"Not if I know about it!" he explosively replied. The sardonic laugh with which this was accompanied, would have struck terror to any fake promoter, had he been lurking near.

Dempsey grudgingly conceded that besides his home on Western avenue, he had some Los Angeles real estate. "But not very much of that," he guardedly added.

What will he do when he is through with his present profession? "I am interested in anything where I can make my living honestly," was his reply. "It depends on how much money I have when I am through. If I have enough money, I shall go into business here."

DOLLARS HIS ONLY FRIENDS

He made an amazing reply to our question about his friends. "The only friends I've got are my dollars," he declared. But Jack didn't mean that. He simply meant to express the value of money. Hastily he corrected himself: "Sure I've got friends. I've got personal friends, my relatives, my secretary, my manager. But everybody is my friend. The sunshine, the birds and the rain are my friends. They all help to make up the world." Then he branched off into philosophy. "A man has got to help himself. And he must let other men and nature help him, too. This life is what you make it."

Jack has a keen mind and a lashing wit. Evidenced throughout the talk, this was aptly illustrated in his next words. We suddenly shot at him, "When are you going to marry and settle down?"

YEP, HE'S HAPPY

"I'll settle down after I've settled up!" he fired back. "Some day when I find a nice girl who likes me well enough to get married, I'll settle down after I'm through with this game."

Then we asked him the most important question of all. "Are you happy?"

"Yes," he answered positively, "I'm happy and contented."

There now, is Dempsey successful as a man of the world? We believe he is. Like many of us, he has lost a fortune in bad investments. This hard-gained experience will make him more cautious in his dealings of the future. And he has a keen appreciation of many values. Did you note the strong financial tone of his talk? When he starts that business in the future, success should attend him. His natural camaraderie and likableness—his society is sought everywhere—promise a successful future.

BIG JEFF—OIL KING

We went to Jeffries, expecting to find a hard-headed, practical man, and found a man of vision. Have you ever heard of an oil president who didn't like to talk about oil? Such a man is Jeffries!

He is president of an oil company whose office is located on South Olive. In this atmosphere of business he seemed to dwell apart.

His office is placarded with photographs of himself shaking hands with southern dignitaries at the oil fields, and the striking pictures. He is busily engaged with his manifold duties as president of the company.

BORED BY BUSINESS

"Are you successful as a man of the world?" we wanted to know.

"I don't know now how successful I am, but I'll be able to tell if I get that well," he chuckled. "They get big wells down there."

Discussing Los Angeles, he asserted, "You can't beat this city as a business proposition. It is surprising the way Los Angeles is building up. There is no stop to it."

Jeff was nonplussed at the question, "How do you spend your spare time?"

"I don't have any spare time. I put all my energy into business."

He keeps fit by doing work on his farm.

RELIGION? WELL NOW

Throughout the foregoing conversation, Jeffries was distant. Plainly, he was not interested in such topics. Then we mentioned religion. It was like opening a floodgate. Jim became very much alive.

"There's lots of religion, but not enough behind it!" he declared. "We have 600 sects of religions, but no two agree. They ought to get together and agree. The Mohammedans are together, but we're not. There's only one religion, and that's the Golden Rule."

WE'RE ALL ISRAELITES

Jeffries then discussed the subject nearest his heart. It is history. He has been studying history for the last fourteen years. He has read the Bible, Talmud, Archko Volume, Antenicene Fathers (fifteen volumns,) Josephus (Jewish Historian's Books,) Book of Jashel and Book of Enoch.

He thinks that the correct teaching of history will cure all our ills, that it is the salvation of the world. "The public today doesn't know its history," he claimed. "That is why me don't progress faster."

The big man then made a startling statement. "We don't even know where we come from!" he charged. "We are Israelites. We are one of the ten lost tribes of Israel. History says they went North and settled in the northern part of Asia. We have every tribe of Israel represented here. That all can be proved by history."

JUDAH AND ABRAHAM

Then, without any references or notes, Jeff gave a long and lucid explanation. "Judah and Abraham never lived to see an Israelite. They were dead sixty-five years before an Israelite was even born! Abraham was a Hebrew. He had a son called Isaac and Isaac had a son named Jacob. Jacob got the blessing. His name was changed from Jacob to "Israel." He was, then, he first Israelite. This man had twelve sons and one of the sons was Judah. He was the first Jew. That shows Moses wasn't a Jew, and Joseph wasn't a Jew. We are therefore Israelites, but not Jews."

Jim declared he could sit there all day and tell where we were wrong in regard to history.

THE MILENNIUM COMING

"Ten prophecies were made in the Bible and nine have already been fulfilled," he went on. The remaining one will involve a lot of trouble, more trouble than the World War. For the World War, according to Christ's own statements, is only the beginning of trouble. That time of trouble is right before us, the crime wave and world unrest are but symptoms. After that trouble has ended, the milennium will commence.

Asserting that only knowledge of history could safeguard us in the trying times ahead, Jeffries expounded his method of instruction. "I'm more interested in this history proposition than I am in oil!" he gleefully confided. He would impart history through the agency of geographical maps and motion pictures to correspond. He has ten charts that comprehend all biblical history. He would flash those on the screen and have a pointer to trace history's course. In conjunction with that, there would be motion pictures of the Bible. This biblical history Jeffries would make tasty by weaving some fiction into it.

TIRED OF PREACHING

"Under the present system we are living, things cannot grow better, they must inevitably grow

The heroine of exciting adventures on a Colorado cattle range. She has lately become editor of the Long Beach Telegram, founded by her father.

THE FIGHTING GIRL EDITOR

Looked Down the Muzzle of Bad Man's Gun

Rammed Bandit's Auto on Precipice Edge

Takes Full Charge of Long Beach Paper

BY HARRY BOWLING

It should be a far cry from Miss Roberts, college graduate, orator, teagher, live wire in political campaigns, the new managing editor of the Long Beach Telegram, to Belle McCord, terror of bad men, rancher, rider, fighter, the girl who single-handed cleaned up the worst nest of cattle-rustlers in the State of Colorado.

Yet is took both Miss Roberts of Iowa, and Belle McCord of Colorado to complete Miss Belle McCord Roberts of California. The fusion formed the first woman managing editor of the South West.

Belle Roberts started life with an A. M. degree, a record as a good critic of English composition, a stenographic experience that had paid her course through college, a strong will and a rather flmsy constitution.

Her first effort was to open a school of vocational oratory. Unlike most first atempts, it proved a success from the start. While she was teaching others how to talk she herself was learning how to meet all sorts of people.

PEDDLERS AND PREACHERS

Her clientele varied from a high-church rector, who was too scholarly to hold a congregation, to a small peddler who was too unlettered to put up a convincing line of talk.

Miss Roberts took the excess scholarship out of the parson and the superfluous street manners out of the peddler and transferred them from the one to the other. Since then the rector preaches to a full church and the peddler in a year more than doubled his sales.

She might have continued in this work to the present time had not her health broken down under the long hours and the confinement. Her doctor ordered her the open life of the West for at least two years to build up her constitution.

CAREER OF BELLE McCORD

From this started the career of Belle McCord.

Thus she bought the now famous "McCord Ranch" near Beulah, Colo., bought it because she could get it for a song, not knowing that certain limitations were attached to her purchase.

She had not ben long in Beulah, however, before she discovered the fly in the ointment. The neighborhood was infested with a gang of cattle-rustlers who ran a kind of closed shop in outlawry. At night they would drive off the calves and heifers from the ranges to a cave in the hills where they would butcher them and sell the meat through confederates.

TOUGH OUTLOOK

This was a tough outlook for a city girl who had come out west for her health. But Belle McCord buckled grimly down to the job.

She soon discovered that her hired help was in cahoots with the cattle thieves and that her foreman was an ex-convict, a ticket-of leave man. When trouble developed and her stock failed to tally correctly, she resolved to fire all her help and replace them with reliable Americans. She was warned the cattle thieves would not stand for this innovation and that if she attempted it they would surely "get her."

Nevertheless she called her foreman and served notice on him to quit. Ex-convict Pete, who had

'ROUND ABOUT LOS ANGELES

Having been foiled in our attempt to locate the city's last lamp post, let us concentrate now on cigar-store Indians and barber poles of the older vintage. What became of them?

How wany know that we have a Civil War history? Down at the harbor there is an Army warehouse which dates back to the time when a small body of troops was keeping the Southwest safe for the Union.

The city's loneliest house is at 626¼ Lebanon street, which is the shortest thoroughfare uptown and also the narrowest. Across the street from it at an address which also runs in fourths some thrifty soul raises chickens within a stone's cast of the roaring Seventh-street traffic.

A dealer in antiques reports a brisk demand for the old iron mantelpieces, the ones that were made to look like marble. He is taking them out of many of the older buildings of the city for resale to the interested. The next thing we know some of our best people will be reverting to the red underwear of the Lincoln J. Carter days.

Amazing Thoroughness With Which Store Clerks Are Trained for After-Chirstmas Sales

BY KATHERINE LIPKE

The battle of the Christmas buyers is over.

The charge of the after-Christmas bargain hunters is in full fury.

From the standpoint of the big stores it is, in fact, very much like a battle . . . with strategy, tactics and casualties.

It would astonish the buyers of Christmas sales and the ladies who are, right now, poking over the "January sales" bargains to know how intensive have been the preparations for this season of buying.

To know how assiduously they will go over the casualties and the failures.

To know how carefully, for instance, the stores will go into the reason for the failure of the children of Los Angeles this season to ask Santa Claus for hobby horses. They all wanted toy autos.

To know how carefully the girls on the other side of the counter have been trained to size them up and sell them goods.

They have been prepared for this onslaught just as the soldiers were trained to go "over the top."

It is interesting to know that in the picking of salesgirls for the toy department, education and intelligence are not as great factors as mother love and the child instinct. Put an old maid school-

HOW CALVE SUFFERED TO SUCCEED

Carried Buckets of Coal to Get Money for Singing Lessons; Never Liked "Carmen" Although It Was Her Greatest Triumph

BY ELZA B. SCHALLERT

Vivid greens and reds and purples brilliantly embroidered on an ivory mantilla sensuously entwining a body and flung daringly and carelessly over a bare neck and arm—a flaming, full-blown rose coquettishly stuck in raven hair, Emma Calve, the Calve that the musical world will probably always remember—as Carmen!

The Calve off stage suggests by numerous facial expressions and varied gestures, smiles, side glances and a very alive manner of speaking, the spirit that made the role of the lawless gypsy girl one of the memorable impressions in operatic history. At least, that is how she impressed me the night I talked with her in the long salon of a French mansion in the city. She wore no rose in her hair, no jade comb. The only thing that was reminiscent of Carmen was a soft tangerine-toned mantilla which she held in her lap and continually picked up and fingered during the conversation.

Calve

As she is today.

It seems to be a trick of fate that many singers and actors gain fame in a role that they personally do not care for. Carmen, for instance, is not Mme. Calve's favorite role of the many that she sang during her twelve years at the Metropolitan, and in Europe. "Non, non!" she insisted in French, and with the aid of interpreters, and in her own charming English, of which she assures you she only knows fifty words, "Carmen ees not my favoreet. I luff Bizet's musick, but Carmen, non! She have only two good quality. She trueful and brav'. I mak' great sooksees in ze role so always I haff sing her. But other roles I luff bettair—Marguerite, Ophelia, Juliet, Elsa, Santuzza."

Calve has said a permanent good-by to the glamour of the operatic stage. She is now doing recital work. Her present concert tour has brought her to Los Angeles, this being her first visit to this country in almost seven years.

The procession of years has in no way diminished the ambition, the fire, the enthusiasm of Calve. Her viewpoint still remains resilient and youthful. "My voice," she said with great assurance, "ees steel young and beautiful. When she ees no more, zen I no longer sing. I have ze sense to know whan to stop." And then meditatively:

WHEN YOUTH DEPARTS

"Youth and beauty—ah—zhey go. Zhey go. But art—art—she stay foraiver. Zat is why when le bon Dieu has geeven a beeg or leetle beet of beautiful voice," and she illustrated her point by touching the tip of her finger, "I say to my pupils, work, work, study, study to make ze voice beautiful. A FORGOTTEN RACE

New Topanga Road Goes Through a Burying [illegible] of the Ancient Playanos Indians

BY SYL MacDOWELD

AT THE mouth of Topanga Canyon a concrete mixer is clanking a requiem to a forgotten race. For there concrete slabs of California's scenic coast highway have built a mausoleum that seals the dust of an ancient Indian village. The hallowed soil of a Playanos burial ground is now shadowed by a crossroads grocery store; and Mexican laborers unknowingly shovel earth that mayhaps contains the powdered bones of an aboriginal ancestor. The Sky Father smiles. His children are but ants—some red, others white and black.

A lodge of the Playanos, or Beach People, once stood on the delta that skirts the seashore. Although thousands of motorists and picnickers visit this spot, five miles north of Santa Monica, few know that remnants of an extinct race were discovered there. State highway engineers since have abandoned the old road that clings to the slope of the hills. The new route parallels the shore and pierces the graveyard. But the Playanos no longer creep the hillsides with three-feathered war arrows for invaders. The last of their race has gone to a happier lodge where the waves of Time beat on the shore of Eternity.

PLOWING UP HISTORY

In the fragmentary documents that hold testimony of a pre-Spanish civilization in California, no record is made of an Indian settlement at Topanga. It remained for "Dad" Coolbaugh in May, 1910, to bare with a walking plow another link in the scant knowledge that ethnologists have gained of the early California tribes.

Coolbaugh was a former prospector who settled on Topango delta, claiming right to it under public domain. It was his contention that Uncle [illegible] the adjacent [illegible] eighties, had not [illegible] delta; that it had [illegible] formed from [illegible] Topanga Creek [illegible]

At Topanga, where the new coast highway pierces the site of the ancient Playano village and seals the rifled tomb of its aboriginal population.

ABORIGINAL HOOCH

An intoxicating liquor known as mani and used exclusively in religious rites, was made from crushed roots of the toloache or jimson weed. Asphaltum pitch, cast up on the beach from submarine oil seepings was made use of in calking boats and also combined with ocher and vegetable colors to make paint.

In their crude way, the ancient red men operated Turkish baths for night-outers. The device was known as a temescal. A canyon, so named, near Topanga, is believed to be a site of one of these early institutions for playanos roisterers.

The temescal was a pit in the earth. A fire was built therein and when the soil was sufficiently heated, the embers withdrawn and the Indian dropped in and covered with a robe. There he steamed until the devils of illness wilted and fled.

Steam baths were maintained in childbirth. Mother and infant were placed on a couch of grass above hot rocks. The moisture from the foliage created an aromatic vapor which was believed to fortify both of them against future illness.

EXPERT IN JINX

Radio to the aborigines would arouse no more wonder than the professed powers of their shaman. A radio concert is no stranger magic than was the "hymn of hate" sung by assembled medicine men a long time ago to destroy a white woman who had gained land grants which included an ancient village site. For the magic song was effective sorcery, according to chronicles by Hugo Reid, an early San Gabriel settler. The woman, although miles distant, expired in agony.

It would ill become us this modern day to criticize the slack marriage customs of early times. Lessons can be learned of the untutored savage who dashed off his love notes in letters of sand. When husbands apprehended a paramour, they rightaway grabbed the paramour's wife and considered it a fair swap. Widows proposed. But unlike the ungallant brave of the modern beach, it was the part of chivalry to accept them. Although wives were beaten, corporal punishment for children was unknown. Fathers often deserted their families and remarried, unhampered by a Woolwine or a Mann. The children belonged to the wife. Deserted wives and jilted sweethearts had a spiteful custom of committing suicide.

THE ANT ORDEAL

When youths and maidens became adults, they were initiated into the knowledge possessed by their elders. These ceremonies often lasted for days. A part of the boys' ceremony was known as the ant ordeal. The naked bodies of the candidates were covered with swarms of red ants. After the lesson of fortitude was properly absorbed, the ants were removed by lashing the boys with nettles.

Today, only the Indians brought into the Missions exist in any numbers. The old men of the tribes are lapsing into senility or dying. The young are modernized and know little of their forefathers. Many villages once sent their smoke to the southern skies. But the council fires are cold. Among the Spanish names of towns and localities, there are yet today mingled a few of Indian origin. Among them is Yucaipa (Yukaipa) Azusa (Asuksa) and Cucamonga (Kukamonat.) But the Playanos have gone and a highway pavement is their headstone.

Drama Ranges Full Gamut of Human Emotion

Adolph Klauber, noted for the high caliber of his presentations, will offer the dramatic novelty of the season, Eugene O'Neill's startling drama, "The Emperor Jones," with the great actor, Charles S. Gilpin as the Emperor, at the Mason Operahouse for one week beginning Monday night, January 15.

"The Emperor Jones" is a new style of play written along original lines, and brings to the theater a novel method of dramatic construction which probably will be used as a precedent by authors of the future. It ran for an entire season at the Princess Theater, New York, and also had extended runs in Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago. The work of Mr. Gilpin in the leading role made him famous after the first performance of the play in New York.

The play reveals the awfulness of a conscience weighted with sinful deeds, the Emperor passes through every mental and bodily terror that can be imagined, and it is reported that this new star in the theatrical firmament runs the whole gamut of human emotions, until it seems to the spectator that realism and not acting is before him on the stage. Mr. Gilpin is acclaimed by America's leading critics as a great actor, and is ranked by the Drama League as one of the ten greatest actors in the world.

GIRL EDITOR'S EXPERIENCES

the reputation of being the baddest bad man in the bunch refused—putting up a plausible excuse. He had planted an acreage on the McCord Ranch to wheat and declared he must have his price for that wheat before leaving. Belle asked him at how much he valued it and he assessed it at a $1000.

THE BADDEST MAN

"Very well," she replied. "You deliver me that wheat, threshed and in the bin and I will pay you a $1000 for it. But mind you," she added." I am not paying you this for the grain—I am doing it to get you out of the country as a starter for a general clean-up."

After that her life was in danger. The foreman came daily for his money, always in a more belligerent mood, and Miss McCord had always the same reply, "You will get your pay when the grain is in the bin."

The deal in wheat reached a climax when one day while she was riding the range the ex-convict wheeled his broncho alongside her and pointing a gun at her demanded a check then and there for the $1000.

SQUINTED DOWN THE MUZZLE

Belle never flinched. Squinting into the muzzle of an ugly Colt's she argued the case with the ex-convict. She pointed out to him that he could shoot her if he wished to, but he would never get his money till the wheat was in the bin. She impressed on him that she was well-known in the State of Colorado and if he shot her every Sheriff's posse in the county would hunt him down and there wasn't a jury in the State but would see him hang on the highest gallows in the West.

She kept at him till he began to weaken. Finally she wound up with the remark that she knew he was a ticket-of-leave man and that he had never reported and if she had any more trouble with him she would have him behind the bars again so quick it would make his head swim.

Bad man Pete didn't shoot, that time. He was cowed by a force he had never before encountered. Next day he rode off across the river and was never again seen in the State of Colorado. And Miss McCord threshed the wheat in his stead.

THRILLING ESCAPE

After this phenomenal routing of their best "bad man," the gang conspired against the life of his woman whom they had already begun to fear. The big attempt was pulled off about dusk on a narrow mountain road.

Miss McCord was returning to her ranch driving a high-powered Oakland one of the old type in which the hood in front was brought to a narrow edge. This freak design probably saved the life of the unprotected girl on that lonely mountain road in Colorado.

As she rounded a curve a small Ford pulled up right across the road in front of her. On the outer edge of the grade was a steep precipice so that to pass was impossible.

As soon as her machine came to a stand-still, in the dusk Belle saw to Mexicans with guns creping stealthily along the running board of the Ford, while another on his stomach was worming his way over the hood.

HER ONE CHANCE

She was unarmed. She knew they meant business. She had only a few seconds in which to act.

She acted. She threw her gear into high and stepped on it. It was death if one wheel went over the edge of the precipice. The big Oakland lunged forward and caught with its blunt nose the little Ford amidships tossed it in the air and from a whirl of dust and splintered running gears the big Oakland emerged unscathed and went roaring down the pass.

Just what happened to those scattered Mexicans Miss McCord never exactly found out. But four bullet holes in the Oakland testified, that one or two of them had shot after her flying car and beyond a doubt one of them brought back to the cattle thieves some account of what had happened to them.

LICKED THE GANG

For from that time they began to lose their aggressiveness. Either purposely or through some unfounded rumor a report also was spread abroad that Belle McCord was the finest shot in the West, that she could bring down a bird on the wing with a Smith & Wesson. As a matter of fact she had never used a revolver in her life—but the story had a very desirable effect.

One by one the members of the cattle-rustling gang started to seek new fields for their activities. The McCord ranch was not molested again. Before she left Colorado, Belle turned loose a bunch of calves to pasture, unbranded calves, protected by the simple notice. "This stock belongs to the McCord Ranch." Those calves when they had grown to maturity were marketed by their lawful owners.

THE LADY EDITOR

When you first enter the private office of the managing editor of Long Beach's famous daily, and meet Miss Roberts cultured, smiling, affable and listen to her calm clear voice and note the quiet orderliness that reigns in her sanctum, you may find it hard to connect her with the Wild West heroine who drove th bad men out of Colorado.

But after you have spoken to her awhile and sensed the repressed energy underneath that pleasant exterior and the nervous force behind the gracious smile, you wonder no longer. You understand.

"HEARTS ESTRANGED" GIVEN BY STUDENTS

The Wallis School of Dramatic Art presented "Hearts Estranged," a three-act emotional play, Friday evening at the Dedishawn Theater. The production was one of the best of the year by these students. The six leading characters in the play were taken by advanced pupils finishing the course. They were Mildred Hill, Marie Anderson, Florence Anderson, K. W. Cook, Oliver Cornell and Herbert Lehman.

Pupils of the children's department have just completed a tour of benefit entertainments, giving programs for the Holmes Finding Society, the Compton Sanitarium, Little Sisters of the Poor and the Los Angeles Orphans' Asylum.

Calve is a woman who has fulfilled at least one of her life ambitions. She has a living symbol and proof thereof. It is her home in France, the Chateau of Cabrieres. There she remains each summer resting, studying, and teaching a group of talented young women from all over the world, Americans included, who stay with her in the medieval castle during their term of instruction.

HER GIRLISH DREAM

The chateau is a monument to the ideal that she cherished when she was a little girl. It is situated in Southern France, close to her birthplace. One day she and some of her companions of the convent which she attended, walked along the roadway and gazed longingly and dreamily at a wonderful, big castle on a hill, and Calve said: "Some day, I am going to own that chateau and live in it." Of course, the statement was met with little enthusiasm from her playmates, who discredited even the barest possibility of the prophecy's coming true, because they declared the castle could never be for sale. However, it is the home of Calve today.

Mme. Calve's rise to fame was attended by privations, struggles and disappointments. Doing different kinds of menial labor like hauling many heavy buckets of coal up several flights of stairs several times a day, to earn a few extra sous, and walking from Montmartre half way across Paris for her daily singing lesson, often through the rain and snow in clammy, water-soaked shoes, were a few of the physical discomforts she suffered during her early years of study. And after she made her debut, she was brave enough to stand the humiliation of being hissed off several stages in different cities, and each time she retire, somewhat crushed, to find a new teacher, and work harder and more earnestly than ever.

LIVED WITH GYPSIES

Her first real success came in Paris at the Opera Comique in the role as Carmen. She seemed destined for this role, despite her lack of love for the Bizet heroine. Now, a singer named Galli-Marie had created the part of Carmen some years previous and Paris was still worshiping at her feet when Calve appeared on the scene.

But when she made her dashing entrance on the stage of the Opera Comique, there was excitement in her audience, for here was a new Carmen. For one thing, she introduced for the first time the fringed shawl, or mantilla, instead of the conventional bolero and short skirt. And she danced the dance of the Gypsies.

She had broken away so completely from the traditional Carmen that Paris should either have acclaimed or boohed her. Of course, she was acclaimed. She had au[illegible] for her new and really artistic interpretation of the gay, irresponsible cigarette girl, because she had studied and lived with a band of Gypsies in Spain, when she was a very little girl. Fascinated by their brightly hued rags, their throbbing music and spirited, half-wild dances, she learned from them exactly how a Gypsy acts, dances and looks. The result of her appearance as Carmen literally swept Paris off its feet and Emma Calve was hailed as a new prima donna—a new Carmen.

A COLD RECEPTION

Her next and greatest triumph came in America at the Metropolitan. Again as the fateful Carmen. On the opening night, her debut in New York, she sang Santuzza in "Cavalleria Rusticana." The opera was received coldly and the next night she was ordered to sing Carmen. She did! And the pages of operatic history have made record of it. James Gibbons Huneker in his Steeplejack, refers to Calve's brilliant and sensational success: "What a night was that first Carmen of hers! And that unforgettable cast, Jean de Reszke, Melba, Plancon. Calve chucked traditions to the winds, also her lingerie. Some of the elder critics are still blushing."

Emma Calve is in every sense a dutiful, loyal daughter of France, even though she loves America and says this is her country by adoption. Going to Cabrieres each year is not the only proof of her love for country. An institution near her home, sustained by her, and taking care of and providing interesting work for seventy soldiers who were blinded during the war, is silent testimony of one of the many forms of philanthropic work in which she is engaged. Instructors have taught these boys all sorts of handicraft, and they are all kept busy and happy weaving, sewing, making furniture, etc.

WIVES FOR BLIND BOYS

Several of the boys after regaining their health and spirits became a bit unhappy at the institution and told Madame that they were desirous of marrying. This might have presented a delicate problem to a woman of lesser resourcefulness than Calve, because it naturally was up to her to find wives for these blind boys. But she promptly visited an orphanage which is just across the street from the institution, and presented her case to the Mother Superior, who immediately was sympathetic and suggested several girls of the orphanage as prospective brides.

When Mme. Calve explained the situation to the girls, they were all full of romance and expectancy, and the first one to respond to the call, so Madame says, was distinctly homely. She asked if she might pick out her future husband. Madame has apparently a fast sense of bargaining, so she willingly consented.

"Naturalee, she pick out ze handsomest boy! Of course, ze boy ask me how she look and I say '[illegible] she is beautiful. She has [illegible] hair but I say she ees blonde because he lik blondes. Her eyes are brown, but I say she haff blue because he want them so.'"

THE HOMELY LITTLE ORPHAN

The handsome blind boy and the homely little orphan girl were married and last year when Madame returned to her chateau, she received word calling her to the cottage where the young couple lived. A baby girl had been born to the mother. She was very happy. But before Madame left, the girl confessed the fearful dread that was taking possession of her. Supposing one of the girls in the village should tell her husband some time, after he had grown to love her so deeply, that she was not beautiful, that she was not blonde, that she had not blue eyes!

Calve hesitated for a second in telling this anecdote — her eyes seemed a bit misty—she was making the motions of a mother tenderly caressing her babe—and then she finished:

"I say to her—my dear leetle woman—when dees time come, eef avair it do—go take your little b-by and poot her in her papa's arms. Everything will be all right, then."

CHAMP TURNS BOOKWORM

worse," saif Jim. "People are tired of preaching, they want some real facts. There is too much fiction in the world. The people are full of it."

Jeffries's pet project is a sequel to the "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." "The Four Horsemen dealt with what has been fulfilled," he explained. "This picture will unfold what is to come. The scenario is already written."

From the above, one might judge that Jim is a visionary, a dreamer. So he is, in a measure, but he means to make his dreams come true. We were shown a letter from Will Hays in which he expressed a lively interest in the matter and promised to investigate its possibilities fully. A. C. Patten, Hay's representative, is now consulting with Jeffries regarding the proposed film, and its casting is not unlikely.

FIGHTER AND BOOKWORM

Yet Jeffries, dynamo that he is, has not been content with the mentioned plans and accomplishments. Collaborating with A. F. Futterer, he has written seven condensed volumes of history, entitled, "Truth is Stronger Tran Fiction." A first edition of 1000 copies has recently been printed. Jeffries turned bookworm and labored over this writing for years, working far into the night, after he had done his work of the day. The toil was exhausting, but Jeff's energy was inexhaustible, and the task was completed.

To what end is Jim thus bending all his strength? He wants the world to learn history, and he is willing to be the torch-bearer, if the people will hearken. By his advanced methods, the appeal to the visual sense, he hopes to enchain interest. He opines that once the masses are awakened by knowledge of history, all ills will melt away. Jeffries wants to do good in the world, and the history crusade is the outlet of his efforts.

SOLD HIS LIVESTOCK

Jim took us to his Burbank ranch in his car. In his luxuriously appointed home we engaged in close conversation for an hour. Subject: History. He displayed an amazing grasp of the subject; his mind is steeped with every phase of it, particularly the prophetic and the bizarre.

Jim has sold his livestock. The tending of cows and the study of history do not go well together. He raises potatoes, alfalfa and sweet corn on his 103-acre tract. Peaches, pears, apples, prunes and pomegranates are among his forty different kinds of fruit trees. He has barns, silos and pumping plants. Six horses are the only animals besides Sporty, a French poodle, and Teddy, a fox terrier.

On this quiet habitation Jeffries lives with his wife, his daughter and history.

VIOLINIST IS MASTER OF ALL MOODS

Beauties of Instrument Are Unlimited When Real Artist Handles Bow

"If we would all play first violin, we could get no orchestra together," said the great romantic composer Schumann. In every orchestra we hear the brilliance of the first violins, and yet how few of us listen to the inner voice of the plaintive counterpoint or soft chords of the second violin. There must always be the lesser lights as well as the glare of stronger incandescence. In any work of art how unsatisfactory are the bright colors of a central figure if unaccompanied by the soft hues of a delicate background. There is an old saying that "The leader of the orchestra is always the man who has played the second fiddle," and this adage goes even much farther than fiddling!

The violin is the soul of the orchestra. One might equally well say that it is the backbone of the orchestra. Although it is limited in range, it possesses a tone of unalloyed sweetness, and at the same time it is capable of dazzling pyrotechnical display. As a solo instrument in the hands of a skillful player it moves the listener from laughter to tears. It touches every mood from abandoned joy to the deepest pathos.

But to sway the hearts of a large audience, the player must spend the best years of his life with a violin in his hands. There must be countless hours spent in gaining bow and finger control, in practicing scales and arpeggio, double stopping, shifting, harmonics, virtuosi etudes, and finally the concert repertoire.

Fortunately, however, for the student and lover of good melody, a few months of diligence spent with the violin, will enable him to play simple tunes with musicianship and intelligence. One thing that is particularly fine, but insufficiently commented upon, is the wonderful gain in music appreciation. There is nothing that gives one so keen an insight into music as trying to create music!

There are countless numbers of violin teachers in every great city. Some are most wonderful, some are ordinarily good, and some are a regrettable disgrace to the art of music. It behooves the student to spend much time and thought in the selection of a teacher.

Among the best teachers of this city, to mention but half a dozen, are Robert Martin Staples, Gregor Cherniavsky, Charles Pemberton, Sol Cohen, Leon Goldwasser and Calmon Lubovisky. Of course, these teachers appeal to the violinist of considerable ability, and there are many, many really excellent teachers skilled in guiding the tiny fingers of the little beginner as well. Violin playing is so big an art, and so popular with the music-loving populace, that many teachers are needed to fill the demand. Today a majority of people are studying some musical instrument during their lifetime, and the violin is scarcely second to the piano in popularity.

TRAINING THE SHOP GIRLS

teacher in the department and both she and the department will collapse under the strain. But a half grown girl with mother love and a child heart will make a huge success.

And the clothes! What a lot of training the salespeople get in the matter of clothes. When you go to buy a tweed suit, if the woman who waits on you is convinced that you should wear something soft and furry, she is planning, as she seats you, just how she can shift you from your tweed complex to the type of suit you should wear. Sometimes she does it so gracefully that you depart with her choice. Sometimes she does it so tactlessly that you depart with your nose in the air never to return.

FAT GIRLS AND DROOPY HATS

It is all a matter of tact. And that is what makes the problem of choosing salespeople so difficult. Those who are experienced fit the woman and the dress together and endeavor to sell her the thing which is the most becoming. According to the women in charge of employment, it is not only philanthropy but good business to keep a woman from buying something unbecoming. Showing a stout woman a large hat with a droopy brim is considered a crime in salesmanship.

The successful sales person of today could give lessons in psychology to the professors themselves.

When a woman comes in with a friend, this girl must be able to judge which of the two is the stronger mentally, and is to do the choosing. If the customer is to be shaped by her friend's opinion, then it is the duty of the girl to direct her attention to the friend without ignoring the woman who eventually will do the buying. Easy? Just you try it!

"I WEAR IT MYSELF"

Another thing that the saleswoman has to "psycho" on is whether she can use herself as an illustration in the selling of goods. A great many women resent most fearfully the thought that the woman on the other side of the counter may be wearing the article which she wishes for herself. To that woman the sales girl cannot make a sale by stating "You'll find that very satisfactory, I wear it myself!"

But there is the other type so common in California. The small town woman from the middle States is rather timid and indecisive in the big department stores in Los Angeles. A little chatty knowledge over the counter is most welcome to her. She has always gotten clubby with the girls in the stores in Indiana or Iowa, or Missouri, whichever it is. You know how they do — "You'll find that ribbon won't fade, Mrs. Atkins. My sister Nellie used some just like it on little Annie's bonnet, an' it didn't fade though the baby chewed it somethin' awful. It's real durable."

THE GUSHY GIRLS

Out here it is very new and strange, and a little intimate detail about some one else's experience with the article she is planning to buy is like a breath from home. But of course the saleswoman must be able to judge. So the next time you go into a store and are rather inclined to resent the stare of the woman behind the counter or in the ready-to-wear section, remember that she is just wondering how to appeal to you.

If you show any glimmerings of intelligence, she is quite apt to follow the mental line of attack. But if you gush up to her with lots of little nothings flying behind you and with the glow of rouge upon your cheek—well, then there is a perfect battery of flattery ready for you about your clothes—your wealth—and all the attributes you are weakest about.

RICH BUT SHABBY

A customer cannot be judged from his clothes. Some of the most smartly-dressed people buy a 50-cent article while a shabby little person with an apologetic manner will practically buy out the store. A story is told of a man who come into Marshal-Fields store in Chicago. He was shabby, dirty and unshaven. He hesitantly walked up to the clock department but the older clerks just couldn't be annoyed by waiting on him.

However, there was a new salesgirl in the department. She hadn't been there long enough to know what frightfully bad form it was to show attention to anyone so dirty and shabby. And she started in showing him clocks. He was just the type who got up at 5 a.m. so all the alarm clocks in the house were displayed before him. His interest seemed directed, however, toward several beautiful hall clocks in the corner and at last he asked her to show them to him.

The result was that he bought six. It was the largest single sale ever made in the store. This man so unshaven and shabby was a New York capitalist who had been on a fishing trip in the Michigan woods. He had come to the store in his three-weeks growth and old clothes. The clocks were purchased as gifts to six companies of which he was a director.

CARESS THE GOODS

Another bit of psychology which enters into salesmanship is the handling of goods. Each saleswoman is taught to handle the article she is displaying as if it were very valuable, whether it is or not. If she carefully lifts a blouse from a drawer, gently lays it down and caressingly displays its good points — doesn't it just make you wild to have it? It seems so precious and valuable! That is part of the game.

And won't the husbands be surprised. Salespeople say that the women are the guardians of the family pocketbook. They are the careful buyers. Thoughtful of price, they figure long and loud before buying.

MEN IN A HURRY

And the men? . . . They dislike to be in a department store any way. They hate to take time to shop. They're in a hurry! They ask for a certain definite thing, want to know if the material is satisfactory and that is all. But the women want yards of virtues with each yard of goods. They like to be told that it is the latest thing. Just a little imported bit! It simply can't be kept in stock! Everyone wants it! And all that sort of slush.

Oh, the salespeople have a great list of little tricks. All of them are good if applied cleverly. When a woman comes up to the counter briskly and asks for a certain thing in a clear businesslike voice there is great rejoicing. There is no mental strain necessary for the saleswoman to realize that this woman knows just what she wants, and she sees that she gets it. This woman is the joy of the department store and is cataloged as such. For they do have catalogs, these department stores. The greatest pest of all is the woman who doesn't know what she wants and won't be told! Have you met her?

SCRAPPING FRIEND HUSBAND

Next to receive the blue pencil is the woman who comes in with a friend, or with friend husband. Two people must be satisfied. Very likely one of them will pick out one thing and the other will be bound to choose another. A new saleswoman will let them haggle until they go elsewhere to buy. But the experienced woman will bring out a third article upon which oftentimes they agree. Not so far from a Presidential nomination, is it?

Then there is the woman who daudles. She intends to buy, but everything looks so pretty, and it is such a nice day, and she has the time, and—well anyway she daudles. The woman behind the counter has her own little remedy for that. A quick action on her part does wonders. It jars the customer up. Or, if this fails, she commences to remove the articles from the counter. And, as a last resort, she removes the article which is being considered.

SPEEDING 'EM UP

It actually sounds rude, doesn't it? But the girl has to allow herself just so much time for each sale. And if after she has given of her best she gets no response, then she is apt to be a little abrupt. Some customers need nothing but the actual service, I was told. Some have to be coaxed, some flattered, and many times there is need of a little bullying to make the sale. It all depends on the salesperson, how cleverly or tactlessly this is done.

The price? There again psychology has to play a part! During the war we all yelled lustily about the high prices! But when the stores reduced their goods, everyone was suspicious. There must be something wrong with this thing or that—because the price was too low. . . . And we think we are consistent!

A woman admired a belt in one of our stores not long ago, and had decided to take it. She was told that the price was $25. A mere trifle to her apparently. Just then the salesgirl discovered that the belt was priced $2.50, and that she had made a mistake. There was no sale! The customer refused to even consider anything so ridiculously cheap.

THE SCORNED IVORY CUTTERS

The disposal of goods represents any amount of cleverness and planning. It's rather a gamble, this deciding for the public just what it is to want for the coming year. Sometimes the judgment is faulty and articles are stranded. Then come the schemes! Recently a store bought a huge supply of small ivory paper cutters. The public refused to get enthused about them. So they remained unsold until some bright mind conceived the idea of tying them to valentine cards and raising the price of the cards. Did they go? Did they? Well rather!

Castile soap is often a slippery proposition. One store found that they were loaded up with a supply of soap. No one wanted it because it was so hard. The next week the store advertised "a limited supply of EXTRA HARD Castile soap—only two bars to one customer." People thronged to avail themselves of the unusual opportunity. As they bought the soap, the clerk hit it against the counter just to show them how beautifully hard it was . . . All of these are called legitimate aids to selling.

PINK FLOOR WALKERS

There is a great deal in the personality, the size and type of the sales person, too. A floor walker absolutely must not bloom forth with a pink carnation in his buttonhole. Psychology again! No customer, I was told, would care to ask anything of one so festively attired. He would look just a sweet young thing who couldn't possibly give out any actual information.

The choosing of salespeople, and the department where they shall work is most important. That cute little, quick little girl who sold you hairpins in the notion department the other day wasn't there by accident. Oh, no! She was placed there because she was just exactly the right type to sell notions. The girl in the hosiery department must have beautiful hands. And the ready-to-wear section calls for dignity. In that department the saleswoman must be large, impressive, deliberate. In the veilings it is different. Poor girl, she has to continually lean across the counter to fit veils, and so a tall willowy type is demanded.

QUEER QUESTIONS

One of our stores chooses its workers by psychological tests, which is the newest, most efficient way of doing it. I saw the test. Perhaps I could have passed it—but I didn't ask to try. I couldn't take the risk of the blow to my pride. The questions asked are certainly brain bouncers. "Is it true that courtesy died with the discovery of America?" One journalistic friend answered it by saying that "It didn't die, but it's been sickly ever since."

Here's another which will catch a number of you. "Paul Revere led the American colonists at the Battle of Bunker Hill." Is this false or true? Not so good! Guess again! "Chicago is located on Lake Superior." There is where some of you native sons and daughters will get into trouble. There are lots of them, these little phrases which require a nimble brain in good running order for their answer.

THE ELEVATOR MEN

For the elevator men there is one sort of test. For the rest of the store another. In this way the store can sort out those who would be a bit of sand in the machinery of the whole business. Oh, there is nothing haphazard about the business of runnnig a department store. Each thing is figured down to the last fraction. A psychological aspect to this and a psychological aspect to that creates harmonw to the whole.

And how carefully they are studied—these customers who demand a paper of pins or an oriental rug—a handkerchief or a floor lamp. "The customers really run the stores," one employment manager told me in showing just why it was that all the scheming and planning was necessary. So it is quite proper this business of "psyching" around. When next you go shopping — the January sales are on now—don't let the saleswoman do it all. Get out your best psychic quality and tackle her. "Coue" her if necessary. Declare to her inner clockwork, "You have the thing I wish, and you want to show it to me!" Sending it through your brain five times running will give you any amount of confidence even if it doesn't reach her.

Mother's Part in Love Rivalry Story's Theme

Mother love is one of the most notable of human sentiments. But can mother love, which is selfish to the point of jealousy guarding a son from the affection of any other woman, even a childhood sweetheart, work great harm?

Mary Larner faced the question fearlessly when she wrote "Forsaking All Others." With vividly drawn characterizations and mastery of situation, she showed in a story published in Collier's Weekly and judged one of the best short stories of the year, how mother love proved a boomerang.

Also the author showed the effect of the thing not only upon her own life, but upon the lives of others. The poignancy of the pathos and romance in the story touch deeply. Woven into the plot is the contest between a youthful girl of the flapper type and a married woman of the world, both seeking the love of the same man.

"It is my belief that the story treats one of the biggest questions that may arise in the life of any family," said Emile Chautard, the director, when he was assigned to making the story into a Universal motion picture.

"The situation of the mother as a 'rival' to all her son's sweethearts is a striking one, and should carry a strong dramatic punch," the noted Frenchman said.

Chautard put his heart and soul into the task, it is declared, and with Colleen Moore and Cullen Landis playing the leading roles, and with a supporting cast including June Elvidge, May Wallace, David Torrence and Sam de Grasse, he has done well, in the opinion of his co-workers, who previewed the picture at Universal City.

"Forsaking All Others" will have its Los Angeles premiere showing at Tally's during the coming week, starting today.

PUTTING IT GENTLY

While President Roosevelt was on a certain ranch the men caught a horse thief and hung him. They soon discovered they had made a mistake and executed the wrong man.

The most diplomatic among the ranchers was selected to take the body home and break the news gently to the widow. The cowboy asked the widow, "Are you the wife of ——?" She answered, "Yes."

"Well," said the cowboy, "you are mistaken. You are his widow; I have his body in the wagon. You need not feel bad about it because we hung him thinking he was a horse thief. We soon found out he was innocent. The joke is on us."—Columbus Dispatch.

HOW CALVE WON SUCCESS

work, study, study more to keep ze voice beautiful. Zen work more, more to become great arteest. Maybe you become—maybe not. But eef you do, zen some day youth and beauty ze go from you—but eef yo know how to use ze voice, you steel be great arteest."

Calve is a woman who has fulfilled at least one of her life ambitions. She has a living symbol as proof thereof. It is her home in France, the Chateau of Cabrieres. There she remains each summer resting, studying, and teaching a group of talented young women from all over the world, Americans included, who stay with her in the ancient castle during their term of instruction.

HER GIRLISH DREAM

The chateau is a monument to an ideal that she cherished when she was a little girl. It is situated in Southern France, close to her birthplace. One day she and some of her companions of the convent which she attended, walked along the roadway and gazed longingly and dreamily at a wonderful, big castle on a hill, and Calve said: "Some day, I am going to own that chateau and live in it." Of course, her statement was met with little enthusiasm from her playmates, who discredited even the barest possibility of the prophecy's coming true, because they declared the castle could never be for sale. However, it is the home of Calve today.

Mme. Calve's rise to fame was attended by privations, struggles and disappointments. Doing different kinds of menial labor like hauling many heavy buckets of coal up several flights of stairs several times a day, to earn a few extra sous, and walking from Montmarte half way across Paris for her daily singing lesson, often through the rain and snow in clammy, water-soaked shoes, were a few of the physical discomforts she suffered during her early years of study. And after she made her debut, she was brave enough to stand the humiliation of being hissed off several stages in different cities, and each time retire, somewhat crushed, to find a new teacher, and work harder and more earnestly than ever.

LIVED WITH GYPSIES

Her first real success came in Paris at the Opera Comique in the role as Carmen. She seemed destined for this role, despite her lack of love for the Bizet heroine. Now, a singer named Galli-Marie had created the part of Carmen some years previous and Paris was still worshiping at her feet when Calve appeared on the scene.

But when she made her dashing entrance on the stage of the Opera Comique, there was excitement in the audience, for here was a new Carmen. For one thing, she introduced for the first time the fringed shawl, or mantilla, instead of the conventional bolero and short skirt. And she danced the dance of the Gypsies.

She had broken away so completely from the traditional Carmen that Paris should either have acclaimed or booed her. Of course, she was acclaimed. She had audacity for her new and really artistic interpretation of the gay, irresponsible cigarette girl, because she had studied and lived with a band of Gypsies in Spain, when she was a very little girl. Fascinated by their brightly hued rags, their throbbing music and spirited, half-wild dances, she learned from them directly how a Gypsy acts, dances and looks. The result of her appearance as Carmen literally swept Paris off its feet and Emma Calve was hailed as a new prima donna—a new Carmen.

A COLD RECEPTION

Her next and greatest triumph came in America at the Metropolitan. Again as the fateful Carmen. On the opening night, her debut in New York, she sang Santuzza in "Cavalleria Rusticana." The opera was received coldly and the next night she was ordered to sing Carmen. She did! And the pages of operatic history have made record of it. James Gibbons Huneker in his Steeplejack, refers to Calve's brilliant and sensational success: "What a night was that first Carmen of hers! And that unforgettable cast, Jean de Reszke, Melba, Plancon. Calve chucked traditions to the winds, also her lingerie. Some of the elder critics are still blushing."

Emma Calve is in every sense a beautiful, loyal daughter of France, even though she loves America and says this is her country by adoption. Going to Cabrieres each year is not the only proof of her love for country. An institution near her home, sustained by her, and taking care of and providing interesting work for seventy soldiers who were blinded during the war, is silent testimony of one of the many forms of philanthropic work in which she is engaged. Instructors have taught these boys all sorts of handicraft, and they are all kept busy and happy weaving, carving, making furniture, etc.

WIVES FOR BLIND BOYS

Several of the boys after regaining their health and spirits became a bit unhappy at the institution and told Madame that they were desirous of marrying. This might have presented a delicate problem to a woman of lesser resourcefulness than Calve, because it virtually was up to her to find wives for these blind boys. But she promptly visited an orphanage which is just across the street from the institution, and presented her case to the Mother Superior, who immediately was sympathetic and suggested several girls of the orphanage as prospective brides.

When Mme. Calve explained the situation to the girls, they were all full of romance and expectancy, and the first one to respond to the call, so Madame says, was distressingly homely. She asked if she might pick out her future husband. Madame has apparently a just sense of bargaining, so she willingly consented.

"Naturalee, she pick out ze handsomest boy! Of course, ze boy ask me how she look and I say 'Oh she is beautiful. She has black hair but I say she ees blonde because he lik blondes. Her eyes are brown, but I say she haff blue, because he want them so."

THE HOMELY LITTLE ORPHAN

The handsome blind boy and the homely little orphan girl were married and last year when Madame returned to her chateau, she found word calling her to the cottage where the young couple lived. A baby girl had been born to the mother. She was very happy. But before Madame left, the girl confessed the fearful dread that was taking possession of her. Supposing one of the girls in the village should tell her husband some time, of whom she had grown to love so deeply, that she was not beautiful, that she was not blonde, that she had not blue eyes!

Calve hesitated for a second in telling this anecdote — her eyes seemed a bit misty—she was making the motions of a mother tenderly caressing her babe—and then she finished:

"I say to her—my dear leetle woman—when dees time come, eef avair it do—go take your little b-by and poot her in her papa's arms. Everything will be all right, then."

worse," said Jim. "People are tired of preaching, they want some real facts. There is too much fiction in the world. The people are full of it."

Jeffries's pet project is a sequel to the "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." "The Four Horsemen dealt with what has been fulfilled," he explained. "This picture will unfold what is to come. The scenario is already written."

From the above, one might judge that Jim is a visionary, a dreamer. So he is, in a measure, but he means to make his dreams come true. We were shown a letter from Will Hays in which he expressed a lively interest in the matter and promised to investigate its possibilities fully. A. C. Patten, Hay's representative, is now consulting with Jeffries regarding the proposed film, and its casting is not unlikely.

FIGHTER AND BOOKWORM

Yet Jeffries, dynamo that he is, has not been content with the mentioned plans and accomplishments. Collaborating with A. F. Futterer, he has written seven condensed volumes of history, entitled, "Truth is Stronger Tran Fiction." A first edition of 1000 copies has recently been printed. Jeffries turned bookworm and labored over this writing for years, working far into the night, after he had done his work of the day. The toil was exhausting, but Jeff's energy was inexhaustible, and the task was completed.

To what end is Jim thus bending all his strength? He wants the world to learn history, and he is willing to be the torch-bearer, if the people will hearken. By his advanced methods, the appeal to the visual sense, he hopes to enchain interest. He opines that once the masses are awakened by knowledge of history, all ills will melt away. Jeffries wants to do good in the world, and the history crusade is the outlet of his efforts.

SOLD HIS LIVESTOCK

Jim took us to his Burbank ranch in his car. In his luxuriously appointed home we engaged in close conversation for an hour. Subject: History. He displayed an amazing grasp of the subject; his mind is steeped with every phase of it, particularly the prophetic and the bizarre.

Jim has sold his livestock. The tending of cows and the study of history do not go well together. He raises potatoes, alfalfa and sweet corn on his 103-acre tract. Peaches, pears, apples, prunes and pomegranates are among his forty different kinds of fruit trees. He has barns, silos and pumping plants. Six horses are the only animals besides Sporty, a French poodle, and Teddy, a fox terrier.

On this quiet habitation Jeffries lives with his wife, his daughter and history.

VIOLINIST IS MASTER OF ALL MOODS

Beauties of Instrument Are Unlimited When Real Artist Handles Bow

"If we would all play first violin, we could get no orchestra together," said the great romantic composer Schumann. In every orchestra we hear the brilliance of the first violins, and yet how few of us listen to the inner voice of the plaintive counterpoint or soft chords of the second violin. There must always be the lesser lights as well as the glare of stronger incandescence. In any work of art how unsatisfactory are the bright colors of a central figure if unaccompanied by the soft hues of a delicate background. There is an old saying that "The leader of the orchestra is always the man who has played the second fiddle," and this adage goes even much farther than fiddling!

The violin is the soul of the orchestra. One might equally well say that it is the backbone of the orchestra. Although it is limited in range, it possesses a tone of unalloyed sweetness, and at the same time it is capable of dazzling pyrotechnical display. As a solo instrument in the hands of a skillful player it moves the listener from laughter to tears. It touches every mood from abandoned joy to the deepest pathos.

But to sway the hearts of a large audience, the player must spend the best years of his life with a violin in his hands. There must be countless hours spent in gaining bow and finger control, in practicing scales and arpeggio, double stopping, shifting, harmonics, virtuosi etudes, and finally the concert repertoire.

Fortunately, however, for the student and lover of good melody, a few months of diligence spent with the violin, will enable him to play simple tunes with musicianship and intelligence. One thing that is particularly fine, but insufficiently commented upon, is the wonderful gain in music appreciation. There is nothing that gives one so keen an insight into music as trying to create music!

There are countless numbers of violin teachers in every great city. Some are most wonderful, some are ordinarily good, and some are a regrettable disgrace to the art of music. It behooves the student to spend much time and thought in the selection of a teacher.

Among the best teachers of this city, to mention but half a dozen, are Robert Martin Staples, Gregor Cherniavsky, Charles Pemberton, Sol Cohen, Leon Goldwasser and Calmon Lubovisky. Of course, these teachers appeal to the violinist of considerable ability, and there are many, many really excellent teachers skilled in guiding the tiny fingers of the little beginner as well. Violin playing is so big an art, and so popular with the music-loving populace, that many teachers are needed to fill the demand. Today a majority of people are studying some musical instrument during their lifetime, and the violin is scarcely second to the piano in popularity.

teacher in the department and both she and the department will collapse under the strain. But a half grown girl with mother love and a child heart will make a huge success.

And the clothes! What a lot of training the salespeople get in the matter of clothes. When you go to buy a tweed suit, if the woman who waits on you is convinced that you should wear something soft and furry, she is planning, as she seats you, just how she can shift you from your tweed complex to the type of suit you should wear. Sometimes she does it so gracefully that you depart with her choice. Sometimes she does it so tactlessly that you depart with your nose in the air never to return.

FAT GIRLS AND DROOPY HATS

It is all a matter of tact. And that is what makes the problem of choosing salespeople so difficult. Those who are experienced fit the woman and the dress together and endeavor to sell her the thing which is the most becoming. According to the women in charge of employment, it is not only philanthropy but good business to keep a woman from buying something unbecoming. Showing a stout woman a large hat with a droopy brim is considered a crime in salesmanship.

The successful sales person of today could give lessons in psychology to the professors themselves.

When a woman comes in with a friend, this girl must be able to judge which of the two is the stronger mentally, and is to do the choosing. If the customer is to be shaped by her friend's opinion, then it is the duty of the girl to direct her attention to the friend without ignoring the woman who eventually will do the buying. Easy? Just you try it!

"I WEAR IT MYSELF"

Another thing that the saleswoman has to "psycho" on is whether she can use herself as an illustration in the selling of goods. A great many women resent most fearfully the thought that the woman on the other side of the counter may be wearing the article which she wishes for herself. To that woman the sales girl cannot make a sale by stating "You'll find that very satisfactory, I wear it myself!"

But there is the other type so common in California. The small town woman from the middle States is rather timid and indecisive in the big department stores in Los Angeles. A little chatty knowledge over the counter is most welcome to her. She has always gotten clubby with the girls in the stores in Indiana or Iowa, or Missouri, whichever it is. You know how they do — "You'll find that ribbon won't fade, Mrs. Atkins. My sister Nellie used some just like it on little Annie's bonnet, an' it didn't fade though the baby chewed it somethin' awful. It's real durable."

THE GUSHY GIRLS

Out here it is very new and strange, and a little intimate detail about someone else's experience with the article she is planning to buy is like a breath from home. But of course the saleswoman must be able to judge. So the next time you go into a store and are rather inclined to resent the stare of the woman behind the counter or in the ready-to-wear section, remember that she is just wondering how to appeal to you.

If you show any glimmerings of intelligence, she is quite apt to follow the mental line of attack. But if you gush up to her with lots of little nothings flying behind you and with the glow of rouge upon your cheek—well, then there is a perfect battery of flattery ready for you about your clothes—your wealth—and all the attributes you are weakest about.

RICH BUT SHABBY

A customer cannot be judged from his clothes. Some of the most smartly-dressed people buy a 50-cent article while a shabby little person with an apologetic manner will practically buy out the store. A story is told of a man who came into Marshal-Fields store in Chicago. He was shabby, dirty and unshaven. He hesitantly walked up to the clock department but the older clerks just couldn't be annoyed by waiting on him.

However, there was a new salesgirl in the department. She hadn't been there long enough to know what frightfully bad form it was to show attention to anyone so dirty and shabby. And she started in showing him clocks. He was just the type who got up at 5 a.m. so all the alarm clocks in the house were displayed before him. His interest seemed directed, however, toward several beautiful hall clocks in the corner and at last he asked her to show them to him.

The result was that he bought six. It was the largest single sale ever made in the store. This man so unshaven and shabby was a New York capitalist who had been on a fishing trip in the Michigan woods. He had come to the store in his three-weeks growth and old clothes. The clocks were purchased as gifts to six companies of which he was a director.

CARESS THE GOODS

Another bit of psychology which enters into salesmanship is the handling of goods. Each saleswoman is taught to handle the article she is displaying as if it were very valuable, whether it is or not. If she carefully lifts a blouse from a drawer, gently lays it down and caressingly displays its good points — doesn't it just make you wild to have it? It seems so precious and valuable! That is part of the game.

And won't the husbands be surprised. Salespeople say that the women are the guardians of the family pocketbook. They are the careful buyers. Thoughtful of price, they figure long and loud before buying.

MEN IN A HURRY

And the men? . . . They dislike to be in a department store any way. They hate to take time to shop. They're in a hurry! They ask for a certain definite thing, want to know if the material is satisfactory and that is all. But the women want yards of virtues with each yard of goods. They like to be told that it is the latest thing. Just a little imported bit! It simply can't be kept in stock! Everyone wants it! And all that sort of slush.

Oh, the salespeople have a great list of little tricks. All of them are good if applied cleverly. When a woman comes up to the counter briskly and asks for a certain thing in a clear businesslike voice there is great rejoicing. There is no mental strain necessary for the saleswoman to realize that this woman knows just what she wants, and she sees that she gets it. This woman is the joy of the department store and is cataloged as such. For they do have catalogs, these department stores. The greatest pest of all is the woman who doesn't know what she wants and won't be told! Have you met her?

SCRAPPING FRIEND HUSBAND

Next to receive the blue pencil is the woman who comes in with a friend, or with friend husband. Two people must be satisfied. Very likely one of them will pick out one thing and the other will be bound to choose another. A new saleswoman will let them haggle until they go elsewhere to buy. But the experienced woman will bring out a third article upon which oftentimes they agree. Not so far from a Presidential nomination, is it?

Then there is the woman who daudles. She intends to buy, but everything looks so pretty, and it is such a nice day, and she has the time, and—well anyway she daudles. The woman behind the counter has her own little remedy for that. A quick action on her part does wonders. It jars the customer up. Or, if this fails, she commences to remove the articles from the counter. And, as a last resort, she removes the article which is being considered.

SPEEDING 'EM UP

It actually sounds rude, doesn't it? But the girl has to allow herself just so much time for each sale. And if after she has given of her best she gets no response, then she is apt to be a little abrupt. Some customers need nothing but the actual service, I was told. Some have to be coaxed, some flattered, and many times there is need of a little bullying to make the sale. It all depends on the salesperson, how cleverly or tactlessly this is done.

The price? There again psychology has to play a part! During the war we all yelled lustily about the high prices! But when the stores reduced their goods, everyone was suspicious. There must be something wrong with this thing or that—because the price was too low. . . . And we think we are consistent!

A woman admired a belt in one of our stores not long ago, and had decided to take it. She was told that the price was $25. A mere trifle to her apparently. Just then the salesgirl discovered that the belt was priced $2.50, and that she had made a mistake. There was no sale! The customer refused to even consider anything so ridiculously cheap.

THE SCORNED IVORY CUTTERS

The disposal of goods represents any amount of cleverness and planning. It's rather a gamble, this deciding for the public just what it is to want for the coming year. Sometimes the judgment is faulty and articles are stranded. Then come the schemes! Recently a store bought a huge supply of small ivory paper cutters. The public refused to get enthused about them. So they remained unsold until some bright mind conceived the idea of tying them to valentine cards and raising the price of the cards. Did they go? Did they? Well rather!

Castile soap is often a slippery proposition. One store found that they were loaded up with a supply of soap. No one wanted it because it was so hard. The next week the store advertised "a limited supply of EXTRA HARD Castile soap—only two bars to one customer." People thronged to avail themselves of the unusual opportunity. As they bought the soap, the clerk hit it against the counter just to show them how beautifully hard it was . . . All of these are called legitimate aids to selling.

PINK FLOOR WALKERS

There is a great deal in the personality, the size and type of the sales person, too. A floor walker absolutely must not bloom forth with a pink carnation in his buttonhole. Psychology again! No customer, I was told, would care to ask anything of one so festively attired. He would look just a sweet young thing who couldn't possibly give out any actual information.

The choosing of salespeople, and the department where they shall work is most important. That cute little, quick little girl who sold you hairpins in the notion department the other day wasn't there by accident. Oh, no! She was placed there because she was just exactly the right type to sell notions. The girl in the hosiery department must have beautiful hands. And the ready-to-wear section calls for dignity. In that department the saleswoman must be large, impressive, deliberate. In the veilings it is different. Poor girl, she has to continually lean across the counter to fit veils, and so a tall willowy type is demanded.

QUEER QUESTIONS

One of our stores chooses its workers by psychological tests, which is the newest, most efficient way of doing it. I saw the test. Perhaps I could have passed it—but I didn't ask to try. I couldn't take the risk of the blow to my pride. The questions asked are certainly brain bouncers. "Is it true that courtesy died with the discovery of America?" One journalistic friend answered it by saying that "It didn't die, but it's been sickly ever since."

Here's another which will catch a number of you. "Paul Revere led the American colonists at the Battle of Bunker Hill." Is this false or true? Not so good! Guess again! "Chicago is located on Lake Superior." There is where some of you native sons and daughters will get into trouble. There are lots of them, these little phrases which require a nimble brain in good running order for their answer.

THE ELEVATOR MEN

For the elevator men there is one sort of test. For the rest of the store another. In this way the store can sort out those who would be a bit of sand in the machinery of the whole business. Oh, there is nothing haphazard about the business of runnnig a department store. Each thing is figured down to the last fraction. A psychological aspect to this and a psychological aspect to that creates harmonw to the whole.

And how carefully they are studied—these customers who demand a paper of pins or an oriental rug—a handkerchief or a floor lamp. "The customers really run the stores," one employment manager told me in showing just why it was that all the scheming and planning was necessary. So it is quite proper this business of "psyching" around. When next you go shopping — the January sales are on now—don't let the saleswoman do it all. Get out your best psychic quality and tackle her. "Coue" her if necessary. Declare to her inner.clockwork, "You have the thing I wish, and you want to show it to me!" Sending it through your brain five times running will give you any amount of confidence even if it doesn't reach her.

Mother's Part in Love Rivalry Story's Theme

Mother love is one of the most notable of human sentiments. But can mother love, which is selfish to the point of jealousy guarding a son from the affection of any other woman, even a childhood sweetheart, work great harm?

Mary Larner faced the question fearlessly when she wrote "Forsaking All Others." With vividly drawn characterizations and mastery of situation, she showed in a story published in Collier's Weekly and judged one of the best short stories of the year, how mother love proved a boomerang.

Also the author showed the effect of the thing not only upon her own life, but upon the lives of others. The poignancy of the pathos and romance in the story touch deeply. Woven into the plot is the contest between a youthful girl of the flapper type and a married woman of the world, both seeking the love of the same man.

"It is my belief that the story treats one of the biggest questions that may arise in the life of any family," said Emile Chautard, the director, when he was assigned to making the story into a Universal motion picture.

"The situation of the mother as a 'rival' to all her son's sweethearts is a striking one, and should carry a strong dramatic punch," the noted Frenchman said.

Chautard put his heart and soul into the task, it is declared, and with Colleen Moore and Cullen Landis playing the leading roles, and with a supporting cast including June Elvidge, May Wallace, David Torrence and Sam de Grasse, he has done well, in the opinion of his co-workers, who previewed the picture at Universal City.

"Forsaking All Others" will have its Los Angeles premiere showing at Tally's during the coming week, starting today.

PUTTING IT GENTLY

While President Roosevelt was on a certain ranch the men caught a horse thief and hung him. They soon discovered they had made a mistake and executed the wrong man.

The most diplomatic among the ranchers was selected to take the body home and break the news gently to the widow. The cowboy asked the widow, "Are you the wife of ——?" She answered, "Yes."

"Well," said the cowboy, "you are mistaken. You are his widow; I have his body in the wagon. You need not feel bad about it because we hung him thinking he was a horse thief. We soon found out he was innocent. The joke is on us."—Columbus Dispatch.

HISTORY THAT IS ROMANCE

An Interesting and Scholarly Work in Which Robert Glass Cleland Gives Us a History of California That Glows and Throbs With Life

BY LILLIAN C. FORD

A HISTORY OF CALIFORNIA. The American Period. By Robert Glass Cleland. The Macmillan Company, New York.

California has little use for the dull, the mediocre, the commonplace. The State, as we are constantly reminded, leans rather toward the rococo, the bizarre, the melodramatic. So there is little that is monotonous in its history. In his history of California in the American period, Mr. Cleland shows a keen appreciation of this, and so writes a book that has not a dull page. The volume follows that of Dr. Chapman covering the Spanish period.

Although Dr. Cleland treats of the American period in order to make events clear, some overlapping has been found necessary. The reader will have no fault to find here, for the most stirring pages of a book that is as intensely interesting as a novel of mystery and adventure are those devoted to the early period when New England merchants and sea captains first discovered in the Pacific Coast a rich field for exploitation.

In tracing the early interest of New England in California, Dr. Cleland gives brief but vivid accounts of the early voyages of Yankee ships engaged in the China trade, which became triangular, involving on the one hand the bartering of New England wares on the West Coast for furs, which were taken to China, and sold or traded at immense profit. It was this that caused the shrewd New England traders to have a lively interest in the Pacific Coast and to realize its value. Thus California become known in the later years of the eighteenth century.

The extent of the fur trade is hard to realize now. The skins of greatest value were those of the fur seal and the sea otter. The Farallon Islands, we are told, alone produced over 150,000 seal skins between 1809 and 1912. Even more important was the skin of the sea otter, obtained in such abundance on the islands off the Coast, especially in the stretch of sea from Catalina to Santa Cruz.

The more exciting voyages of the American vessels engaged in that early fur trade are followed in considerable detail by Dr. Cleland, who draws on rare manuscripts for the incidents of the voyages not usually found in histories. Some of the voyages thus take on the nature of great adventures, in which daring navigators, lured by the thought of rich treasure to be gained, pressed on despite difficulties that would discourage any but the bravest and most determined men.

The restrictions and evasions involved in this early trade, while California was under Spanish control, furnish glowing material for a chapter descriptive of the ways and methods practiced by the mariners-traders, a chapter doubly interesting because it is so fully documented.

The Russian experiment and the account of the whalers and hide traders each have a chapter, the letter revealing the influence on later developments of these adventurers.

Then comes the story of the pathfinders who came not sailing around the Horn, but overland. Jedediah Smith was the first of these. In the summer of 1826 Smith with a party of fourteen men set out to explore the region between Great Salt Lake and the California coast. He arrived at San Gabriel Mission on November 27 of that year, the first American to make the transcontinental journey to California.

Sufficient space is given to the exploits of James Ohio Pattie and the later pathfinders to enable the reader to follow the rapid opening of California to American influence.

The exciting events that followed the American settlement are set forth dramatically and well. The gold rush, the vigilantes, the early government, the bandits and outlaws, the difficulties with the Spanish and Mexicans, the tangled state of politics and government, the coming of the railroads, followed by booms and depressions, and an account of the discontented '70s bring us to the more recent settled times of rapid development.

The last three chapters of the book give a resume of politics during the period from 1850-1910, and of the material progress of the State, ending with a review and prophecy. There are valuable appendices containing source material of importance.

A noteworthy feature of the book is the way in which California history is linked up with that of the United States. The provincial attitude is refreshingly absent, although no one could take a livelier interest in the hectic series of events that have made California what it is than does Dr. Cleland. But he has the perspective that goes with scholarship, happily combined with a zest for adventurous deeds that so well qualifies him for the task he has completed with such credit.

The book is not only one that libraries are finding indispensable, but is so interesting, so full of the glow and throb of life, that it can be safely recommended as furnishing more entertainment than twenty movies. Hence, others than Iowans and native sons, who naturally have an interest in the history of this State, can take up the book with the assurance of finding in its pages the best kind of good historical reading.

RECENT FICTION

CARNAC'S FOLLY. By Sir Gilbert Parker. J. B. Lippincott, Philadelphia.

A typical Gilbert Parker novel, most of its scenes laid in Canada.

It tells the story of Carnac Grier, son of a lumber king. His one ambition is to be an artist. The clash between the father and son over Carnac's career is intensified by a subtle antagonism between the two that goes deeper than any mere difference in worldly point of view.

Carnac, refusing to take any interest in his father's business, goes to New York. There he commits the folly that threatens to ruin his life, being entrapped by an artist's model into a marriage. He seeks safety in flight. In Montreal again he tries business and then politics, both with heroic success. Then the woman he had married appeared and threatened ruin, but was prevented from carrying out her full designs by the happy and timely interference of Junia, the only girl Carnac had ever really loved.

At length, by the destruction of a marriage certificate and the unearthing of an old secret, things are brought to an exciting climax, to fade out into a sweet romance. The style for the most part is insipid, oddly contrasting with those earlier works of the author before he became a baronet and a famous cinema writer.

SKY LINE OF SPRUCE. By Edison Marshall. Little, Brown & Co., Boston.

A thrilling story of adventure that starts out on the time-worn motif of loss of memory and of identity. In order to restore Ben Darby to himself his friend Ezra Melville takes him on a prospecting trip in which there is adventure a-plenty. The exploits of Fenris, the wolf, are alone enough to make the story one of sure-fire interest to those who read fiction for the thrill they get out of it.

Mr. Marshall knows outdoor life, has a genuine gift for rapid episode and so writes novels that rank high in their class.

ASCENT. By Frances Rumsey. Boni & Liveright, New York.

Olive Lacy, who from youth up feels herself superior to her family and her environment, marries John Devon and so succeeds in securing the luxuries she has long craved. She finds life in New York vastly more to her liking than in her old home in Pennsylvania.

But marriage to her seemed to mean wider opportunities for philandering. How she used them without deriving much satisfaction is told in a sort of free verse style that is not without its merits.

INDELIBLE. A Story of Life, Love and Music, in Five Movements. By Elliot H. Paul. The Houghton Mifflin Company, New York.

An unusual first novel, allied especially in the earlier chapters to the new school of fiction writers, but rising in the last half to an intensity that only a genuine belief in romance can give.

The story is of the love between a young American musician and a Russian Jewess who has great

A BRILLIANT ITALIAN CRITIC

Four and Twenty Minds. By Giovanni Papini. Translated by Ernest Hatch Wilkins (University of Chicago.) Thomas Y. Crowell Company, New York.

This translation is not, as would naturally be supposed, a complete copy of Papini's book bearing the same title. Aiming competently to introduce Papini to the American reading public, Prof. Wilkins has selected from the three volumes of criticism which Papini has already written, those which the translator believes will be of greatest interest. The chosen articles range in time from 1912 to 1918.

The one absolute statement which may be made out of hand regarding Papini is that he is a clear, forceful, brilliantly analytic and supremely graceful writer, with an astoundingly accurate knowledge of the literature of all ages and races. His breadth of comprehension and his analytic nature give him remarkable powers of exposition, in which art, indeed, he has few present-day equals. His setting forth of Berkleyan idealism and his commentaries on Hegelian philosophy are especially illuminating. His power of dissecting systems and philosophies is assuredly soul-satisfying, because it approaches that perfection of method and result which our deepest selves crave. But his opinions of these matters are largely negligible.

For it must be said, that in spite of his really wonderful analytic qualities, he is not a great critic. This may be because he has not yet found his center. A convinced Nietzschean-pagan in the morning, he puts forth a profoundly sympathetic and reverent life of Christ in the evening. Now it is quite true that valid criticism cannot be parochial or national. It must have sufficient circumference to include the known world of thought and may even aspire to the fourth dimension. Nevertheless, it must not be all circumference, or it merely sprawls.

Aesthetically, ethically and sociologically, standards of some nature are a necessity, or reversion to chaos is inevitable. The critic may hold, with the Greeks ancient, to balance, harmony of parts and that quality of restraint which infallibly indicates an abundant store of reserve power. Or he may express himself to the last ounce and with lawless incoherence in the ultramodern manner; he may humbly follow Christ, or joyously range himself with anti-Christ. Or he may be a lone wolf, provided he bravely flies his own standard, blazoned with some great word. But there can be no dialectic where there is no reasoned and rendered belief in some artistic as well as social form, and criticism under such conditions will be at once flighty, feverish, finical and fantastic. "The tone of seeking," says the wise Emerson, "is one; the tone of having is another."

Therefore, it is, that with due and fitting acknowledgment of this author's wonderful ability in certain directions, with full appreciation of his warm humanness and with gratitude for the opportunity given Americans through his doubtless adequate translation of making his acquaintance, it must be added that his method of criticism is fitly described in the biting phrase which he quotes from a poem of Calderon's: "Nothing seems to me just, if it is contrary to my liking." The same reasoning applies to the miles-in-the-rear followers of Papini in our own land. Antipathies, whims, prejudices, furtive dislikes, when wittily expressed, are certain to tickle the ears of the anarchic groundlings. But the bird chosen by Athene as her companion and emblem was neither the street sparrow nor the shrike.

A CALIFORNIA ROMANCE

FLOWER OF THE WORLD. By Alice Calhoun Haines. E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.

It is a rare occurrence to find an author brave enough to disregard the demand for conventional realism, and sufficiently an artist to tell the story of life in realistic romance. This has been done by a California writer in the story "Flower of the World," which has a California setting, San Miguel, in which Laguna may be recognized, and Los Angeles.

The story is told with delicacy and beauty of expression. Strayed from her gypsy kin, Lisa, a tiny creature of sun and shadow, is found dancing and racing on the Laguna sands. Philip Cortwright, a prominent member of an artist colony at the old seaside resort, snatches her from the waves, heroically saving for himself a model, who is to give inspiration and fame to his future work. The strange little being speaks a broken Spanish, a gypsy dialect, and a few scattered words of English. Cortwright, not caring about her origin, finally bargains with an old gypsy woman, who seems to be her rightful guardian, to the extent of $20. He knows he pays cheaply for the child's hours of patient posing. Thus the childhood of Lisa passes among an artistic group of older people. Her one playmate is Michael Martyn, a boy studying to be a musician. The few free hours these children have, become hours of play spent together. Now and then, Sylvestre, the comrade of gypsy days, steals away to bring a message of gypsy affairs to little Lisa, for, as Sylvestre explains, the gypsies did not desert her. They merely sought to take the money and have her also. They never believed she would stay away from them! Lisa grows to girlhood. Cortwright is called to New York. He places her in school, where, for several years, her unrestrained, rebellious temperament, spends unhappy days.

Cortwright returns to find the strange little gypsy child, a young woman. The gypsy strain is still evident, a free half-glad, half-sad spirit. But there is something else, distinction, contradiction, and the individualism, which ever suggests and is always found predominant in Spanish blood. There is also physical beauty. Cortwright feels all this, is inspired by it. Again, Lisa becomes his model. Days slip by. To Cortwright, they bring emotional desire, to Lisa, sorrow and shame.

Michael Martyn, now a great violinist, returns to the home of his childhood. Cortwright leaves on a business trip for New York. Lisa, humbled, afraid, crushed with the realization, that circumstance, youth, above all, a man's selfishness have made life impossible, finds the old glad joy in Martyn's companionship. Martyn believes only good of her. Lisa sees Sylvestre, her gypsy brother. One night, she runs away and finds the old gypsy camp in Lower California. In her heart she carries the glory of Martyn's faith and love.

Picturesquely and swiftly, incident following incident, the author carries the story onward. Now Lisa is found with gypsy comrades, dancing in the Mexican cantinas of the border, now she is rescued by American chivalry and now earning her living dancing in Los Angeles. It is here she finds her real name, and learns the identity of the grandfather, who, long ago, had let a gypsy girl dance into his heart, regardless of the sorrow it might bring to posterity. But best of all, she finds Michael, and love, forgiving and self-forgetting, the Flower of the World.

The style is poetic and vivid, with the force and charm of real literary ability. L. C. C.

MARCEL PROUST

Marcel Proust, the famous French writer, died on November 19, at the age of 51 years. In 1913 "Swann's Way" appeared as the first book of his great autobiographical work entitled "Remembrance of Things Past." In 1919 the second book in the series, "A l'Ombre des Jeunes Filles en Fleur," won for him the Goncourt Prize and marked him as an outstanding French writer, one comparable in importance with Anatole France. Since 1913 he has published five more books continuing the series, and at the time of his death was working on another to be called "Temps Retrouves." "Swann's Way" appeared in English translation for the first time this fall, published in this country by Henry Holt & Co. So brilliant a psychological study is this long work that M. Proust has been called "the French successor to Henry James," and so vivid a picture of French society does it present that it has been compared with Balzac's "Comedie Humaine."

LITERARY GOSSIP

Former Senator Albert J. Beveridge, whose "Life of John Marshall" has taken its place as one of the classics of American biography, has begun a companion work on Abraham Lincoln. "I hope," he says, "to be able to continue the constitutional interpretation of America, weaving it about the life of Abraham Lincoln, as I did the first part of the constitutional interpretation of America about the life of John Marshall."

Oxford University Press, American Branch, will have ready next month "Proserpine" and "Midas," two unpublished mythological dramas by Mary Shelly, edited, with introductions by A. Kosul. The editor points out that the dramas are not only a sign of the times, as examples of the classical renaissance, but are also the proper setting for some of the most beautiful lyrics written by Shelly himself introduced into the plays, but hitherto read in undue isolation. The texts were discovered in 1905 in a cheap exercise book, and their probable date is 1820.

Jane Austen's "History of England," "by a partial, prejudiced and ignorant historian," and "with very few dates," included in "Love and Friendship" (Stokes,) contains some naive and astonishing comments on English monarchs. Henry VIII and Elizabeth are given rather special attention, and the historian, having very little use for either, gently ridicules them. But, as Gilbert Chesterton says in his introduction to the volume, "It is such neat nonsense."

Hiram Bingham, well-known American explorer, a Yale professor, and author of numerous books on travel, has just had published his "Inca Land," which tells the story of the discovery by Professor Bingham and his party, of which Machu Picchu on an almost inaccessible peak of the Andes, a feat which was called by the New York Times "the greatest archaeological discovery of the age." Buried beneath the jungle, its site inhabited only by three families of wandering Indians, this great stone city of the Incas was found in an amazing state of preservation, its temples, homes, streets and burial caves bearing the mute evidence of the high civilization of its founders.

A school-teacher who teaches the parents as well as the children, is Angelo Patri. Day after day many parents—the rich, the poor, the native born, the immigrant, come to him with their troubles. He is constantly seeing them, talking to them, and whatever advice he gives them is certain to be oil on the troubled waters. That is one of the reasons for the immense success with which his new book, "Child Training," is meeting. Not only is it the work of a man who understands children, but also that of one who really knows the parent and his or her problem.

"The Political System of British India, with special reference to the recent Constitution Changes," is the title of a book by Mr. E. A. Horne, Indian Educational Service, which the Oxford University Press American Branch is about to publish. It is based on lectures delivered at Harvard, and is intended to serve as a general introduction to the subject and to supplement standard text-books, such as Ilbert's "Government of India."

"All About Coffee," by William H. Ukers, is the first important book on coffee since Jardin's "Le Cafeier et le Cafe," published in Paris in 1895, and the only complete work dealing with the subject in English. It has taken ten years to compile it, and four years to write it.

CREATOR OF TARZAN SPEAKS

Says His Books Are Not Intended to be Contributions to Classical Literature, But Are Written to Entertain and Sell

BY EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

[The following article from the pen of Edgar Rice Burroughs, written for the literary page of The Times, is intended to give his thousands of readers in Southern California an intimate glimpse of the man whose Tarzan stories are probably as widely read as the works of any American writer. Mr. Burroughs is under fifty, but in spite of his comparative youth, he has had a picturesque and varied career as miner, cowboy, storekeeper, policeman, soldier and traveler. It is safe to say that while he is the author of a score or more of books he has lived more stories than he has written. He is now living at Tarzan Ranch, Reseda, in the San Fernando Valley, California.—Editor]

Mr. Ford suggests that I talk to you about my books — "At the Earth's Core," "The Chessmen of Mars" and the "Tarzan" stories. He wants me to talk about them for a thousand words. What I can say of them without outraging modesty can be put in fewer words by far. I think they are bully stories and that they fulfill the purposes for which they were written—to entertain and to sell. They were not written for any other purpose. Sometimes reviewers waste whole columns on them explaining that they are not what I never intended them to be—contributions to classical literature. That is misspent energy. Did a sport writer ever discuss the table manner of Battling Siki as seriously affecting his success in the prize ring? The only standard by which I judge the fiction that I enjoy is whether it has the punch to hold my interest and is able to deliver the k.o. to dull care and worry.

It seems to me that no one who functions properly above the ears can possibly read fiction for purposes of instruction or enlightenment. It is written by men no better, and oftentimes not so well, equipped to think as the reader. Each book contains the personal viewpoint of one man or woman, and even that opinion is usually seriously affected by what he thinks the public will pay $1.90 or $2 for. Occasionally there is a great piece of fiction, once in a hundred years, perhaps, or maybe I had better say a thousand years, that actually molds public opinion; but in the meantime fiction either entertains or it does not entertain, and that is all there is to it. What entertains you may not entertain the other fellow, but God knows there is enough of it written each year so that it is our own fault if we are not all entertaired.

FICTION IS STEPPING STONE

The really great purpose of fiction, however, is, as I see it, that it is a stepping stone to other and vastly more entertaining and valuable reading. The reading of clean fiction should be encouraged since the reading of anything will form the habit of reading and one day the novitiate, having no fiction at hand, will, perforce, have to read something else, and a new world will be opened to him—and there are so many wonderful books outside the fiction class, but gosh! how they do charge for them. My favorites are travel, exploration, biography and natural history, but there are others, countless others in which you will find more wonderful things than I or any other writer can invent. Did you ever read an annual report of the Smithsonian Institution? I recently sat up nearly all night reading one that is ten years old, almost, and when, at dinner the following evening, I recounted the adventures of the previous night to my three children they held them spellbound and elicited a thousand questions, 999 of which I could not answer.

And then there are magazines such as the Geographic, and Popular Mechanics. These constitute an encyclopedia of general education for adult or child that arouses a desire for knowledge and fosters the habit of reading.

LIKES "THE VIRGINIAN"

I am fond of fiction, too, although I do not read a great deal of it. I have my favorites—Mary Roberts Reinhart and Booth Tarkington are two of them. When I read one of Mrs. Reinhart's stories I always wish that I might have been sufficiently gifted to have written it, and then when I read something of Tarkington's I feel the same way about that. I have read "The Virginian" five or six times, and "The Prince and the Pauper" and "Little Lord Fauntleroy" as many. I believe "The Virginian" to be one of the greatest American novels ever written and though I have heard that Wister deplores having written it, I venture that 100 years from now it will constitute his sole bid to fame—and I am sure that "The Virginian" will live 100 years if the Bolshevists and the [illegible] permit civilization to endure as long as that.

Let's talk about something else. I haven't used my 1000 words yet. Literary people, for instance. Do you know any? No! [illegible] lucky. I've met a few, but I never stayed awake long enough to get acquainted. I used to belong to a club in Chicago composed entirely of authors, artists and editors. I lunched with them [illegible]

5c Per Book

I have sold 26,000,000 copies of my pocket series in three years. I find it cost approximately a million dollars to sell these 26,000,000 books. That means for every dime I received I had to spend five cents in order to make the sale. So I have really been getting only five cents for each book. I have solved the production problem—I produce these books at an astonishingly low cost. The actual cost above the price of raw material is very slight indeed. This is because of especially made machinery. Mass production has cut the cost of the book, but distribution costs remain the same—5c per book. That is the problem I am working upon now, and I may solve it. I have a plan which I intend to try out with readers of this announcement. In brief, what I must do is simply this: the sales cost per book must be reduced from 5c per book to 1c per book. That means we must get five times as much business on the same advertising and distribution outlay. Am I asking too much? That remains to be seen. The response to this amazing announcement will decide the question. There is nothing so convincing as an actual test, and that is the real reason for this sale.

ZANE GREY'S MASTERPIECE
Just Published

Zane Grey says: "I am willing to stand or fall by the Wanderer of the Wasteland. It is my supreme effort, my most mature and finished work." An adventurous and vivid romance of the rehabilitation of a heroic exile of the wastelands by the love of a young girl. Against a background of the great American desert, the heat of its glaring noons, the tang of burning sage-brush and the crisp clearness of its starlit nights, Zane Grey has written a tale of spiritual and physical adventure incomparably finer than anything he has yet done.

Here is fulness of living, courage, love, and the rewards of courage.

MUSIC REALM MELODIOUS

Arranged

Mme. Anna Ruzena Sprotte, the well-known Bohemian contralto, who is conceded to be one of the foremost singers in the West, spent the holidays in the mountains at Camp Baldy and Little Bear Lake and resumed her classes Tuesday. Mme. Sprotte will be heard in song and lecture recitals before several of the leading clubs of the Southland the coming season. She is the program chairman of the American Music Optimists and has arranged some of the most unique programs heard here this season.

Popular

Gertrude Ross, well-known California composer-pianist, will remain in California all the coming season and has numerous engagements already booked, the popularity of her Spanish-Californian songs giving her a splendid demand for club programs. She has arranged them into a medley for piano solo, which she calls "Californiana," and which has been most popular. Mrs. Ross has also appeared in numerous cities of Southern California as lecturer on the programs of the Philharmonic Orchestra and has several lectures booked for the coming season. In January, Mrs. Ross will appear with Laurence Strauss before the Friday Morning Club. She will also appear with him at Covina on the 13th inst. On the 16th she will appear at Banning, assisted by Annia Stockton Howell, soprano, and on the 19th at La Jolla with Viola Ellis, contralto. On the 18th inst., she appears at San Diego, also with Viola Ellis.

Indian Diva to Sing

In response to numerous requests of admirers and singers from all parts of the country, Charles Wakefield Cadman, famous composer, has written a new song which he calls "A Cry at Dawn" and dedicated it to Princess Tsianina, the Indian mezzo-soprano, who will appear in Los Angeles in a joint recital with him at the Philharmonic Auditorium on Thursday evening, the 11th inst., when she will sing it for the first time. The lyric is by Nelle Eberhardt, who has written the lyrics for Mr. Cadman's songs and grand operas.

IN RECITAL FRIDAY

John Smallman, whose first recital for this season will be given at Gamut Auditorium Friday evening at 8 o'clock, has prepared a most interesting program of classical and modern songs and has built the recital so that the musician and the music lover as well will find numbers of interest. Before his arrival in the West Mr. Smallman was the baritone with the Apollo Quartet of Boston and held one of the leading church positions of the city, as well as appearing frequently in recital in the East and Middle West.

His entire program is as follows:

Love Has Eyes (Old English)	Bishop
Oh Speak Not, Beloved	Tschaikowsky
Mein Madel hat einen Rosenmund	Brahms
(German folk song.)
Thy Warning is Good	Grieg
John Smallman.

QUARTET AT PASADENA

An unusually interesting musical program will be given on Tuesday evening, 9th inst., in Pasadena at the First Methodist Church, by the Los Angeles Quartet, composed of Maude Fenlon Bollman, soprano; Florence Middaugh, contralto; Raymond Hamon, tenor, and Lester Hurbut Castle, bass; with Raymond McPheeters at the piano. A special number included on the program will be Charles Wakefield Cadman's cycle, "The Morning of the Year."

Under the direction of Mrs. Bollman an attractively arranged program was given at the Times Radio Thursday.

ZOELLNER PROGRAM

One of the interesting numbers the Zoellners will play at the fourth concert of their series at the Ebell Auditorium on Monday evening, the 15th inst., is a Suite Op. 144 by Emanuel Moor, a Hungarian composer now living in Paris whose works the Zoellners have greatly popularized in this country. The suite is for two violins and piano, played by Antoinette, Amandus and Joseph Zoellner, Jr.

Few people here are aware that the cellist of the quartet, who is Joseph, Jr., is also a pianist of note. He is a graduate with high honors as pianist of the Royal Conservatory of Brussels, Belgium. In New York, Boston and European centers of art his work always aroused considerable comment in that he was also cellist of the organization and could play both instruments with so much authority.

The other works to be played by the Zoellner Quartet at their fourth concert of the series are a Quartet by Tchaikowsky, Op. 11 and the Schumann Quartet Op. 41, No. 1.

FAMOUS WRITER TELLS OF BOOKS

week for years and I do not recall that I ever heard a book or a picture discussed during all that time. They were not literary, but they were quite human and extremely good company. Literary people do not write. They read what other people write, discuss it, criticise it, quarrel about it and altogether take it much more seriously than the people who write it. Literary people just love to meet their favorite authors, but sometimes they are happier when they don't. If one should meet God and find that He wore a dirty collar, ate with a knife and picked his teeth in public one would feel shocked and disillusioned, would one not? Well, of course, you can not expect all authors to be better than God. There are some to be sure; but we are in the minority.

SEX STORIES A BORE

And then there are autograph collectors. Most certainly they tickle a body's vanity, or at least they did mine until I fell upon a dealer's catalogue of autographs and found much nicer ones than mine quoted at 25 cents each. Collecting is a peculiar form of insanity. I had it in boyhood—stamps, coins and postmarks. My two sons have it mildly. Four years ago they started a collection of bones and now the back porch looks like an ancient battlefield, or shambles, or something. Cows, horses, goats, wildcats, squirrels contributed various portions of their anatomies to this weird collection. There was more sense to it, though, than the collection of autographs. My youngest boy collects empty match boxes. The fact that they are all of the same kind makes no difference to him; but in that he shows the true spirit of the collector, for they are utterly useless, valueless, discarded things, and it is such that the collector loves best to gather. To my mind, the most hideous form that collecting can take is that of uncut books—the pinnacle of utter and ridiculous selfishness. I do not believe that anyone who truly loves books would have an uncut volume on his shelves.

There are, however, some books whose leaves might remain uncut for all of me—those of the modern writers of so-called sex stories, and the complete works of Charles Dickens, each of which bore me to extinction.

A thousand words are not so many, after all. Glad they are exhausted? So am I.

RECENT DOINGS AMONG WRITERS

"Cross Currents in Europe Today," is soon to appear in England under the Harrap imprint. The Marshall Jones Company recently brought out the book in America as the third volume of the Dartmouth Alumni Lectureships.

William McFee's new novel, "Command," which Doubleday, Page & Company published this fall, has been issued in a new de luxe edition limited to 377 copies. The edition is bound in maroon Japan paper with a crash back and is printed on deckle edge laid paper, with gilt top and head band. The labels are decorated with a sail ship in black and white against a gold bronze sky. Other books in the 377 edition are "A Six-Hour Shift," "The Feet of the Young Men," "Letters to Lithopolis," "One Day More" and "The Life and Letters of Walter H. Page."

Unavoidable delays obliged the Harvard University Press to postpone for a few weeks the publication of "Prophets of Yesterday," by John Kelman, minister of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York City. The "prophets" are Thomas Carlyle, Matthew Arnold and Robert Browning.

President Harding, according to Washington dispatches, is expected to send a message to Congress regarding William Allen White's directions in The Stag Cook Book for compiling a vegetable salad. Meanwhile Ellis Parker Butler writes to the publisher:

"Thanks for the copy of The Stag Cook Book, which my wife has already annexed. The first thing we did when we received it was, of course, to look for my own contribution in it, but as soon as we saw is was there—and had remarked that it would be a proud day for Warren G. Harding when he found he had been given a place of honor on the page opposite me—the next thing we did was to look for Bob Davis's ham-sauce recipe. For a few moments I had a nervous chill; I thought the book was a fizzle; I couldn't find the Bob Davis's ham-sauce recipe; I felt that another opportunity to make a whole world happy had been missed. And then I found the Bob Davis ham-sauce recipe masquerading as 'Cream sauce a la Worcestershire,' on page 89, and I know this was to be a better and happier world. This one Bob Davis recipe is worth three times the price of the book."

promise as a violinist. The love of music binds together these two, so totally different in traditions, social standards and temperament. As to how the two could succeed in making the compromises so necessary to whatever permanency may still be considered desirable in the marriage relation, the author does not show, preferring to end in a glow of romance as did those old-fashioned authors so sadly discredited by their youthful protagonists.

Nevertheless, the book has new notes in it, is sincere and vital, and so is to be classed as more than a novel of promise.

THE TARIFF

The November issue of the Quarterly Journal of Economics (Harvard University Press) contains a penetrating analysis of the Tariff Act of 1922 by Frank W. Taussig, the leading tariff authority in this country; an evaluation of the textile schedules in the new Tariff Act, written by Dr. Arthur H. Cole, who is well known as an investigator in this field; an article on the foreign exchanges by A. C. Pigou; a review of the past two years of work in the British building guilds, a specific working out of guild socialism, by Carl S. Joslyn, and a most interesting account of Communism among the Mormons, by Hamilton Gardner.

OF INTEREST TO ARTISTS

complete that it gives us a comprehensive knowledge of Cotton's growth in the perception of beauty and in the technical power to express it. A few of the etchings, and more especially the aquatints, are rare. The plate for "Evening in Belgium," a beautiful aquatint, has been destroyed, and of a number of other prints only one copy remains out of an edition of twenty-five or fifty.

Especially fine are the aquatints, "Belfry of Bruges From Canal," "Pont St. Boniface, Bruges," "Belfry of Bruges at Night," and "Tranquility," the last named having a classic simplicity and beauty that is exceedingly rare in any form of art. Among the line etchings one of the most delightful is "Roman Bridge, Chester," free and flowing in its handling; "A Bit of Old Chester" and "Belgian Farm." In all these and in many others of John Cotton's etchings, the line has firmness as well as feeling, and the printing is very expert.

John W. Cotton, painter-etcher, took up the study of art at a very early age. He began as an illustrator in pen and in black and white wash, and this training fitted him for the art of the etcher, which he seriously began about ten years ago. He revived the art of the aquatint, and was successful in it from the very beginning, encouraged by the fact that many great painters, especially in Europe, have worked and are working in this medium.

Cotton enjoys the distinction of being one of a very few who are doing outstanding work in this exquisite process in America. The series of Belgian subjects executed eight years ago is among his best works. At the Chicago Society of Etchers' exhibition in 1915 he won the Wallace De Wolfe prize for the best landscape print. This print was purchased by the Art Institute. His prints are to be found in private collections and in nearly all the public collections in America. Honorable mention for line etching was bestowed on him at the Pan-American Exposition in San Francisco.

The artist's early instructors in the Royal School of Engraving and Etching at South Kensington were such men as Alfred Hartley and Marsden Willson. Besides exhibiting in America he has also shown at the Royal Academy in London and at Walker's in Liverpool. He is a member of the Chicago Society of Etchers, the Printmakers' Society of California, the California Art Club and the Ontario Society of Artists.

John Cotton, like Clark, Gilbert and other artists of Southern California, had an interesting war experience. He was a member of the Educational Corps of the A.E.F., and had charge of a section of the art department of the University of Beaune, in Central France, established for the benefit of our American soldiers.

He was lucky enough to be able to purchase the press of the great Lepere, installed it at this university, and gathered about him a group of about twenty American boys, the record of whose work is now in Washington. Then he had the rare privilege of being commissioned to make illustrations of the leave areas of the A.E.F. in France. In this way he "saw France" as few men see it, and was enabled to gather much valuable artistic material. He is giving that material to the public from time to time in the various fields of art in which he works. Some of it is to be found in the present exhibition.

Who wouldn't be an artist under such favorable conditions as these? Who wouldn't be an artist under any conditions, for that matter?

Counterfeit Presentments—XXIII

There's a crying demand for the portrait bust of a sculptor. I enthusiastically respond with a whole sculptural group (groups are so stylish now) composed entirely of sculptors.

What the Pacific Coast has long needed is a heroic piece of sculpture to balance that lonely lady lighting the world via the Atlantic. Naturally we wish to outshine her. How better than by having a whole group of Liberties casting a cluster of Kleig lights glimmering across those benighted nations struggling in darkness?

It would further demonstrate our largeness in art as well as in sunkissed prunes and nuts, and give the sculptors a chance to set themselves up as models. No one else is capable of doing a sculptor justice but himself. His dexterity with hammer and chisel, coupled with extreme temperamentalism, admonishes extreme caution in criticising them. Therefore I shall only sketch them in a big, rough way, and avoid the dangerous pitfalls of elaborate detail. I have a tremendous respect for a skilled hammer-wielder, and none at all for jail bars and gentle juries.

No use in departing from the conventional group formation of the multitude at the base, the aspiring ones stretching upward and the leaders at the apex.

Three dominating figures at the top—correct proportion, I believe—are two female and one male, back to back, each one gazing toward his or her allotted third of the universe in a proprietary attitude.

One of the female figures is of a splendid, firm, proud and calm-eyed upright, poised in immovable vigilance against all invaders. She is the discoverer and founder of sculpture in Southern California and by rights holds the title of leader.

The other female figure is aflame with dramatic intensity and gazes agonizingly out upon a suffering world, adjusting and reforming it. Poor, miserable, weak world, it has a ministering angel with bobbed hair and white sandals brooding over it, telling its woes in clay and its hopes in stone.

The glorious, triumphant male figure, pet of Paris and Florence, pal of crowned heads, considers the two female figures as ornamental accessories to his important place, and in no wise competitors. Great, big, tempestuous, temperamental Swede, longing to boost his fellow sculptors to everlasting glory and riches, so inflated with enthusiasm that he can't stay on the ground.

Stretching up toward this eternal triangle are two very aspiring male figures, one a new-born sculptor who thunders like Jove in his effort to reach a rare atmosphere. His wild dreams of founding foundries wherein to cast his weird, sophisticated creations into bronze keep him at fever heat.

The other, a doggedly determined, practical organizer of "art bodies," and affiliator of "civic bodies," does things to make sculping a paying business. So uninspired is he that it is interesting to see if one can soar by plugging.

These two figures can't see each other; fortunately, they are on either side of the group and rise out of a rich detail of shadowy forms who are sharply defined when the limelight is turned on them. There's a soft, insistent, verse-writing sculptress; a severe and solemn lady who passes much of her time in musty museums; a rather exclusive and aloof lady with garden fountains galore to her credit; a nervous chubby-faced man who constructs massive figures for universities and such; a gushing, girlish figure of manifold accomplishments; a courteous, faithful, Swedish woodcutter; a happy-go-lucky hail-fellow with a studio as big as a factory and an abnormal hospitality; a quiet, retiring, industrious molder of dainty dancing-girls.

I am happy to have handled this group collectively. I wouldn't separate them for worlds—never mind why.—[Benjamin Blue.

Program for the Fund

The building fund "drive" of the California Art Club is growing like a snowball and gathering momentum all the time. It had a small start but it's going to have a big finish. Now, everybody's getting interested, artists and laymen alike, and before we realize what's happening the building will be up and ready for "dedication."

It has been decided by the club that the 100 pictures that have been on exhibition at 1027 West Seventh street are not to be withdrawn until the 15th inst. Bids on them are becoming brisker every day, and by the 15th inst. every picture should be sold at a good prices. The 100 canvases were donated for the fund by the artists.

On the evening of the 26th inst. a $5 program will be given at Philharmonic Auditorium for $1. The Philharmonic has been lent to the California Art Club for this purpose, and all the artists who are to take part have offered their services free of charge.

Paul Swan, classic dancer of international fame, and a painter and sculptor of note, will offer a forty-minute program of pantomime in costume. These poems in postures are all of his own composition, and have created a furor in Paris, New York, Athens and other cosmopolitan cities. That they will do the same in Los Angeles goes without saying, for Mr. Swan is a consummate artist in pantomime.

Dr. William Alanson Bryan, curator of Los Angeles Museum, will make the few and brief introductory remarks of this gala evening. He will be followed by the Orpheus Quartet, a chosen four, medal winners, who will also conclude the program. The rest of the evening will be "full of a number of things," so many and so good, by such superlative artists, that there's no doubt that we'll all be made "as happy as kings."

Ellen Beach Yaw, our own beloved Lark Ellen, accompanied by Jay Plowe on the flute, will give her famous "Nightingale Song." Clifford Lott will sing a group of his well-known solos, and, of course, Mrs. Clifford Lott will be at the piano. Henri Svedrofsky will give a violin solo—perhaps two or three. Dr. Frank Nagel and Conrad Nagel will offer their beautiful "Thanatopsis," with Frank Geiger, basso, as accompanist.

Tickets for this great concert may now be had at Duncan & Vail's, at Kanst's art gallery, at Bernay's art shop, at Cannell & Chaffin's, at Stendahl's gallery in the Ambassador, at Hotel Vista del Arroyo in Pasadena, at Fitzgerald's music store, at Birkel's, at the Franklin gallery in Hollywood, and at Barker Brothers. The tickets range in price from 50 cents to $1.50. All dollar seats may be reserved at the Auditorium a few days before the 26th inst. without extra charge.

Here's your chance to give yourself a great pleasure at small cost and to do a real service for the cause of art in Los Angeles at the same time. Don't forget the date—you'll regret it if you do.

Krasnow at MacDowell Club

Peter Krasnow, recently come from New York to Los Angeles, is holding an extremely interesting exhibition of eighty small sketches and thirty-five or forty larger canvases at the MacDowell Club, Tajo Building, through January. These pictures will be given further notice in Art and Artists next week.

The smaller canvases were recently exhibited for a week at Jefferson High School, on which occasion Mrs. Peter Krasnow, wife of the artist and a social worker and lecturer, gave a series of talks on art to the eager and interested pupils of the school.

Doctor Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in this city by all good druggists.

R RICE BURROUGHS

s the pen of Edgar Rice Burroughs, written Times, is intended to give his thousands of readers an intimate glimpse of the man whose widely read as the works of any American under fifty, but in spite of his comparative and varied career as miner, cowboy, stage traveler. It is safe to say that while he is of books he has lived more stories than living at Tarzan Ranch, Reseda, in the San Editor] to read something else, and, lo, a new world will be opened to him—and there are so many wonderful books outside the fiction line, but gosh! how they do charge for them. My favorites are travel, exploration, biography and natural history, but there are others—countless others in which you can find more wonderful things than I or any other writer can invent. Did you ever read an annual report of the Smithsonian Institute? I recently sat up nearly all night reading one that is ten years old, almost, and when, at dinner the following evening I recounted my adventures of the previous night to my three children they held them spellbound and elicited a thousand questions, 999 of which I could not answer.

And then there are magazines such as the Geographic, Asia and Popular Mechanics. These three constitute an encyclopedia of general education for adult or child that arouses a desire for more knowledge and fosters the habit of reading.

LIKES "THE VIRGINIAN"

I am fond of fiction, too, although I do not read a great deal of it. And I have my favorites—Mary Roberts Reinhart and Booth Tarkington are two of them. When I read one of Mrs. Reinhart's stories I always wish that I might have been sufficiently gifted to have written it, and then when I read something of Tarkington's I feel the same way about that. I have read "The Virginian" five or six times, and "The Prince and the Pauper" and "Little Lord Fauntleroy" as many. I believe "The Virginian" to be one of the greatest American novels ever written, and though I have heard that Mr. Wister deplores having written it I venture that 100 years from now it will constitute his sole link to fame—and I am sure that "The Virginian" will live 100 years if the Bolshevists and the I.W.W. permit civilization to endure so long as that.

Let's talk about something else—I haven't used my 1000 words yet. Literary people, for instance. Do you know any? No! You're lucky. I've met a few, but I never stayed awake long enough to get acquainted. I used to belong to a club in Chicago composed entirely of authors, artists and editors. I lunched with them once a

Program Arranged

Mme. Anna Ruzena Sprotte, the well-known Bohemian contralto, who is conceded to be one of the greatest singers in the West, spent the holidays in the mountains at Camp Baldy and Little Bear Lake and resumed her classes Tuesday. Mme. Sprotte will be heard in song and lecture recitals before several of the leading clubs of the Southland the coming season. She is the program chairman of the American Music Optimists and has arranged some of the most unique programs heard here this season.

"Californiana" Popular

Gertrude Ross, well-known California composer-pianist, will remain in California all the coming season and has numerous engagements already booked, the popularity of her Spanish-Californian songs giving her a splendid demand for club programs. She has arranged them into a medley for piano solo, which she calls "Californiana," and which has been most popular. Mrs. Ross has also appeared in numerous cities of Southern California as lecturer on the programs of the Philharmonic Orchestra and has many lectures booked for the coming season. In January, Mrs. Ross will appear with Laurence Strauss before the Friday Morning Club. She will also appear with him at Covina on the 13th inst. On the 16th she will appear at Banning, assisted by Annia Stockton Howell, soprano, and on the 19th at La Jolla with Viola Ellis, contralto. On the 18th inst., she appears at San Diego, also with Viola Ellis.

Indian Diva to Sing

In response to numerous requests of admirers and singers from all parts of the country, Charles Wakefield Cadman, famous composer, has written a new song which he calls "A Cry at Dawn" and dedicated it to Princess Tsianina, the Indian mezzo-soprano, who will appear in Los Angeles in a joint recital with him at the Philharmonic Auditorium on Thursday evening, the 11th inst., when she will sing it for the first time. The lyric is by Nelle Eberhardt, who has written the lyrics for Mr. Cadman's songs and grand operas.

IN RECITAL FRIDAY

John Smallman, whose first recital for this season will be given at Gamut Auditorium Friday evening at 8 o'clock, has prepared a most interesting program of classical and modern songs and has built the recital so that the musician and the music lover as well will find numbers of interest. QUARTET AT PASADENA

An unusually interesting musical program will be given on Tuesday evening, 9th inst., in Pasadena at the First Methodist Church, by the Los Angeles Quartet, composed of Maude Fenlon Bollman, soprano; Florence Middaugh, contralto; Raymond Hamon, tenor, and Lester Hurbut Castle, bass; with Raymond McPheeters at the piano. A special number included on the program will be Charles Wakefield Cadman's cycle, "The Morning of the Year."

Under the direction of Mrs. Bollman an attractively arranged program was given at the Times Radio Thursday.

ZOELLNER PROGRAM

One of the interesting numbers the Zoellners will play at the fourth concert of their series at the Ebell Auditorium on Monday evening, the 15th inst., is a Suite Op. 144 by Emanuel Moor, a Hungarian composer now living in Paris whose works the Zoellners have greatly popularized in this country. The suite is for two violins and piano, played by Antoinette, Amandus and Joseph Zoellner, Jr.

Few people here are aware that the cellist of the quartet, who is Joseph, Jr., is also a pianist of note. He is a graduate with high honors as pianist of the Royal Conservatory of Brussels, Belgium. In New York, Boston and European centers of art his work always aroused considerable comment in that he was also cellist of the organization and could play both instruments with so much authority.

The other works to be played by the Zoellner Quartet at their fourth concert of the series are a Quartet by Tchaikowsky, Op. 11 and the Schumann Quartet Op. 41, No. 1.

week for years and I do not recall that I ever heard a book or a picture discussed during all that time. They were not literary, but they were quite human and extremely good company. Literary people do not write. They read what other people write, discuss it, criticise it, quarrel about it and altogether take it much more seriously than the people who write it. Literary people just love to meet their favorite authors, but sometimes they are happier when they don't. If one should meet God and find that He wore a dirty collar, ate with a knife and picked his teeth in public one would feel shocked and disillusioned, would one not? Well, of course, you can not expect all authors to be better than God. There are some to be sure; but we are in the minority.

SEX STORIES A BORE

And then there are autograph collectors. Most certainly they tickle a body's vanity, or at least they did mine until I fell upon a dealer's catalogue of autographs and found much nicer ones than mine quoted at 25 cents each. Collecting is a peculiar form of insanity. I had it in boyhood—stamps, coins and postmarks. My two sons have it mildly. Four years ago they started a collection of bones and now the back porch looks like an ancient battlefield, or shambles, or something. Cows, horses, goats, wildcats, squirrels contributed various portions of their anatomies to this weird collection. There was more sense to it, though, than the collection of autographs. My youngest boy collects empty match boxes. The fact that they are all of the same kind makes no difference to him; but in that he shows the true spirit of the collector, for they are utterly useless, valuless, discarded things, and it is such that the collector loves best to gather. To my mind, the most hideous form that collecting can take is that of uncut books—the pinnacle of utter and ridiculous selfishness. I do not believe that anyone who truly loves books would have an uncut volume on his shelves.

There are, however, some books whose leaves might remain uncut for all of me—those of the modern writers of so-called sex stories, and the complete works of Charles Dickens, each of which bore me to extinction.

A thousand words are not so many, after all. Glad they are exhausted? So am I.

"Cross Currents in Europe Today," is soon to appear in England under the Harrap imprint. The Marshall Jones Company recently brought out the book in America as the third volume of the Dartmouth Alumni Lectureships.

William McFee's new novel, "Command," which Doubleday, Page & Company published this fall, has been issued in a new de luxe edition limited to 377 copies.

The edition is bound in maroon Japan paper with a crash back and is printed on deckle edge laid paper, with gilt top and head band. The labels are decorated with a sail ship in black and white against a gold bronze sky. Other books in the 377 edition are "A Six-Hour Shift," "The Feet of the Young Men," "Letters to Lithopolis," "One Day More" and "The Life and Letters of Walter H. Page."

Unavoidable delays obliged the Harvard University Press to postpone for a few weeks the publication of "Prophets of Yesterday," by John Kelman, minister of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York City. The "prophets" are Thomas Carlyle, Matthew Arnold and Robert Browning.

President Harding, according to Washington dispatches, is expected to send a message to Congress regarding William Allen White's directions in The Stag Cook Book for compiling a vegetable salad. Meanwhile Ellis Parker Butler writes to the publisher:

"Thanks for the copy of The Stag Cook Book, which my wife has already annexed. The first thing we did when we received it was, of course, to look for my own contribution in it, but as soon as we saw is was there—and had remarked that it would be a proud day for Warren G. Harding when he found he had been given a place of honor on the page opposite me—the next thing we did was to lok for Bob Davis's ham--sauce recine. For a few moments I had a nervous chill; I thought the book was a fizzle; I couldn't find the Bob Davis's ham-sauce recipe; I felt that another opportunity to make a whole world happy had been missed. And then I found the Bob Davis ham-sauce recipe masquerading as 'Cream sauce a la Worcestershire,' on page 89, and I know this was to be a better and happier world. This one Bob Davis recipe is worth three times the price of the book."

A SHEAF OF LATE BOOKS

promise as a violinist. The love of music binds together these two, so totally different in traditions, social standards and temperament. As to how the two could succeed in making the compromises so necessary to whatever permanency may still be considered desirable in the marriage relation, the author does not show, preferring to end in a glow of romance as did those old-fashioned authors so sadly discredited by their youthful protagonists.

Nevertheless, the book has new notes in it, is sincere and vital, and so is to be classed as more than a novel of promise.

THE TARIFF

The November issue of the Quarterly Journal of Economics (Harvard University Press) contains a penetrating analysis of the Tariff Act of 1922 by Frank W. Taussig, the leading tariff authority in this country; an evaluation of the textile schedules in the new Tariff Act, written by Dr. Arthur H. Cole, who is well known as an investigator in this field; an article on the foreign exchanges by A. C. Pigou; a review of the past two years of work in the British building guilds, a specific working out of guild socialism, by Carl S. Joslyn, and a most interesting account of Communism among the Mormons, by Hamilton Gardner.

complete that it gives us a comprehensive knowledge of Cotton's growth in the perception of beauty and in the technical power to express it. A few of the etchings, and more especially the aquatints, are rare. The plate for "Evening in Belgium," a beautiful aquatint, has been destroyed, and of a number of other prints only one copy remains out of an edition of twenty-five or fifty.

Especially fine are the aquatints, "Belfry of Bruges From Canal," "Pont St. Boniface, Bruges," "Belfry of Bruges at Night," and "Tranquility," the last named having a classic simplicity and beauty that is exceedingly rare in any form of art. Among the line etchings one of the most delightful is "Roman Bridge, Chester," free and flowing in its handling; "A Bit of Old Chester" and "Belgian Farm." In all these and in many others of John Cotton's etchings, the line has firmness as well as feeling, and the printing is very expert.

John W. Cotton, painter-etcher, took up the study of art at a very early age. He began as an illustrator in pen and in black and white wash, and this training fitted him for the art of the etcher, which he seriously began about ten years ago. He revived the art of the aquatint, and was successful in it from the very beginning, encouraged by the fact that many great painters, especially in Europe, have worked and are working in this medium.

Cotton enjoys the distinction of being one of a very few who are doing outstanding work in this exquisite process in America. The series of Belgian subjects executed eight years ago is among his best works. At the Chicago Society of Etchers' exhibition in 1915 he won the Wallace De Wolfe prize for the best landscape print. This print was purchased by the Art Institute. His prints are to be found in private collections and in nearly all the public collections in America. Honorable mention for line etching was bestowed on him at the Pan-American Exposition in San Francisco.

The artist's early instructors in the Royal School of Engraving and Etching at South Kensington were such men as Alfred Hartley and Marsden Willson. Besides exhibiting in America he has also shown at the Royal Academy in London and at Walker's in Liverpool. He is a member of the Chicago Society of Etchers, the Printmakers' Society of California, the California Art Club and the Ontario Society of Artists.

John Cotton, like Clark, Gilbert and other artists of Southern California, had an interesting war experience. He was a member of the Educational Corps of the A.E.F., and had charge of a section of the art department of the University of Beaune, in Central France, established for the benefit of our American soldiers.

He was lucky enough to be able to purchase the press of the great Lepere, installed it at this university, and gathered about him a group of about twenty American boys, the record of whose work is now in Washington. Then he had the rare privilege of being commissioned to make illustrations of the leave areas of the A.E.F. in France. In this way he "saw France" as few men see it, and was enabled to gather much valuable artistic material. He is giving that material to the public from time to time in the various fields of art in which he works. Some of it is to be found in the present exhibition.

Who wouldn't be an artist under such favorable conditions as these? Who wouldn't be an artist under any conditions, for that matter?

Counterfeit Presentments—XXIII

There's a crying demand for the portrait bust of a sculptor. I enthusiastically respond with a whole sculptural group (groups are so stylish now) composed entirely of sculptors.

What the Pacific Coast has long needed is a heroic piece of sculpture to balance that lonely lady lighting the world via the Atlantic. Naturally we wish to outshine her. How better than by having a whole group of Liberties casting a cluster of Kleig lights glimmering across those benighted nations struggling in darkness?

It would further demonstrate our largeness in art as well as in sun-kissed prunes and nuts, and give the sculptors a chance to set themselves up as models. No one else is capable of doing a sculptor justice but himself. His dexterity with hammer and chisel, coupled with extreme temperamentalism, admonishes extreme caution in criticising them. Therefore I shall only sketch them in a big, rough way, and avoid the dangerous pitfalls of elaborate detail. I have a tremendous respect for a skilled hammer-wielder, and none at all for jail bars and gentle juries.

No use in departing from the conventional group formation of the multitude at the base, the aspiring ones stretching upward and the leaders at the apex.

Three dominating figures at the top—correct proportion, I believe—are two female and one male, back to back, each one gazing toward his or her allotted third of the universe in a proprietary attitude.

One of the female figures is of a splendid, firm, proud and calm-eyed upright, poised in immovable vigilance against all invaders. She is the discoverer and founder of sculpture in Southern California and by rights holds the title of leader.

The other female figure is aflame with dramatic intensity and gazes agonizingly out upon a suffering world, adjusting and reforming it. Poor, miserable, weak world, it has a ministering angel with bobbed hair and white sandals brooding over it, telling its woes in clay and its hopes in stone.

The glorious, triumphant male figure, pet of Paris and Florence, pal of crowned heads, considers the two female figures as ornamental accessories to his important place, and in no wise competitors. Great, big, tempestuous, temperamental Swede, longing to boost his fellow sculptors to everlasting glory and riches, so inflated with enthusiasm that he can't stay on the ground.

Stretching up toward this eternal triangle are two very aspiring male figures, one a new-born sculptor who thunders like Jove in his effort to reach a rare atmosphere. His wild dreams of founding foundries wherein to cast his weird, sophisticated creations into bronze keep him at fever heat.

The other, a doggedly determined, practical organizer of "art bodies," and affiliator of "civic bodies," does things to make sculping a paying business. So uninspired is he that it is interesting to see if one can soar by plugging.

These two figures can't see each other; fortunately, they are on either side of the group and rise out of a rich detail of shadowy forms who are sharply defined when the limelight is turned on them. There's a soft, insistent, verse-writing sculptress; a severe and solemn lady who passes much of her time in musty museums; a rather exclusive and aloof lady with garden fountains galore to her credit; a nervous chubby-faced man who constructs massive figures for universities and such; a gushing, girlish figure of manifold accomplishments; a courteous, faithful, Swedish woodcutter; a happy-go-lucky hail-fellow with a studio as big as a factory and an abnormal hospitality; a quiet, retiring, industrious molder of dainty dancing-girls.

I am happy to have handled this group collectively. I wouldn't separate them for worlds—never mind why.—[Benjamin Blue.

Program for the Fund

The building fund "drive" of the California Art Club is growing like a snowball and gathering momentum all the time. It had a small start but it's going to have a big finish. Now, everybody's getting interested, artists and laymen alike, and before we realize what's happening the building will be up and ready for "dedication."

It has been decided by the club that the 100 pictures that have been on exhibition at 1027 West Seventh street are not to be withdrawn until the 15th inst. Bids on them are becoming brisker every day, and by the 15th inst. every picture should be sold at a good prices. The 100 canvases were donated for the fund by the artists.

On the evening of the 26th inst. a $5 program will be given at Philharmonic Auditorium for $1. The Philharmonic has been lent to the California Art Club for this purpose, and all the artists who are to take part have offered their services free of charge.

Paul Swan, classic dancer of international fame, and a painter and sculptor of note, will offer a forty-minute program of pantomime in costume. These poems in postures are all of his own composition, and have created a furor in Paris, New York, Athens and other cosmopolitan cities. That they will do the same in Los Angeles goes without saying, for Mr. Swan is a consummate artist in pantomime.

Dr. William Alanson Bryan, curator of Los Angeles Museum, will make the few and brief introductory remarks of this gala evening. He will be followed by the Orpheus Quartet, a chosen four, medal winners, who will also conclude the program. The rest of the evening will be "full of a number of things," so many and so good, by such superlative artists, that there's no doubt that we'll all be made "as happy as kings."

Ellen Beach Yaw, our own beloved Lark Ellen, accompanied by Jay Plowe on the flute, will give her famous "Nightingale Song." Clifford Lott will sing a group of his well-known solos, and, of course, Mrs. Clifford Lott will be at the piano. Henri Svedrofsky will give a violin solo—perhaps two or three. Dr. Frank Nagel and Conrad Nagel will offer their beautiful "Thanatopsis," with Frank Geiger, basso, as accompanist.

Tickets for this great concert may now be had at Duncan & Vail's, at Kanst's art gallery, at Bernay's art shop, at Canneil & Chaffin's, at Stendahl's gallery in the Ambassador, at Hotel Vista del Arroyo in Pasadena, at Fitzgerald's music store, at Birkel's, at the Franklin gallery in Hollywood, and at Barker Brothers. The tickets range in price from 50 cents to $1.50. All dollar seats may be reserved at the Auditorium a few days before the 26th inst. without extra charge.

Krasnow at MacDowell Club

Peter Krasnow, recently come from New York to Los Angeles, is holding an extremely interesting exhibition of eighty small sketches and thirty-five or forty larger canvases at the MacDowell Club, Tajo Building, through January. These pictures will be given further notice in Art and Artists next week.

The smaller canvases were recently exhibited for a week at Jefferson High School, on which occasion Mrs. Peter Krasnow, wife of the artist and a social worker and lecturer, gave a series of talks on art to the eager and interested pupils of the school.

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in this city by all good druggists.

The People and Their Daily Troubles

Listen, World!

Written and Illustrated By Elsie Robinson

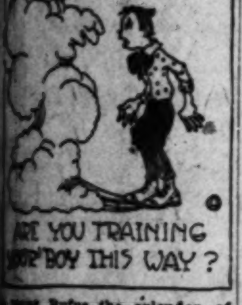
Mr. and Mrs. Edward Livingston cannot understand why young Rufus doesn't "make good." Rufus is 22. As his parents feelingly point out, "no efforts have been spared" to make him worthy of the Livingston name. He should now be justifying all these expensive exertions by embarking on some profitable business enterprise which would shortly enhance his fame and pocketbook. Instead, he hangs back and refuses to tackle life. And Mother and Father Livingston cannot understand why.

It never occurs to this worthy couple that they are reaping only what they have sown for twenty-two years. Young Rufus's fear of life is the direct and logical result of their long training. They taught him to fear life. They would indignantly deny this, yet it is the truth. From the day the boy entered into conscious thought he has been taught fear. First, fear of [illegible]. Then fear of punishment.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Livingston believed that the sparing of the rod spoiled the child. They were not cruel nor unjust, but they worshiped the god of punishment. Naturally, young Rufus came to an early conclusion that the most desirable thing in life was not-being-punished. The corrollary to is not doing anything for which you might be punished—never daring or exploring beyond conventional lines, never disturbing anyone's comfort, always playing safe. So Rufus, being a comfort-loving little boy, played safe.

As he grew older, this policy was more strongly enforced. He mustn't do this, and he mustn't do that "for people might talk." People who were talked about were under the ban in the Livingston home. No one ever stopped to point out to young Rufus the splendor of revolt, the beauty of adventuring, the humor of vagabondage. They taught him to see the obvious fact that such people were usually dirty behind the ears and behind in their rent. And Rufus, being a good, obedient young man, and having been taught to forget that Christ never paid a day's rent in his life, felt only horror of such outcasts and decided to play safe.

Now he came to be 22, and there [illegible] lay the world, amazing in its disorder, its lack of law, its upsetting of all the Livingston traditions. So, naturally, what did Rufus Livington do? He did exactly what he had been taught to do—nothing whatever. He "played safe." And his distracted parents cannot understand why all their excellent training has "failed to make a man of Rufus."



THE BOOGIE MAN!

ARE YOU TRAINING YOUR BOY THIS WAY?

Question: How many immigrants have come to this country and when was immigration largest? F. A.

Answer: No trustworthy immigration records were kept in the early history of the republic. From 1783 it is estimated that the number of immigrants to this country was about 4000 a year until 1794, when the number was increased to 10,000. Then it dropped to about 6000 until 1806, when it was reduced to practically nothing for the succeeding ten years. In 1816 it was about 8000 and the next year, 22,240. From Oct. 1, 1819, a record has been kept, but up until 1856 it included all "alien passengers arrived" and did not distinguish between immigrants and passengers, nor did it include immigration overland from Canada and Mexico. This record, which is inaccurate, as explained, shows a total of 33,630,104 from the year ending Sept. 30, 1820, to the year ending June 30, 1920. The largest immigration in any one year was 1,285,349 for the fiscal year 1907.

Q.: What is the title of the ruler of Danzig? H. E. N.

A.: This is known as a Free City and the ruler is the High Commissioner.

Q.: What is the origin of the printer's abbreviation stet? R. C.

A.: This is not an abbreviation. It is the third person, singular, subjunctive of the Latin verb stare, and is translated literally, let it stand.

Q.: What State has the most and largest ranches? R. F.

A.: The bureau of Census says that the States having the greatest number of farms of 500 acres or over are Texas, which has 23,977 of such size; North Dakota, 22,386; Montana, 17,604; South Dakota, 16,667, and Kansas, 16,801.

Q.: Why is pig iron given this name? K. T. L.

A.: Pig iron is so called because the molten metal is run into a long mass with shorter pieces attached to it at right angles. The long pieces are called the sow and the shorter are called the pigs.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES"

Insists on Accuracy

MONROVIA, Jan. 4.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In reading Myrtle Gebhart's article in the Sunday Times relative to the project to make a national park of Palm Canyon, I notice she calls this spot "a little Garden of Eden," and locates it near Riverside.

This is misleading. Riverside possesses sufficient attractions without taking from the little city of Palm Springs one of its chief assets, which is always advertised in connection with this resort—Palm Canyon. Besides, Riverside is situated approximately thirty-five miles northwest of the San Jacinto Mountain, while Palm Canyon is on the east—the desert side of this mountain, and is reached via the San Gorgonio Pass.

Another writer recently mentioned the old San Fernando Mission as being not far from Redlands. Better study the maps.

Palm Canyon is about five miles south of Palm Springs. Also Andreas and Murray canyons, the latter bearing the name of a pioneer of the San Gorgonio Pass country, the late Dr. Murray, for many years a resident of Palm Springs, a fine old gentleman.

The palms grow mostly among the boulders right in the bottom of the canyon, along the stream. The water is brackish. I will not attempt to describe the scenery more than to say it is wildly picturesque That it resembles in the remotest degree the traditional Garden of Eden is a matter of grave doubt. Better grant that distinction to Riverside or what is the matter with Hollywood?

Backed against the rocky side of the mountain on a fairly level spot, and overlooking the lower end of Palm Canyon, is an artistic little studio where one can purchase the post cards of commerce, or larger pictures of the canyon, the desert, the San Jacinto Mountain, etc., as well as the photograph of the wrinkled aborigine, "Fig Tree John," said to have been Fremont's guide.

Whether or not the Indians receive a royalty on this artistic commercializing of their scenery, including the person of this ancient Indian in an old army coat with brass buttons and a "stovepipe" hat, I am unable to state. I hope they do. They are entitled to all they can get out of the white man.

I do not blame the Indians for objecting to the proposition to make a national park out of their property. These great palm trees provide building material for their simple habitations and afford grateful shade for their live stock in summer time. The white man can always be trailed by the tin cans and waste paper he leaves in his wake, and this is not the least of his sins. Let the Indian alone; they were here before we were.

It is about twenty miles by the trail from Palm Canyon to Idyllwild, known in early days as Strawberry Valley, in the San Jacinto Mountains. I may remark in conclusion that the individual of esthetic taste who was instrumental in having the name of this beautiful and rightfully-named valley changed is no friend of mine.

WALDO M. MARQUIS.

Normalcy and Happiness

EAGLE ROCK, Jan. 3.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Your brief editorial of December 30, entitled "Friendly Enemies," should be double-leaded and printed in capitals, so important and true are the precepts therein. Oh, if the youths of our beloved country could be made to fully understand the folly and great danger of dallying and playing with the fire of things unnatural they would be more careful and avoid with the same degree of repugnance as they do, instinctively, the rattlesnake.

When once the habit is formed for a something, the pure instincts of a healthy youth rebel against, there is no chance for a retracing of the missteps except by a fight, the fortitude of which but few have, to get back to normalcy—and scars, ugly scars, are left. The poor, misguided motion-picture star whom you cite, little realized that he was dallying with a seductive fiend which meant an awful fight if not destruction. Childhood is happy till vitiated with habits of which they do not know the danger, and of which their parents or teachers fail to warn them, either through ignorance or indifference, and herein lies the delinquency of so many young people of our intensive modern, so-called civilization.

All real lovers of this, the best country on earth, who wish its continuance for the happiness of generations to follow us, can certainly abide the little restraint it imposes upon us, that the greatest good to the greatest number of its people may be realized. We certainly know by the world's history of the decadence of nations that Bacchanalian orgies and wicked, vicious habits contribute directly thereto, and legislation to counteract bad habits is not an invasion of individual rights, but a safeguarding of our happiness. The man of normal instincts never rails about his liberty being restrained, for he knows it is not. The "simple life," the joys of it—give zest to labor and to rest, to kindness, to a spirit of live and let live, a wellspring of happiness unexcelled.

W. RINER.

What Are the Charges?

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The undersigned, who has never seen, and has no desire to see an Arbuckle comedy, and who has entered the picture theater perhaps half a dozen times in as many years, feels impelled in the interests of social safety and sanity, to protest against the violent campaign now being waged for the professional extinction of Roscoe Arbuckle without prefacing such action with a distinct, specific and properly sustained charge against the individual in question. The writer, who graduated from a highly accredited law school more than twenty years ago, and has therefore some idea of what constitutes evidence, finds herself unable to determine whether Arbuckle is being baited because, in spite of the verdict rendered by a jury, he is still held to be guilty of manslaughter, where he is to be punished for breaking a constitutional amendment, or whether vengeance is to be visited upon him for being drunk and disorderly upon the occasion in question.

There can be no doubt of the fact that both clergymen and clubwomen agree with Saint Paul that all things should be done decently and in order. Therefore before proceeding further in this matter it is their solemn duty as people having "a decent regard for the opinion of mankind" that they draw up a definite indictment against Arbuckle, buttress the same with such evidence as they possess, and lay the matter before the accused person, as well as before the public, as speedily as posible. To sit in judgment in secret and persecute openly is a course of procedure fit for tyrants and bullies, but not for righteous and honorable citizens. The writer has thus far assiduously read the reports of sermons and of club meetings, yet remains ignorant of the charges and the evidence in this case. Therefore she protests by reason of her obligation as a citizen her standing as a votary of law, her affiliations in her former home as a veteran club leader, and her honor as a decent wife, mother and grandmother, against a method of social intimidation which is as unwarranted as the violence of a mob.

HELEN W. PHILLIPS.

For the Under Dog

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In regard to the "Fatty" Arbuckle case, I might write from now until doomsday and I don't believe I could say a thing that hasn't been said before, but be that as it may, I still wish to let forth a good, big squawk. I read in the papers where the Rev. Mr. Briegleb, Rev. W. S. Buchannan, Rev. Bob Shuler and Dr. J. A. Stevenson rose up in a mighty wrath against Mr. Arbuckle. Why? It looks to me when an American jury of twelve good men and women, after days of listening to every known kind of evidence, decide that Arbuckle is not guilty of the crime presented against him, and exonerated from all blame, then how in the Sam Hill can any man or set of men, regardless of the fact that they happen to be preachers, and knowing nothing at all about the evidence presented at the trial, have gall enough to get up and say that he is guilty, is more than I can understand. When a man does that, the only thing he proves, is that he doesn't believe that the court or the jury are on the square, and when you get to the stage when you don't believe in justice, as rendered by our judges and jury, then to my way of thinking, you are a bad citizen, and not fit to be called an American.

As far as "Fatty" Arbuckle is concerned, I don't know the gentleman, and never saw him in a picture but once, and I can't say that I was tickled to death then; at that there were several thousands of people in the theater who seemed to be enjoying themselves and were getting what they paid for, a good, hearty laugh. The thing that sticks in my craw is that a lot of folk are always so anxious to get up and holler their heads off at something they know nothing about. If that is the way you have to go through life in order to get to heaven, then speaking for myself, I much prefer hell.

Another thing, you haven't seen or heard of any priest or rabbi making any holler, have you? Priests and rabbis don't have to go out knocking people in order to get their names in the paper and hold their jobs. They are supposed to preach religion, and take the sinners by the hand and lead them along the right path, and that is just what they do; that is why they get along so well. They try to show you the true spirit of religion, and in doing so, have quite a job on their hands, without looking for cripples to jump on. When they find a cripple, they help him, as Christ would have done before them. That's all I have got to say and I hope that's enough.

SCOTT G. TURNER.

Amended Complaint

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 1.—[To the Editor of The Times:] My letter of December 4 may have been misunderstood. It was not my idea that all street intersections in the city should be bridged, but only a few, where the jam is worst; such as at Spring street and Seventh, Broadway and Fifth, and a few others. Automobiles would rise to it on an inclined plane, ten feet wide, and pass over it, and down an inclined plane on the other side. People on foot would not have to look out for automobiles; they would not be there. Auto drivers would not have to look out for pedestrians; they could cross the street intersection as they please, for the automobiles would be out of the way. If the trolley wires can be lowered a few feet, nothing will be in the way of anybody.

It would not be the first time that a street intersection has been bridged for pedestrians. Many years ago, in New York City, I saw a bridge over the intersection of Fulton street and Broadway, for people to cross on foot above the wagons and omnibusses; there were no autos then. After a while it was removed, so few people used it. If it were there now, it could be altered into an overhead way for autos at that junction.

If some one who is well off would have one built here as an example, it would show what an immense relief it would afford to people on foot and in automobiles also at one crowded street intersection, at least.

A policeman on the bridge could regulate the movements of autos which wished to turn corners, up there.

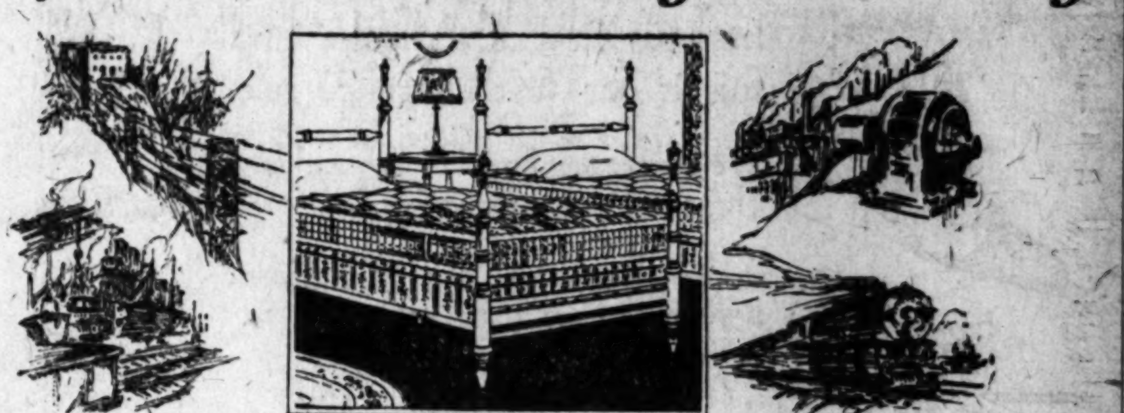
Sleep

Keeps the Wheels of Progress Turning



The giant wheels which control the comfort and convenience of our civilization are never still. A mysterious force keeps them forever turning, even when the world stops for rest.

The functions of the human system, controlled by heart and lungs and digestive organs, never cease while life lasts. At night, the power of sleep takes charge, repairs wornout tissues and creates fresh energy for the minds and muscles that direct the "wheels of progress."

Hindered Relaxation

Note upper curve of the body—hip and shoulder almost together, ribs telescoped inside the hip. Then note lower line of the body—hips and ribs stretched apart. See the crescent-shaped spinal column through which all nerve sensation is transmitted to the brain. Imagine the tension on millions of nerves protesting to the brain! And the strain on the muscular system caused by the hammock-shaped surface of the bed. This posture is the greatest cause of unrefreshed sleep and the result of the wrong type of bed.

The relaxation which invites the wonderful rebuilding power of genuine sleep depends on the right kind of bed—one properly constructed to conform to the laws of sleep and exactly suited to the needs of the person sleeping on it.

The mattress filling should be of such buoyant, resilient material that it will fit every curve line of the body easily and naturally. The springs should be of just the right tension to eliminate all strain and carry the body in perfect alignment.

Barker Bros.' Individualized Box Springs and Mattresses are designed to meet the demands of the weight, age and other characteristics of those who purchase them. Simmons Coil Springs, made to our specifications have the same advantages.

Perfect Relaxation

Note how the coils support the waistline—the body rests in its natural curve lines—the spinal column is held in proper alignment. The bed is correct because, no matter what the position of the sleeper, the tension of the springs carries the body straight, never allowing it to sink beyond the natural curve lines. Springs are so tied that each coil acts independently of the other, insuring perfect-fitting qualities—and complete relaxation. The mattress has the proper resilient filling and weight.

"After many years of stomach suffering I have at last found a medicine for that trouble. But believe me it was a timely find. I couldn't have lasted a great while longer. My stomach would bloat with gas like a barrel and the colics got to be awful. Medicine didn't help much until I got hold of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which did the trick. ALHAMBRA

One of the merriest of the Yuletide parties was that given Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Farmer in honor of their daughter Miss Nancy and son Edward, who has been at home from Stanford University for the holiday time. The Christmas colors and cheer featured the affair. The thirty-five young people who were guests danced and, later, partook of seasonable refreshments.

Miss Eva Weninger and Leslie de la Vergne, popular young people of this city, surprised their friends by being quietly married on Sunday. The ceremony was performed at 10 o'clock at All Souls' Church by Rev. Father Henry W. Gross. The bridal couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. A. Biebel. They will reside at 1105 West Main street.

OXNARD

Among the pretty parties given this season was that in honor of Miss Margaret Daily, bride-elect, in the form of a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. H. Wolf, given by Miss Beatrice Wolf and Mrs. Ashton Hays on Wednesday evening. The first part of the evening was spent in playing cards, six tables playing. Borchard were married at a quiet ceremony, witnessed only by relatives and a few close friends. The couple took a honeymoon in the southern part of the State. Public Now Prefers Vegetable Laxati

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin affords prompt relief in a natural way

THE public is constantly becoming more discriminating in its choice of things. Those subject to constipation try to learn what makes them constipated, and then avoid it. If constipation persists in spite of all their efforts they take the mildest, most easily tolerated laxative obtainable, and not a drastic physic that upsets them for days afterwards. As over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are sold a year, a large proportion of the people of this country must believe that this mild vegetable compound is the proper remedy for them, and so it is. No need to take salt waters and powders that dry up the blood; coal-tar drugs in candy form that produce skin eruptions, or calomel that salivates. These drugs are "heroic measures", over-effective, weakening and griping.

Maj. and Mrs. Pyle have returned to the Presidio at San Francisco after spending the holidays with Mrs. A. M. Forbes.

The most important affair socially of the holidays was the dancing party given by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hoffman in honor of Mrs. W. A. Hobson, who is leaving soon with a party of friends on a journey through South America. The party was given at the Athene clubhouse, which was decorated with giant boughs of fir and pine, and glittering "snow" and other reminders of an eastern Christmas were everywhere. The supper appointments were very elegant and there were unique favors. There was a bit of feature dancing by two child dancers, Laverne and Carene Ficken. About 500 guests attended. Those who assisted in the serving were Messrs. and Mmes. Myron Gabbert, W. F. Sittel, Ernest Hill, F. W. Smith, Wayne Clark, George Daly, John Thille, Mrs. Henry Neel, Miss Isabel Camarillo, Mrs. Leon Garnier.

Mrs. L. O. Droke entertained a group of friends marking her husband's birthday.

POMONA

Mr. and Mrs. William Henry, 840 Boston Place, were hosts at a turkey dinner Wednesday, the affair being an aftermath of the holiday festivities and a reunion of local and out-of-town relatives, who were delightfully entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Smith, San Antonio and San Bernardino avenues, entertained with a house party over the week-end and on Monday had a company of relatives with them for dinner. Those sharing their hospitality were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Smith and little daughter, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Fellows of Long Beach, J. Weaver of Minneapolis and Miss Dorothy Smith of Long Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Brooks, 617 North Gibbs street, entertained Wednesday evening in honor of the twenty-first birthday anniversary of their son, Arthur Brooks.

Celebrating the seventy-fifth anniversary of Mrs. S. C. Pitzer, pioneer resident of Pomona, a company of relatives gathered at her home, 705 North Garey avenue, Wednesday evening and showered her with birthday gifts and the best of wishes for the coming year.

Giving the affair as a post-nuptial compliment for her daughter, Mrs. William W. Reehl, who until her recent marriage was Miss Louise Phillips, Mrs. George S. Phillips entertained with a luncheon and bridge party at the Phillips home on East Holt avenue Thursday afternoon. It was the occasion also of the formal announcement of the engagement of Miss Felma George and Frederick Jesson, prominent Pomona business man.

Miss Naomi Belle Coontz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Coontz, 1151 Hamilton street, became the bride of Leonard L. Hastings Saturday evening, the marriage of the couple taking place at the Coontz home at 8 o'clock. Rev. R. L. Longacre of Key West, Fla., an uncle of the bride, had charge of the ceremony.

Miss Lillian May Williams and Francis G. White were married Saturday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira H. Williams, 592 East Grand avenue, Rev. Samuel G. Buckner of the Christian Church performing the ceremony at 7 o'clock. Following the wedding an informal reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Byron White, 502 Jefferson street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Cornwell, North Garey avenue, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Sunday, holding a family reunion in the afternoon and receiving congratulations, best wishes for the coming year and a number of beautiful golden wedding gifts.

RIVERSIDE

Miss Ella Waldman, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Waldman, became the bride New Year's Day of Mr. Alfred E. Parker of Berkeley. The wedding ceremony was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents on Pine street. Rev. S. A. Parker, Presbyterian minister of Berkeley and father of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony. Promptly at 8 o'clock in the evening Fred Estes played Cadman's "At Dawning" on the violin, accompanied by Miss Amy Sarles at the piano. They also played the wedding march which announced the bridal party, and during the ceremony played softly, "I Love You Truly." The bridal party marched to the marriage altar and took their places beneath a wedding bell fashioned from greenery and flowers symbolic of the holiday season. The double-ring ceremony was used. The bride was given away by her father, Mr. L. C. Waldman. Miss Myrtle Waldman, sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor. Her dress was made of changeable pink and gold taffeta and she carried a bouquet of sweet peas. Mr. Billy Van Rensselaer of Berkeley was the best man. The bride was gowned in brocaded ivory stain. Her veil was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of bride's roses and lilies of the valley mixed with maidenhair fern. Relatives and intimate friends of the bride were present. Mrs. Parker is well known in Riverside, having made this her home up to the time she entered the university. She was graduated from the Girls' High School in 1919 and the following year attended the Riverside Junior College. Since then she has been attending the University of California at Berkeley, from which she will graduate in May. Besides being a graduate student at the university, Mr. Parker is a director of play in the Berkeley playground department as well as being a sporting writer for the Berkeley Daily Gazette. After a short honeymoon in the Southland, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Parker will return to Berkeley, where they will resume their studies at the University of California.

Standing in front of a screen of greenery in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Coffelt of 182 Larchwood Place, Miss Claribel Coffelt and Mr. Jay M. Poteet exchanged nuptial vows at 2:30 o'clock the afternoon of New Year's Day. The single-ring ceremony was conducted by Rev. George H. Bassett, pastor of the First Christian Church. A program of wedding music was given preceding the ceremony by Mack Coffelt, 9-year-old brother of the bride, at the piano, and Mary Catherine Bassett, 8-year-old daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Bassett, who sang. The bride was clad daintily in white organdie with veil of tulle. She wore the slippers her mother wore at her own wedding day almost twenty-eight years before. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Following the ceremony refreshments were served by Miss Marie Poteet and Mrs. Peter Walters of Los Angeles. Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Peter Walters, Ralph and Elmer Walters, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. John Bury and Mrs. Eugene Spencer and son Fred, all of Los Angeles. Late in the afternoon the bride donned a pretty sports costume of gray and henna and Mr. and Mrs. Poteet left for a short honeymoon trip to Los Angeles and Long Beach. They will reside on the Lytle ranch in Val Verde.

The New Year was celebrated gayly at the Mission Inn. A dinner-dance of cabaret effect was held in the dining-room from 7 to 9 o'clock on Saturday evening, after which the dancing was carried on in the music room. Favors and other gay accessories of the season made the occasion more festive than usual. On Monday evening a dance was given in the music room.

Article 15—TAKE-OUTS OF PARTNER'S BID

When a player bids and his partner overbids, without any intervening bid, such overbid is called a "take-out." A take-out may be bid either in denial of or to better partner's bid. The bid which most often is overbid by partner is the original bid of one No Trump. Such a bid is really a statement to partner that the original bidder has two quick tricks in his hand, distributed among at least three suits, and tells partner to use that information to arrive at the best bid of the combined hands.

There are six well defined types of hands with which the partner of an original No Trump bidder (either first or second hand) should "take out" the No Trump bidder with a bid of his own. The following represent the six types: (presuming dealer to have bid one No Trump and second hand to have passed.)

First, with any major suit (Hearts or Spades) as good as an original bid. For example:

Hearts—A, K, 7, 6, 2.
Clubs—4, 3, 2.
Diamonds—J, 10, 7.
Spades—7, 6.
Third hand should bid two Hearts.
Hearts—7, 6, 2.
Clubs—10, 8, 7.
Diamonds—A, 7.
Spades—K, Q, 7, 4, 2.
Third hand should bid two Spades.

Second, with a singleton or void suit, third hand should bid any major suit as strong as a defensive bid; that is, with a hand that contains at least one and one-half tricks, at least one-half trick of which is in the suit. For example:

Hearts—Q, J, 7, 4, 2.
Clubs—7.
Diamonds—J, 10, 7, 6.
Spades—A, 4, 2.
Third hand should bid two Hearts.
Hearts—10, 8, 7, 4.
Clubs—
Diamonds—9, 8, 7, 6.
Spades—A, Q, 10, 7, 4.
Third hand should bid two Spades.

Third, with any six card or longer major suit, irrespective of the strength of suit or hand. For example:
Hearts—Q, 8, 7, 6, 4, 2.
Clubs—8, 7.
Diamonds—J, 4, 3.
Spades—10, 8.
Third hand should bid two Hearts.
Hearts—7, 4, 2.
Clubs—A, 2.
Diamonds—10, 7.
Spades—9, 8, 7, 6, 4, 2.
Third hand should bid two Spades.

Fourth, with any two five-card suits, one of which is a major, bid the major suit irrespective of strength held in suit or hand. For example:
Hearts—10, 9, 7, 4, 2.
Clubs—A, K, 7, 4, 2.
Diamonds—7, 2.
Spades—4.
Third hand should bid two Hearts.
Hearts—8, 4.
Clubs—7.
Diamonds—10, 7, 6, 4, 2.
Spades—J, 7, 5, 3, 2.
Third hand should bid two Spades.

Fifth, with any very strong minor suit, containing the high cards and at least seven in the suit. For example:
Hearts—10, 7.
Clubs—A, K, Q, 9, 8, 7, 2.
Diamonds—A, 4.
Spades—10, 7.
Third hand should bid two Clubs. There is a better chance for game with the suit than with the No Trump bid.
Hearts—10.
Clubs—7, 4, 2.
Diamonds—A, K, J, 10, 7, 4, 3, 2.
Spades—9.
Third hand should bid two Diamonds.

Sixth, with any two five-card minor suits, bid the stronger of the two, unless of fairly equal strength; if so, bid the one of higher value—that is, prefer Diamonds to Clubs
Hearts—7.
Clubs—A, 7, 6, 4, 2.
Diamonds—K, J, 10, 3, 2.
Spades—10, 8.
Third hand should bid two Diamonds and if overbid either by partner or opponents, should show the Clubs.

To take out partner's original No Trump when holding a hand that contains two five-card suits is obligatory and should be followed very closely. The reasons for so doing will be discussed in detail in the article on "Two-Suit Hands."

It should be noted that the minor suit take-out from weakness of partner's No Trump is not recommended. Such hands are very rare and it is better practice for the novice, at least, to allow the No Trump bid to stand.

There are various other "take-outs" over a suit bid by partner. These, as a rule, are of two classes: First, those in denial of partner's suit; second, those to improve the chances of the partnership for game. These two classes have been discussed in detail in the preceding article under the heading "Overbidding of Partner's Bid."

Brock & Company

Graceful—Gallant

Universal recognition is given the diamond as the supreme gift of lover to beloved. It is a recognition born of this fact, that the diamond is not only the most brilliant of jewels, but the most enduring. Virtually indestructible—as love should be.

Out of this recognition has grown the graceful custom of a husband giving to his wife on her wedding day, or on an anniversary of it in the after years, a platinum ring set with diamonds.

Platinum is the favored setting — sometimes paved all around with diamonds, sometimes only in part. The paving may be of diamonds, either round or square; of rubies, of emeralds of sapphires, of onyx, or of diamonds in combination with other stones.

In the same realm of sentiment is the Engagement Ring—preferably a perfect, blue-white gem, set in platinum paved with diamonds.

Monday night during the present year. Arrangements are being made for the initiation of a large class on the night of January 22.

Members of the Visalia Loyal Order of Moose will be hosts January 13, at the regular quarterly meeting of Valley lodges, at which time members from all lodges between Fresno and Bakersfield will attend a class initiation of more than 100 candidates.

LOYAL ORDER OF MOOSE

Last Wednesday night's meeting was attended largely. An initiatory class was put through the paces and many applications were placed before the investigation committee for consideration. The lodge applied for an extension of the open charter to run until the end of June, the object being to fill the membership to the 1000 mark for the next convention. The Convention Club is going to take charge of this campaign and members of the club assured the lodge that it would be pushed to a successful end.

Chairman Lincoln declared he wished to represent the most progressive lodge on the Pacific Coast when he attends the convention next June. A concerted movement is on foot to reinstate members who have allowed their membership to lapse, as well as to transfer members of other lodges to this lodge. It is estimated that at least 2000 members of other lodges are living in Los Angeles. It is the hope of Golden State to include a large number of these members in its own ranks.

From the splendid work that was done during the holiday celebrations the lodge realizes that there is some live timber within the organization and the lodge proposes to put these men to work to build Golden State Lodge to be the most progressive on the Coast. If present plans for a new home—either a long lease or a loft with home accommodations materialize, Golden State hopes, within the near future to have a home that will be a credit to Los Angeles.

The Loyal Order of Moose now boasts of two of the finest homes of any order on earth, one for the children and one for the aged. If any member has a friend for whom he wishes to do a real kindness he should bring in his application for membership.

The Women's Mooseheart Chapter gave its annual ball on December 30, with the largest crowd ever attending one of the women's functions. Mooseheart Chapter is composed of the mothers, wives, daughters and sisters of members of the Moose order.

Unity Legion No. 6 practically has completed plans for the next frolic to be given on the 27th and 28th inst. at Venice, under auspices of the Venice lodge.

Secretary Hurley reports that his drive for yearly payments is meeting with success and he feels that his report on yearly payments will compare favorably, if not better, than any other of the other lodges of the country.

STATE SOCIETIES

Former residents of Oklahoma are invited to meet at Forum Hall, 203 Mercantile Place, tomorrow evening. Milton Bryan, president of the Oklahoma Society, will preside. Music and dancing will feature the program.

The New Jersey Society reunion will be held at the Angeles Hotel on the evening of the 12th inst. H. J. Brubaker will lead community singing and a musical and speaking program will be given, followed by dancing.

Tuesday evening offers opportunity for former residents of three great States to meet old friends. The Pennsylvanians will gather in the Fraternal Brotherhood Building at 845 South Figueroa street, the Buckeyes in the Ebell clubhouse, 1719 South Figueroa, and the Missourians in Disabled Veterans' Hall, 246 South Hill street. To each a hearty invitation is given and hundreds of visitors will meet old-time friends. A program will precede the dancing.

Kansans will take notice that their reunion home is changed to a large and commodious hall, the Forum at 203 Mercantile Place. The date remains the same, the second Thursday of each month. J. D. Brown will bring his quartet on the 11th inst. All Jayhawkers are wanted. H. J. Brubaker will lead in the old-time songs. After the entertainment there will be dancing.

Friday evening the Nebraskans will have a jolly party open to all from the Cornhusker State. The reunion will be in the Music Art Hall. After the entertainment dancing will be enjoyed. President R. W. Richardson will preside.

Saturday evening the Kentuckians under the leadership of H. G. Redwine will rally at the Angelus Hotel. Following the program there will be roll call of counties and dancing. The Maple Leaf Club will open its doors to all Canadians at the Gamut clubhouse.

President Stephen A. MacNeill is calling Rhode Islanders together for a rally at Angelus Hotel Thursday evening, the 11th inst. All from that State are urged to pass the news to others.

AMERICAN YEOMEN

The following notice has been sent out to American Yeomen in Los Angeles: "Our ninth annual new membership campaign banquet will be held in March in honor of the visiting supreme officers. Let 'every member get a member' be your slogan. This will be the most wonderful banquet we have ever held in Los Angeles and we wish to have members here from all over our district. All you need to do to attend this banquet is to secure a new member. You and your members will be entitled to a free banquet ticket. Notice of the time and place of the affair will be printed later."

The Rowena Circle will meet with Mrs. V. Thatcher, 4251 East Fourth street, on the 11th inst. Bring your needle and thimble.

A dance will be given on the 12th inst., in the evening, at Lincoln Hall, Walker Theater Building, under the auspices of California Pacific Homestead, No. 2124.

Hawthorne Homestead is coming along, with bright prospects for a successful 1923, according to Foreman Frank Ellinburg. The Homestead meets every first and third Wednesday at the Hawthorne schoolhouse.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

The program of activities of Junipero Serra Council, No. 2404, Knights of Columbus, has been approved for the first part of 1923, and plans are under way to carry them out. The council meets every Friday night at the clubhouse, 612 South Flower street. The council also holds noonday meetings at Ye Bull Pen Inn every Friday. All brothers of local councils and visiting brothers are cordially invited.

On the evening of Friday an open meeting will be conducted, to which men and women of the city are invited to attend, and at which a public debate by the High School Debating Society of Loyola College, on the Sterling-Towner bill, will take place.

Junipero Serra Council is also planning for a grand ball for the evening of February 12, which will be formal and invitational.

Hollywood Council, No. 2406, will exemplify the Major Degree of the order this afternoon at the clubhouse, 612 South Flower street, with Supreme Warden, David F. Supple of San Francisco, presiding. In the evening, a grand banquet will be held, at which the initiated candidates will be the guests, and addresses will be delivered by State Deputy, D. Joseph Coyne, Past State Deputy, Paul J. McCormick, Judge of the Superior Court, District Deputy, M. W. Purcell, Supreme Warden Supple, and Grand Knight John J. McGuinness. Hollywood Council meets every Wednesday evening in the Actors' Equity Hall, Hollywood.

On next Sunday at San Fernando a new council of the order will be instituted, and there will be a gathering of Knights from all over Southern California for the occasion.

Los Angeles Council, No. 621, has reopened its evening school for ex-service men, where vocational or occupational courses are given free to men who saw service in the late war.

During the year 1922 the order gave, free of cost to 400 exservice men, scholarships in forty-one of the leading educational institutions of the country, and this without regard to the race or creed of the individual, and mostly in non-Catholic schools.

The Knights of Columbus free evening schools for ex-service men, 106 in number throughout the country, during the past school year enrolled 73,812 ex-service students and, in addition to this educational effort, is engaged in hospital service work, among disabled soldiers in 114 hospitals throughout the land, providing various comforts for the disabled soldiers.

The Knights of Columbus historical commission awarded to Prof. Flagg Bemis of Whitman College, Washington, a Methodist college, a prize of $3000 cash in its contest in American history, while the students' prize of $500 cash was awarded to another non-Catholic, Louis M. Hacker, of Columbia. All of the various activities in which the order is engaged will continue during 1923.

MASONS

Clarence F. Smith Lodge, No. 482, F. and A. M., which meets every Wednesday evening at 2305½ South Union avenue, bids the world a "Happy New Year."

The Christmas party on December 20 was a big success. When mess call sounded the banquet room was filled, and shortly afterward the guests were filled, also. Credit is due to Charlie Van Deroef, chairman of the committee, and "White Hope" Hunter, his assistant, for putting over the most wonderful party ever staged by the lodge.

Albert P. M. Jackson, Milton J. Priger and Walter H. Collins have received diplomas from the Grand Lodge, showing their proficiency in the lecture of the Third Degree.

In taking over the direction of Clarence F. Smith Lodge for the coming year, the Master has the ideal in mind of so guiding the affairs of the lodge that it will continue its prosperity, not so much by increasing its membership as by bringing to each one, particularly the newer members, a better understanding and appreciation of Masonry.

NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN WEST

H. C. Lichtenberger, local member of the Executive Board of the Japanese Exclusion League of California, attended an important meeting of the board at San Francisco last week. Much important business was transacted and proposed anti-Japanese legislation to come before Congress and the State Legislature was decided upon. The league will give battle to the Japanese menace with renewed vigor during the year and hopes to receive sufficient support in Congress to make California and the Pacific Coast safe from Oriental invasion.

Ernest R. Orfila, the new presiding officer of Ramona Parlor, starts his turn as president under a full head of steam. He has issued a proclamation addressed to the members of the organization setting out a program full of action. An intensive membership campaign will be started at once.

Warren Bovard, comptroller of the University of Southern California and a member of Ramona Parlor, has been selected by Mayor

CHRONICLE OF LODGE AFFAIRS

Cryer as a member of the Park Commission.

The board of directors of the Grizzly Bear Publishing Company, which publishes "The Grizzly Bear," the official organ of the Native Sons and Daughters, held its annual meeting last week. Managing Editor Clarence M. Hunt rendered a very gratifying report showing material increase in circulation and business of the publication.

Joel P. Thurston, a member of long standing in Ramona Parlor, died last week and was buried under the auspices of the Parlor. The interment took place at Evergreen Cemetery.

The proposal to change the name of the pioneer town of Sisson (Siskiyou county) is strenuously opposed by the Native Sons. A vigorous protest against the change was recently made by the Board of Grand Officers. The town was founded and named after Justin Hinckley Sisson, one of California's sturdy pioneers.

The Homeless Children Committee of the Native Sons and Daughters are beneficiaries under the will of the late James Calvert Foy, past president of Ramona Parlor. The amount bequeathed is $500.

"PROPS" OF PAST

Call for Antiques Submerges Director With Results

Can a person have too much of a good thing?

Maurice Tourneur, motion-picture producer, thinks so. He is at work on a screen version of Crittenden Marriott's romantic novel, "The Isle of Dead Ships," which has as its setting an island of old ships drawn into the center of the Sargasso Sea by the encircling Gulf Stream.

As these vessels date back to the early centuries when the Spanish Armada sailed the seas, it has been necessary for Tourneur's production manager, Scott R. Beal, to collect old-time ships' armament. A call was sent out for antiques, with the result that, according to Tourneur, he has been submerged in old rusty pistols, decrepit sea chests and picturesque bits of flotsam that have been preserved from days long gone by.

Tourneur says that he intends to give each member of the cast some memento of the dead ships. The all-star cast of the Tourneur production includes Anna Q. Nilsson, Milton Sills, Frank Campeau, Walter Long, Bert Woodruff, Aggie Herring and Hershal Mayhall.

OF ART AND ARTISTS

—William Alexander Percy.

...by Alson Clark

...globe-trotting artists land at ... time or other in Southern ... and not a few of them ... their tents and decide to ... here forever and a day. It seems to be actually true, therefore—what he have seen and heard so often stated in print and out—that Southern California is the Mecca of painters.

For many years Alson Clark has been a pilgrim and a wayfarer, carrying his painting-kit with him from place to place, and, judging from the pictures we have seen, having a mighty good time. But he hadn't found Mecca. Four years ago he came to Los Angeles—and remained. For the past year he has been at the head of the league of about fifteen artists and students who are drawing and painting every day in the Stickney School of Art in Pasadena. And now he is holding an attractive one-man show of twenty-five canvases in the Stendahl galleries, Ambassador Hotel.

Some of these pictures are from Europe, some from the South, and all the others from the immediate neighborhood of "Mecca." Speaking outside of metaphor, "the others" are unusually interesting and original landscapes of Southern California. Clark has chosen unhackneyed subjects, and has interpreted them from a very personal point of view. The hackneyed themes are few, and we'll dispose of them at once, delightfully painted though they are—"Casa del Ramona" and "Casa Mexicana," and certain subjects from Capistrano.

To me the most interesting of his pictures—with the exception of "Church in Charleston" and "Charleston Houses," both of which have great beauty—are the long, level reaches of waste or verduring land, with low hills in the distance, and with or without a rutted road leading with sinuous grace to those hills. In these the drawing is masterly, the values impeccably rendered, the whole scheme of color, atmosphere and form being exquisitely subtle as art and truthful to nature.

The group that enthralled me in the present exhibition numbers four canvases. They have so much of the truth to nature just mentioned that in composition they seem almost topographic. In fact, they really are actual scenes painted out of doors, for Alson Clark believes, with William M. Chase, his early instructor, that the painter may choose nature's composition exactly as the artistic photographer does—and, indeed, should do so.

But an artist was behind these four compositions, and he gave us charmnig pictures, not copies of scenes. His "feeling" went into every one of them. Here are the four: "Top of the World," "The Road to the Sea," "Solidad" and "On the Shore." If you will study these, one by one, you will discover Alson Clark's power and finesse as a painter, and no further comment from me will be needed.

They will not, however, tell you of his versatility. The beautiful, sunny "Charleston Houses," and the wonderfully varied greenness of "Church in Charleston," as well as the colorful and solidly painted "Breton Houses," will give you the correct data for this added knowledge of our painter—who, by the way, is as much a man as he is a painter.

Alson Clark served fourteen months in the great war. He served as naval aviator, having complete charge of photography in naval aviation—which, he modestly admits, he himself organized. He probably wears a medal and a title, but I was so interested in hearing of his courage, resourcefulness and prowess that I quite forgot to ask about the outward insignia.

Better yet, he remains a landscape and figure painter—one of "our own." Did he see his Mecca from an airplane? Did he carry a bomb or a brush on his first appearance among us?

Next time I see Alson Clark I'm

How to Save Money

PRACTICAL POINTERS for PRACTICAL WOMEN

by LILIAN SERENA RUDDICK.

THE GREAT UNPAID INDUSTRY

[Miss Ruddick has spent more than twenty years as efficiency worker in business and organization activities; was first woman to be made legal inspector of one of the largest educational institutions of this country, and the only woman who has held a high official position in the United States Treasury at Washington. In this column she will discuss weekly for TIMES readers the practical problems of living as they relate to woman's work in household, finance, commercial activity or civic duty. Questions bearing on these problems as they relate to the home and individual will be answered in this column if addressed to Miss Ruddick in care of THE TIMES.]

An unpaid industry? Yes, the largest in the world. The parent industry of all others, but according to the census maker without market value, for its workers are listed "no occupation."

No occupation? Yet this parent industry "home-making" furnishes the incentive, the power, around which revolve the great industries of every nation.

No occupation? But statistics released by the Department of Labor prove that the domestic work now being done by the home-maker, the wife and mother, would cost ten billions of dollars annually, at the lowest rate of payment, if recompensed in dollars and cents.

It is good that the General Federation of Women's Clubs has gone on record for recognition in the United States census of the home-maker, as a productive factor in community and nation.

WAGES VS. MARKET VALUE

No, we do not advocate recompensing the housewife in wages, for it were impossible to build the true home upon a foundation cemented together by dollars and cents. We do, however, advocate the standardization of this great unpaid industry, and the placing of its workers on the self-respecting basis of equality in the realm of production with equal shares in household income. To the housewife who is making her home an asset in the community comes the necessity for making decisions that affect not only herself and her family, but every phase of human activity. To her, therefore, who is thus perfecting herself not alone for the household task but the cultural progress of the world, is due the acknowledgment of her economic value.

COST IN DOLLARS AND CENTS

In the January Woman's Home Companion, Mrs. Winter tells the story of a clever young married woman whose services were much desired by one of the political parties prior to the last election. She was anxious to do the work but as she had three children, did all her own housework and a greater part of the sewing, she felt it impossible to give the time the work demanded. At last it was decided that the party manager supply her place in the home while she give her time and energy to the campaign.

As the worker asked no salary for herself the party manager felt he had gotten off cheap until he came to pay the bills. He found it took "a housemaid, a nursemaid, an occasional laundress, an occasional seamstress, and the cost of their board, to fill the household vacancy left by one efficient wife and mother." The cost was $176 a month.

The husband of this clever young woman earned $160 a month, and in telling of her experience she is quoted as saying, "I'm glad I'm contributing more to our household budget than George is; but I'm mighty glad he knows it."

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

STOCK SPECULATION — Question: Work for a living and have saved a few hundred. What do you advise as to purchase of . . . stock? O. T. J.

Answer: As the practical woman cannot afford to speculate it is my advice that you consult your banker or a trustworthy broker. Someone has said "while it may not necessarily be wise to buy what the bank recommends, one should never buy what it disapproves." Stocks not known or quoted on the exchange are always more or less doubtful. Government securities are first class, and there are many seasoned securities such as municipal and profit-producing corporation bonds that stand the magnifying glass of thorough investigation. It will pay you to inform yourself through the suggested avenues before making any investment.

THE GREAT WASTE—Q.: What is the greatest waste in the daily life of the average housekeeper? S. T.

A: Time and human energy. If you do not believe this analyze your physical movements for just one day. Add the loss and multiply the result by the old maxim "time is money."

THE WIFE IN BUSINESS—Q.: Husband earns small salary. Could have and save if I returned to work. What is your advice? A. M.

A.: Yours is a delicate question. Your present work, though an "unpaid industry," is the most important of all. There are times, however, when the trained business woman can best serve the interests of the home through the wage her particular talent, or business experience, will bring. This is not often. If it's the tinsel, not the gold of necessity, that beckons you, stay at home and make your housework pay in efficiency the wages of spiritual content and true service. Add these to good business management and the savings account, or the desired objective, will be yours.

FOOD EXPENSE INVENTORY Q.: Believe I spend too much on food. How can I check up? O. T. O.

A.: Study your food expense account. It is the item that tends to increase more rapidly than any other outgo, but fortunately may also be modified through careful planning. In "Save and Have" by the University Society you will find a suggested schedule for pantry inventory; also instructions in itemizing food budget, planning an economical dietary, etc. This reference may be found in the public library.

DAILY MENUS—Q.: I am so tired planning the daily menus. Isn't there any way to save on this daily mental drudgery? M. U. A.

A.: Why don't you purchase a blank menu book which provides for thirty-one days, and plan your menus in advance? This will assist the cook and enable you to purchase more economically. The United States Department of Agriculture bulletins "How to Select Food" are of assistance in the problem of menu-making. These may be secured through the Government Printing Office or read in the public library. You will also find the study of markets and market conditions of real interest. Many a penny will be saved by the knowledge thus obtained. The last of each month it is a good plan to make out an order for enough staple, canned, and package goods to last for the following month, and each week the supplies, such as eggs, cheese, butter, etc. needed to supplement the monthly order. This will reduce your daily marketing to a minimum, and the previously planned menu will do away with the mental labor of thinking each morning "oh, what shall we have today."

OF FIRST IMPORTANCE—Q.: What do you consider the most important problem to be solved in the home? P. B.

A.: How to most efficiently and helpfully do the many and varied duties that are a part of the housewife's daily program. Had you a specific thought in your query? If so, write me further, for I am interested.

PERSONAL SERVICE—Q.: I should like to talk over with someone the problems of my personal budget. Do any of the banks or savings institutions have a service director to which one can take the problems of household finance? J. O. K.

A.: While many savings banks throughout the country have a department under a competent woman director who answers questions on income management, budgets, methods of saving, banking practices, investments and information on community resources for education, I have not so far found one in Los Angeles. I understand, however, the Bank of Italy contemplates some such service as a part of their women's department. If your inquiry is too personal or complicated to be answered in this column send me two-cent stamp for personal reply.

New Skirts for Sports Wear

WHETHER of silk or wool, the new Sports Skirts embody a loveliness of fabric and design hardly equaled by past seasons. In white and colors—gay styles for a gay new season—they are in readiness for the new sweaters and blouses.

One of the newest models is of Rodier Agrilla, in beige — displaying raised checks in self color. Another is fashioned of rainbow silk, in gray or tan, flecked with very tiny—and very bright—spots of color.

Broidelaine, one of the very newest of the new fabrics, is chosen by another—a heavy, loosely-woven silk in white, gray or gray and black checks.

Then there are new silks of every description in white, gray and tan—plain or pleated. And camel's hair skirts — blocked or striped. And so many others that they can't even be mentioned, but will be shown upon request.

THIRD FLOOR

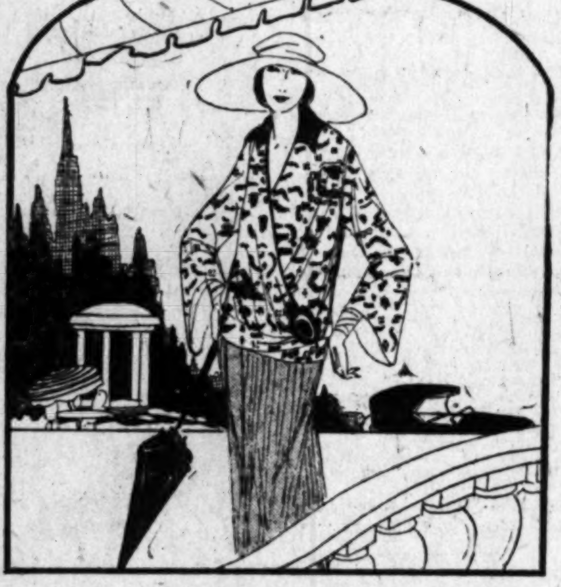
Sports Handkerch's

OF sheer linen, exquisitely hand-embroidered, they may be had in all sorts of gay colors to match one's new sports costume.

With hand-drawn threads and clusters of flowers or flower baskets, they include such shades as orchid, rose, gold, lavender, blue, yellow, tangerine, green, pink, gray or white.

Priced at $1.50 each.

FIRST FLOOR



The Blouses

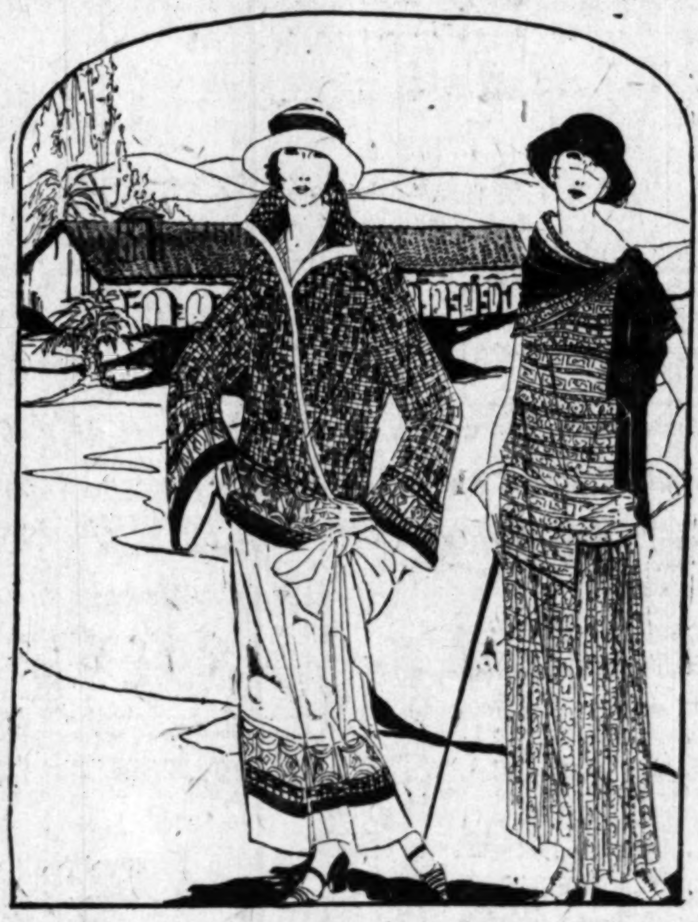
THESE borrow inspiration from far and near—and do not spare the colors. The results are typical of the California season.

One group of beaded over-blouses brings forth a galaxy of new colors; almond green, Indo blue, sunburst, sandalwood (a version of beige), bittersweet (a new henna shade), Mephisto, and a lovely jade green. These have slashed sleeves, long or three-quarter, and may be had with collars or with plain necklines.

The new San Toy Blouse, made of imported pongee, displays printed figures in gay colors—which depict quaint oriental scenes.

Other models favor crinkly crepes, extremely gay as to color and pattern. One of these is sketched—of figured roshanara, trimmed in black satin, and fastened with a black satin bow and mother of pearl buckle. Other models are on display.

THIRD FLOOR



The California Season

THE California Season is California's own.

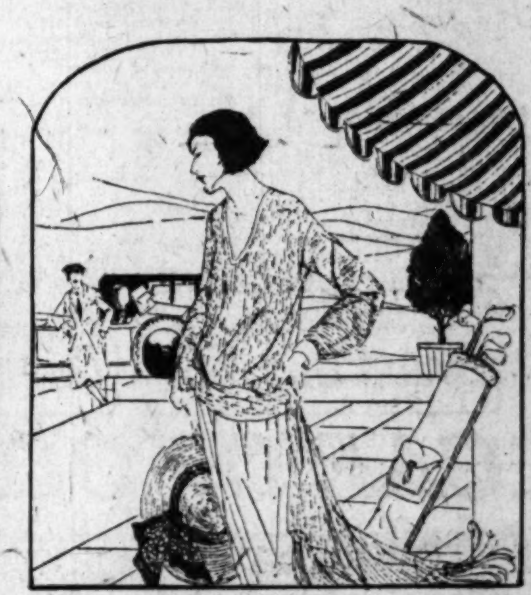
In this favored place a fifth season appears which, by its very exuberance, seems meant for playtime. And being unique, it demands and develops unique styles, original, distinctive altogether its own.

This is a page dedicated to the California Season—presenting the gayest and most typical new modes. Californians and those who visit California will find here styles which their sense of fitness will instinctively approve.

The Suit and Frock sketched are representative of the new apparel arriving every day. Frocks and Suits which the most youthful of the seasons has stamped with her approval. They are distinguished by daring and individual color harmonies and designs—and always by youth and grace.

Sketched is a Suit of an imported fabric, the box coat gay with bright shades of blue and green—a band of which adorns the white skirt. The Frock, fashioned from printed silk in shades of rose, displays the new handkerchief neck.

THIRD FLOOR



The New Sweaters

UNABLE to resist the lure of color, the new Sweaters disclose undreamed of beauties in the way of tint, as well as pattern, embroidery and design of every sort. They are brilliant reflections of the spirit of the California season.

Many of them are intended to serve the purpose of blouse as well as sweater—comfortable, convenient and vastly becoming.

One of these is fashioned of oyster white silk—with all-over braiding in two shades of Copen blue.

Another type, sketched, uniquely combines white or brilliant colored silk with tinsel, skillfully woven to produce a silver-like overtone. Still another is of fibre, braided all over in the brightest of bright spring colors.

So many are the styles, weaves and colors that lack of space prevents their mention. Enough to say that they are new—original—and very beautiful. Now on display.

THE NEW FOREIGNS

The most interesting productions from the Amreican standpoint that may be expected from Germany within the next year or six months are two Lubitsch numbers, "Die Flamme," made with Pola Negri before she came over, and another picture, said to be based on the life of Johann Strauss, the waltz king.

Others of possible moment are: "Peter The Great," a spectacular panorama with Emil Jannings in the imperial role, "Napoleon's Little Brother," inspired by the life of Jerome with Harry Liedtke featured, "Lucrezia Brogia," with Liane Hiad, "Othello," with Emil Jannings as the Moor, and "Lord Essex," a picture of the Elizabethan era.

"Othello" has just been cut and titled in New York, and will soon be given its premiere.

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

MARY PICKFORD has stepped right into the foreground of the cinema stage with her announcement that she is to produce a film version of "Faust." Her announcement, in fact, was something more than a mere announcement. It amounted to a proclamation. It indicated that contrary to rumors that were beginning to take shape Mary is not giving any ground in her intention of playing a grown-up heroine. She is literally going over the top and on to the farthest trench.

Of course, Marguerite is a heroine who may be rather generously adapted to youthfulness. She may indeed be played as a very young girl. Her age might be the subject for a considerable debate. We generally place it at 18 to 20, following the spirit of the Gothe drama, or the Gounod opera, but very few of our stage or operatic heroines have lived up to this tradition. Hardly any of them could fulfill it so efficaciously as Miss Pickford undoubtedly will on the screen.

Really, Miss Pickford could hardly have selected a more satisfactory role than Marguerite to bridge the way between her past performances and the future.

"Dorothy Vernon" is by comparison but a comic opera heroine, and if Mary does choose to make the break it is admirable that she be sufficiently daring to select a character with a big romantic background, rather than one with such shallow pictorial lines and graces as the lady of Vehnon Hall.

There is but one objection that I can see to "Faust" as a picture for Mary. And that as it happens is quite a big one. The picture may mean the sacrifice of her personal prominence for, after all, Marguerite is only one of three outstanding figures in a very large composition. In one version of the legend—I believe the "Doctor Faustus" of Marlowe—there is no Marguerite at all. Faust's tragedy is a philosophical instead of a romantic one. In nearly any version that might be conceived a good Mephistopheles can easily run away with the whole play—but mayhap in this age of woman's growing self-expression there can be devised a "Faust" in which the Marguerite will overshadow the others in prominence.

Anyway I feel that in planning her future Mary, like Doug, is looking more toward a personal prominence for herself as a producer than as a star, Doug has succeeded admirably in attaining rank as a producer in "Robin Hood," though in that picture he was also so fortunate as to have an excellent starring role.

"FAUST" is not all marguerites and roses. It also contains several legal nettles. One of these bobbed up the other day when Ida May Park made known the fact that she had copyrighted all versions of the work under the State laws. It will make an interesting test case if the matter is taken to the courts. Incidentally the litigation may have some effect on Mary's producing of "Faust" as her next picture.

NO LITIGATION is anticipated from the Ferdinand Pinney Earle quarter. The only charge that Mr. Earle can probably legally bring is one of bad luck. And this affects only himself. He appears, in fact, to enjoy the prize bad luck among picture makers. He finished his picture, "The Rubaiyat," and what with litigation and other more technical tangles, has never been able to get it in shape for release. Meanwhile some of the picture's value has been offset by the screening of another picture relating to the Persian poet, Omar Khayyam. This is "Omar, the Tentmaker," that is now showing locally.

Mr. Earle has already done some work on "Faust," this consisting of devising the painted backgrounds such as were used in "The Rubaiyat." He has gone very far in his employment of double exposure to heighten the poetry and fantasy of his pictorial effects, and this in the instance of "The Ruba-

New Faces and Familiar

In the cinemagerie, and the human stars the animal actors support in pictures, and who sometimes support them. What do the animal actors earn?

BY KENNETH TAYLOR

NO ONE has ever held a popularity contest for animal screen stars.

Why?

We won't undertake to answer for everyone, but we have a sneaking suspicion that it is because they change too often. Now you see them and now you don't.

New faces are ever-appearing on the screen in the ranks of the animal actors. And it keeps the animal trainers busy filling the demand created by predecessors dropping out.

If it isn't elephants or camels, it's cats or dogs. Even geese and ducks come in handy in lot of productions, and bears are by no means uncommon.

The other day we heard of a man who makes a business of catching rats and mice for the movies. Whenever he hears of a director who wants a couple of rats for a dirty water-front scene, he drives around with a whole truckful of live rats and lets the actors who have to work with 'em take their choice.

And the trainers have to be ready to supply substitutes, too, for there is no telling when one of the woolly or feathery actors is going to kick in or up, as the case may be, and leave the company flat. Just a week or two ago, in fact, a parrot that was working in a picture out at Lasky's was found on its back one morning, with its feet in the air—dead.

When the Coroner arrived to make the inquest he failed to see any outward signs of disease, so he opened the bird. Whadd'you think it was? Sawdust! Yep.

Some inquisitive guy had sprinkled sawdust all over the floors of the cage the night before and Pretty Pol went and stuffed herself.

And if you want to make money in the movies, just train an elephant!

Elephants earn as much as $300 a day—on days they work. Just an ordinary elephant should get $100 a day without any difficulty at all.

Of course, there are some drawbacks to elephants. They must

REJANE'S ART LIVES ON SCREEN

"Gypsy Passion" Shown at Philharmonic Preserves Genius of Departed

"Gypsy Passion," adapted from Jean Richepin's famous novel, "Miarka, the Child of the Bear," which will be shown at Philharmonic Auditorium for one week, starting Monday, the 15th inst., is a notable film from several points of view, but everything else is overshadowed by the pathetic interest attached to it from the fact that the leading character is played by Mme. Gabriel Rejane.

It is a most striking demonstration of the uncanny power of the screen to perpetuate for us the traits and gestures of those who are no more.

As for the performance of the great comedienne of modern France, it was in every sense worthy of Mme. Rejane. Never had she been seen to greater advantage. Mimicry was always Rejane's strong point. Nothing pleased her more than when the author purposely left blanks in the play to be filled in by her with her marvelously expressive by-play. It is almost as if she had been predestined for the cinema, but had come into the world forty or fifty years too soon.

The others who figure in "Gypsy Passion" are all well cast. Mlle. Desdemona Mazza and M. Ivor Nevello, who have been seen together in a previous film made by the same producer, Louis Mercanton, are both in the running to become prime favorites with the great motion-picture public of the world.

Not one scene was built up in the studio in the ordinary way. This imparts an extraordinary air of reality to the film, which most certainly will impress every spectator, though probably not one in a hundred will understand how such a result has been achieved. Some of the effects of light and shade, too, are marvelously subtle and beautiful; real pictures in which everything is carefully graduated and in which all the values are in perfect harmony.

GREAT MOMENTS IN ACTING

What Certain Scenes Have Meant to the Fame of Their Interpreters

BY HARRY CARR

"The Cheat" is to be revived by Famous Players-Lasky Company. That is to say—maybe it is. They can make another play with the same story and characters, but can they really do it again? "The Cheat" was one of those plays with one immortal moment.

A great moment which made the reputation of the play, and also made the actor famous. It was the moment of that one single glance of scorn that came from Sessue Hayakawa's eyes and withered the tawdry heroine of the story.

That one moment stamped Hayakawa as a great actor with finished silent power, and with subtlety not then known to the screen.

He is not the only actor made famous by a single moment.

Dorothy Gish was transformed from a struggling actress of small parts into a star of the first magnitude by one sidelong look.

This was in "Hearts of the World," when, as the "Little Disturber," she decided that it was better "to like what you can get" than to sigh for what is beyond your reach. So she met the advances of the big French lout who adored her with a sudden smirk behind which you were conscious of her tears.

It was one of the never-to-be-forgotten moments of the screen. It swept Dorothy into the forefront of women stars.

It smothered the fame of every other scene in a really extraordinary picture.

Another star made famous by a single scene was Rodolph Valentino. His big scene, of course, was the sultry embrace of the dancing girl in "The Four Horsemen." One single spasm, and he became the most adored stage lover of his time.

No man can account for this, only the women know. Matinee girls have gone time without number to see Valentino in that scene.

The wise director does not attempt to account for the thrill that matinee girls get out of certain stage lovers. Neither does a wise director try to pick out the actor who will agitate the girlish heart. The really wise one calls in the stenographers and the girls from the cutting-room and takes their verdict as absolutely final. The selected one may be the rottenest actor who ever lived, but only they know if he will "get over" as a stage lover.

Lillian Gish did not become famous as a result of one screen moment, but she left one impression on the screen—one scene that is likely to remain for a long time as the highest point that motion-picture art has ever attained. This was the moment when as the half-starved child in "Broken Blossoms," she was waiting for her brutal father to break into the closet and beat her to death.

Old Herr Shieldkraut, the famous Yiddish producer — sometimes called the "Jewish David Belasco"—told me that he had seen Rejane, Bernhardt and Duse in their prime, and that no one of them ever did anything as fine as Lillian Gish in that scene. The point that especially affected him, of course, was that in the supreme agony of her effort to show terror, she never let herself slip into the mannerisms of a grown person; it was always the terror of a child.

"Souls for Sale" Shows Life Behind Scenes

Published Story Expurgated for Screen

Foibles of Players Make Up Gripping Picture

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

"When a person gets through looking at this picture, he will be qualified to do anything around a studio from being an actor to being a laboratory worker!"

Rupert Hughes was kidding about his newest picture, "Souls for Sale," and what he really meant was that the picture story revealed the real studio life of the picture people.

"Souls for Sale" will be a sort of two-ring circus. You who have been dying for a peep into a studio will have your chance, in addition to which you will get portraits of picture players as they actually are in real life, and also you will get a capital story.

The story is from a magazine tale by Hughes, in which the heroine is a minister's daughter, who, seduced by a member of the choir, runs away to hide her shame and becomes a picture actress. But this was considered a bit too hectic for pictures—which shows how you can read just anything in print, but mustn't read anything but the most innocent yarns on the screen—so the heroine is still pure when she alights in pictures.

HIGH CARDS IN CAST

It is a face-card cast which adorns "Souls for Sale," and the Who's-Whoers were all on the Goldwyn lot yesterday. There is a story within a story in the picture, inasmuch as the characters are all picture people, and the director is seen making a picture with them. This picture within a picture is a costume play, and Barbara La Marr, Mae Bush and Frank Mayo were all dolled up in King Arthur costumes.

Poor Frank Mayo! All done up in heavy armor, he came over to ask me to light a cigarette for him.

"Can't do it in this beastly armor," he explained. "Good thing King Arthur and his Round Table gang didn't smoke; there wouldn't have been any wars won. And say! The fleas and red ants have all found a home! It takes four men to hoist me onto a horse. When I want to alight, I just fall off."

Barbara La Marr wore a tall head-dress and a long, slinky gown, and Mae Bush had on a suit of imitation chain armor that fitted her like a glove; Snitz Edwards was clad in cap and bells, and others were equally picturesque.

Richard Dix is going to show the world how a director really looks, even in his professional moments, so he had on regular clothes. He doesn't wear puttees at all except in the desert. He and Frank Mayo as the matinee idol of the story were doing a scene.

"No!" Rupert Hughes was calling out. "Turn your face more this way, Dix!"

"Say, Mr. Hughes," Dix remonstrated respectfully, "if there's anything I hate it's one of these actors that's always got his face to the camera! Let me turn around a little, won't you?"

But Hughes was quite firm. However, he always listens to suggestions, so they talked it over, with a partial yielding on both sides. Dix wouldn't have been quite human if he hadn't been the least bit willing to have a little more of his face in the film.

While they were fixing the reflectors and putting more film into the camera, Mr. Hughes came and sat on a bench and chatted with me.

DRAWN FROM LIFE

"A lot of the incidents in this picture really have happened either to my company or to that of other directors," he explained. "For instance, take the accident with the wind-propeller which happens in this story: That really happened to Patsy Ruth Miller in 'Remembrance,' when night scenes were being taken at 4:30 in the morning, when everybody was dead tired and shivering with cold, and somebody had moved the wind machine slightly, so that Miss Miller was within two feet of being struck by the thing, which would inevitably have killed her had she taken two steps more in the dark. Four people have lately been killed by those things, by the way, in the making of pictures. The dangers to the picture actor have never been exaggerated in fiction—in fact, they have never been really told.

"My characters do not represent any certain persons; but I have been around the stage all my life, and these are composite types. I hope I have made my screen people true to life. They are just like other folks, except that for cooperation, kindness, charity, I think they are maybe a little superior to the general run of mankind. I have known all classes of men—soldiers, writers, lawyers, storekeepers—and I think that for real nobility the actor beats them all. I have my screen vampire, Barbara La Marr, the kindest hearted character in my play, and on the other hand Mae Busch, who plays the sweet little ingenues all the time in my story, finds it necessary to find at night an outlet for natural suppressed emotions by being a little bit catty.

"Lew Cody is the only really wicked person in the story—and he isn't a picture actor in the tale!"

"Sounds like a brief for Hollywood," I remarked.

PICKED A WINNER

"Well, no—you'll find all my characters pretty human, I think," retorted Hughes. "And I have," he went on, "cast them all as nearly as possible true to experience. Eleanor Boardman's picture experience in my story is pretty true to actual happenings in her own life. You see I picked her out of an extra group being used in another picture to play a bit in one of my own pictures. She rapidly the Sachs company, were purchased for $70,000 by Ben Blumenthal, who is—or was — Pola Negri's personal manager.

"Sodom and Gomorrat" now lies upon an operating table in New York, under the knife of an expert cutter. It is said to be a mystery play, the problem being to find the story. That incidental part of the production is apparently lost somewhere in the mobs which are almost as monstrous and violent as those that beseiged valentino in Philadelphia last week. But miraculous operations have been performed by the scissors, and hence "Sodom and Gomorrah" tickles the anticipation.

I almost forgot to say that the locale of "Sodom and Gomorrah" is not Hollywood. It is not a propaganda picture.

Another Austrian composition that has attracted attention over there is "Marie Antoinette."

THE PITIFUL PART OF IT

Unquestionably there will be some interesting developments in Europe, but just now all they can think of over there is the dollar. They are out to get it, and you wouldn't blame them if you could see the ghost of a city that once was gay Vienna, or Mother Rome where at night in the cathedral doorways you see old women huddling in the hope of sleep.

When you see these things you don't feel very proud of that hysterical demonstration against foreign films that occurred in this country a year ago. You can't even feel it in your heart to blame the Italians, good allies that they are, for resenting the encroachment of American producers, who photograph a sixteenth century fountain for a film of Nero's time. But any feeling of resentment on that score was sporadic and quickly discounted by the majority.

As I have said before, the place where Mary Pickford made her appearance in Rome is far more important now than the place where the angel appeared to Pope Gregory. Even the place where the Bastille stood in Paris is now pointed out as the place where Doug and Mary were photographed. The Bastille has truly fallen.

Europe offers no menace to American producers, but America certainly presents an overwhelming lot of menaces to the poor European cinema.

I should say that the chief American menace is Jackie Coogan.

At least that was my conclusion after strolling the Paris boulevards where Jackie's little face peers out on magazine covers from every kiosk. They were European magazines, too.

I couldn't help but think that Jackie was doing a lot of evangelistic work on those boulevards. After looking upon that face, those naughty Parisian mam'selles couldn't help but want to lead a better life.

Several asked questions about him. They were frankly disappointed to learn that he is a married man!

In Marseilles I saw "The Kid" advertised. Charlie Chaplin headed the supporting cast. Or, rather, the advertisement read "Jackie Coogan with Charlie Chaplin."

WHICH IS REAL?

California has nothing to fear from Europe as a rival movie playground. When the American company filming Ibanez's "Enemies of Women" went to Monte Carlo to shoot important scenes the newspapers sought interviews as to the merits of the French Riviera as a filming place. I believe it was Alma Rubens who made reply to the question as to why the company had come there.

"Well, we wanted to get some Monte Carlo atmosphere," said Alma, "and this seems to be the best place, next to California."

Maybe Alma thinks Tijuana is in California, and, then, again, maybe she doesn't.

That reminds me of a lady on our boat, which stopped at Monte Carlo on the way to Naples. She was fearfully excited about seeing the famous resort. But upon beholding it her face registered severe disappointment.

"It looked a lot livelier in 'Foolish Wives,'" said she.

Well, it ought to, considering that a lot more money was spent on Von Stroheim's picture.

Right there is your answer to the European menace.

iyat" attracted much attention from the circle of friends to whom from time to time he exhibited the production.

Earle has, you know, been engaged to direct Theda Bara in her first picture following her return. Quite a distinction for a man who is virtually unknown on the screen as a director.

One time, at least, the jinx did not work against him.

TODAY or tomorrow, probably Jackie Coogan will be in that always interesting stage of a highly-successful star's career—between contracts. And at this writing (Friday) everybody is asking the question—whither?

It is possible, of course, that young master Coogan will continue under Sol Lesser's management, although there would seem to be some doubt about this. We understand that Douglas Fairbanks has been in frequent touch with the Coogan household, and the name of United Artists is mentioned with great persistency. Then, too, there is something in the air about Goldwyn's that sounds interesting.

We hear that the Coogans will make a trip to New York in the near future, when the future of Jackie as a star, at least for a period of several years, will be decided.

His present engagement expires on completion of "Toby Tyler," and it is expected that this will be finished today.

DID you ever hear the story of the song "Peggy, Dear"?

It has been pretty generally whispered that this popular number is an echo of the suspected romance between Charlie Chaplin and Peggy Joyce Hopkins. It was composed, I believe, by a member of the Ambassador Hotel orchestra.

Well, "Peggy, Dear," is just a popular song, and popular songs soon go out of date. And sometimes I think that — well, never mind, what I think about Chaplie's romances.

THOSE who recall visits of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra to this city, which were generally fruitful of much that was good not to say novel in music, will be interested to know that Emil Oberhoffer is at the present time a visitor at Coronado.

As you probably are aware, he is not conducting the Minneapolis orchestra this season. Henri Verbrugghen, the Belgian musician, who was a visitor in this city last year, has assumed the baton. Until lately, Mr. Verbrugghen had been in Australia, but has settled his destiny in America temporarily, after being allied with music both in England and the colonies.

Mr. Oberhoffer achieved his greatest distinction locally by introducing musical devotees to the ponderous grandeurs of Richard Strauss's "Alpine" symphony some years ago. He also first played Stravinsky's "Fireworks" here.

Viennese Film Made Ready for Spring Release

"Merry Go Round," Universal's newest Jewel production, will be completed this week under the direction of Rupert Julian. In order to have the film ready for release in the early spring the film will be cut to twelve reels, its required length, and will be ready for the first of a series of previews.

"Merry Go Round" is a story of Vienna and its characters are all Viennese. Not an American is there in the cast. The action of the narrative takes place shortly before the conclusion of the great war and the turbulent times that followed immediately after. The Praeter, the Coney Island of Vienna, is the locale of the majority of scenes.

eat an awful lot—though not $100 worth of food a day, by a long shot.

Two of the highest-salaried pachyderms in the elephant kingdom at present are Anna May and Charlie. They work in Paramount pictures.

THEIR SALARIES

How are the animal actors paid? That is, on what is the price based; ability, experience—or size?

Considering the value of elephants, you might think it was the latter. But it isn't, and proof of that fact is found in looking over the expense vouchers when a herd of camels is called upon for a scene. As they are about the next largest in size, you might think they would be the next most expensive, but they are not. Quite to the contrary, in fact, they are the very cheapest. Camels are quite a care, though.

When out on location their diet must be closely watched, and they must be provided with individual dressing-rooms of their own. Special precautions must be taken that they don't catch cold, for if Mr. Volstead of the desert once gets a touch of pneumonia, he's almost as good as gone.

"One of the delightful things about animals in the movies," says Nan Collins, casting director for United studios, "is that no matter how ordinary a name the little extra starts with, it is seldom changed. Another is that the animal extras never get jealous of one another; they don't scold if they are not given much prominence, and they don't become 'lens louses.'"

Miss Collins has been with United for four years, and has hundreds of animal extras listed. No matter what animal is needed, she has never yet failed to find just what was wanted, for her list includes enough of every variety to supply a well-filled zoo.

LINGERIE FAMILY

Some interesting examples of names sticking from extrahood to stardom are found in Hap Ward's "lingerie" family of dogs. One of the dogs was named Chemise before Hap ever thought of putting her in pictures. Another was called Teddy. Both are now famous, and their offspring, who was called Camisole at first, and now Cameo, bids fair to become one of the most popular animals in the business.

Then there's Josephine, the best-natured monkey in the films, and Bruno, the big, lumbering, good-natured bear, and Pete, the pelican, whose one ambition and desire is fish, and more fish.

Do animals actors use make-up? They do. That is, some of them do. Usually, dogs are the only ones so treated. For instance, when the company wants an ordinary mongrel, and they haven't time to run down to the pound and pick one out, they will get out the grease paint and revamp somebody's thoroughbred.

And is there really no jealousy among the stars? That is rather hard to answer.

There was a rumor, a short time ago, about Joe Martin threatening to sue Universal because he claimed Napoleon was getting the best of everything, but that seems to have fallen through.

We haven't once heard of any of the monkey tribe striking for more peanuts per day, or of any of the dogs demanding shorter hours and meatier bones. Maybe those are subjects they take up personaly and privately with their managers.

NO HORSESHOES FOR CECIL

No horseshoes or four-leaf clovers for Cecil B. De Mille. He has an entirely novel thing with which to wish himself good luck. It is an overcoat, somewhat dilapidated, that he first wore nine years ago while making "The Squaw Man." Whenever he is particularly anxious about a reproduction he begins to appear in the relic. So when he arrived on one of the sets of "Adam's Rib" recently wearing the coat some of the feature players smiled.

FOUR BIG ONES BACK IT

Herbert Rawlinson, Richard Harding Davis, George Randolph Chester and Stuart Paton. This is the quartet that is responsible for the screen production "The Scarlet Car," which will be the cinema attraction at the Hillstreet Theater next week. Rawlinson also will be on the bill in person at each performance every day in the week, offering a vaudeville act of his own conception three times daily.

MOST PHOTOGRAPHED GIRL

Jean Girardin, known from coast-to-coast as "the most photographed girl" in America, will appear in Abbey Productions. Miss Girardin's face appears on more subway and street-car advertisements than any other girl in the country. She has posed for all the magazine cover illustrators, and is in demand by national advertisers for her beautiful head portraits, used by them in boosting their products. She was formerly with Sennett comedies.

HATES TO GET UP IN MORN

Between costuming himself for "Main Street" and moving his worldly goods from the far-off fastnesses of Lankershim Harry Meyers is pretty busy. He says he likes Lankershim, but objects to rising in the cold gray dawn in order to reach the studio in time, so he is going to move to Hollywood.

went ahead, until she is the ingenue lead in this story of mine.

"I want to tell you something—there isn't a girl in the picture business who is more kind to all the extra girls than Barbara La Marr. She practically lets them help themselves from her wardrobe, and she does other equally kind things all the time. Yet on the screen she is constantly a home wrecker, a triple-X lurer of men and high-power vampire. That's the sort of girl she is in my story."

Just then into the set tumbled a small pickaninny.

"He in the cast?" I inquired.

But no, it seems he is a lucky small boy, now the company's mascot, who was picked up at Palm Springs. The youngster had run away from his home in Philadelphia, had beat his way all the way West, and had dropped off at Palm Springs, half dead. The electrician discovered him Christmas Day in the desert, brought him to the inn, the company adopted him at once, bought him clothes, bathed him, dressed him up, brought him to Los Angeles and found him a home. So Christmas meant something to him, for once at least.

"Well, aren't there any jealousies in the company?" I asked.

"Sure; at least I hope so!" said Hughes. "Professional jealousy means ambition. If players stepped back for each other, it would be like a bunch of race horses. The 'nice' horse would step back and let the other one win!"

VERSATILE TALENT IS REVEALED

Monarch of Cinema Wins Spurs as Author Under Nom de Plume

The Hollywood film colony has a new author in its midst, whose only claim to fame is that he compiled the scenario for Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood." His name appears on the program of Grauman's Hollywood Egyptian Theater as Elton Thomas, but a search of the phone books and the city directory failed to reveal his whereabouts, and according to the auditing department of the Fairbanks Picture Corporation, he has never appeared to claim any royalty checks for his literary efforts.

Thomas appeared suddenly on the cinema horizon out of a clear sky, with no blaring of trumpets or beating of drums, and although the Screen Writers' Guild has been seriously considering him for membership, it has been impossible to trace him down and secure his signature to an application blank. After the making of "Robin Hood" he dropped out of sight completely, and it is said he accompanied Mary Pickford on her recent trip East.

Rumors around the studio were to the effect that Elton Thomas is a man of wealth, who formerly appeared on the speaking stage and later amassed a fortune by appearing in pictures. It is rumored that he is a personal friend of Charlie Chaplin, and appeared in several pictures with D. W. Griffith in old Triangle days. The statement has been made that Thomas owns a beautiful home in Beverly Hills, and that he is married to one of America's most noted screen stars.

Thomas is said to be working on Douglas Fairbanks's next production, dealing with piratical adventures on the Spanish Main, but studio attaches are authority for the statement that no one by that name has been around the scenario department.

At last the identity of Author Thomas was finally revealed. He is none other than Douglas Fairbanks himself, who personally prepared the story of "Robin Hood," and feeling that his name appeared often enough on the program as the Sherwood forest outlaw and the Earl of Huntingdon, took refuge under the nom du plume of Elton Thomas.

unlucky combination of figures by superstitious persons, but it has no unfortunate significance for Sid Grauman and Douglas Fairbanks, with "Robin Hood" starting Monday on its thirteenth week at Grauman's Hollywood Egyptian Theater. Motion-picture journals all over the country are sending special writers to Hollywood to discover the secret combination that makes such an extended run possible in a community the size of the Angeleno foothill suburb. More than half of the entire population of Los Angeles has already seen "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," and the picture is still going strong.

Grauman attributes the length of the engagement to a number of factors, including the magnitude of the production itself, the lure of the new Egyptian Theater, the Nottingham Castle pageant with fifty players appearing on the stage in a spectacle de luxe, the Egyptian usherettes, the Hollywood Egyptian Theater Orchestra led by Jan Sofer, and the massive Wurlitzer, pronounced by musicians one of the finest instruments in the world, played by Frederick Burr Scholl.

This last week an added attraction has been the presence in the Egyptian forecourt of the prize-winning float of the Tournament of Roses, which the city of Glendale has placed on exhibition there through special arrangement with Sid Grauman. Made entirely of flowers moulded into a monster peacock, it is particularly in keeping with the Egyptian architecture of the theater, as the peacock was reputed the pet bird of the late Cleopatra.

Arliss Premier Today

Hailed by critics as one of the "exceptional pictures of 1922" "The Man Who Played God," starring George Arliss, is to have its first Los Angeles showing starting today at the California Theater.

Almost any report of the doings of George Arliss, noted on both the stage and screen, is interesting, but the announcement that his latest photoplay surpasses even that delightful comedy "The Ruling Passion" and his famous "Disraeli" makes this an event that is certain to draw a large and discriminating audience during this engagement.

"The Man Who Played God" is adapted from a play by Jules Eckert Goodman, founded on Gouverneur Morris's story of the same title as the picture. It was arranged for the screen by Forrest Halsey and directed by Harmon Weight.

The story deals with a world-famous musician who suddenly becomes deaf. Embittered against the whole world, he is a changed man within a few months and is driving his wife and friends from him by his despair and cynicism. To offset his deafness he has learned lip-reading and through this knowledge, just as he has determined to suicide, he learns of another life tragedy greater even than his own. His mind taken from his own grievance against the world, he begins the game of playing God. So engrossing does his work for the betterment of others become that in a short time he becomes his normal self. He believes his wife has come to care for another and offers her freedom, only to learn that, that thought, too, was only in his imagination.

Mr. Arliss is supported by a cast of unusual strength including Ann Forrest, Effie Shannon, Edward Earle, Ivan Simpson, Mary Astor and little Miriam Battista.

Carli Elinor has arranged a brilliant musical setting for this big feature and his orchestra of fifty artists will also offer four great concerts today and three every day during the week.

Public Likes "Tess"

Seldom has there been such marked interest in a photoplay as that evinced by the Los Angeles public in "Tess of the Storm Country" a United Artists release which starts its ninth week today at the Miller Theater.

It is perhaps the combination of favorite play and popular star that makes this interest so notable, but it is also certain that Miss Pickford has greatly elaborated on her histrionic efforts of eight years ago and that is probably what has had such a marked effect in intensifying the public interest.

In this epochal photoplay she is surrounded by a supporting cast of the utmost brilliance. Lloyd Hughes has the leading male role, while his wife, Gloria Hope, plays the important part of Teola Graves. Other members of the stellar cast are David Torrence, Jean Hersholt, Forrest Robinson, Mme. de Bodamere, Gus Saville, Danny Hoy and Robert Russell.

"Suzanna" Continues

Immortalizing on film the romantic days enjoyed by the first inhabitants of Southern California, Mack Sennett's historic and spectacular production "Suzanna," starring Mabel Normand, enters its third week at the Mission Theater.

The production has achieved the unique position of proving itself one of the most entrancing pictures of the past two years. Its picturesqueness, the character portrayed by Mabel Normand, the whimsical love story and the romantic atmosphere of the period all combine to make "Suzanna" a never-to-be-forgotten film.

The story of the little heroine, tomboyish, yet a rose blooming in a wilderness of beauty, carries the spectator from one adventure to another, across the glowing fields and purple hills of California, into the lowlands where cattle graze, and into the mountains, into moonlit gardens where gallant cavaliers serenade and fight for their lady loves, to fiestas, where dances and fights make up the program.

Under the direction of Gino Severi, the Mission Symphonic Orchestra renders the beautiful score accompanying the picture. Severi is also heard in violin concert every day. Reserved seats are selling for all performances, one week in advance.

Opens Second Week

"Peg o' My Heart," with Laurette Taylor as its star, starts a second week at Loew's State Theater today. Having received the greatest reception ever accorded a production, Los Angeles has welcomed its own back into the fold. After a lapse of some ten years Laurette Taylor again repeats the sensation she created in the same role in her initial screen appearance in the role she endeared herself to Angelenos at the old Burbank Theater. Now, as then, Miss Taylor has gained the mark of approval of the most critical audience in the world. A meritorious cast surrounds the star, including such players as Russell Simpson, Mahlon Hamilton, Ethel Grey Terry, Nigel Barrie, Vera Lewis, Lionel Belmore and D. R. O. Hatswell.

Bessie Clayton continues to score. The engagement of this popular New York Winter Garden star and her company of artists has been extended for the showing of "Peg o' My Heart." The popularity of this revue is reaching untold heights in the estimation of local theater-goers. Albert and Adelaide Gloria, James Clemons, Ernest Belcher's eight future Bessie Claytons and the eight harmony syncopators are presenting an altogether alluring attraction. A special prologue with Rose Perfect and Alderine Grafke is also presented.

Sinners' Styles

For the first time in many years Cecil B. De Mille copied feminine prison fashions in "Manslaughter," the feature picture which opens for a second week at the Alhambra Theater. The De Mille wardrobe, under the direction of Clare West, has become world-famous for the original fashion creations which are designed for each succeeding production.

In "Manslaughter," however, De Mille dresses the women of his cast in one part of the story according to the tastes of his fashion designers, but in another sequence he dresses them according to other dictators of fashion — the prison authorities of the State of New York.

In order that every detail of the costumes worn by the women prisoners during the penitentiary scenes might be correct, De Mille sent his assistant, Cullen Tate, to New York for genuine specimens of prison attire. As a result, the clothes worn by Leatrice Joy and Lois Wilson and the other inmates of the penitentiary are authentic reproductions of clothes worn by criminals serving sentences.

Ingram Scores Again

Rex Ingranm's claim to film immortality is justified again in his remarkable new production, "Trifling Women," which is starting a week's engagement at Tally's Broadway. It is the latest achievement of the skillful director, whose name has become synonymous with the best in filmdom and a guarantee of exceptional screen merit. "Trifling Women" equals and, in some particulars, surpasses his earlier efforts and should win a high place among the best of the photoplays made in the year just closed.

Lewis Stone, Barbara La Marr and Ramon Navarro have the leading roles and each one of them adds greatly to their fast-increasing popularity by the masterly interpretation of the difficult roles assigned them in this production.

Romance Thrills

In offering the adaptation of Mary Johnston's book, "To Have and to Hold," now playing at Grauman's Rialto, Paramount presents a vehicle that is poignant in every way. It is an appealing production of the higher order, a combination of beautiful romance and thrilling adventure, portrayed against an elaborate background.

The action for the most part is centered in the court of King James in England in the early days of the colonies, with a stirring sea battle. Bert Lytell has probably never had a more pleasing or suitable role in his career than that of Capt. Ralph Percy, a settler who defies the king's command to fight for the woman he loves. Betty Compson as Lady Jocelyn, the king's ward, is pleasing and winsome throughout and makes an ideal heroine. Theodore Kosloff has a villainous role which he portrays superbly. In this period when swords were used to settle all disputes Lytell and Kosloff inject genuine thrill into their sword-play.

Every scene in this picture is a Fitzmaurice triumph. Famous for the beauty of his productions, he has here a type of story made to order for lavish settings and beautiful compositions.

Ouida Bergere's adaptation from the famous novel has faithfully followed Mary Johnston's story, and the photography in "To Have and To Hold" is the most beautiful that has ever been seen.

Grauman's Rialto Orchestra, Maurice Lawrence conducting, has arranged a most beautifully fitting musical score for this production and Herbert Burland is heard at the Wurlitzer.

Future Revealed

Suppose it were vouchsafed to see tomorrow! Would one shape one's future differently, or persist in that course which seemed to appeal to one as being the most desirable? In "The Man Who Saw Tomorrow," the Paramount picture which is at the DeLuxe Theater for four days starting today, Thomas Meighan meets an expert psychologist who enables him to look into the future. By this means he is shown what will happen to him in case he marries either of two girls—Rita, the daughter of a South Sea trader, or Helen, an aristocratic lady of England.

He lives the two lives, separately, and the picture goes on to show what happens in either case. And at the end he makes his choice—but which way he chooses must be discovered by patrons who have a surprise finish awaiting. His travels in the dual lives lead him to England, New York, India and Russia.

The supporting cast includes Eva Novak, Theodore Roberts and June Elvidge.

FRANK WOODS RETURNING

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woods will be back in Los Angeles tomorrow or the next day from their trip to the East. It is the custom to celebrate the New Year with Mr. and Mrs. William E. Wing, the former being a scenario writer and editor. The celebration has been deferred but it will be held just the same. It is scheduled for Monday evening. Mr. Woods went East to complete a new producing organization. Mr. Woods was formerly head of the scenario department for Famous Players-Lasky. He resigned some time ago to go into his own productions.

PLAYS LEAD IN MYSTERY TALE

Lew Cody

The Symphony Theater announces for today the Los Angeles premiere of "Secrets of Paris," the screen version of Eugene Sue's most famous novel, "The Mysteries of Paris," known to almost every reader throughout the world. Here is a picture that should whet the appetites of every motion-picture fan, young or old.

"Secrets of Paris" is a production made by Charles C. Burr and Whitman Bennett, two men who stand for the very best to be had in the motion-picture field today. They always aim to make the story the true theme of their productions, as is shown in this screen version of Eugene Sue's masterpiece.

Mr. Bennett, the director, spent two years planning the making of this picture. One year alone was spent in the writing of the scenario. Those who are familiar with Eugene Sue's book will readily realize that none of the thrilling scenes have been eliminated for gingerbread and that each scene fits logically into the other.

Mr. Bennett spent weeks in picking his cast and when it was assembled claimed it to be the most remarkable one that ever passed through his hands.

The role of the Prince is taken by Lew Cody, one of the most popular stars in pictures. That sterling actor, Montague Love, plays the part of the Schoolmaster, while the dainty and talented Gladys Hulette plays Mayflower. The exacting part of the Owl is played by Rose Coghlan, one of the greatest and most beloved actresses of the stage. Effie Shannon is seen as Mme. Ferrand, while the beautiful Dolores Cassinelli is seen as Lola. William Collier, Jr., plays Francois, and J. Barney Sherry the Chancellor. Harry Sothern is the Hunchback and the massive Walter James is the Strangler.

"Secrets of Paris," in addition to its many thrills and chills, carries a very beautiful romance throughout and is heralded by the critics as being, all in all, one of the biggest pictures of the season.

By way of relieving the tension the Symphony will present on the same bill the newest of those famous Pop Tuttle comedies, "Pop Tuttle's Grass Widow."

ROYALTY TAKES LOOK AT "CAT AND CANARY"

Following the example of some millior or more of American theatergoers, rolayty also has set the stamp of approval upon "The Cat and the Canary," John Willard's famous mystery play that Kilbourn Gordon, Inc., now is presenting in the United States, England, Australia and the Orient. Cable advices to the Gordon offices in New York tell of the recent visit of King George and Queen Mary of England, Queen Maud of Norway, the Duke of York and a large party, who greatly enjoyed the performance at the Shaftsbury Theater.

"The Cat and the Canary" is the sensation of the season in London. The Daily Express speaks of it as "American ingenuity developed to its highest pitch of efficiency." The Times said that it was received with fearful joy." The Standard warns that "you are shaken and shocked and pinched," and adds that "playgoers who like 'The Bat,' will also like 'The Cat and the Canary' just as well, or better."

That the effect of the thrilling situations is just the same on both sides of the Atlantic is shown by the confession of the Chronicle critic who wrote: "I held onto the arms of my chair and very nearly shrieked out a warning," while the Evening News said that "the audience grasped its knees and seat arms, and clasped and unclasped and reclasped its fingers in an agony of suspense."

BACK AGAIN AS "PEG"

Has Appeared in Same Play Ten Years

Laurette Taylor,

In "Peg o' My Heart," at Loew's State. Laurette received much praise on the occasion of "Peg's" premiere at old Burbank here.

TEN YEARS ago Los Angeles was a fair-sized city.

Ten years ago it bragged of one big stock house, the Burbank Theater.

Ten years ago, May 25, 1912, to be exact, Los Angeles had the privilege, as it often has today, of witnessing the premiere of a play. The play was "Peg O' My Heart," destined to become one of the two greatest successes of modern theatrical history.

Julian Johnson, now editor-in-chief of the New York offices of Famous Players-Lasky, was then dramatic editor of The Times. In those days a premiere was a great event, and according to Johnson's review the elite of the city was on hand for the opening.

Ten years later almost to the day, "Peg O' My Heart" was produced for the screen by Metro with the same Peg in the title role. The screen version is now in its second week at Loew's State and bids fair to rival the original in popularity.

Recruited from the files of The Times of Ma 26, 1912, is Johnson's review of the play, which follows in part:

BY JULIAN JOHNSON

Not all stories are written with inked swords and not all players are constructed with sledge hammers. Peace alternates nicely with punch, and that the pleasant thing is quiet is no sign it will not make any noise.

Which is not an apology but an explanation. There is no artillery, or anything like artillery, in the whole play—unless you count the old base drum that makes thunder outside Robert Brunton's artistic windows.

"Peg O' My Heart" is J. Hartley Manners's new comedy. It is in three acts, was produced by the Burbank Company yesterday for the first time, and is expected to afford a Metropolitan vehicle for Miss Taylor next autumn. I say, expected; one never knows about this play thing until the time arrives.

The feature of the whole thing is Laurette Taylor as Peg. Peg ala Taylor is bigger than the play surrounding her. Miss Taylor has gone Manners one better, and shows herself not only a capable and intelligent impersonator of histronic character, but one of the subtlest comediennes on our stage today. In fact, among our comediennes—purely as interpreters of comedy, not farce, mind you—who surpasses her? I know of none. Our stage abounds in women farce players, of the type of Cahill, Irwin and Dressler but where, with the exception of Grace, George and Henrietta Crossman, are the real comediennes? And in the spirit of fun Taylor is far better than either than these.

OUTWITS FATHER TIME

You'd be surprised if anyone told you that Adele Rowland has been in musical comedy for twenty years. And when you see her this week at the Hillstreet Theater you are liable to rub your eyes and say: "Why it can't be so, for she is not more than twenty years old."

However, you must take the lady's word for it, even if you do think it is impossible.

She looks as if she might just be twenty now, even at closest range. She looks as youthful and fresh as any girl.

"Last week was the first time I appeared in vaudeville in Los Angeles and the reception accorded me was certainly gratifying. It is wonderful to feel that you have made a lot of new friends and I hope to make many more this week at the Hillstreet," said Miss Rowland.

"I have played in vaudeville in the East, but not before on the Coast, and it will be a pleasant memory for me to take back home when we go."

Miss Rowland came West with her husband, Conway Tearle, who is making a picture here for Famous Players-Lasky, with Betty Compson as co-star.

"He will be busy until March and then we will go home," said Miss Rowland. "It will be time, too, to get the garden ready. I have a little place in Westchester county, New York. It has ten acres and I have a garden. I have to get the seeds and plant things. We have an acre garden and I have a lily pond that I planned myself and a lot of other things. That is what I would like to do always—keep house, but one has to have money and this"—meaning vaudeville and musical comedy—"gets it. Even seeds cost money, you know."

Miss Rowland is keeping house in Hollywood.

"Your own cup of coffee is better in the morning," she explains. "Hotel coffee isn't so much."

YOUTH SERVES "FAUST"

How a schoolboy, writing and producing puppet plays for the fun of it, reaches at 23 the directorship of an ambitiously conceived art photodrama, is revealed in Ferdinand Earle's appointmen tof Paul Detlefsen to head his "Faust" unit.

With the care of a university professor, the ardor of an artist and the energy of a city editor, Ferdinand Earle has for twelve months planned his picture version of the age-old Faust story. Paul Detlefsen has been his chief aide. Now Earle has accepted a commission from David O. Selznick to direct "The Easiest Way" in New York and has placed Detlefsen in complete charge of work in Hollywood.

Who is this Detlefsen, who suddenly finds himself playing Atlas to a motion-picture production more stupendous in its plan than "The Rubaiyat?"

He is 23, a slight, unobtrusive youth with an engaging grin and straight blonde hair, wisps of which work into his eyes. Ask him about his work and he is instantly eagerly explaining. Ask him about himself and he blushes.

Yet young Detlefsen has made an intensive study of art, drama, story construction and human nature—"thanks to my parents, who let me choose the nature of education I desired, and helped me to get it," he said.

In grammar-school days he constructed miniature theaters, wrote little plays, designed settings for them and manipulated tiny actors by wires—a director from the start!

That is the man who is carrying on preparations to film "Faust" for Ferdinand Earle. A man to watch, they say in Hollywood.

BEAUTY TO PLAY FOIL TO COMIC

Margaret Leahy Engaged as Leading Woman in Buster Keaton's New Comedy

Margaret Leahy, England's prize-winning film beauty, has been selected to play opposite Buster Keaton, frozen-faced screen comedian, in his first five-reeler, production of which will get under way within another week.

Selected from an army of 80,000 contestants as Great Britain's most beautiful girl, Miss Leahy was brought to America by Norma and Constance Talmadge, who have agreed to sponsor her film career.

Miss Leahy was originally chosen for the role of Aggie Lynch, in "Within the Law," but after a week spent in the taking of tests it was agreed that she possessed the talents so necessary for an ingenue and she was chosen to play the important role of Buster Keaton's lead, a part more important than the one for which she was selected as the winner of the beauty contest.

Eddie Cline has been chosen to direct Buster Keaton in his initial five-reel comedy.

The Buster Keaton scenario department has been augmented by the signing of Jean Havez, who returns to Keaton after a year's absence. The solemn-visaged comedian now has a scenario staff of four talented writers, who are considered the best comedy writers in motion pictures today. Besides Havez there is Thomas J. Gray, well-known New York writer of many stage and screen successes; Joseph Mitchell, who is responsible for numerous laughing hits, and Clyde Bruckman, contributor to The Saturday Evening Post and other publications and a veteran writer for the screen.

"BULL" GETS DIRECTOR

Albert Austin, formerly associated with Charles Chaplin and recently director of several Jackie Coogan features, has been engaged to direct the next Bull Montana comedy at the Metro studios.

PRIVATE ASSAULTS SUPERIOR

But It's All in the Play, So No Court-martial Looms for Bert Lytell

Bert Lytell says it's a wonder the American Legion lets him attend their meetings after the dastardly deed he committed. For a busy scenarist made it obligatory upon Bert, who is a mere private in the ranks of Hollywood Post, American Legion to maud, manhandle and muss up no less a dignitary than the Post Commander, Walter Long.

Of course, it's all in the motion picture, "To Have and to Hold," now showing at Grauman's Rialto Theater, in which Bert plays the dashing hero and Long a murderous pirate, but even at that the stunt savors of lese majeste.

This encounter is one of the most thrilling scenes in this fine historical drama, which tells a picturesque story of early days in Virginia, and of the frivolous court of King James I of England. Mr. Lytell is a venturesome colonist who wins the fair Lady Jocelyn, played delicately and sincerely by Betty Compson, when she seeks freedom in Jamestown from the man she despises in England. In their flight from the villain they fall into the hands of the pirates and are held prisoners. Strength, urged by love and gallantry, makes Bert a difficult prisoner, and he forces the pirate Long to fight. And such a fight. The scenes are breathless in their intensity, and with two such finished actors the acting takes righ rank.

"To Have and to Hold" has an exceptionally strong cast, for besides Betty Compson, Bert Lytell and Walter Long, there are such artists as Theodore Kosloff, Raymond Hatton, W. J. Ferguson and Lucian Littlefield.

A splendid musical program is being offered by the Grauman Rialto orchestra, under Maurice Lawrence's direction, Herbert Burland at the Wurlitzer, and Mischa Violin, the genius Russian violinist, who is offering "Jigeunerweisen," by De Sarasate, and creating a furor of enthusiasm.

SUNSHINE AUDIENCES WIN FAME

Los Angeles Theatergoers Reflect Skies of Southland, Says Miss Gleason

Los Angeles' famed sunshine is reflected in its audiences, according to Adda Gleason, who has returned to the Morosco after having toured the country the last three years under the direction of William A. Brady. Los Angeles' "sunshine audiences" are known to the players far and wide, Miss Gleason says.

"Los Angeles is famed as a 'comedy town,' for the people here seem to carry their sunshine into the theaters," the actress says. "They reflect the happiness in their own lives. For if one cannot be happy in Los Angeles, where could he be?

"New York theatergoers are characterized by constantly seeking a new sort of thrill in the theater. Their moods constantly change. They will dash from the lightest musical comedy to gloomiest tragedy and then back again. But Los Angeles seems to hold steadfastly to its comedy likes.

"And in touring on the road each section seems to have its own particular joys and aversions. In some of the most woe-begone sort of places, where one would naturally think the populace would welcome something cheerful, the heavy plays pack the houses. The comedies are scorned. This may be because they were educated to melodrama in the old repertoire days.

"New York, just at present, imagines itself turning highbrowish. Of the current attractions, eighteen are of more serious mien. The musical comedy and revue attractions have dwindled to a dozen. They are even working up an enthusiasm over Shakespeare.

"But Los Angeles, its own people, as well as the thousands of visitors here, wants to be amused. Therefore the theatergores here have won the name of 'sunshine audiences.'"

ALL ABOUT JACKIE

Pictures, Present and Past, of Child Star Discussed

With the advent of the new year comes the announcement from Sol Lesser on the West Coast to the effect that arrangements have been completed whereby Associated First National Pictures, Inc., will release and distribute two new Jackie Coogan productions.

The new Coogan features are "Daddy," an original story, which was directed by E. Mason Hopper, and which will be released some time in March, and "Toby Tyler," the well-known circus story, which is now practically completed, and which was directed by Eddie Cline, who was loaned the Coogan unit through the courtesy of Joseph Schenck. Cline is Buster Keaton's director.

Each of these Coogan offerings will be released, as have the former Coogan features, on open-market booking basis. According to Sol and Irving Lesser, each production should gross $750,000, exclusive of all foreign bookings. Jackie's popularity abroad is tremendous, and building higher and higher as each of his offerings is presented. "Oliver Twist" is said to be the biggest film attraction England has presented in recent years. It is meeting with greater success than any one anticipated.

WRITES SONGS, TOO

Author of many famous stories, an editor with few equals, and now a composer of a popular song. That is enough to turn the head of many women as young as Eve Unsell. Miss Unsell supervises B. P. Schulberg productions, yet has time to make her name a household word as the author of "Ching, Ching, Chinaman," a tune so full of pep your feet just can't behave. It was inspired by "Shadows," declared to be one of the great film stories of the year.

ANGELENO SEES OPERAS IN EAST

Miss Margaret Goetz

Miss Margaret Goetz has returned from a six weeks' visit in New York, Washington and Chicago, where she heard seventeen operas and many concerts and plays. She also met Mme. Florence Easton, Edward Johnson, Jeritza, Matzenauer, Queena Mario, Clarence Whitehill, Paul Bender, Chaliapin, Bourskaya, Calve, Edith Mason, Cyrena Van Gordon, Pavlovska, Mrs. H. A. Beach, Marion MacDowell, Ernest Schelling, Paderewsky, Gila Glaze, Frank La Forge and many others.

In dramatic circles she was entertained by Daniel Frohman and heard Cecil Sorel, Richard Bennett, Henry Miller, Ruth Chatterton, Juan De La Cruz, Robert Edeson, Cornelia Skinner and Stark Young (on stage craft) and Conductor Leopold Stokowski of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra. She heard the orchestra in Washington. Ernest Schelling was the soloist. In Chicago she heard the Civic Orchestra, where our young Californian, Alfred Wallenstein, is first 'cellist.

She gave operalogues and "Snow Maiden" and "Jewels of the Madonna" in New York and Brooklyn. In Washington and Chicago she gave "Rosecavalier" and "Coq d'Or." In New York at the opera she saw Charles Cadman, Princess Tsianina, Archibald Sessions and Lester Donahue.

Miss Goetz will give several operalogues in Pasadena, Redlands and Los Angeles and nearby cities, with Miss Grace A. Freebey at the piano.

She will also give "A Review of Music and Drama of New York and Chicago" for clubs and schools.

ROTARIANS SAW MARY BAREFOOT

Doug Led "Tess" in Rags Before Convention Throng at Studio Reception

During the recent thirteenth international convention of Rotarians at Los Angeles, the Pickford-Fairbanks studios were thrown open to the delegates, and thousands of members of the big organization swarmed to this favored spot in filmland.

Douglas Fairbanks was in the midst of the gigantic task of producing "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," and Mary Pickford was just as busy at the equally big task involved in her new production of "Tess of the Storm Country," which starts today on its ninth week at the Miller Theater. Both these special features were being made for the United Artists' Corporation.

Miss Pickford intended to leave most of the entertaining of the Rotarian guests to her actor-producer husband. She had a good reason for this, inasmuch as at the time she was living the life of Tess, the waif of a lowly fishing village, and not only was she attired in rags, but her ankles and feet were bare. Her modesty forbade her parading before strangers in such attire.

However, when something like 5000 Rotarians had succeeded in getting into the grounds and were assembled in the huge banqueting hall of the King Richard Castle set where Mr. Fairbanks and his company were working on "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," there was a decided and clamorous demand for Miss Pickford. It was persistent, and when it became apparent that there was to be no let-up, Fairbanks ordered a recess for his workers and disappeared.

Thus it came to pass that in five minutes Mr. Fairbanks had "America's Sweetheart," togged out as the humble Tess, in the presence of the guests, and leading her by the hand, escorted her the full length of the huge set between two lanes of cheering men.

STRONG CAST WITH GLORIA

Gloria Swanson has been surrounded by a strong cast for her next Paramount picture, "Prodigal Daughters," a Sam Wood production. Ralph Graves will be the leading man and Vera Reynolds will play the part of a young, pleasure-loving girl who is plunged into tragedy through her love of a good time. Theodore Roberts has the role of a successful American business man. Others in the cast are Louise Dresser, Charles Clary, Robert Agnew, Maude Wagner and Julia Faye.

STONE IN NEW YORK

Lewis Stone, who has been working on the West Coast in Paramount pictures, has arrived in New York to assume the principal male role in "You Can't Fool Your Wife," George Melford's next production. This picture is from an original story by Waldemar Young, and has in the cast Leatrice Joy, Nita Naldi and Pauline Garon.

WANTS TO FARM

Constance Talmadge, First National's comedienne, yearns to become a California farmerette, but in the meantime, the call for more of her pictures is inexorable and consistent, so she will probably have to indulge her agricultural desires by proxy.

Bessie Eyton is seen in a new character as the Cockney girl, which she makes one of the outstanding characters of the play. Others in the cast are Harry Garrity, Joseph Eggenton, Joseph Bell, Felix Vallie and Charles Buck.

All New at Orpheum

Everything new but the theater at the Orpheum the coming week, for beginning Monday matinee, January 8, there will be a no-hold-over bill. It has joint headliners, too. One is a new form of dance revue, composed of Miss Bobby Folsom, Jack Denny and their metropolitan orchestra. It seems that all regular dance acts now carry their own music, and the Orpheum has been especially fortunate in securing several such, this being one. Miss Folsom is a winsome dancing sprite, and Denny is a classic stepper of modern jazz, and combined with their excellent orchestra, they afford a fine series of numbers in varied form.

John B. Hymer, whom everyone knows as Tom Walker from his long impersonation of this lovable negro character, will return in his classic little play, "Tom Walker in Dixie." This is the one in which Tom sees the devil and that originated the most-used bit of modern slang, "Come on, Red!" It also has the unusual scene wherein Tom is led to the electric chair—the last thing that one would think could be funny. In the capable hands of this master it is hilarious. The act has several episodes, all well and smartly done.

Billy Wayne and Ruth Warren have a new form of patter act in which, on their return from a party, they miss "The Last Car." The back and forth talk of a humorous character—to everyone save themselves—is cause for much merriment. Billy Dale, long the "silly ass" Englishman of the real stage, and known as a writer of fun for both stage and pictures, is returning in a new act from his pen, "It Happened in Paris." With the assistance of Dorothy Aubrey and Walter Kane, the fun moves rapidly throughout the act, which is along the lines of Billy's best composition.

Eric Zardo, an eminent pianist of the concert stage, has been drafted for vaudeville and will give a short recital during each performance. Zardo is one of the most famous of modern pianists, and has been heard here in concert before. He will be thoroughly enjoyed by all lovers of real music. Fred Bernard and Sid Garry are southern syncopators of good songs; Elly is the little marvel child juggler, and will do seemingly impossible tricks cleverly, and the Florenis will be seen in superb posings and equilibrist feats. International news and topics of the day will be the added features on this all-new bill.

"Gold Diggers" Opens

Avery Hopwood's most successful comedy, "The Gold Diggers," which had a run of two years at the Lyceum Theater, New York, followed by a season's run at Powers's Theater, Chicago, will be presented, under the direction of David Belasco, at the Mason Operahouse for one week beginning Monday night.

The importance and worth of this joyous dramatic offering of Mr. Hopwood's and Mr. Belasco's are well known to all playgoers who keep abreast of the news of the theater, and the occasion of the first performance of the play in this city will undoubtedly be one of the high points in the local dramatic season.

The plot of "The Gold Diggers" concerns the exploits of a group of typical New York chorus girls during the hours when they are not in the view of the public, but are, instead, engaged in advancing their own interests in the matters of money and sentiment. Mr. Hopwood reveals this intricate and sprightly sort of existence in a most skillful and humorous fashion, and though the picture presented is laughable it is nonetheless true to life.

The leading role of Jerry Lamar is played by Gertrude Vanderbilt, who is well known to playgoers of this city, and who made a distinguished success in the part during the long run of the play in Chicago. The unusually large company is made up of players of the first rank and the entire production is in accordance with the high standards maintained in all of Mr. Belasco's organizations. The cast includes Charles Hammond, David Glassford, Thomas M. Reynolds, Day Manson, Harry Alexander, Richard W. Haines, Harry D. Shook, Walter Hagerty, Lorraine Lally, Winifred Barry, Cora Williams, Daisy Rudd, Ursula Hollande, Edna Bennett, Katherine Walsh, Marguerite Austin, Lucile Adams, Sally Bergman and others.

"Climbing" Still Draws

With Mary Newcomb in the leading role and every member of the Wilkes company lending excellent support, "Climbing" will enter on its second week at the Majestic this afternoon with every assurance of success.

The new drama by Miss Lee Hutty met with instant response on its first presentation, the huge audience feeling its intense dramatic "punch" in every act. Its action is so logical and so well carried out that the future of Miss Hutty as a dramatic writer is assured. Miss Hutty makes her debut as a dramatist with "Climbing," but the play itself shows none of the flaws of inexperience.

Miss Newcomb as Myra, the servant girl with high ideals and lofty aims, rises to supreme acting in her heavier scenes. Her audiences have been held enthralled, for both the actress and her character are appealing and gripping in the extreme.

Other members of the Majestic company, as though inspired by Miss Newcomb's work, are perfect in their respective roles. George Barnes and Tom Chatterton in the heavier male parts, Fred Cummings in a comedy bit, and Winifred Wilkes, Maureen Olson, Kathleen Wallace, Pauline French, Carrie Clark Ward, Fanchon Everhart and little Margretta Curry are all pleasing.

New Music Show

The new musical comedy production of the Hi Jinks Company at the Burbank Theater promises to be of a different nature than has yet been staged for patrons of this theater. Walter Van has secured an importation from New York and the tabloid version of this big hit will be the attraction. It is stated that in view of the spectacular nature of the new show and because of the new comedy angle with which the piece is endowed it is important that patrons come early in order to see every detail of the technical effects which begin with the very first scene.

The fun will be fast and furious, and Lee Bud Harrison has been given a blackface comedy role with which he should bring down the house. George Clark is also promising a line of dialect to delight his friends out front. Dolly Daye and Ben Dix, are in the cast with prominent roles. George Crump and Kenneth Kemper will lend their talents and voices to the perfection of the performance, and Mae McCrea, female Al Jolson, has another special song number with which she hopes to provide enjoyment.

The Beauty Chorus will charm on the electric runway in a new set of gowns and costumes.

Mules Mirth Makers

At Pantages a distinctly novel feature is promised—a troupe of mules whose highly trained intelligence, combined with the natural mulishness of the animal, furnishes material for many hearty laughs. The act is known as "Wood's Comedy Mules" and boasts as its stellar lights Dixie the high-jumper Nashville, the only crawling mule in captivity, and Terry, the original "Dollar-a-Minute" mule. Also in the comedy section of the show is Ridiculous Recco, whose specialty is showing the audience how to become acrobats. After taking a course with Recco anybody can go right out on the stage and make a fool of himself. Of all the vaudeville stars, who come to Pantages with sufficient frequency to be classed as "regulars," none is more welcome than Britt Wood who returns with his harmonica, his boob stories and his funny dances.

A touch of art is added to the program by Maud Earl, a high-voiced soprano, who offers "Songs a la Roulette." The Fashion Plate Minstrels promise a "girlie" revue with a cast of well-known vaudeville singers, dancers and comedians. Alexander Brothers and Evelyn specialize in a species of handball that will interest every devotee of that game. They use half-a-dozen or more balls, all of which must be kept in action at the same time.

A special added feature will be the vaudeville debut of Baby Muriel Frances Dana, who will appear at each performance in a clever little act which Mr. Alexander Pantages calls "The Toy Prima Donna." Little Miss Dana will also be seen on the screen in the week's feature film, "The Forgotten Law," a Metro picture starring Milton Sills, Cleo Ridgely and Jack Mulhall, as well as the baby star.

Hillstreet's Program

A star from the screen and a star from musical comedy will share headline honors at the Hillstreet Theater the coming week, topping a bill that sets it apart as one of the most distinguished programs of the season.

From pictureland comes Herbert Rawlinson, one of the most popular actors of the silver sheet, who is making his debut in vaudeville, while at the same time his latest picture, "The Scarlet Car," will be the feature of the screen program. Rawlinson will entertain with witty stories and songs, at which he is an adept. By special arrangement with Universal, the star was engaged for this one week.

The twinkler from musical comedy is Adele Rowland, wife of Conway Tearle, the moving-picture star. In "Tuneful Narratives," Miss Rowland will repeat the success she achieved the past week at the Broadway Orpheum, where she appeared for the first time in this city in vaudeville. Her success was instantaneous. She combines an excellent voice with a wonderful personality that carries her straight to the hearts of her audience.

A feature of the bill is the presentation of "Flirtation," a comedy of youth sprinkled with music. Supported by a cast of four, Jack Debell and Jean Waters are the featured players.

"A Tete-a-Tete in Song" is the captivating title of the offering of James Burke and Eleanor Durkin. In consists of a bit of conversation and a bit of song that makes excellent entertainment.

The Florenis—Virgil and Blanche—are European poseurs and equilibrists quite out of the ordinary. They were a sensation in Milan, Italy, where they were called "the living art gallery."

De Witt, Burns and Torrence in a mirthful creation called "The Awakening of Toys," will present some novel and amusing bits of fun and frolic.

In addition to Herbert Rawlinson in "The Scarlet Car," the screen program will be completed with "In the Days of Buffalo Bill," International News, Aesop's Fables and an Eddie Lyons comedy.

TRIO IN CONCERT

The Los Angeles Trio, ensemble—May MacDonald Hope, pianiste; Calmon Luboviski, violinist; Ilya Bronson, violoncellist—will present the third concert of their annual series Thursday evening next at the Ebell Clubhouse.

In selecting this program the trio has upheld its high standard of presenting music which is both historically significant and artistically pleasing.

Two of the numbers, a violin sonata, Opus 21, by Ernest von Dohnanyi, and the Trio in B Major by Vincent d'Indy, are new to Los Angeles, while the latter will receive its first performance on the Pacific Coast. It was introduced to America last year by the New York Trio with an enthusiastic response.

The Sonata, especially, will receive a sympathetic interpretation, as Mrs. Hope is a warm supporter of Dohnanyi, who was head of the Hochschule in Berlin at the time she was studying there.

The work of d'Indy is noteworthy, as he is the one modern French composer who has carried on the inspiration and scholastic thoroughness of his teacher, Caesar Franck.

Lastly, the "Dumka" Trio of Dvorak is truly representative of the great Bohemian nationalist, for in the "Dumka" form (a series of closely related folk songs) he has achieved his highest artistry.

Nyiregyhazi Tomorrow

Nyiregyhazi plays tomorrow night at Philharmonic Auditorium.

Heralded as a pianistic genius, he will play a program of great interest, including one or more numbers never before performed here. A Hungarian, a pupil of Dohnanyi a master of the piano at the age of 5, a composer at 6, his hands the identical size of those of his felloy-countryman, Liszt, Nyiregyhazi has created a stir among the elect of the musical centers of the East. "The Flower Waltz," arranged by Grainger from the Tschaikowsky Nut-Cracker Suite, will have its first Los Angeles performance by a major pianist, when Nyiregyhazi plays it as the closing number of his program, which is as follows:

Toccata in D Minor..........Bach-Busoni
Wandererfantasie..........Schubert
(Arrangement by Liszt.)
(a) Poeme in F. Sharp, Op. 32..........Scriabine
(b) Poeme Satanique, Op. 36..........Scriabine
(c) Nocturne..........Grieg
(d) Rigoletto Paraphrase..........Liszt
(a) Two Mazurkas..........Chopin
(b) Polonaise in A Flat..........Chopin
Flower Valse..........Tschaikowsky-Grainger

The Fitzgerald Concert Direction, Merle Armitage manager, brought this artist to the Pacific Coast.

Not Spectacular

There is a lively controversy in New York over the gyrations of orchestra conductors. Some lovers of symphonic music say they are distracted by the swoopings and writhings of the leaders. There was at one time a Russian there who led without a score and without a baton, and whose movements were so quiet that few of the audience ever saw his hands. Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor of the Detroit symphony orchestra, is not a defender of the spectacular conductor. He believes it would be better if the conductor worked behind a screen, yet he is graceful and not at all demonstrative in his conducting.

Wins Fine Position

George Hood, American sponsorer of the Russian Opera Company, has been made assistant manager of the Chicago Opera Association, and will leave for Chicago at once.

Women's Orchestra

Two events of interest in the musical world are the concerts to be presented by the Women's Symphony Orchestra of Los Angeles, the evenings of Wednesday, the 24th inst., and April 18, at Philharmonic Auditorium, Mr. Henry Schoenfeld, directing.

Mrs. Edna Foy Neher, president of the orchestra for the third year, has secured as soloist for the first concert, Carl Gantvoort, baritone, formerly of the Boston and Savage opera companies, who will give an aria from "Elijah," with orchestral accompaniment, and a group of modern songs. For the second evening that brilliant pianist, Olga Steeb, will be the solo artist.

Not Cloister Scene

That Rubinstein's famous tone poem, "Kamenoi Ostrow," which is the overture preceding the presentation of Mack Sennett's Mabel Normand starring vehicle, "Suzannia," at the Mission Theater, is wrongly conceived by music lovers as a "cloister scene" is the declaration of Gino Severi, violin soloist and conductor of the symphonic orchestra at the Mission.

"Kamenoi Ostrow" translated means Stone Island. It was formerly a prison where Russian political plotters were confined, but during the reign of Alexander II it was transformed into a summer resort. Rubinstein visited the island and was so impressed with its beauty that he wrote the manuscript which is mistaken as a cloister scene. In reality the composer pictures the somber memories of former prison life, the waters splashing against the rocks, and then describes, in a burst of glorious, almost religious exaltation, his gladness of the transformation. Rubinstein at that period was in love with a certain baroness and wandered to far places in order to forget his love. In "Kamenoi Ostrow" his feelings are given tone in an almost sacred renunciation of worldly thoughts.

MUSIC NOTES

Mrs. Carrie Louise Dunning, originator of the Dunning system of improved music study for beginners, has recently come to Los Angeles from New York City, and will open a normal training class for teachers at the Ambassador in February.

Mrs. Dunning, whose system has met with success in all parts of the world, plans to hold a teachers' normal class in Los Angeles on alternating years with that in New York, where the main branch of the school is now established.

Grace Wood Jess presented an attractive song drama program before an audience at the Sunset Club Friday evening. Another program will be given by Miss Jess the middle of the month at a private musical in Beverly Hills.

The Ambassador Sextet, under direction of Josef Rosenfeld, will play a number of beautiful pieces at the regular Sunday evening concert in the Ambassador main dining-room tonight:

PRESIDENT OF NEW SORORITY

Los Angeles is securing another proof of its position as foremost in music of the West. This time it is in recognition of the value of education received at the college of music, University of Southern California, through the granting of a chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon Sorority.

Miss Persis Heaton, the grand chapter president, from Boston, is here for the week's ceremonies and festivities.

The Alumni Association of Mu Phi Epsilon in Los Angeles is very active, due to the great number of fine professional musicians here, and headed by Mrs. Knorp, they are enthusiastic in their support of the new student chapter.

The local sorority, Phi Lambda Tau, has already built up a reputation for itself in university circles, both professionally and socially, and all the fraternities and sororities of the University of Southern California take pride in congratulating Phi Lambda Tau and its president, Miss Evalyn Sutphen, on becoming Mu Phi Epsilon.

In the music world the college of music is known for its high standards and the thoroughly instructed musicians it graduates.

until that moment, is dying and wishes to see his father, whose arrival might save him, according to the doctors.

Will is deeply affected and promises to go to Stratford that night. Meantime the boy who takes the part of Juliet, according to Elizabethian tradition, is taken ill, and the beautiful Mary Fitten volunteers to take his place, and save the show. This she does, and presently appears back stage in her Juliet costume and succeeds in persuading Shakespeare to stay with her.

Almost any man or woman in the audience would have done the bidding of Katharine Cornell at that juncture, "F. P. A., observed simply in the morning Conning Tower that "if Miss Cornell had been one scintilla more fascinating, one impressionable observer would have rushed upon the stage, brushed aside the reverently impassioned Will Shakespeare of Otto Kruger, and improvised sonnets into Mary Fitten's possibly unfascinated ear—sonnets written to her undoubtedly fascinating and menacing lips."

A month later in Shakespeare's London lodging Henslowe tells him that Mary has gone with Christopher Marlowe and his players to an inn in Deptford, and he follows her there, to find her in the arms of his rival. In the struggle that follows Marlowe falls on his own sword and is killed, and the fickle Mary turns on poor Shakespeare with the words of Ann's own curse. In the last scene Elizabeth banishes Mary for the evil she has done, and in a long speech to Shakespeare adjures him to carry on for the Elizabethan drama.

This synopsis conveys nothing of the real quality of the production, which is dignified and beautiful to a degree rare even in this season of pageantry, while the direction is so suave as to be almost imperceptible, though an occasional individual performer seemed a bit jumpy.

Of the Elizabeth of Haidee Wright columns could be added. She was not, perhaps, the Elizabeth of tradition, who was a more avid and boisterous behaver, but she was the Elizabeth of the play, every inch a queen and a superbly human creature with the weight of a kingdom on her regal little shoulders. Her reading of her lines was one of the great joys of the performance. She reminded one vaguely of Forbes-Robertson.

A great deal of the blank verse of Clemence Dane is startlingly good and much of it did not seem incongruous even in the month of Shakespeare, which is another way of saying that her play is, when all is said and done, an admirable achievement. And so is the work of Winthrop Ames in connection with it.

DRAWS AMERICAS CLOSER

Participation of Nations of Southern Hemisphere Assured for Monroe Centennial

Closer unity among the republics of the New World is expected to result from the first annual American Historical Revue and Motion Picture Exposition, to be held in Los Angeles next summer under the auspices of the motion-picture industry. This event, a great international celebration of the hundredth anniversary of the Monroe Doctrine, has already evoked the enthusiastic co-operation of all the Latin-American consular representatives in Los Angeles. Diplomatic representatives of these countries were interviewed in Washington by the official delegation from Southern California, when it was there in December to extend President Harding a personal invitation to attend the premiere of the coming event. These diplomats expressed themselves in hearty accord with the plans of the motion-picture industry suitably to commemorate the Monroe Doctrine centennial.

The participation of the republics of Central and South America in this celebration is assured, according to President W. J. Reynolds. The great international exposition at Rio de Janeiro, commemorating the first centenary of Brazilian independence, will be closed on March 31, instead of being continued into the fall of this year, as was recently planned. This will give an opportunity for the exhibits now on display there to be brought to Los Angeles for the Monroe Doctrine centennal. Other South and Central American republics are expected to be represented along lines of similar magnitude.

AMERICAS CO-OPERATE

The Pan-American Union is co-operating with the revue and exposition management in arousing public interest throughout South and Central America in the coming celebration. Large delegations from these countries are expected to visit Los Angeles for the event, attracted by the historical pageant which will portray the outstanding occurrences of the discovery, the settlement, the liberation, and the development of the nations of the New World. College and university presidents of California are helping select these historical events that will lend themselves best to pageantry. This revue will embrace the history of the famous proclamation of 1823.

It is probable that the career of Simon Bolivar, the George Washington of South America, will figure prominently in the series of pageants now contemplated. Among the other events to be incorporated in this story will be Magellan's visit to the Western Hemisphere on his famous voyage that proved the earth round; Balboa's discovery of the Pacific; the struggles for independence of the various republics of the New World. Simultaneously with these pageants, a motion picture will be made in greater detail, that the world may get a true conception of American history from the screen. It is planned to have the revue and exposition last a month.

Applications are now being taken for patron certificates at $10 each. These certificates carry with them a ticket value of $12.50, including admission to the revue and exposition premiere. Only patrons will be admitted to this, as the attendance will have to be limited. The probability of President Harding being present for the formal opening, as well as the many unique features planned for this first night, have greatly accelerated the sale of these certificates, according to Frank B. Davison, director-general of the revue and exposition. Since only a limited number of these certificates are to be issued it behooves those who wish to attend the premiere to send in their applications immediately to Motion Picture Exposition, 1005 Hollingsworth Building, Los Angeles.

WILL READ PLAYS

Three original plays will be read at the regular weekly meeting of the Playcrafters next Monday evening, at 8 o'clock, in headquarters at 206 Tajo Building. "God of Godob," by Ian Campbell, "Who Shall I Accuse?" by O. V. Fisher, and "Storms of Arcady," by Elsie Randall.

Visitors are always welcome to these meetings.

PASADENANS TO PRODUCE OLD COMEDY

Community Players Offer "School for Scandal" as Next Production

For their first play in the New Year, the Pasadena Community Players are reviving Sheridan's delightful old comedy, "The School for Scandal." Special interest attaches to this production by reason of the fact that Mrs. Guy Bates Post will be seen as Lady Teazle; while Arthur Wyatt will appear opposite her as Sir Peter.

Many will remember Mrs. Post as Adele Ritchie of a few years ago. She is now living in Pasadena and limits her public appearances to the Community Playhouse stage. Mr. Wyatt is one of the best known citizen-players in Southern California. Being a member of Pasadena Elks Lodge. The members of that order will attend tomorrow night, in his honor.

Gilmore Brown is producing "The School for Scandal" and promises several novel effects. Instead of doing the play in five acts, as is usual, he has arranged in twelve scenes, which will be played with no loss of time whatever. A special feature will be made of the costuming. Frederick Eastman has designed the wardrobe and Mrs. Robert A. Millikan is head of the costume committee.

Other members of the cast are Mrs. Samuel S. Hinds, Mrs. Michael Hallward, Cloyde Duvall Dalzell, Rose Brizius, Ruth Packard, Herbert Garben, Mervin Williams, Victor Jory, Raphael Bennett, Albert Greenstreet, Howard Glass, Mervin Gouldthrite, Herbert Sollars, E. John O'Connell and Donald MacAfee.

There will be seven performances of "The School for Scandal," beginning tomorrow night. This is the third of the classic old English comedies to be done by the Pasadenans as they successfully put on "The Rivals" and "She Stoops to Conquer," in the past few years. This is their sixth consecutive season.

DANCERS ON TOUR

Ted Shawn, the famous dancer, paid a hurried visit to Los Angeles last week, when he looked over the affairs of his school, Denishawn, at 952 South Grand avenue, and laid out the work there for the coming season. Mr. Shawn, Ruth St. Denis and the Denishawn Dancers with an instrumental quartet, directed by Louis Horst, began their midwinter tour on the 1st at Springfield, Ill., and will fill fifty dates in the East and South by April 1. They will have a season in New York City from April 2 to 16.

JACKIE WAS HOST

Diminutive Jackie Coogan was host last week at a dinner to 1000 people—they had helped him make one of the big circus scenes for "Toby Tyler," now being filmed.

'OUTCAST' OLD ROLE OF STAR'S

Familiarity With Spoken Part Adds Realism to Work in Screen Play

Having played the role of Miriam in "Outcast" on the stage several years ago, Elsie Ferguson was thoroughly familiar with the plot, detail and characterization of the story when chosen as the star of the picture production.

"It is just like old times," said Miss Ferguson, after going through several scenes for the picture. "The work seems like a dream more than anything else. I only have to close my eyes and imagine that I am back on the stage in the old part and the audience in front of me. From the standpoint of acting, this is the easiest role I have ever played for the screen, because every move and every thought of Miriam are familiar to me."

It was in 1914 that Miss Ferguson starred in the play, and in this she is believed by many to have scored her greatest stage success. A like claim is now being made for the picture, which is a powerful story with intensely dramatic moments and calling for highly emotional acting.

Miss Ferguson herself feels that she has done the best work of her screen career in "Outcast," for she says, "The part of Miriam is full of poignant drama, the kind I love. I firmly believe that the picture will be a much better one than 'Footlights,' which won popularity a little more than a year ago."

David Powell plays opposite the star, and the supporting cast of this production which comes to Grauman's the week of January 8th includes Mary MacLaren, William Powell, William David, Charles Wellesly and Teddy Sampson.

Look! We Have A Double-Barrelled Program For You This Week

THE FIRST BARREL is filled with "scatter" shot — an inspiring story that'll scatter the drab worries of life with the serene philosophy of right thinking. George Arliss interprets with sincerity, with fervor and dignity, one chaotic chapter of a man's life—a chapter of awful shadows and healing sunshine. Through it all runs a thread of buoyant humor—enchanting, irrepressible—and a romance as wonderful as love itself.

THE OTHER BARREL, loaded to the muzzle with the buckshot of fun, is used by "Our Gang" with disastrous results to "Gloom." Talk about side-splitting comedy! This is more hilarious than anything Hal Roach, creator of Harold Lloyd, ever concocted for your amusement. Fact! Here is one show you can't afford to miss.

Why The Top Spins

Everyone who has ever whirled a string to which a stone is tied must have noticed the strong "pull" as the stone tried to get away. Every part of a spinning top is trying to fly away from the center of the top in exactly the same way. This pull is called "centrifugal force"—the tendency to fly from the center.

As each particle of the top has an equal pull, none of them can upset the balance of any of the others, and so we get a balanced force.

So long as this force is strong enough—that is so long as the spin lasts—it counteracts the ordinary power of gravity, which has to confine itself to the peg of the top, the only point actually touching the earth.

When the top slows down, the centrifugal force relaxes, gravity comes into its own again—and the top falls over.

The Cut of The Coat Collar

The nick that appears in the collar of the masculine coat is a reminder of days when the back of the collar actually stood up around the back and sides of the neck to the height of the neckerchief while the lapels lay flat. The nick was then a deep slash without which the collar could not have stood up or the lapel lain down. The padding on the shoulder was primarily designed to keep a sword belt from slipping off, while the braid down the trousers remains from the days when trousers were built so tight that the foot could not be got through them and they had to be buttoned down the outside of the leg with a line of closely-set buttons.

Butting In

In front of a Broadway restaurant a ragged urchin was observed by a kindly disposed and prosperous individual who thought the youngster looked wistfully at the batter cakes being baked by the girl in the window.

"Hungry, kid?" he asked.

"Naw!" came the scornful reply. "Can't a fellow look at a swell dame without drawin' a crowd?"—[From the Argonaut.

Knowing and Thinking

Dick and Ralph, each age 6, were playing. Dick was telling Ralph what a wonderful aunty he had and what she had said. Ralph answered quickly and said: "O, your aunty don't know everything."

"No," said Dick, "nobody knows everything, they just think they do."—[Indianapolis News.

A Good Chaser

Paddy went to a race meeting for the first time in his life, and backed a horse named Shamrock from patriotic motives.

However, the race had not long started before it became obvious that he had picked an "also ran"—it was lumbering along an easy last.

But Paddy was not to be discouraged, and he cheered his choice to the echo, shouting: "Go it, Shamrock! Come on, old girl! Look how she's chasing all the others before her!"—[Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

Unpreparedness in Missouri

We tremble to think what would happen to Boonville if bank robbers came to our town like they did to Gallatin recently. The other night a policeman here received a call from some people saying they were holding boys suspected of having escaped from the Missouri reformatory and he replied: "Well, I'll go home and get my gun and come right over."—[From the Boonville Republican.

AMERICA STILL SHUNS EUROPE

French Attitude Keeps Washington Aloof

Administration Looks on Only as Adviser

Chamber of Commerce is Seeking Solution

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Possibility of any development abroad to change the policy of France and bring American aid into the reparations breach in Europe appeared tonight to be fading.

There is reason to believe that the Washington government not only sees no further opportunity at this time to suggest a way to Franco-British reconciliation, but lacks any intimation that its good offices will be sought from across the Atlantic.

The official attitude in Washington is that of a sympathetic spectator friendly to all parties and with American good offices and economic strength available at any time to Allied leaders if they can find a way of reaching out for American helpfulness. The silence at Washington probably is significant of a desire to keep the international air clear of misunderstandings.

But while official activities are hampered by delicate considerations, American business, working along its own line of approach, apparently is preparing for new attempts to substitute business diplomacy for intergovernment exchanges in working out a new proposal on reparations. Officials of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, it was learned today, are considering renewing their activities to that end.

MEET ON 12TH INST.

The foreign affairs committee of the Chamber will meet here on the 12th inst., at the call of President Julius Barnes, and will attend a dinner in honor of Albert Thomas, director of the International Labor office at Geneva and former French Minister of Munitions. That the reparations crisis will be the foremost topic of discussion is not doubted.

Amon members of the chamber foreign affairs committee is A. C. Bedford of New York, an official of the Standard Oil Company, and chairman of the American delegation to the second general meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce, which will be held in Rome, March 18 to 24. The preliminary program for that meeting carries a statement signed by Mr. Bedford, which reads:

"Believing that the time has come when business men should assert the right, based upon their knowledge and experience, and their interest, to come forward and state in no uncertain terms that the vital problems now so seriously disturbing the prosperity of the world shall be settled upon sound economic principles—principles which will promote the peace and welfare of mankind rather than the popularity of individuals or political parties—leading business men throughout the world will meet at Rome for the purpose of discussing frankly pressing issues."

Other members of the chamber foreign affairs committee are: John H. Fahey, Boston, chairman; John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain; Joseph H. Defries, Chicago; Walker D. Hines, New York; Fred I. Kent, New York; Charles F. Lang, Ohio; Harold G. Moulton, Washington, D. C., director of the Institute of Economics; Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director Pan-American Union; Silas H. Strawn, Chicago; Frederick W. Taylor, Los Angeles; Frank Vanderlip, New York; F. O. Watts, St. Louis, and Charles M. Woolley, New York.

SEEK STUDY OF GERMANY

The American chamber received recently from the German Industrie-Und-Handelstag, an organization similar to the American Chamber but not affiliated with it or with the international chamber, a request that a committee of American business men make an economic study of Germany's condition. The American chamber deferred action on the request.

Since then, however, the crisis, which Secretary Hughes predicted in his New Haven speech has come.

It is of possible significance that 200 American business men will sail for Rome February 10, and that if a decision for an unofficial business commission composed of Americans to study German economic problems should be reached at Rome, the men to make up such a body will be there, available for immediate work in Germany.

Bandits in Five Hold-ups and Obtain $2500

Bandits were active throughout the city last night, making away with almost $2500 in five daring holdups.

When Mr. and Mrs. Henry Costello, 6737 Selma avenue, returned to their home last night after the theater, they found a waiting bandit who forced them to give him all their jewelry, valued at more than $2000.

Two masked negroes held up Frank Altons in his grocery store at 3939 Compton avenue, taking $135 from the cash register, and later ambushed C. F. Hoffman, 840 Vermont avenue, robbing him of $38.10.

Two other grocery stores were numbered among the robberies reported. Entering the Goldstein and Finkenstein store at 633 Sunset Boulevard, two men held three customers and the proprietors at bay while they took $70 from the cash register.

A Sam Seelig store at 4701 Moneta avenue was robbed of $31.

MISS CLARKE TO WED

Announcement of Engagement Made at Shower

The engagement of Miss Phyllis Lucille Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Clarke, 650 Westmoreland avenue, to Philip Kilborn Coe of Boston, was announced yesterday afternoon at a bridge party and linen shower at the home of Miss Elizabeth Johnson, 515 South Hobart Boulevard. The wedding is set for February 8.

W. P. G. HARDING GIVEN BANK JOB

Financier to Head Boston Reserve Institution

Appointment Solves Great Patronage Problem

Former Reserve Board Head Has Strong Record

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—One of the outstanding patronage problems of the administration was solved today by the selection of W. P. G. Harding as Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston. His term as Governor of the Federal Reserve Board expired several months ago and the persistent opposition of the farm bloc prevented President Harding from submitting his name again to the Senate.

Gov. Harding is credited with many notable achievements in the financial world. As head of the Federal Reserve Board since August 10, 1916, he shaped many fiscal policies during and after the war.

LEADER OF BANKERS

In banking circles he is recognized as one of the most powerful figures of the post war period when every sort of influence was used to sway banking institutions in the conduct of their credit systems. His stand against acceptance of cotton factors at the time cotton growers of the South were hard pressed for money brought vicious attacks from Senator Heflin of Alabama. His antagonism toward Harding was so pronounced that it was known as a mania.

DEMOCRATS SPLIT

The controversy over Harding split the ranks of Southern Democratic Senators. Senator Glass, former Secretary of the Treasury and as such the superior of Gov. Harding, openly championed him to the extent that a feud exists between the Virginia and Alabama Senators.

Gov. Harding is a Democrat and started his career as a clerk in an Alabama bank. Secretary Mellon offered him the presidency of the Arkansas Gas and Light Company, one of his great properties, but the offer was declined. The new job as Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank at Boston places him as the ranking banker of the New England States.

Mention has been made of the selection of D. R. Crissinger as his successor. Crissinger is now Comptroller of the Currency and an intimate friend of President Harding. He was formerly president of the Marion (O.) Bank, in the President's home town.

YO, HO! FOR TIBURON! IS THEIR HAIL

Cecil De Mille's Yacht Sails on Adventure-Cruise to Mystery Isle

Adventure and exploration, with fishing and hunting as side interests, are on the cruise program of Cecil B. De Mille and a party of Los Angeles and San Francisco men who will leave this morning aboard Mr. De Mille's yacht, the Seaward, for Tiburon Island in the Infernal Channel off Lower California.

The yacht will put out from the docks of the California Yacht Club at Wilmington, and is scheduled to return February 17.

Tiburon Island is little known and therefore is the subject of wild tales and colorful adventures. Cameras are among the chief equipment of the expedition.

The party will do some hunting, if the consent of the Mexican authorities can be obtained, but yesterday Mr. De Mille laughed at the erroneous report that two machine guns would be included in the equipment. "Machine guns?" he asked. "What for? No, we are not going to take along any equipment of that kind. The trip is for pleasure and exploration. Instead of turning the crang of a machine gun, we'll be busy turning the crank of a motion-picture camera in order to bring back many views of the interesting and litle-known island."

Included in the party are Carmen Runyon of Hollywood; John H. Fisher, director of the Southern California Edison Company; Paul Iribe, chief technical director and costumer for Cecil B. De Mille's Paramount productions; Capt. William Bethel of San Francisco; Dr. Frank Watson, retired of Los Angeles, and Joseph I. Kane, wireless operator.

The Seaward will be anchored at Guaymas, Mex., during the six weeks' trip, and the party will return by rail. Ample provisions have been laid in.

The craft is a 106 foot auxiliary yacht, two-masted, carrying a single-screw propelling motor of eighty-five horsepower. It is fitted with accommodation for sixteen passengers. Private staterooms with hot and cold running water, electric lights, hot air heat, shower baths, a spacious salon, library and phonograph will assist in the comfort and convenience of the guests.

A powerful radio sending and receiving set will keep those on board in communication with land.

Corona Lawyer Is Convicted on Girl Charge

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 6.—James De La Motte, Corona attorney, who was charged with kidnaping Mrs. Myrtle Jump, 17 years of age, and later pleaded guilty to a contributing charge, was sentenced this morning by Judge W. H. Ellis in Juvenile Court to serve one year in the County Jail.

The court also ordered that La Motte's unprofessional conduct as an attorney be referred to the Riverside County Bar Association for such action as it may care to take.

Sentence was pronounced after Probation Officer C. W. Mathews had given a lengthy report on La Motte's application for probation. La Motte also made a strong appeal in his own defense, blaming liquor as the cause of his actions.

Sailor Found in Hotel Room Unconscious

Mystery surrounds the apparent poisoning of C. Meadows, 25 years of age, a sailor of the U.S.S. California, who was found unconscious late yesterday in his room in the Nadeau Hotel.

When taken to the Receiving Hospital, Police Surgeon Saverien exerted every effort before the sailor showed signs of returning consciousness. Detectives Warn and Schaffer found that he had registered at the hotel the night before, retired to his room and apparently had not left it. No bottles or drugs were found. The case probably will be turned over to the naval authorities for further investigation.

WOMAN DIES IN AUTO CRASH AT ALHAMBRA

DRIVER ALSO IN SERIOUS CONDITION AS RESULT OF SKULL FRACTURE

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, Jan. 6.—One woman dead and a man injured seriously was the toll of an auto crash here last night, when two cars collided at the intersection of Wilson avenue and Mission Road.

The women was Mrs. Effie B. Ashworth, 43 years old, of this city. She was taken to Alhambra Hospital after the accident and died at noon today. Her skull was fractured.

The injured man, who is suffering from a fractured skull but who has a slight chance for recovery, is S. A. Hildreth, of Alhambra.

Hildreth and Mrs. Ashworth were driving south on Wilson avenue when their car was struck by a machine driven by Ralph Thompson, of this city. The occupants of the Thompson car escaped injury. Thompson was not held.

The dead woman is survived by her husband, two daughters and one son.

AMERICANS OBTAIN POTASH IN GERMANY

IMPORTING CORPORATION TO GET HUGE SUPPLY FROM BIG SYNDICATE

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BERLIN, Jan. 6.—The directorate of the potash syndicate has been authorized by the syndicate's supervisory council to conclude a contract with the Potash Importing Corporation of America with headquarters in New York, providing for the supply of all the foreign potash required in the United States during the next five years.

The council also confirmed the report that Germany produced 1,300,000 tons of pure potash last year. Since December 1 last the domestic demand has fallen off, due in a large part to the increase in freight rates.

On the ground that grave dangers threaten national economics through nonfertilization of the land under cultivation, the potash syndicate petitioned the government not to apply to artificial fertilizers the 70 per cent increase in freight rates prescribed to become effective January 1 and also to offset the rise in price of coal by permitting the fertilizing industry proportionate reductions in coal taxes.

GIFT TO HOSPITAL

Santa Barbara Institution Receives $100,000 for Nurses' Home

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, Jan. 6.—A $100,000 gift to the Cottage Hospital for a nurses's home was announced today, the donors being Mr. and Mrs. George Owen Knapp of Montecito and Chicago. Mr. Knapp has for several years been a member of the hospital directorate and his benefactions have been on a large scale. Mrs. Knapp made a gift of $87,500 in funds immediately available and Mr. Knapp gave a site valued at $12,500.

Last year, Mrs. W. H. Bliss of Montecito made a gift of $50,000 for a children's wing.

The nurses' home is at present quartered in the original structure of the Cottage Hospital group, built some thirty years ago. There are some seventy nurses at the hospital, and the old building had become inadequate to their needs. The directors plan a distinctive building, Spanish in type of architecture, it is announced.

MEXICAN ROAD MAY USE ELECTRIC POWER

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 6. — B. E. Holloway, general manager for the Mexican Railway Company, left today for New York, where he will confer with V. W. Worke, chairman of the board of directors of the company, concerning contemplated improvements, including electriciation of the railway between Orizaba and Esparanza.

There are rumors that British interests behind the company are negotiating to take over and operate all the Mexican railways.

HOLD TRAINS FOR FLOODS IN OREGON

Service Stopped Because of Washout; All Streams Reported Swollen

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ALBANY (Or.) Jan. 6. — All trains on the Southern Pacific main line northbound were ordered held here tonight and all trains southbound were ordered held at Salem, owing to a wash-out at Jefferson, Or., where several pilings were swept from under a railroad trestle. Arrangements were being made to reroute the trains over the west side line, via Corvallis.

PORTLAND (Or.) Jan. 6.—Almost all the smaller streams of Western Oregon were bankful tonight, due to heavy warm rains which continued almost without stop for two days past.

At Sherman and Willamina, the Yamhill River has overflown its banks and is running in the streets. Several persons were driven from there homes. In Lane county all streams were raging. Both locomotives on a doubleheader passenger train on the Coos Bay branch of the Southern Pacific were derailed near Mapleton by a softening roadbed and one of them plunged into the Siuslaw River. A culvert on the Southern Pacific main line near Eugene washed out and delayed traffic for several hours. The Pacific highway was under water in one place near Oregon City.

The Santiam River was threatening to undermine the Southern Pacific track in Linn county. In Portland lower river docks were submerged and there had been a rush all day to get them emptied of freight. The crest of the flood was not expected to reach Portland until Sunday night or Monday morning.

FORMER MAYOR DROPS CASE AGAINST KLAN

DIFFICULTY IN OBTAINING MEMBERS' NAMES GIVEN AS REASON

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

COFFEYVILLE (Kan.) Jan. 6. A suit for $30,000 damages against the Coffeyville Ku Klux Klan, filed some time ago by ex-Mayor Schierlman of Liberty, will be withdrawn in a few days, Walter S. Keith, Schierlman's lawyer, announced today. Schierlman was tarred and feathered last fall.

Another suit pending against the city of Liberty for $30,000 under the Kansas mob law in connection with the tarring, will not be withdrawn, Keith said.

The reason given for dropping the Klan suit was the difficulty involved in obtaining names of members of the Klan here.

MICHIGAN CITY (Ind.) Jan. 6. Arthur Sullivan, discharged Police Chief who attributes his dismissal to influence of the Ku Klux Klan, today at a conference with his lawyers, decided to demand a public hearing.

Sullivan charges that City Commissioner Arthur H. Snyder asked him to join the Klan.

PHILIPPINE FREEDOM RESOLUTION RECEIVED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The resolution approved by both Houses of the Philippine Legislature authorizing the holding of a constitutional convention in the islands as the first step toward the establishment of an independent Philippine republic has been received here by Jaime C. De Veyra, Commissioner of the Philippines in Washington, and will be placed before Congress within a few days.

The proposed constitutional assembly will be charged with the duty of formulating an organic law for the Philippines and determining what relationship, if any, should be maintained between the Philippine Republic and the United States.

The resolution to be presented by Commissioner De Veyra will call the attention of Congress to the fact that Filipinos are now without Constitutional government. Since they are not a part of the United States and therefore are without the "benevolent protection" of the American Constitution and have none of their own. The resolution also will remind Congress of the solemn promise made to the Philippines to grant them independence as soon as a stable government was established in the Islands.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The British auxiliary schooner Dorin, from which an S.O.S. call was received a week ago, is intact, but with engines disabled, somewhere off the North Atlantic Coast, the British steamer Cragness reported on arriving here today.

An American vessel was close by, however, the Cragness reported, and was expected to pick up the Dorin, which had been provisioned by the Cragness. The Dorin carries a crew of fourteen.

DEPOSITORS GREET NEW POMONA BANK

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Jan. 6.—About 500 depositors welcomed the new American Savings Bank to this city when it opened its doors today. This institution is the newest addition to Pomona's financial row and that there was need for it is indicated in the response that met its opening.

SPECIAL LAW NEEDED FOR DIPLOMATIC JOB

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Appointment of Maj.-Gen. Crowder as American diplomatic representative in Cuba after his retirement next month from active service in the Army will require special legislation, according to an opinion handed down by Comptroller Gen. McCarl in response to an inquiry presented to him by the Budget Bureau.

McClelland Said to Have Refused State Position

A report from Sacramento stated last night that County Supervisor McClelland has declined to accept the post of State Highway Commissioner offered to him on December 23 last by Gov.-Elect Richardson.

Mr. McClelland, who lives in Sawtelle, could not be reached by The Times last night for a confirmation or denial of the report, though at the time of the announced appointment he intimated he probably would decline the position.

Acceptance of the office would mean that Supervisor McClelland would resign from a $5000-a-year job as Supervisor to accept a yearly salary of $3600.

Supervisor McClelland was one of three men selected by Gov.-elect Richardson from a long list of candidates for the post. The other two newly appointed members were Harvey M. Toy, wealthy business and hotel man of San Francisco, and Louis H. Everding, retired business man of Eureka.

Funeral Will be Conducted for Mrs. Adams

Funeral services for Mrs. Harriet Adams, mother of George P. Adams, prominent Los Angeles attorney, will be conducted tomorrow morning from the undertaking establishment of Overholtzer & Clain, 1236 South Grand avenue. Mrs. Adams, who had been failing in health for more than a month, died Friday morning at the home of another son, Dr. W. W. Adams, of Pasadena, with whom she made her home. She was in her ninety-eighth year.

Mrs. Adams was a native of Illinois, and has lived in California for eight years. Until a little more than a month ago she was mentally alert and took keen interest in local and national questions. Besides her two sons, she leaves a daughter, Mrs. M. E. Pratt, of Alhambra. The body will be returned to Atkinson, Ill., for interment beside her husband.

Two Asserted Gambling Halls Raided at Port

Two asserted gambling halls were raided in Los Angeles Harbor last night by a squad of police, and ten arrests made. Both places were in the Happy Valley district.

The police squad, headed by Sergt. E. E. Baldwin, completely wrecked the Chinese Playhouse at 116 West Fourth street, and arrested George Chan, said to be the proprietor. Sledge hammers were used to batter down the doors and destroy the oriental furniture. Thirty-eight Chinese in the place were believed to have been warned of the raid by a buzzer system, and since no evidence was found, they were not arrested.

The other place was at 138 North Palos Verdes street, where D. S. Garcia was arrested and charged with conducting a gambling house and violation of the Wright Act. Eight other men were arrested.

POLICEMAN NEARLY IS ASPHYXIATED

LIFE SAVED FROM FUMES OF GAS BY MARGIN OF MINUTES

Death by asphyxiation was close to W. E. Townsend last night when a rescuer battered down the door of his room and saved his life.

Townsend, who is a member of the "wobbly squad" of the police force, went to his room at 312 Court street last night and retired, leaving a gas stove lighted. The wind evidently extinguished it, for Mrs. A. Smith, landlady, smelt the fumes of gas and summoned F. A. Shepherd, who broke down the door. Townsend was found unconscious, and police surgeons who resuscitated him declared that a few minutes longer might have killed him. He will recover.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HOME, FATE OF FLAPPER RUNAWAYS

Over the Border Go Frances and Marion, but Skirted Fate Intervenes

"A bunch of the boys—and girls—were whooping it up" in a Tijuana saloon about the time 17-year-old Marion Friedlander of Los Angeles and Frances Little of Long Beach, also 17, put in an appearance.

The "lady" that detached herself from the revelers was not "known as Lou," but answered to the call of June.

It didn't take June long to find out that Marion and Frances had run away from their homes with two boys.

June, it seems, knew a few things, among them two San Diego police officers, who promptly took the two girls in their car and started for the border.

Two Mexican youths, who had decoyed the girls away from home, apparently resented their actions and told the Mexican authorities that the girls were being kidnaped.

The result was that girls and officers both went to jail.

The entire party was released yesterday, when J. W. Friedlander, father of Marion, went to Tijuana and claimed his child.

Policewoman White and her husband, also an officer, learned the girls' story when they took charge of the runaways at the border.

THREE LEAP FOR LIVES FROM AUTO

Quick Action Saves Party When Car Stalls in Front of Train

Wallace Cummings, his wife and sister, all of Santa Paula, escaped death by the narrowest margin yesterday when they jumped from the seats of a stalled automobile just as the machine was struck by a fast running Southern Pacific passenger train.

The accident occurred at the crossing at San Miguel. The engine of the Cummings car stopped as the machine came on the railroad tracks. The attention of all three occupants was centered on the motor and none of them noted the rapid approach of the train. Mrs. Cummings saw the locomotive when it was but a few feet distant, threw open the doors of the automobile and screamed "jump." All leaped to safety an instant before the automobile was demolished.

A strange coincidence was the fact that Miss Esther, another sister of Mr. Cummings, was on the train which hit the auto, returning to her home in Santa Paula from Ohio State University, at Columbus.

Pilgrims Visit Loved Leader's Honored Grave

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OYSTER BAY (N. Y.) Jan. 6.—Along a snow-covered path leading to the grave of Theodore Roosevelt there trod today on the fourth anniversary of his death, some 150 of the former President's friends and followers, bent on the annual mission to which they pledged themselves two years ago when they founded the Roosevelt Pilgrimage.

Behind Gifford Pinchot the band trudged in pairs from the railroad station to the grave, and the silence was broken with the simple words uttered by Pinchot:

"Four years ago our leader died."

PORTLAND, Jan. 6.—The anniversary of the death of Theodore Roosevelt was commemorated here today by the placing of a floral wreath on the equestrian statue of the former President recently unveiled here in the park center. The wreath was placed by the Council of Jewish Women of the city.

COLLEGE STUDENTS PLUCKED BY PREXY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BERKELEY, Jan. 6.—Five hundred twenty-one students of the University of California have been ordered suspended for one semester as a result of failure to meet scholarship requirements in the semester ending in December, it was announced today from the office of Dr. David P. Barrows, president of the university. The students may re-enter for next fall's semester if they have made up the scholarship deficiency by that time.

The suspension order will be waived for those students who can prove that illness or other hardships were the cause of their poor showing.

PORT NOTES

On her first call at Los Angeles Harbor, the United American Line's former trans-Atlantic liner Monticello came in yesterday with 5783 tons of cargo from Baltimore for this port, the largest single consignment to arrive in months. Steadily increasing demands of the intercoastal trade prompted the United American Lines to withdraw the Monticello and her sister ship in service, the Montpelier, from the Hamburg-Buenos Aires passenger run. The two former German liners will operate regularly out of this port.

Monday will be a big day in port shipping circles, seven offshore vessels being due with unusually heavy cargoes for Los Angeles. Swayne & Hoyt, Inc., will have two arrivals from Gulf ports alone, the Alvarado, with 2500 tons, and the Lydia, with 3500 tons for local discharge. Other notable arrivals will be the Japanese liner Ginyo Maru, with nitrate from Chile; the Pacific Mail liner Santa Clara, with 3000 tons from New York; the Norwegian steamer Regulus, with 2500 tons of nitrate from Chile, and the A. L. Kent, with 3500 tons of cargo from Boston.

Tankers loading for coast and offshore ports yesterday included the Union Oil steamers La Placentia and Montebello; the R. J. Hanna and Vancolite, of the Standard Oil fleet; the naval fueler U.S.S. Cuyama, and the British tanker Akera.

More than sixty persons prominent in the social and commercial life of the Southland will embark for Panama, Cuba and New York next Saturday on the Pacific Mail liner Ecuador, according to announcement made by Clay Hutchinson, Southern California manager for the Pacific Mail.

A. P. Hammond, former Pacific Coast manager of the defunct Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific Steamship Company, has been appointed manager of the intercoastal business of the Charles R. McCormick Company. In addition to McCormick's own lumber service to the Atlantic Coast, the firm will handle all Pacific Coast business for the fleets of Castner, Curran & Bullitt of New York and of the newly organized Garland Steamship Company. The first vessel of the former concern, the Winding Gulf, now is loading lumber at Gray's Harbor, while the steamer James B. Duke left New York yesterday in the establishment of the Garland Line service to Los Angeles Harbor.

Elsie Lincoln Benedict, noted author and authority on applied psychology, was among the prominent passengers arriving from Honolulu yesterday on the Shipping Board liner President Harrison. Mrs. Benedict is returning from the islands after several months spent there in the study of social conditions. In addition to a fair passenger list, the President Harrison also brought in large consignments of fresh and canned pineapples from Hawaii. She will sail next Saturday on her last voyage in the service of the Los Angeles Steamship Company.

ON HIGH, SIGHTLY ACRE SITE.
To the family desiring an exquisite home in the most convenient and socially desirable portion of Beverly Hills, this residence will appeal. It is situated on a site commanding a wide view of city, country and ocean. The house is of stucco and the construction and finish throughout is of the highest order. The rooms, of which there are eleven, are spacious, with high ceilings and flooded with sunlight. The floors are 1⅛-inch quarter-sawed oak and the walls of the principal rooms are canvased. The woodwork is exceptional. There should especially be noted the living-room, in solid mahogany, 43x30, with dining-room in rare English walnut, 30x25; reception hall 27x20, in French gray, and the master suite, which includes a large bedchamber, dressing-room, tile bath and shower and sleeping porch.
The garage accommodates 2 cars and contains chauffeur's quarters and laundry in addition. There is a full basement under the entire house, and the heating plant is composed of three separate gas furnaces. All windows are of plate-glass and all closets are cedar-lined. The servant's quarters contain two rooms and bath. This residence may be purchased at the extremely advantageous price of $85,000, (bank appraisal $96,000,) and on easy terms. We know of nothing that surpasses this estate in quality. See MR. CARVER, Wilshire Office, 569288.

I believe my home to be the most delightfully planned and charmingly situated small house in Los Angeles. It is practically new; beautiful English design; shingle exterior and shingle roof. Extends over a 72-ft. frontage with wide expanse of lawn and shrubs.

There is an entrance hall; large 25-ft. living and dining-room with open fireplace. A large bedroom and a smaller one. Very nice bathroom with built-in tub. A delightful kitchen with the usual built-in features. Screen porch containing laundry tub and instantaneous water heater. A spacious two-car garage with ample storage space.

In fact, it is an ideal home and you will find it exactly as I represent it. The furnishings include oriental rugs, oil paintings, beautiful twin-bed bedroom suite, electric period style graphophone, electric vacuum, dishes, kitchenware and the many other things that make for home comfort and utility.

Circumstances compel immediate sale. Price is net; no agents' commission.

SOUNDS LIKE A FAIRY TALE—

The beautiful furnishings, together with long-term lease at a ridiculously low rental, of one of California's show places, is on the market for the first time. Cut this advertisement out, bring it to our office on Monday, you'll be glad you came, because everybody wants to make money, of course, we must not forget our home atmosphere when looking for an investment. People who insist on really living will appreciate this opportunity; and at the same time make more money than those who have the less pretentious proposition.

You see we are the sole agents for this property and the owner has confidence in our fairness to him and to you, so has left the leasing and selling of the furniture solely with us, so we are going to sell the furnishings for a little less than cost and throw a valuable lease in to boot. In other words, you buy a $30,000 place for $16,000 with $8500 cash. You'll also have to put up the first and last month's rent. Our doors open at 9 a.m. every day except Sunday.

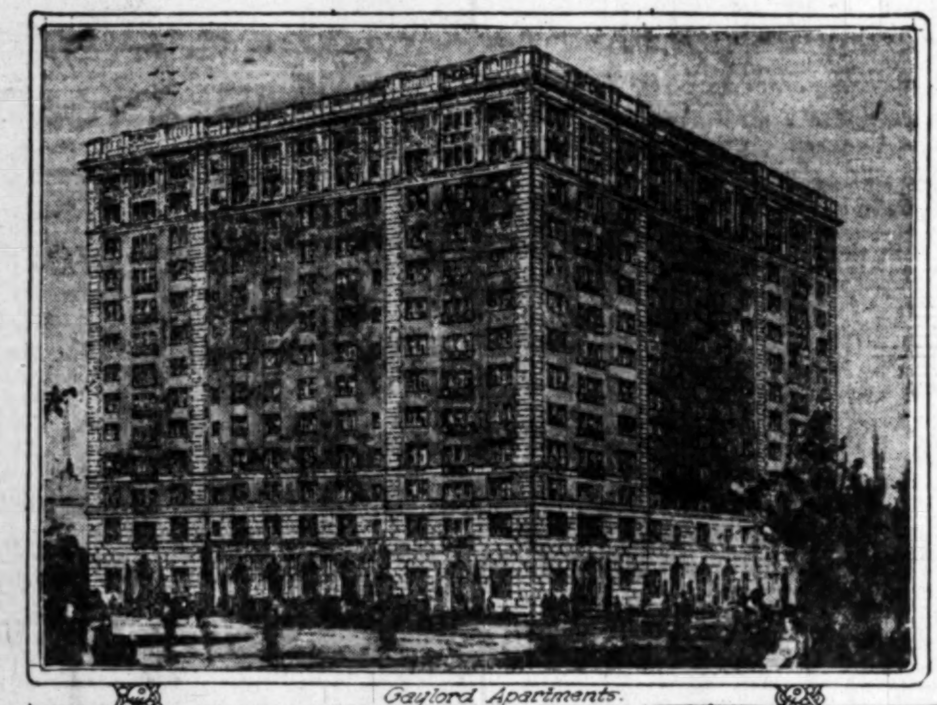
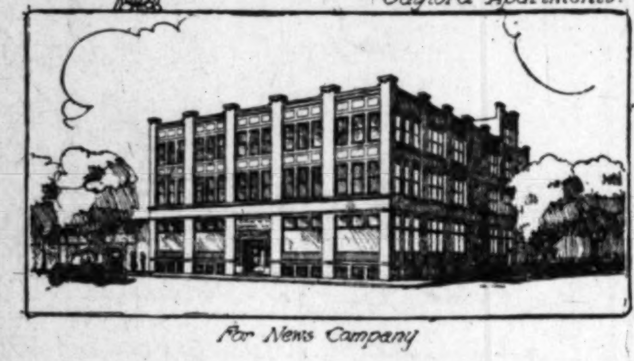
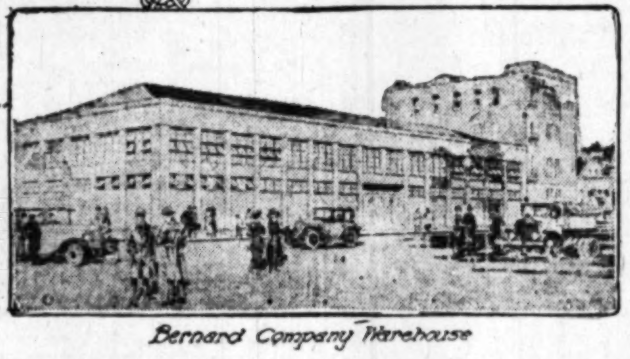
Fine Structures Planned for Early Construction





For News Company



Bernard Company Warehouse

New Apartment-House and Commercial Buildings

The Gaylord Apartments, designed by Architects Walker & Eisen, is to be erected at Wilshire Boulevard and Kenmore avenue for J. M. Lilly and Paul Fletcher at a cost of approximately $1,800,000. The new home of the Los Angeles News Company will be built at the northeast corner of Boyd and Wall streets. The warehouse and factory building is to be built at the southwest corner of Second and Alameda streets for the S. M. Bernard Company. Morgan, Walls & Morgan are the architects.

Tatum Elected to Governing Body of Board

Herman Janss, elected a new member of the governing committee of the Los Angeles Realty Board, filed his resignation owing to a contemplated absence of several months from the city during the coming year, and at the last meeting of the directors C. C. C. Tatum, past president of the California Real Estate Association, and a charter member of the board, was elected to fill the vacancy.

The Los Angeles Realty Board came officially into being May 29, 1903, and Mr. Tatum was one of the original membership. The incorporation of the organization took place June 9 of the same year.

Another early member was J. S. Van Doran, who is now 90 years old, and at the same meeting of the governing committee he was elected an honorary life member of the Los Angeles Realty Board.

SEEK SOLUTION OF PROBLEM

The San Jose Realty Board has named a committee to act with a similar committee from the Santa Clara County Bar Association to act in the matter of improving the situation as regards probate commissions. This announcement will be of interest to realtors throughout California.

BUSCH HOLDING NOW SUBDIVIDED

The opening of a new subdivision located north of Sixth street at Union avenue is announced for today by Metcalf & Ryan, local realtors. The property has been subdivided so as to make it suitable for business, hotel, apartment and bungalow court sites.

Because of the demand for the property the subdividers report that lots valued at more than $300,000 have already been reserved.

The tract is well known in as much as it was formerly the property of Adolphus Busch. At one time it was reported that the brewer planned to erect a palatial hotel on the property.

START HOMES IN TRACT

Seven houses are under construction in Cahuenga Park, on Ventura Boulevard at Sherman Way, six more are scheduled to start next week, according to the tract's promoter. Construction work on roads, sidewalks and curbs has been under way for the last three weeks. Real-estate prices all through the San Fernando Valley are said to be looking up, and the completion of any one of the proposed highways across the mountains to Hollywood, Beverly Hills or Sawtelle is expected to give another impetus to realty values.

Big Job Goes to Architects of Bay City

The prize-winning design for the new arcade building to be erected on Mercantile Place, recently purchased by San Francisco capitalists, was submitted by MacDonald and Couchot, San Francisco architects, in the architectural competition which was decided last Friday, and to these architects the designing of the building will be awarded. The plan for the improvement of the property calls for the erection of a three-story arcade building, extending from Spring to Broadway, with a twelve-story office building at each end. The project will represent a total investment in excess of $5,000,000.

Other architects who entered the competition were Albert Kahn, Weeks and Day, Beelman and Curlett, Swassey and McAfee, G. Albert Lansburgh, and S. Heiman. Among the judges were A. C. Blumenthal, realty broker who handled the sale of the property, W. K. Bowes and John Galen Howard, San Francisco architect.

FIRM HAS BIG YEAR

Realty Sales and Building Activity Reported

The Angeles Mesa Land Company, through its president, W. P. Jeffries, reports a successful and satisfactory year's business during 1922, together with a bright outlook for 1923.

Fifty-five new homes were built and sold for a total of $349,200, and 170 lots for a total of $311,622, all amounting to over $660,000.

The final eighty acres of Angeles Mesa is now being prepared for improvement and development, and new homes are already being built in it. The improvements and restrictions will be of the same character that has signalized the building up of the remainder of Angeles Mesa. The company will continue its extensive building program.

TRACT SELLING RAPIDLY

Two-thirds of the property in new West Hollywood tract have been sold, according to reports that have been made by the Martin T. Hildinger Company, agents for the property.

LOS ANGELES FAVORED IN COST OF BUILDING

Greater Efficiency of Labor Under Open Shop Compensates for High Wages and Material Prices

That Los Angeles, for three years an outstanding figure among cities of the nation in building activity, and during past two years the leader among cities of its size in point of per capita building, is practically free from any taint of combination among building material dealers and builders to keep costs at the highest possible point is established by figures recently compiled for several of the principal cities of the Pacific Coast.

While there may be some individual instances in the building material lines where price-fixing is practiced to a certain extent, the consensus of opinion among architects and contractors is that the city is singularly free from the evil. This is attributed largely to the fact that Los Angeles is firmly established as an open shop city, a condition which promotes healthy competition in the building trades. The building activity which has been carried on to such a large extent since the close of the war period has also attracted many contractors to this city, bringing about a healthy competition in this field also.

Figures obtained from reliable sources in San Francisco, San Diego, Los Angeles and Spokane show that while the cost of certain materials is higher here than elsewhere, the general average compares very favorably with other cities, and with the greater degree of efficiency which obtains under the open shop plan, the actual cost of building is lower than most other cities. The industrial relations department of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association estimates that production per man, in Los Angeles, is 10 to 15 per cent higher than in communities which are operating under the closed shop.

PRICES VARY WIDELY

There is considerable variation in prices of building materials in the four cities included in the survey, but the comparative figures speak very well of Los Angeles. In the matter of brick, the Los Angeles homebuilders pays $15 per thousand, while the charge in San Francisco is $15.50, and in Spokane the price ranges from $13 to 18, the larger amount being for less than carlot orders. Los Angeles pays more for its cement than does San Francisco, where cement is quoted at $3.03 per barrel, as against $3.80 locally, while San Diego pays $4.20 per barrel.

Rough Oregon pine costs nearly $10 per thousand more in Los Angeles than in Spokane, but this discrepancy is accounted for by the distance which the lumber must be shipped before it reaches the local market. In San Francisco this commodity is quoted at $35 per thousand, $4 less than here, but San Diego gets a price ranging from $26 to $32.

In the matter of hydrated lime, Los Angeles pays more than any other city, with the exception of San Diego, whose quotation is $32 per ton, as against the local figure of $25. Figures on structural steel were not obtainable in San Francisco and San Diego, owing to the fact that this material is supplied on bid for specified jobs, but as compared with Spokane, Los Angeles fares very well, quotations here being approximately $10 per ton less than the northern city.

Tar paper roofing costs ess in Los Angeles than in any of the cities included in the survey, the local price being $2.12 per roll for the three-ply roofing, as against $2.15 in San Diego, the nearest competitor.

The figures on the cost of building materials and for wages are as follows:

FACT AND COMMENT

In the heyday of subdivision activity, which Los Angeles is now witnessing, there seems, in many cases, to be little restraint exercised on the part of either the buyer or the seller. So anxious is the subdivider to get his property on the market that he makes a tentative plat of the property, and then starts making reservations, getting, in every case, as large an initial payment as possible. These sales, in such cases, are based upon maps entirely of the subdivider's own devising, or at best, they are the work of his own engineer.

In due course of events the subdivider's map is submitted to the City Engineer for approval. The map, as submitted, is the way the subdivider would like to carry out the subdivision, but it does not follow that is the manner in which the subdivision will be carried out, for the City Engineer frequently has his own ideas on the subject. The subdivider kuite naturally sees the problem from his own viewpoint; he wants to get the maximum number of lots with a minimum of waste space, and he therefore, usually, makes the streets no wider than is absolutely necessary.

The City Engineer has an entirely different viewpoint; he sees the subdivision only in its relation to the street system of Los Angeles, and it is a comparatively rare case where the subdivider is not required to allow more land for streets and boulevards than he first intended. The result is frequently an entirely new subdivision plan for the property.

Meanwhile, things have happened to the lot acquired by the eager purchaser, who hurried forward with his money to make his reservation. In all good faith he has bought, for instance, lot No. 10. This lot he inspected at the time of the reservation, and found that it met his needs and desires. But when the tract has passed through the hands of the City Engineer and the City Planning Commission, lot No. 10, which the buyer believed had a west frontage, may prove, under the revised plans, to be an east frontage of somewhat smalled dimensions, owing to the additional land taken for streets.

An Easy Solution

The subdivider, in following such a course, is displaying an entirely human desire to sell out as quickly as possible, and frequently where the subdivider is only an agent, representing the owner, he is forced to act quickly in order to comply with the terms of his contract, and he cannot afford the delay which is necessary for official approval.

But the conscientious subdivider, who has the interest of his clients at heart, will take steps to prevent unnecessary hardship and loss to those who invest with him. This can be done with comparatively little effort or expense. If he will lay out his tract with reference to the city street system, and if he will take the trouble to find out what plans the City Engineer has for the widening of streets which will extend through his tract, he can prepare a plat that will require little change.

One only has to peruse the weekly list of subdivisions passed on by the City Planning Commission to discover how few tracts go through without material changes, which, in nearly every instance, involve street widening, to the loss of the subdivider or his client, a loss which could have been avoided had proper precautions been taken in the first place.

One flagrant case came up last week. When the map was submitted for final approval, the objection was raised in the City Planning Commission that proper allowance had not been made for street widths, and this objection, in turn, brought out the fact that the subdivision had been almost entirely sold out, and that to require wider streets would work a hardship on the buyers. Nevertheless the opinion was advanced by one member of the commission, and favorably received, that the requirement of wider streets should be made a consideration for the approval of the map—and if this plan is followed, nearly every lot owner in the tract will be affected. Just a little foresight, and

REALTORS WILL GO TO FLORIDA

National Meeting to be Held at End of Month

New Officers and Directors to Assume Duties

Six-Day Tour of State Big Feature of Program

At 9 o'clock Saturday morning, the 13th inst, a party of California realtors, under the leadership of W. I. Hollingsworth, western director of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, will leave Los Angeles for Jacksonville, Fla., where the national committee, the board of directors, the advisory board and the officers of the national association will meet for the purpose of inaugurating the new officers, elected at the San Francisco convention last summer.

At this time N. J. Upham of Duluth, Minn., who was selected national president to serve for the six-months' period between June and January, will retire, and Louis F. Eppich of Denver, Colo., elected at San Francisco to serve as president during the calendar year 1923, will take office.

In addition new directors and committees will be appointed, and the reorganization of the association under the divisional plan, as authorized at the San Francisco meeting, will be carried out. Seven organization committees have been engaged in the preparation of the new divisional plan, under which administrative divisions will be established for the following branches of the real estate business: brokers, mortgage and finance, farm lands, property management, industrial, subdivision, and realtor-secretaries. It is believed that this plan will give opportunity for closer co-operation between the various administrative units of the association, and will be productive of more intensive and more effective work.

The board of State presidents, of which John T. Sloan of New Haven is chairman, will hold its first meeting at Jacksonville. This board will submit its recommendations to the directors and the national committee.

JACKSONVILLE HOST

The Jacksonville Real Estate Board will act as host for the meeting, and extensive plans are being made for the entertainment of those in attendance. It is expected that the meeting will be in the nature of a small convention, since several hundred realtors from all parts of the United States are expected.

A feature of the session will be a six-day tour by train through Florida, the itinerary including St. Augustine, Daytona, Palm Beach, Miami, Sanford, Orlando, Lakeland, Tampa, St. Petersburg, Clearwater and other points.

Realtors throughout the country are being urged to make their plans to attend the Jacksonville meeting, which will be one of the most important, in point of changes and reorganization, in the history of the organization.

It is hoped that Edwin T. Keiser, California Real Estate Commissioner, will be able to attend, to present a report of the results of the colonization work recently undertaken under the auspices of his department. Others who have signified their intention of attending, in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Hollingsworth, are Herman Janss, Harry Minor, Madera; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bewley, Lodi; Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Hartranft and daughter, Tujunga; Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Moore, Bakersfield, and representatives from San Diego, Fresno and Oakland. The representative of the Los Angeles Realty Board has not been selected, but it is expected that a local member of the organization will be sent to represent Los Angeles.

CITY'S GROWTH ASSURED FACT

Nothing Can Stop Los Angeles, Says Realtor-Author

Realty Brokers Must Build on Solid Foundation

Long-Term Leases Should be Used More Frequently

That Los Angeles offers excellent opportunities for realty investments and promises greater increment to buyers than almost any other city in the country is the opinion of Stanley L. McMichael, prominent realtor of Cleveland, O., who is visiting his mother at 617 West Sixty-third Place, this city, for a few weeks.

Mr. McMichael, who is well-known to many prominent realtors here, was for nine years secretary of the Cleveland Real Estate Board, until he entered business early in 1919. He is better known, however, as being the author of "Long and Short Term Leaseholds," the only book on this important realty subject, the second edition of which has just been published by Mr. McMichael's own company in Cleveland, and which is having a large sale throughout the country and particularly in California. It is the only book on real estate that has been officially indorsed by the publication counsel of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

"It is two years since I was last in Los Angeles," said Mr. McMichael yesterday, "and I am truly amazed at the progress being made here. This is going to be one of the great big cities of the United States. Nothing, apparently, can stop its growth. It behooves the real estate men of this city, however, to see that the city grows in a healthy and orderly manner. There is evidence that this is being done for I am glad to see that city planning and zoning are being studied closely and intelligently applied wherever needed.

"Population in cities creates values and Los Angeles is destined to get population. Nothing can stop it. It will not be many years, in my opinion, before the city will be extending from the mountains to the sea. Fortunes will be made here during the next ten years as they have been made in the past. I am interested in making leasing investments myself in Los Angeles and expect the next time I come out here to have established, in connection with my Cleveland office a Los Angeles business and residence department. In fact, one of the principal reasons for my trip out here this winter is to look over the situation and to establish the right connections for such a department.

"I regard Los Angeles as one of the best cities in the country for the making of ninety-nine year leases, particularly on heavily traveled out-going arteries, and am somewhat surprised that more long term leases are not being made here.

"To the owner, a ninety-nine year lease offers a splendid investment as it gives him a tax-free investment of a character that is unusually secure and as good as a government bond. It keeps in the family choice pieces of real estate which for one reason or another it may not be desirable to part with. It assures the development of property with buildings adequate to the site and pending such development, a bond is posted assuring the owner that the structure will be erected in due time.

TENANT GETS INCREMENT

"From the standpoint of the tenant or lessee there are advantages equally as important. A site is secured for permanent use at today's market value of the land. Future increment should go to the tenant or lessee as he takes the chances involved. Leases have made great fortunes in some eastern cities and if proper principles are followed they are fair and profitable to both lessor and lessee, which after all should be the basis of any real estate transaction.

"Leasing real estate is no longer a matter of guess work, but is now an exact business practice. Leases are being standardized by operators in the larger cities of the country and in the compilation of my book on leaseholds I paid particular attention to the way leases have developed in Los Angeles. I believe the coming years will see a wide extension of the very important branch of real estate activity in this city."

Before returning to Cleveland Mr. McMichael expects to visit a number of Coast cities in search of new ideas in a real estate way.

STORE BUILDING ON HOPE STREET LEASED

The Murray-Gerber Company, realtors, announce, through A. R. Miller of the sales and leasing department, a long-term lease on the one-story building at 1349 South Hope street, with a frontage of fifty feet on Hope street, to the Golden West Plating Company for R. Ryse. The premises are now being remodeled to meet the requirements of the new tenants and will be ready for occupancy about February 1.

The Murray-Gerber Company also reports a five-year lease on the storeroom in the Merchant Plumbers' Building at 1822 South Hope street to Clark & Burdsal for the Merchant Plumbers' Association. The new tenants will conduct a wholesale electric fixture and supply business.

GAINS IDEAS FOR RESORT ON VISIT

Andrew Warmington, sales director for the Lake Arrowhead project, returned yesterday from a comprehensive tour of the East. In making this tour Mr. Warmington stated that he decided to go East for first-hand information regarding winter recreational activities, and to gather general business data which might be a guiding factor in the extension plans for the recreational development now taking place at Lake Arrowhead in Arrowhead Woods.

Mr. Warmington stated that never in his business career has there been a more optimistic tone evidenced throughout the East than at present.

TORRANCE REALTY ACTIVITY INCREASES

Real-estate activities in Torrance for the first week of the new year were reported by the Dominguez Land Corporation and smaller concerns yesterday to be the greatest in the history of the industrial city. While oil land, owing to the recent developments of the Torrance field, was the most in demand, the sale of residence property and business sites was declared to be unusually heavy.

There was a constant stream of visitors in the city from all sections of the country throughout the week and deals involving big acreage were said to be pending as the week's business was brought to a close.

stalled affording refrigeration to all apartment kitchens and also arranged for the manufacture of cube ice and ice water in each apartment. The most sanitary form of garbage disposal has been adopted by the use of incinerators located in the basement and connected to each floor by properly arranged chutes. Mail chutes are provided for each floor connecting with a lobby box.

All corridors throughout the upper floors will have marble floor border with recessed inserts in order that all carpeting may be made flush with the marble work.

It is the purpose of the owners to conduct the apartment-house with all the service afforded in the highest type of an American-plan hotel, maid service being provided for the maintenance of the individual apartments, as well as to the complete maintenance of the public spaces in the building.

The entire investment, including land, building and furnishings, represents to the Messrs. Lily and Fletcher an outlay of $1,800,000. A bond issue on this structure has been underwritten by S. W. Straus & Co. The architects for the building are Walker & Eisen and the general contract work will be performed by the firm of Lange & Bergstrom.

NEWS COMPANY BUILDING

The Los Angeles News Company has purchased the property at the northeast corner of Boyd and Wall streets, and at this location will erect a three-story and basement Class A building of reinforced concrete construction. The site, which has a frontage of 100 feet on Boyd street and 118 feet on Wall street, to an alley, was formerly owned by Amelia Seibert and the Weid estate. Negotiations for the purchase of the property were handled through E. A. Brashem of the J. W. Lewis Company.

The project will represent an investment of approximately $150,000, including land and building. In the new structure the company will house its administration offices, display-rooms and stockrooms. The total floor area will be more than 50,000 square feet, more than double the area now occupied by the firm.

Improvements of the most modern type will be installed. The building will be equipped with an automatic fire-sprinkler system, and the interior stairways will be of fire-tower construction, with doors which close automatically to prevent the spread of fire from one floor to another.

Equipment will include two freight elevators and a passenger elevator. The first floor will be above street level, with 100 feet of platform at truck-bed level at the rear for shipping and receiving purposes. The raised floor also will give light and ventilation to the basement. Maple floors will be installed throughout over the concrete floors, and the offices will be finished in oak. The Boyd and Wall-street frontages will be finished with enamel-face brick and trimmed with terra cotta. The building is planned, and will be built, to carry two additional stories.

The Los Angeles News Company is affiliated with the American News Company. It was established in 1906, occupying a storeroom with basement at 758-60 South Olive street; later it removed to its present quarters at 201 North Los Angeles street where a two-story and basement building comprising 13,500 square feet is occupied. The company is wholesalers and jobbers of books and stationery and acts as distributor of all magazines and periodicals to accommodate the trade.

The territory served covers all of Southern California and a portion of Arizona. Within the last few years the business has grown to such an extent that four times the space is now required, making it advisable to purchase ground and erect a permanent home with provision for future expansion. A. E. Feltskog has been the manager since 1918.

ALAMEDA STREET PLANT

Ground was broken December 30 for the new factory and warehouse to be erected on the southwest corner of Second and Alameda streets, for the S. M. Bernard Company.

The building will have a frontage of 242 feet on Second street and 108 feet on Alameda street. It will be steel construction, and will cost approximately $100,000.

It is built expressly to suit the needs of the company occupying it, and will be served by spur tracks from the railroads. The contract for the structural steel has been awarded to the Baker Iron Works, and the Weymouth-Crowell Construction Company has the general contract.

The plans were drafted by Morgan, Walls, and Morgan, architects.

On the Value of Time

"He Who Gains Time, Gains Everything."—Disraeli.

THE conserving of time in the construction of a hotel or apartment house is tremendously important to the owner.

OFTENTIMES—the difference between loss or revenue,—the difference between success or failure.

BECAUSE, financial obligations having been carefully measured across the time period designated by the contractor.

ANYTHING which upsets this schedule interferes with the financial plan—increases the financial burden, and, of course, delays the revenue producing period.

CONSIDER well, then, the proven ability of your contractor, for what he does and the way he does it, is of utmost importance to you.

—has he financial strength?
—has he an organization?
—has he purchasing power?
—has he a driving force?
—has he a reputation for turning over his completed jobs on time?

WHEN judged by the above tests, over a period of ten years, the Mayo organization rings 100%.

THE finished building is invariably delivered ahead of the time specified.

PROOF, to verify the above, is available to all interested parties—we would welcome a call.

G PROJECT GOING AHEAD

Beverly Boulevard Plan Laid Before Association

Will Comprise Link in State Highway System

Western-Avenue Business Men Advocating Plan

Detailed plans for one of the most comprehensive highway projects in Los Angeles, through which Beverly Boulevard, formerly Temple street, is to become one of the city's major arteries, were recently presented to the Western Avenue Business Association by the City Planning Commission.

Through this project Beverly Boulevard, which now ends at the Wilshire Country Club, is to be extended westward from this point in a straight line to Beverly Hills where it will connect with the new route, which in turn will connect with the Coast Highway, which is now being completed through the Rindge Ranch.

Rights of way have been secured for a slight detour around the north side of the Wilshire Country Club, provision for which was made when the club grounds were originally planned. This route is to be properly "signed" by the Club, and when completed will be a through highway from San Francisco to San Diego and will be one of the shortest and most direct routes to and through Los Angeles.

A further statement has been made to Harold A. Henry, secretary of the Western Avenue Business Men's Association, by Gordon Whitnall of the City Planning Commission regarding the link between Western avenue and the Second-street tunnel, part of which is not yet cut through.

"The link between Vermont and Commonwealth is now well along," said Mr. Whitnall. "The right of way between these streets has been secured by deed, which is now on file. The section from Virgil to Commonwealth is under condemnation and it is a matter of but a short time until this link will be completed and run to the Second-street tunnel."

From the Second-street tunnel the Planning Commission plans a boulevard to extend to Stephenson avenue, which will make the final link of the route from San Francisco to San Diego.

The project will provide a new through traffic artery, which will relieve the congestion at Seventh and Broadway, and will in general relieve the traffic burdens which Wilshire and Santa Monica Boulevards are now carrying. For the through coast traffic it will obviate travel through the downtown district.

One of the men who has been most active in pressing this project is Dr. A. P. Hays, owner of Western avenue frontage between Council and Beverly. Dr. Hays has been untiring in his efforts to expedite this improvement and has given much time to the project.

Builders' Questions Answered

BY E. EARL GLASS,

Manager Southern California Chapter Associated General Contractors of America

[With the view of rendering assistance to prospective builders and for the purpose of giving sound advice on problems arising in connection with building projects The Times has instituted this department, which will be conducted as a weekly feature. All questions should be sent to the Real Estate and Building Department, Los Angeles Times.]

Question: I would like some information on the zoning ordinance regulating dwelling houses, rooming-houses and alterations on dwellings. I am wholly ignorant on the subject. Is there not some printed matter obtainable?

Answer: The need for some regulation of the encroachment of industrial plant and other buildings which may be highly objectionable in a residential district has created a body known as the Zoning Commission in many cities and their powers are defined by a zoning ordinance. Here in Los Angeles, the city has been entirely divided off into zones of various classes known as A, B, C, D and E which range from the highest restricted residential districts to the wide-open heavy industrial sections permitting operation of chemical works, stock yards and other so-called "obnoxious purposes." A copy of the ordinance known as Ord. No. 42,666 N.S. may be obtained from the City Clerk in the City Hall.

Q.: I bought my home on terms by a contract. Would it have been to my advantage for me to have put it through escrow?

A.: Yes. The title should be brought to date even if you must pay the fee. If the contract was handled through a bank or other responsible financial institution, they would assure themselves that the title was clear but you should have this assurance beyond all question for your own protection.

Q.: I have a white stucco house constructed of button-lath hog wire, two coats of Monolith plastic cement and one coat of Atlas white cement. It seems to be damp in rainy weather. The interior walls are done in oil and the water just runs off when heat is turned on. There is no ventilation between walls because of fire-stops required by city ordinance. Would a good water-proofing help this? I have tried a sample of zinc in linseed oil. It turns the water, but I have been told it is no good. Please advise me.

A.: Your construction sounds O.K. and unless the work was very poorly done, you should have no trouble with dampness from the outside walls. It is more likely that the moisture on the inner walls is due to condensation due to gas heaters with poor interior ventilation. This is almost sure to be the answer if the moisture forms uniformly all over the walls. Leakage along studs or from roof or windows would only appear in spots. If the water comes through the outer walls, which seems unlikely, apply a cement paint which is mixed with an oil not attacked by the alkali in the cement work. Ask for cement waterproofing paint. If the moisture only forms when the heat is turned on in cold weather, regardless of rain outside, this treatment will not help at all.

ONTARIO'S OUTLOOK ROSY

Record of Past Year's Building Activity Surpasses That of Any Other in Town's History

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, Jan. 6.—With a total of 424 permits issued by City Building Inspector O. S. Roen representing an expenditure of $1,125,-225, Ontario's growth during the year just closed has been remarkable. Many other Southern California cities of considerably greater population are unable to show records nearly as good and Ontario's showing is the more remarkable when it is pointed out that no single permit issued during the year exceeded five figures and that only very few were in excess of four figures.

The 1920 Federal census gave Ontario a population of 7280, but careful estimates and checks by directory and telephone companies indicate that the growth of the past two years has carried the city past the 10,000 mark in population.

HALF FOR DWELLINGS

More than half of the permits issued during the year just closed, 240 to be exact, were for new dwellings. This is an average of more than four new dwellings a week for the entire year and is looked upon as the surest indication of the city's growth.

But while the 1922 total broke all former building records in the history of Ontario, in the opinion of building contractors and others in close touch with the situation, the present year will set an even higher mark. Plans for many structures are already in the making and permits issued during the first week of January call for an expenditure in excess of $20,000.

Among the more important structures for which permits were issued by the building department during the past year were a new junior high school in West J street at a cost of $65,000; additions to Chaffey High School at a cost of $50,000; the Security State Bank, Euclid avenue and B street, $50,-000; W. J. Campbell apartment-house in West B street, $45,000; Odd Fellows' Temple, West B street, $30,000; Wolfe & Couch Garage, Transit street and Palm avenue, $20,000; First Church of Christ, Scientist, $20,000, and the factory of the Adams Filing Cabinet Corporation, $12,000. The great majority of the permits were for dwellings ranging in cost from $2000 to $8000.

MONTHLY GAINS SHOWN

The record for the past year by months, compared with that of 1921, is as follows:

	1921	1922
January	$ 28,350	$111,190
February	42,288	52,680
March	23,345	72,300
April	59,775	122,325
May	31,770	69,895
June	39,630	64,450
July	34,025	35,400
August	23,995	[illegible]
September	106,450	[illegible]
October	90,900	128,970
November	72,700	128,075
December	71,350	76,125

Further indication that the year 1923 is to establish an even higher record than its predecessor is seen in the start made by the People's Mutual Building and Loan Association, whose directors in monthly session this week approved loans for January in the amount of $33,000.

January loans approved by the directors include those for ten new dwellings, two store buildings and two industrial buildings.

THE CITY OF GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY

by
E. A. BRININSTOOL

The sale of a corner lot on Spring street in March, 1902, less than ninety feet deep, at the price of $2500 a front foot, caused one rather doubtful speculator to assume a somewhat pessimistic outlook.

"That is the present high-water mark of Los Angeles business property," he stated. "It may be said to approach perilously near the danger line. Not that the purchasers are likely to lose any money on their investment. The probabilities are all in favor of the chance that within ten years they will be able to sell out at a good advance. However, it is well to stop for a moment and consider whether this is not about the limit of actual value of such property? In order to obtain a fair rate of interest upon the cost of this property, it will be necessary to charge pretty high rents. Now, when rents get too high in one locality, the people are in the habit of looking around for other locations. This fact should be borne in mind by investors: Excessive prices on Spring street and Broadway will inevitably have the effect of driving business onto Main street on the last and Hill, Olive and Grand avenue, but the west."

Business has long since spread to Hill, Oolive and Grand avenue, but it wasn't the "excessive rents" of Spring street or Broadway that did it. It was just the natural growth of business in that direction. There wasn't anywhere else to go but west of Broadway, and naturally Hill, Olive, Flower, Grand, Hope and Figueroa streets had to accommodate the overflow from Spring street and Broadway.

One prominent realty man of this city has made the prediction—laugh if you will—that within another twenty-five years the center of business will be at Pico and Figueroa streets, instead of at Seventh and Broadway, as at present.

As our Mexican friends would say: "Quien sabe?"

SUNDAY COMPANY REPORTS LEASES

The McBride Printing Company has leased the three-story and basement building at 261-63 South Los Angeles street for fifteen years. H. C. Lombard, general manager, announces that McBride's will install the latest of mechanical devices in the new location.

STOREROOM LEASED FOR CLOTHING FIRM

The storeroom at 810 West Seventh street has been leased by the owners, Mrs. Mary C. Young and Mrs. Mary Young Moore, to J. Weissler as the location for the Novelty Cloak and Suit House, which will be opened in the near future. The transaction was handled through the agency of Robert Baker, local realtor.

Mr. Weissler, a former resident of Canada, came to Los Angeles a short time ago. Merchandise for the new store will be manufactured in a small plant which Mr. Weissler has equipped here.

REALTORS SEEK NEW MEMBERS

Henry Barbour, President Long Beach Board, Head of Membership Committee

A State-wide drive for members is under way in the California Real Estate Association. This announcement was made public yesterday by State President Frazier O. Reed at his offices in San Jose. Henry P. Barbour, president of the Long Beach Realty Board, was appointed State chairman of the recruiting of new members. Barbour is vice-president of the State association.

"Every one of the 102 realty boards in California is being called upon to aid in this drive for more members," President Reed declared, "and I am also appealing to the State director in each board city to co-operate with our committee and with Chairman Barbour. We should have at least one State member in every town in California, and every realty board should have all its members enrolled in the State work."

"The California Real Estate Association is working for the development of California. We desire to enlist the support of every civic body and civic worker. We stand for the square deal in real estate, and for the principle of the safe investment for every buyer. The real estate association men are striving for a realty profession, and are laying the foundation for the highest ethics by practicing what they preach. The State license law of California stands as the guide for fourteen other States. Indiana, Florida, and Washington, are now preparing to follow suit. California shall ever lead the way, but we must build up our own business in California so that all the representative dealers in the greatest buiness on earth will belong to the State association.

"We are especially grateful to the newspapers of California for their strong and continuing support. Our association through its news department, has furnished the press with the news of the real estate development, and we are pleased to report the heartiest co-operation from the editors. For the building up of the realty business is the building up of the business of every institution. And there are no greater builders in the State

"And we are appealing for additional strength to our organization and call upon every established realty firm and property owner to join the State association, and become an active factor in the great work of community building."

Chairman Barbour has appointed the vice-presidents of the State for members will be the awarding of several prizes, one being a trip to the national convention in Cleveland next June.

Pacific Electric Considering Extensions in Valley

Van Nuys Now Inter-line Office of Southern Pacific

Records in Subdivision and Building Activity Set

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VAN NUYS, Jan. 6.—Leading citizens of San Fernando Valley, as well as owners of big subdivisions and property holders generally are considerably elated over the report that the Pacific Electric Company was giving careful consideration to the request made for the extension of their lines from Universal City Junction west along Ventura Boulevard to a point beyond the Hollywood Country Club and as far probably as Encino on the boulevard. It is pointed out that the Pacific Electric already has a right of way along the boulevard and that the rapid building up of the country along the proposed line would make it profitable.

It is also understood that in addition to the extension along the boulevard, consideration is also being given to the building of a line from Lankershim to connect with the Glendale line, giving a water-level road to Los Angeles and bringing Lankershim within twenty-five minutes of the heart of Los Angeles and Van Nuys within thirty-five minutes of the city.

The rapid increase in tonnage of the Southern Pacific Railway has resulted in the designation of the local office as an inter-line agency and has supplied it with a full line of tickets, including Pullman tickets. This is the first time the office has been so supplied and is due to the heavy increase in business.

Reports from the Pacific Electric lines show the freight tonnage handled by that line during the past two months as more than double that of any similar period in the history of the office in Van Nuys.

Four subdivisions in the San Fernando Valley, all close to Van Nuys, have been approved by the City Planning Commission. It is stated that during the last few months more applications for approval of tracts have been received from this valley than from any other section of Southern California. All four of the tracts in question are located on Ventura Boulevard.

Building permits for the year just closed have reached close to the $1,000,000 mark, thus breaking all records in the history of Van Nuys. Since the close of the year permits have been taken out for a number of residences and a modern [illegible] apartment-house. St. [illegible] Episcopal Church has a new church building well under way while the new Sylvan Hotel [illegible] to be finished.

CAMPBELL COMPANY REPORTS NEW LEASES

Considerable activity in the local [illegible] field is noted during the past week. A lease on new quarters on the fifth floor of the Grayco Building to I. Argula, formerly of 122 West Third street, is reported by W. Ross Campbell Company. Mr. Argula manufactures high-grade silk underwear. He has been established in this business here for the last three and one-half years.

The balance of the south half of the same floor was leased to H. Fleishman, who was formerly located in the Connell Building. He conducts a jobbing and importing business. His lines are silks, woolens and velvets.

Negotiations on both leases were handled by Charles A. Lux of the Campbell company's sales and lease department.

A shoe-repairing shop will soon be opened up in the storeroom at 746 South Spring street. These premises were leased to Dessie H. De Mille, who is now established in this business at 117 West Eighth street. This property is owned by the Globe Dairy Lunch Company, from whom the lease was secured by Charles Richanbach of the Campbell company.

Throughout its entire length of [illegible] feet this massive concrete storm drain is sufficiently large to allow two full-sized automobiles to pass freely at any point. The reinforced concrete walls are fourteen inches thick, twelve feet wide and ten feet high.

Nearly $100,000 will be expended in this huge project according to Edwin Janss, vice-president of the Janss Investment Company.

OPENS BRANCH OFFICE

The W. T. Fitzpatrick Company reports that a branch office has been opened by the firm on West Third street at Larchmont Boulevard. The firm specializes in hotel and apartment-house leases.

Shoe Company Leases Block on Broadway

A lease involving more than $500,000 has been closed through the agency of the R. A. Rowan Company for the Wetherby-Kaiser Shoe Company on the four-story building located at 727-29 South Broadway. The shoe firm will establish another store in the building as soon as necessary alterations have been completed. Architects are preparing plans for this work at the present time.

According to officials of the shoe company, the firm will utilize the four floors and the basement of the structure for its own business. When this store is opened it will be the third that the company now has in the business center of Los Angeles. In addition to these stores the firm will open stores in buildings in Hollywood and Pasadena which have been leased recently.

The Broadway structure is owned by the Isaacs Brothers' Company Both lessee and lessor were represented by the Rowan Company.

HUNTINGTON PARK, Jan. 6.—The St. Clements' Evangelist Church congregation has purchased a lot at the southwest corner of Saturn and Rugby streets, in Huntington Park. Within the [illegible] it will start moving its present church building to [illegible] Later plans will be drawn for a new parish house which will be used in which to hold entertainments for the members. The lot, which is 115 by 150 feet in dimensions, was purchased at a cost of $6500.

Big Foothill Tract Soon to be Subdivided

W. W. Norton, of the Norton Land Company, has purchased 200 acres of land adjoining Beverly estates, and extending along the hills on both sides of Benedict Canyon to the crest of the Santa Monica Mountains, according to an announcement made yesterday by Leon R. Conklin, realtor, who handled the transaction.

Mr. Norton, who is engaged in the subdivision business, with offices in St. Paul, San Diego and Los Angeles, plans to subdivide the property into fine homesites. The tract, which will be known as Beverly Park, will, according to present plans, contain several hundred large residential sites.

A boulevard has been built through the property into Wanda Park, and this road will eventually be extended to connect with proposed Mulholland Drive, at the crest of the range. Work on this project is already under way, and, according to the survey, the new road will have a grade of not more than 6 per cent.

BUILDING CONTINUES

Housing Inspector E. R. Allen reports that building in Huntington Park has gone along steadily, and the prospects for many new structures during the present year are excellent. His report shows that from Aug. 1, 1920, until January 1 of the present year 2202 building permits were issued and that the aggregate valuation in these twenty-nine months reaches the figure of $3,508,160.75.

TO BE THIRD LARGEST CITY

Los Angeles Has Not Reached Its Zenith, but is on Eve of Even Greater Development

BY A. C. BLUMENTHAL

When I started operations in Los Angeles just a year ago, it was quite apparent to me that Los Angeles was on the eve of a great development, in fact, had already reached a point in its growth beyond the conception of those who had lived here for the last period of years.

For this reason, the properties that we have acquired through our various syndicates and have purchased for others were obtained at a price which at that time seemed high, but have been made to produce incomes more than commensurate with the valuations at which we took them in.

After a year's work, I feel that we have proven at least one thing—that the merchant who looked askance at the rentals now prevalent in the congested district has finally determined that they are a reasonable percentage of his gross business, and this is proven by the fact that this last year has been a most prosperous one for practically every retail concern in downtown Los Angeles.

I have heard a great many times that we were instrumental in some degree in putting rentals where they are now and at times at a point beyond the reach of a careful merchant, but this rental proposition is all a question of supply and demand. The merchants in certain lines of business can pay a certain percentage of their gross for rent. It is very easily determined by available figures that Los Angeles merchants are not paying any more rent in proportion to their gross business than the merchants of any other city in the United States. The fact that has been overlooked is that Los Angeles is very close to Chicago and New York in its transient population and this, in a large measure, is what determines the rental value of the downtown districts.

During the coming year we will finish the Jewelers Exchange Building; we have already commenced the construction of our apartment house at Wilshire Boulevard and Berendo street, containing 250 rooms, which will be the first strictly New York type residence apartment in this city and probably one of the finest on the coast. On April first, we will commence construction of Mercantile Place, which will be an Arcade Building three stories high with twin twelve story office buildings on each end. This building probably will be the largest private building in the city and will remain so for some time to come. Its gross income will run close to $1,000,000 a year.

We have two or three other large buildings in the course of negotiation which we hope to start within the first part of the next year.

GREAT ERA AHEAD

I feel satisfied that apart from the development work we are doing ourselves, the example we have set in constructing these buildings has given courage to others and from the building projects I personally know of already, Los Angeles will see the greatest building era of its history in the downtown district.

I do not think the city will be overbuilt to any degree, regardless of the number of building projects, as no building program that we can at present think of can reasonably keep pace with the rapid increase of population.

As to the manner in which the city will grow, I am sure that the tremendous building development in the vicinity of the new Biltmore Hotel and along Fifth street, including the development on Broadway between Fifth and Sixth streets, and on Spring street between Fifth and Sixth streets, will more and more centralize the city, and I still feel that Fifth street and Broadway is one of the best, if not the best corner in town.

I look for a filling-up of the side streets in the district from Fourth to Eighth and possibly to Ninth before any great development can take place in the purely southerly district. As a matter of fact, if the vacant lots on side streets paralleling Broadway, from Broadway to Figueroa, could be built up, it would benefit the city more than any extensive development in the outlying districts. I also know that the valuations of property on the north side of town are better today than they ever have been, and Main street, heretofore looked upon as a street which had no chance to improving in value, is now better than ever before. Spring street also is on the eve of a great development, especially for financial houses which have finally centralized in this district.

BROADWAY TO DEVELOP

As soon as the old leases on Broadway expire, I look for a quantity of new construction on this thoroughfare which still is and will remain for many years to come the best street in Los Angeles. Hill street in the past year has shown a tremendous growth, and the number of buildings now being constructed on Hill street between Fifth and Ninth streets will make it one of the most important streets in the city, in the very near future.

Seventh street beyond Figueroa street has taken quite a rapid spurt and will probably become a district for high-class speciality shops. It will be many years before we can conceive many of the larger business houses of the city moving out very far along Seventh street, but no one can really tell what the growth of the city will be. It may be forced to run out Seventh street and down Figueroa street in a very few years.

Something should be done, and I hope will be done, to remedy the pedestrian and automobile traffic as this, more than anything else, will encourage improvement in the congested area.

From my study of the situation here, I am convinced that Los Angeles had not reached its zenith, but is on the eve of a much greater development. The eyes of the world are focused on this coast anyway, and Los Angeles has reached a point in its growth where no temporary set-back can affect it. It is true that it may run into periods of dullness, but these cannot affect its tremendous possibilities. It is useless for me to dwell upon the reasons for the rapid growth of the city. They are apparent now to practically everybody who will take the trouble to look into the situation. Los Angeles is destined to be, in a very short while, the third largest city in the United States.

New Hostelry to Be Erected in Harbor District

SETS NEW RECORD IN BUILDING

Honolulu Will Have Total of Six Millions; Many Homes Being Erected

HONOLULU (T. H.) Dec. 26.—With one week still to go Honolulu in 1922 has considerably surpassed the 1921 building record, and will set a high figure for construction of both business and residence structures.

Building permits have reached $5,821,753 and the $6,000,000 mark is expected to be passed when January 1 rolls around.

Nineteen twenty-three is expected to be especially a "home-building" year. In this connection, the contractors say that a considerable number of homes are in prospect for people who have come here as tourists or casual visitors and have remained because they like living conditions. In this respect Honolulu is beginning to duplicate the experience of Los Angeles, of course on a much smaller scale.

The normal growth of the city will require aproximately 800 new dwellings this coming year, and the city is growing at a little more than normal rate, due to the influx of visitors.

Rents in Honolulu have come down somewhat during 1922 but are still at a figure generally profitable for the landlord. There is no surplus of rentable houses, furnished or unfurnished, in the city, and newcomers find it difficult to get suitable homes.

The Territorial Legislature by law put a premium on owned homes. The law gives a tax exemption up to $1500 on any home occupied by its owner. This has helped to make it cheaper for those in moderate circumstances to own their homes than to pay rent.

OPENS BUREAU HERE

Mrs. Vernon C. Herron, for five years the manager of the Rampart Apartments, has opened an apartment advisory and survey bureau in Loew's State Theater Building. Mrs. Herron will assist in an advisory capacity in the planning of new apartment-houses, in apartment-house management and in advising prospective purchasers of apartment-houses already built.

EXPECT TO HAVE BIG NEW CROP

Pineapple Pack in the Hawaiian Islands in 1923 to Exceed 5,000,000 Cases

HONOLULU (T. H.) Dec. 28.—Because of the probability that an increasing quantity of the annual pineapple crop of the Hawaiian Islands will find its way into Southern California markets and an increasing cargo be sent by Los Angeles, it is interesting to note that the 1923 crop is expected to be larger than that for the year just closing.

The 1922 crop, first estimated at 5,250,000 cases, is still about 500,000 cases short of that figure, but the "winter pack" is still to be completed. This pack will add many thousands of cases. The canneries run for a few weeks in winter to take care of the pineapples maturing at that season, and a large proportion of the 1922 shortage will be made up.

The estimate for 1923 is 5,250,000 cases, and this figure is conservative.

All of the pineapple companies are looking for additional acreage and many of them are finding it. The pineapple industry has proved profitable enough to attract large capital. Moreover, a good many business men here believe that pineapples will soon begin to make quite extensive inroads on acreage now planted to sugar cane.

This will be in comparatively poor sugar-cane terrain—where the soil and climatic conditions make the cultivation of cane expensive in proportion to its yield. Already the territorial sugar expert, who is employed by the territory to look after homesteaders' interests has advised some homesteaders to substitute pineapples for cane, believing they can make much better money at it.

Grow Bartlett Pears

the most profitable of all California Commercial Orchards

There is open today an opportunity that has long been practically closed to the investor—Pear Land where the best Bartlett Pears in California are grown is now available for planting.

Through the building of the great Palmdale-Littlerock Dam, the largest multiple arch dam in California, sufficient water is being impounded to adequately supply several thousand additional acres in the wonderful Palmdale Irrigation District.

Here Bartlett pears attain perfection. The U.S. Dept. of Agriculture Bulletin No. 1072, of June 17, 1922, on "The Handling, Shipping and Cold Storage of Bartlett Pears in the Pacific Coast States" places the Antelope Valley, alone, at the head of the list as producing Bartlett Pears of the "very highest keeping and shipping quality."

Shipments of fresh fruit are regularly made to Chicago, New York, and lately to England, and from the latter point reshipped, fresh, to continental Europe. Naturally, such fruit commands the very highest prices.

No more acerage will be sold than there is adequate water to supply. Never in the history of this region (25 years) has there been a crop failure. The land is moderately priced and offers an unusual return on the money invested.

PEAR PROFITS

The actual profits from well cared for South Antelope Valley Bartlett Pear orchards, of seven to eighteen years of age, averaged from $300 to $1500 per acre per year over the past three years.

Profits from older orchards ran far in excess of these figures, and the older the trees the greater the yield.

Much information of interest to prospective investors is contained in the book "Where Bartlett Pears Attain Perfection." It will be mailed free on request.

JUST TO PLEASE

A well-known theatrical manager was engaged together with the musical director and a critic in testing voices. They had reached the last of the applicants, a melancholy man. As he came to the piano he attempted to speak, but he was cut short by the director, who said: "We do not wish to hear any preliminary remarks; go ahead," an dhe began to play an accompaniment to a popular song which with some hesitation the applicant attempted to sing. His effort was about as bad as it could have been. "Look here," broke in the director, "that will do. You actually have the nerve to ask for a job?"

"Certainly," replied the sad one, in an injured tone.

"Why, man, you can't sing a bit," returned the other.

"I don't claim to be able to sing," said the man, "and I don't want to sing. I am a stage carpenter. I was only singing to please you. You seemed so set on it."—Chicago News.

TO INCREASE TIRE OUTPUT

Expert Predicts Big Year in the Industry

W. O. Rutherford Gives His Views on Subject

Large Producers Reluctant to Cut Prices

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

AKRON (O.) Jan. 6.—That more than 3,000,000 new motor vehicles will be manufactured during the coming year is the prediction of W. O. Rutherford, sales manager of the B. F. Goodrich Company, while President Harvey S. Firestone of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company believes that 500,000 of these cars will be manufactured during the first three months of the year.

The Rutherford estimate indicates an increase of 700,000 motor cars for the coming year, the semiofficial estimates of the 1922 production now being placed by authorities at approximately 2,308,000, which is an increase of 52 per cent over 1921.

BASES OPINION

It is upon the new cars to be made during the early part of the coming year that President Firestone bases his opinion that the surplus tires with which the year is being entered will be rapidly used up.

Mr. Firestone estimates that during the past year approximately 45,000,000 tires have been manufactured in the United States and that the consumption for the year, on the basis of 35,000,000 consumed during the first ten months of 1922, will be in the neighborhood of 40,000,000.

Incidentally this estimate is somewhat higher than similar estimates published regarding consumption by the Miller Rubber Company recently, which placed the year's consumption at 36,000,000.

HIGHER ESTIMATE

Firestone's estimate on production for the year is also higher than other estimates which have been given out, but are based upon all factories, including those making up the Rubber Association of America, and those not belonging to this association.

Mr. Rutherford's estimate on tire production for the coming year is placed most conservatively at 45,000,000, although he states that any one of a large number of circumstances may easily increase this number.

For instance, Mr. Rutherford points out, the production of and consumption of automobile tires can be increased by not less than 12,000,000 over his estimate if the automobile owners of the country just buy one spare tire each during the year.

TWO TO CAR

The Rutherford estimate is based upon the use of two and one-half tires per car during the year, which is one-half lower than is usually now accepted as the average consumption. He estimates that the original equipment demand for the coming year will be 12,000,000, which does not provide for any spares, which are frequently purchased when the cars are purchased.

The country as a whole has not been buying spares during the past two years because of the general depression, but it is not unlikely that the dealers throughout the country will be able to increase their sales materially by going back to the former system of selling spare tires to their customers.

PERIOD IS PAST

During the depression period the automobile owners went along on just as little equipment as possible and dealers have hesitated about talking spares, he points out, but this period is past and a little extra effort on the part of the dealers in this direction will materially increase sales for the year.

That the export demand for the coming year will be in the neighborhood of 1,500,000, or a slight increase over the last year, is also the expressed opinion of Mr. Rutherford.

The announcement by Firestone that a surplus of tires is being carried was rather a surprise to those who have watched the industry during the year, and this surplus is accounted for to a large extent by the efforts on the part of the companies during the past two months to build up their depleted stocks. These stocks had run far below normal during the previous two months because of the unexpected business and the momentum to build them up was carried through the past two months leaving an unexpected surplus.

NOT REAL FACTOR

The original equipment demand will make this surplus dwindle rapidly in the opinion of Mr. Firestone and for that reason it is not to be looked upon as a real factor in the automobile tire situation.

The continued reluctance on the part of the large producers here to increase tire prices, which unless done within the next two weeks will mean that those who have taken the lead in the East will have to go back to old prices, is now looked upon as the best possible evidence that the large producers have determined to use the present situation to crowd out many of the smaller producers.

This opinion was expressed in these columns several weeks ago and the prediction made that a refusal to follow leads in increases would not be surprising to the rubber industry.

TO BE DISASTROUS

This situation has developed. Although definite reports from the hundreds of smaller manufacturers in the country are not as yet available, it is believed that a continuance of the present price levels will be disastrous.

In fact three of the smaller companies in the Akron territory, one of which was a leader in the price cutting in its early history, are reported to be hard hit and there are reports of receivership for at least two of these companies.

The admitted reason for these difficulties is exclusively the low tire price situation and it is frankly admitted by men closely connected with them that unless they receive relief within the near future it will be impossible for them to continue.

CONSIDER RETREAT

Reports from the East indicate that some of the leaders in the upward tire-price movement are considering a hasty retreat within the next few weeks unless the Akron manufacturers decide definitely to move up. As stated three weeks ago it is impossible to make any positive prediction even at this late date what the rubber leaders will do.

Reports from Youngstown indicate that efforts are being made by officials of the Republic Rubber Company which has been in receivership for more than eighteen months to lift this receivership. Official confirmation cannot be obtained of this report at the office of the company although it is officially stated that the position of the company has been much improved during the past year under the management of E. H. Fitch, formerly with the B. F. Goodrich Company.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company reports that the prospects of automobile tire business in Mexico are improving rapidly and that plans are now under way to build a 1000-mile highway from Lerado Tax to Mexico City which wil cost in the neighborhood of 25,000,000 pesos.

TOTALS RISE

Mexico in June of this year reported a total of 25,500 automobiles as compared with 16,500 reported in 1919 while the imports of tires into Mexico for the eleven month period ending May 1922 amounted to $898,209.

Confirmation of increasing faith in Mexico shown by the rubber industry here is exemplified by the fact that several of the larger oil well machinery companies in this district have been shipping to Mexican connections and the Mexican government on open account for the past two years.

FIVE ON DOLLAR

Announcement has been made that the Phoenix Rubber Company will not be sold by the trustee in bankruptcy but that the creditors of the company will be offered 5 cents on the dollar as a composition. Mechanics' liens are so great against this company's assets that this is all that can be obtained from a forced sale of the plant and therefore the stockholders are making the offer to retain and operate the plant.

Efforts are also being made by stockholders of the Biltwell Company to raise funds and take over the plant which has been in the hands of a bankruptcy trustee for more than a year and a half.

Getting Along With Less Meat

There has been noted among German people a very decided tendency to get along with less meat than formerly which is borne out by the official figures. The average per capita of meat consumption in Prussia in 1913 amounted to more than 101 pounds, whereas in 1921 it was less than sixty-three pounds. This is due to many reasons but the principal one is that the meat has not been attainable. To supply this want the officials of the German government have recently entered into a contract with the Argentine government to supply 50,000 tons of mutton and 60,000 tons of beef annually, to be paid for in German goods.

TO HOLD EXPOSITION

A "Realtors Exposition of Building Ideas" will be a feature of the program of the annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate boards at Cleveland, O., June 25 to 30, according to a letter received by Secretary Tom Ingersoll of the Los Angeles Realty Board from Walter S. Bigelow, secretary of the Cleveland Real Estate Board.

The announcement states, "This exposition is conceived with the idea of showing realtors the more modern ideas, whereby they may benefit in new construction methods. The watchword of today is economy. The public must be educated through the 20,000 realtors of the country as to what economy consists of. And by the same token, the realtors themselves must be educated."

Because of the fact that realtors are counsellors to millions of clients, giving them advice on the selection of lumber, brick, stucco, concrete, paint, shingles, tile, lath, wallboard plumbing fixtures and the million and one items incident to building, the exposition is to be held in connection with the national convention, under the auspices of the Cleveland Real Estate Board.

Efforts will be made to obtain exhibits from as many national advertisers as possible, so that the displays will be of products having nation-wide distribution.

RIGHT TO BE LET ALONE

The traditional reserve of the Englishman has nowhere been more noticeable than in his own railway coaches. An English court has just punished a man who offended, in this of all places, against his neighbor's inalienable right not to be spoken to if he did not wish it. At Nottinghma, near Robin Hood's old haunts an Englishman has been fined the sum of one pond sterling. He bought a third-class ticket and wickedly climbed into a first-class coach. There he found a fellow passenger. He not only addressed this person not known to him, but persistently tried to engage him in conversation. Unwarned by the other's silence, untaught of tradition, he kept up the attempt with persistence worthy of a better cause. At length he became abusive, as conversational people sometimes will. The court fined him, but the dispatch fails to tell how many shillings he had to pay for merely calling his fellow traveler bad names and how much for the trespass on privacy. The right not to be talked to has had at least some vindication, says the Rockford Register-Gazette. It has not hitherto received quite as much attention as the right of free speech.—[Exchange.

CHANGE NAME FOR PENSION

An inmate of the Orange County Almshouse, at the age of 95 years, after having passed through some of the fierce battles of the Civil War as a member of Uncle Sam's Navy, R. L. Livingston, who has never yet drawn a cent of pension money, expects soon to have his name changed to "Matts Green," the name under which he enlisted, and receive a pensioi, with back pay.

"When I enlisted I was anxious to keep the fact a secret from the members of my family, who were highbrows, and so I enlisted under the name of Matts Green, which name I bore throughout the war," the old veteran explained. "I am now very eager to have my name changed to the one I bore while I was working for Uncle, Sam, and my attorney tells me I have sufficient proof of my identity to enable me to have my name changed and be able to get my name changed and be able to get my pension, which has been held off all of htese years because of the difference in names. I have the affdavits of four of those who served with me and, as far as I know, ther is only one other living."—[Brookln Eagle.

a little co-operation with city officials in these matters will save no end of confusion, and no small degree of loss to subdividers and their clients.

A timely request.

Last week five civic organizations presented a plea to the City Council, asking that the public sight-seeing busses and for-hire automobiles which are now using the streets surrounding Pershing Square for parking space be barred. The request struck a responsive chord in the hearts of many Angelenos who have an affectionate regard for the only green spot in the business center, and who dislike to see that one open space hemmed in by these enormous vehicles.

Not only is the utility of the park, as such, reduced by this circumstance, for the average resident of the city, but traffic conditions on the four streets surrounding the park, particularly on Hill, are rendered almost intolerable from the congestion which results from this practice.

The solution of this problem is obvious, and while it will prove a little more expensive to the owners of the automobiles in question, it will certainly confer a great favor upon the lovers of the park. In the central business district there are a number of unimproved lots which can be obtained by these bus owners for parking purposes. These busses are operated strictly on a commercial basis, and there is no reason why they should not be required to have a place of business other than the public streets, which are already overtaxed. A centrally located station would serve the owners just as well, and would prove a boon to the automobile and pedestrian traffic in the vicinity of Pershing Square.

New School to be Erected at Ventura Soon

Construction work on the new seven-room, $60,000 elementary school which is to be erected in Ventura will be started at once, according to Mott M. Marston, architect for the structure. The new building will be erected on the site of the old Mission Gardens Which were laid out by the padres.

The school structure is to be of the Spanish renaissance type with the rooms arranged in L shape. Administrative rooms and corridors are to be arranged along the front sides of the building. The fifty-foot tower will house the old clock which was formerly in the old Ventura County Courthouse.

Reinforced concrete is used for the walls. The roof is tile and the floors are to be of hardwood. The architects are now planning a kindergarten building which is to be erected in connection with the structure.

HE USED HIS BEAN

I once met a grocer in a small village who was doing more business than the average storekeeper in a town 10 times the size. His success came from the fact that he was keenly interested in his work far beyond the mere item of buying and selling at a profit. He aimed to know all about the hundreds of articles that he sold, and in doing this he became the most widely read and best-informed man in his section. He got interested in the subject of spices and read books about Ceylon and other countries where his spices came from. He read up on coffee raising, fish canning and the fruit industry. Among other things, he learned that, while prunes are raised throughout the whole length of the state of California, there is one little section where they are better than those from any other part of the State. He arranged to sell only that kind of prunes. Another thing he found out was that fish canned in oil improves with age. When he bought sardines he put them in storage for six months before he sold them. Customers did not understand why it was that his sardines tasted better than those of exactly the same brand bought elsewhere—but they got into the habit of coming to his store.—[Nation's Business.

Now that We're Here—
Where Are We Going to Live?

—that's the question of the hour among the thousands of newcomers in Southern California—homes of any kind are mighty hard to find, especially attractive, cosy places like the one pictured above.

There are a few like it—and just a very few—in

Beautiful Walnut Park

Just ask any old resident of Southern California about this "home of real homes"—he will tell you that it is one of the most beautiful, and certainly the "homiest" residential section hereabouts.

He will tell you about its lovely homes, with their full bearing walnut trees; bright flowers; acres of lawns; wide, paved boulevards.

They may be bought on less-than-rent terms. All city conveniences—no city taxes.

PRAISE STAND ON SUBDIVISION

Girard and Brinkop Express Views on Speculation

Suggests That Civic Bodies Denounce Zone Methods

Undesirable Results May be Caused by Pessimism

Another Concurrence of opinion with William May Garland, whose recent articles in The Times warned the city against oversubdivisioning, has been added to the growing list of those agreeing with Mr. Garland. Is is that of Victor Girard, local subdivider.

Mr. Girard, upon his return to the city following the holidays commended highly the attitude of Mr. Garland in his warning against precipitating the city into a speculative boom.

"I agree with Mr. Garland in every respect," declared Mr. Girard. "He should have gone further in his interesting article, so as to include an indictment against those subdividers who lay out a subdivision and then leave it to work out its own destiny as a growing community.

SOLD ONLY FOR PROFIT

"Too many subdivisions are sold merely to realize a profit for the owner or subdivider. That kind of a subdivider is not a true citizen; he does not contribute anything toward helping the city attain its goal of being the biggest metropolis in the nation.

"There is a shortage of homes in Los Angeles, and there will always be, as long as the present rate of increase in population continues. And the subdivider who merely sells his tract and takes no further interest in it, is doing nothing toward helping relieve the housing shortage.

"Anyone can buy a few acres of land and subdivide it into lots; he can even sell those lots in a short period of time and lead purchasers to believe they have bought in the most valuable subdivision in the city. But if he forsakes his subdivision after that, without having at least started it upon a definite building program, he is not a true citizen.

SUGGESTS ACTION

"Civic organizations should band together and draw up a resolution denouncing any man whose sole interest in a subdivision lies in getting out of it the profits on his investment."

A healthy sign, says Walter Brinkop, is the keen interest taken by the average citizen in the question of the city's possible over-expansion, started by the sagely warning of William May Garland, dean of Los Angeles realtors about ten days ago in The Times.

"Ordinarily," declares Brinkop, who is himself in the realty business, "the average fellow downtown is absorbed in his own line of business to the exclusion of all others. But the question raised by Mr. Garland has started them all talking and this, undoubtedly, will result in a steadier step and a sharper lookout on our unprecedented march of progress.

PESSIMISM DETRIMENTAL

"However, we must guard against the tendency of some to judge too severely in this matter of sol-called oversubdcision. They may strike a note of pessimism which could be equally as disastrous as the natural breaking of a boom if we were to have one.

"It must not be overlooked in the economics of the whole big question, that thousands of the so-called speculative lot buyers are, in relation to the city's continued prosperity, just as substantial as are depositors in savings banks and building and loan societies. They benefit the community and themselves equally as much. In addition, they become taxpayers; and, above all else, they are fairly well-anchored citizens, which they probably would not be if they dissipated their monthly sums instead of paying their installments on city lots.

"The real-estate man, like the banker," asserts Brinkop, "has a moral responsibility to discourage the foolish undertaking of too heavy a load on the part of any lot purchaser. If this were practiced, there could be no boom, and, of course, no ill results from over-expansion."

LIFE AMONG ESKIMOS

Christian Leden, the Norwegian explorer, spent many years among the Eskimos.

No other white man was with Mr. Leden. He lived with the Eskimos and slept in their crowded igloos made of ice and kept always below freezing to prevent the roof from thawing and dripping down on the sleeping occupants.

He tells strange tales of the Eskimo women—of how, when they are old and unable to continue the ceaseless wandering, they are killed, and themselves conveniently asking to be led to some high cliff and pushed off.

The young women, however, are not so casually treated. Often a bride will run away from her husband as many as three times, returning to her father's home. And [illegible] patient husband goes back, pleading and coaxing, and fetches her gently home again instead of batting her over the head with the bone of a whale.

Once accustomed to each other, however, they usually remain faithful, will become quite chummy and trade wives.—[Detroit News.

HUNDREDS TO ATTEND BANQUET

New Executive of Realty Board Will be Introduced at Annual Dinner

Representative leaders in different lines of business activity will be invited to the annual formal banquet of the Los Angeles Realty Board which is to be held at the Ambassador Hotel, Thureday evening, the 18th inst. Hundreds of invitations are being sent to prominent citizens so that other organizations may be properly represented in the audience which will listen to James Schermerhorn of Detroit speak on "The Soul of a City."

The annual banquet of the local realtors is regarded as the event of the year on their calendar. A speaker of national reputation was sought and with his acceptance the realty board immediately began making plans to have the function exceed all its predecessors in the matter of attendance and in the representative character of the assemblage.

Frank Ryan, retiring president of the board, will make his annual report and Edwin G. Hart, the new chief executive will be formally introduced to the membership of the organization at the banquet, according to an announcement made yesterday by Frank H. Brooks, chairman of the banquet committee.

Each year it has been the annual custom to award a "Service Watch" to the citizen of Los Angeles, who, in the minds of competent judges has rendered the most signal service to the city's best interests in the year just closed. This custom will be followed this year and the recipient of the 1923 watch will be announced at the banquet.

MOVIE LURED 'EM AWAY

Pictures of Mounted Police Inspired Inmates of Old Home

The only way to deprive the inevitable of its unexpectedness is to stop confusing the improbable with the obvious.

Take the story that broke the other day out in the Old Men's Home in Passaic, N. J.

One night they gave the old boys a treat. They tacked a sheet up on the wall at the far end of the dining-room, turned off the lights and put on a five-reel thriller, entitled, "I Am the Law," dealing with exploits in the life of the Royal Northwest Mounted — the lads who sleep with one eye open.

What happened?

Nothing much happened except the inevitable.

The next morning when the officials called the roll for prunes and oatmeal four of the old men were missing. They had grabbed an old, rusty rifle and slipped away in the night, headed in the general direction of the Arctic Circle, to track lawbreakers through the frozen north.

It must be remembered in this connection that the four old men had never before seen a "movie." It doesn't do to say they were thrilled. It was more than a thrill. They were electrified! They got a brainstorm.

In the parts of the picture where the hero grabbed the flaxen-haired heroine to his sealskin breast and told her it was "She and she only, and that in this world of women, beautiful and good, she was the queen of 'em all—the Lady Paramount," the old men fell so hard for the picture they nearly fell off their seats.

After it was all over the excitement in the dining-room was intense. Several of the old chaps hobbled over to the tablecloth on the wall, peered behind it, tapped the wall and tottered away shaking their heads dubiously.

Darned if it wasn't uncanny.

But the four runaways didn't worry about the mechanism of the thing. Mechanism wasn't what was seething in their brains. It was the call of the wild—the voice of the mountains and the open spaces—the eternal hills and the hush of the—you know, all that stuff.—[Joseph Van Raalte in New York World.

Peculiar Property of Cold Water

As a rule all things expand under the influence of a rising temperature and contract when subjected to a lower one. Water is about the only thing that departs from this rule, and if it were not for this fact the whole history of this world would have been changed and man may never have been born. Water subjected to a cooling temperature starts to contract, but at seven degrees above the freezing point it stops getting smaller and begins to expand and continues to do so until it becomes ice. This explains why ice always occupies more space than water and why ice floats. It also explains why it bursts pipes and water jugs. If water followed the general rule and shrunk as it became colder, ice would form at the bottom of ponds and rivers instead of at the top, which would have had a great influence on the development of life on this sphere.

Preserving Seeds in Guam

The problem of preserving viable seeds in the tropical climate of Gaum from harvest until the next planting season has been solved by the Federal agricultural experiment station on that island by devising a simple container made of metal or glass, so surrounded by cocoanut or other slowly volatile oil as to make it moisture, insect and ratproof. Seeds free from insects and insect eggs and properly dried when placed in the tank will keep in good condition and maintain their germinating power indefinitely.

Where Time Is Forgotten

The isle where time is forgotten is Tubual, Austal group, about 200 miles south of Tahiti. The entire social and industrial program of the people of the island appears to be composed of eating, sleeping talking and fishing. Taro planting, the basis of the south sea food, poi, and fishing are the chief occupations The population of Tubual is only a few hundred, most of them being of pure Polynesian blood, with some a mixture of Caucasian and Chinese.—[Detroit News.

Have You Investigated Torrance Oil Land Investments?

Do you know that just sixteen miles south of Los Angeles, within sight of Signal Hill, on the outskirts of the city of Torrance, a new oil field is being developed that in the next year or two may be one of the big fields of the State?

If not, you are overlooking one of the best investment opportunities that Southern California has to offer.

For several months the Torrance field has been quietly coming to the front, until now—with fourteen wells on production; a dozen near production and a number of new derricks going up, even the most skeptical can foresee its great future.

What has been done up to the present time is small compared with what is ahead for this year. Until three weeks ago it was believed that the field was destined to be one of low gravity, and then Torrance No. 3, surprising everyone, came in with 29 gravity oil, eight points higher than any well in the field.

Torrance No. 3 is believed to be opening up a vast high gravity area that will extend east through the city of Torrance.

In this high gravity territory we have both leased and unleased acreage. On the leased acreage you participate in the oil royalty that goes with the land. On the unleased acreage you acquire full oil rights with the land and can make your own leases. Unleased acreage that is selling for $1750 and $2000 an acre today will be selling for twice that within the next few months. Our leased acreage is increasing in value with each new well.

There is no gamble to your Torrance oil investments. You get what the land produces and after the oil is gone still have land which will grow in value from month to month and year to year. We have lots as well as acreage in the leased and unleased tracts.

arly Half Will Go to Meet Housing Needs

EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.] W YORK, Jan. 6.—Based a survey which it has just ed, the Copper and Brass ch Association estimates the building construction for the 1923 at $6,000,000,000. The market for copper in construction in this coun- year (including sheet cop- for roofing, leaders and gut- etc., as well as the copper of the brass used in pipe, hardware and fixtures) is estimated at 780,000,000 pounds. 1922, statistics for eleven of which are now avail- the total expenditure for construction is placed at In addition, there projected (but not built) buildings of a total estimated of $2,480,000,000.

Total	$7,830,000,000	$5,000,000,000

To complete such a vast amount of building during the year '923 presupposes that the entire shortage plus the normal increment for the year will be carried out in 1923 and that we shall enter 1924 with a clean building slate. It is believed by the association, however, that neither the financial nor material and labor resources of the country are in a position to carry this entire program to conclusion in twelve-months time.

HALF FOR HOUSING

The association's reports indicate that there still exists over the major part of the country a housing shortage of considerable proportions, despite the huge construction of 1922.

There is, of course, no definite data to go on in estimating how far the present resources of the country and the labor and materials situation will enable it to [illegible] in the 1923 building program, but careful consideration of the various factors involved leads to the estimate of $6,000,000,000 as the amount which can be completed in 1923.

Of this amount some $3,030,000,000 will be devoted to housing, about $2,025,000,000 to office, business and industrial buildings, and the remainder, $2,675,000,000, to churches, hospitals and schools.

The estimated expenditures for building construction in 1923 for the entire country are as follows:

Apartment-houses	$ 900,000,000
Churches	485,000,000
Dwellings	720,000,000

Public garages	124,000,000
Schools	1,150,000,000
Total	$6,000,000,000

This sum, it is estimated, will be divided geographically about as follows:

Improvements on Nash Auto Well Received

A widely responsive reception has been given the improved models brought out by the Nash Motors Company and sent for local distribution through the Southern California and Arizona territory by the Troy Motor Sales Company. Executives of the firm declare that the new cars advance some of the greatest refinements in the history of the Nash factory, and it is expected that they will achieve enormous popularity.

With more than 6100 Nash owners in California daily putting their cars through strenuous service, Robert S. Breyer, vice-president and general manager of the Troy organization, declares that improvements on the latest cars received here will intensify buying to its greatest degree throughout the year of 1923.

"The latest achievements of Nash engineers brings forward a truly expansive education in motor car design and construction," declared Breyer in commenting on the cars. "Scores of motorists have been in our salesrooms to examine the improvements on the cars, and all are unanimous in the opinion that the values offered in automotive transportation in the new improved Nash are certain to accord it wide popularity.

CARNIVAL FOR STAR OWNERS

Big Outing Day is Carded for January 22

Cups to be Awarded for Record Tests

Definite Plans Announced on Next Sunday

The first annual constellation of Star cars is planned for January 22, and will bring together practically all the owners of these cars in Los Angeles county for one big day. Walter M. Brown, vice-president of the distributors for the Star is going to uncork some real events for the occasion and Walter has the reputation of being some little uncorker.

Just where the big event is to be staged is not yet determined, but it will be at some point which will give the Star cars a real tryout and surprise even the many hundreds of owners at just what these cars can actually do.

AWARD OF CUPS

Some lively competition is to be stirred up between the owners as there will be awards of cups and automobile accessories for performance records such as reliability, punctuality to schedule and economy. This part of the program is coming in for a generous share of attention and will prove interesting to those who have waited for the test of time on the Star.

"We realize that weather will play an important part in the event," says Brown, "but we will go rain or shine, because a few clouds may obscure the heavens, but the Stars shine on. In selecting a suitable destination we have the uncertainty of weather at this season of the year in mind and our choice will be a spot that will afford safe driving and also provide suitable accommodations for the families and friends of the owners who will participate in the caravan.

Complete directions and details will be mailed to all Star owners with entrance blanks which when filled in and returned to us will entitle the owner to some special inducements for the occasion. Definite plans will be announced next Sunday.

SOUTHLAND IS PRAISED BY VISITOR

Resident of Washington Finds Prosperity in Southern California

Southern California has all the appearances of the most posperous section in the world, according to Thomas M. Pickford, who has just returned to the Lafayette from California.

"California is the most prosperous section of the world," said Mr. Pickford. "The southern part of the State in particular is developing at an extraordinary rate. Building is going on literally by the mile. Los Angeles in the last year was the third city in regard to building operations in the United States. There have been buildings erected there which have cost as much per cubic foot as any other buildings erected anywhere. Cost does not seem to be considered.

"Home building also has been going on rapidly. Subdivisions are being closed out in some instances within sixty days. They have large wagons running out to the subdivisions. Tickets for free rides are distributed along the streets, and the tickets also entitle the holder to a free lunch on the ground. When the crowd is gathered an experienced real estate man will talk to them on the advantages of living in California, and they always have a good talker. Many in the crowd are sold. In some instances there are resales soon afterward which net the first buyer a profit.

"Values have been increasing at a surprising rate. In Los Angeles there have been pieces of property which increased 600 per cent within three or four years, and this is true of other places.

"The reason is that there are so many persons going to California to live there. Trains going there are crowded and many come back empty. The climate is so delightful and surroundings so pleasant that they decide to stay. And the people going there include very many of the moneyed class, which makes for prosperity."—[Washington (D. C.) Post.

LAWN MOWERS USED WIDELY IN AUSTRALIA

Manufacturers of lawn mowers, both hand and power, should find an excellent market for their products in Australia, says Trade Commissioner A. W. Ferrin. They are used for twelve months of the year and are required for parks, large estates, golf courses, cemeteries, and small house plots. Every city has a large number of parks, as well as golf courses. The numerous race tracks throughout the country are kept up like parks, and the races are run on turf which is carefully mowed by power mowers. There are numerous bowling-greens, and besides these public places where lawn mowers are used extensively, they are also used by almost every Australian who has a plot of grass around his house.

Lawn mowers are manufactured locally by four different concerns. Australian customs statistics do not classify them separately, and therefore it is not possible to give the total imports. According to United States statistics, lawn mowers exported to Australia were valued at $53,766 in 1913; $86,526 in 1912; $77,896 in 1920, and $86,012 in 1921.

IRRIGATED VINEYARDS

Southern California's Most Famous Grape Land.

Grapes sold last year for from $90 to $140 per ton.

A VAST number of people, during the year just closed, availed themselves of the splendid opportunity to purchase irrigated vineyards offered by the Fontana Farms Company—The Pioneer Fruit Growing Organization of Southern California.

In order that prospective purchasers of our highly developed lands might have equal opportunity during the present year, the Fontana Farms Company wishes to announce its policy at the beginning of 1923.

Almost 2500 acres will be planted early this spring to new vineyards—The acreage selected for these vineyards is ideally located and the ground has been thoroughly prepared—ready for the planting.

Pursuing the same conservative policy so characteristic of this Company during the past 17 years, and with the thought of offering the greatest possible value for the very least money, the Fontana Farms Company will sell these new vineyards, beginning immediately, at $500.00 per acre, payable on easy terms over 5 years, and included in this cost will be a share of water stock, free, with each acre sold, and all care and maintenance furnished by the Company without charge, for a period of 3 years.

On February 1st, 1923, the price on all 1922 vineyard plantings will advance to $550.00 per acre. These same vineyards may, however, be purchased during January for $500.00 per acre on terms. There are only a few of these remaining to be sold and in perfect fairness the Company wishes to give due notice of the increase in price.

Fontana has long since been one of the beauty spots of Southern California. It has every requisite for a beautiful home-site and the remarkable productivity of its soil and its extensive irrigation system make it compelling as an investment proposition.

Only 48 miles east of Los Angeles on the Foothill and Valley Blvds.

BIG PLANS FOR YEAR OUTLINED

Anaheim to Launch Extensive Paving Program

Will Call for Bids Within Next Sixty Days

Thirteen of City's Streets Will be Resurfaced

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ANAHEIM, Jan. 6.—The largest street-paving program attempted by Anaheim since 1916 was outlined for 1923 today by City Manager O. E. Steward, who reviewed the work of last year and told of the plans for the next twelve months. Because of the many other municipal-improvement features which required the attention of the city officials, the amount of paving completed last year was the lowest in several years. Many of the principal streets and alleys in the city, however, are included in the 1923 program, and with the work of laying cast-iron water pipe in the streets to be paved almost completed, the city officials expect to advertise for bids for the paving work within the next sixty days.

Approximately 6000 feet of paving was completed in 1922 at an approximate cost of $90,000. The two main streets included in this improvement were Clementine street from West Cypress to West Broadway, and East and West Broadway from North Palm to North Olive street. At the beginning of this year. Anaheim has approximately 47,520 feet of paved streets and alleys. This has been constructed since 1909, when the first pavin~ was laid here.

The program for 1923 includes work on thirteen streets and four alleys. According to Mr. Steward, work on the following streets will be completed during this year: South West street from West Broadway to West Center; Citron street from West Center to West Cypress; Palm street from West Broadway to West Cypress; Helena street from West Broadway to West Cypress; Emily street from East Center to East Chartrees, and from Mills Court to Le Palma; Sycamore street from North Olive to North Lemon; Zeyn street from West Sycamore to West North street; North Claudina from East North to LaPalma; North Philadelphia from East North to LaPalma; East North street from North Los Angeles to North Olive; LaPalma street from North Los Angeles to North Olive, and North Olive from East North to LaPalma. The paving will also be widened on North Los Angeles street from East North to Santa Ana street.

PLAN HOLLYWOOD CHURCH

Working plans are being prepared for the new Hollywood Presbyterian Church, to be erected on the northeast corner of Gower and Carlos streets. It is to have a frontage of 88 feet by 127 feet. An auditorium, capable of seating a congregation of 1500 persons, is planned. The structure will cost in the neighborhood of $150,000. H. M. Patterson is the architect.

HOME MAGAZINE PUBLISHED HERE

The first issue of The Home Owner, a new Los Angeles publication devoted to the building of better homes, has just come from the press under the editorship of Marc N. Goodnow, a former member of the staff of House Beautiful, and the business management of D. H. McDonald. The magazine is fully illustrated and attractively printed, the cover being in two colors.

Among the contributors to the first issue of The Home Owner are Frank Ryan, retiring president of the Los Angeles Realty Board, whose article on "Los Angeles and the Home Builder" presents the advantages of home ownership in this community, and S. L. Henry, who writes on "Fine Points in Home Building." Other interesting articles are: "How to Build a Home," by Mrs. Frankie Faulkner, architectural designer; "Beware the Fly-by-Night Contractor," by William Dellamore, attorney; "102,000 Rent Payers in Los Angeles," by Marc N. Goodnow.

A feature of the new publication will be its full-page illustrations of Southern California homes and floor plans. Editorially, it is stated, the magazine will attempt to offer the kind of information which home builders are seeking and reflects the distinctive spirit of Los Angeles and Southern California in its pages.

Busy Year Is in Prospect for Redlands

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Jan. 6. — Redlands' building program for the new year will overshadow that of the year just closed judging from the number of permits that are contemplated for January. Beckley & Wilson, well-known contractors, have announced they will start several new homes in January. G. Huizing is starting some new homes on Cajon street, and Davis Donald says there will be more building in the business section started.

In the business section now there are two buildings being remodeled, the Hellman Bank and the Hubbard Block for the new First National Bank. Some work is being done on the Pacific Southwest Building also. It is understood that a $40,000 garage on Orange street opposite the Chamber of Commerce will be started in January.

The largest permits for January will probably come from the University of Redlands, where it is expected the construction of two buildings, to cost $100,000 or more, will be startde. One will be a boys' dormitory, another will be a fine-arts building and it is hoped to start work within a few weeks' time on a library building.

Contracts are all ready to be let for several bungalows in various sections of the city, plans having been drawn and accepted.

ALHAMBRA CONTINUES EXPANSION

Building Shows No Decrease With Advent of New Year

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, Jan. 6.—The new year has started off here with a noticeable activity in building, permits to the value of over $60,000 having been issued during the first three business days of the month. New dwellings still continue in the lead, the majority of the construction is on better-class homes. There is every indication that the month of January will far exceed in building valuation that of the corresponding month of 1922, when the permits amounted to $229,550.

The total building figures for 1922 were nearly double the valuation for the previous year. Last year's construction amounted to $3,451,283, while that of 1921 totaled $1,778,190. The month of December, the fifth highest of the year, showed a total of $273,940, as compared with $117,620 for 1921.

A new hotel of 100 rooms for workingmen, is planned on West Main street, near the industrial section of the city. A site has been purchased and construction will start as soon as arrangements can be made for the lease.

One of the important realty sales of the week was the purchase by David Hearsh, a San Bernardino business man, of the two-story store and office building at 105-107 West Main street, from Charles Stanford of this city. The building has a frontage of fifty feet on Main street. The price paid was approximately $40,000, according to the O. P. Baldwin Company, the firm which handled the transaction. The building will be remodeled and extensively improved at the expiration of the present leases, which have about a year to run.

OPENS DOWNTOWN OFFICE

N. L. La Cava has opened a real-estate office at 740 South Spring street. He will handle a general realty business.

RIX NOW WITH REALTOR'S FIRM

Warren A. Rix, who for the past nine years has been the assistant manager of the local office of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, has left the employ of this firm to become a member of the staff of Arthur M. Gilman, local realtor.

"Cappy" Rix is one of the best known tire men in this part of the country, and his wide acquaintance equips him admirably for this line of endeavor.

Being in the business and industrial department of the realty firm, he will give special attention to the requirements of the automobile fraternity and will continue to be a familiar figure on the row.

ROAD BOOSTERS GATHER

Arizona Highway Conference to Convene in a Few Days

The Governor of Arizona, Hon. George W. P. Hunt, who has always been a good road enthusiast, has been invited to attend and address the twelfth annual convention of the Arizona Good Roads Association, and Frank Goodman, the new State Highway Engineer, has also been requested to attend, taking the lead in, and presiding over a discussion on the "Advisability of a Bond Issue for the State." Other speakers on this subject will be A. A. Johns, chairman of the roads committee of Yavapai county, Arthur T. Esgate, for the last two years chairman of the roads committee of the Phoenix Chamber of Commerce, and Monte Mansfield, director of the Good Roads Association, representing Pima county. Hon. Thomas Maddock, former State Engineer, has been asked to address the meeting on the subject of "Taxation for Automobiles."

Arizona's big road conference will be held this year on January 15, at Douglas, and each county in the State is expected to have a large delegation present. Southern California will be represented at the meeting by an official of the Southern California Automobile Club, who is to talk on the question of "Permanent or Temporary Roads."

Other subjects which will be discussed at the meeting are "Co-operation" and "The Value of a State Automobile Club" by Hon. George Purdy Bullard, president of the reorganized Automobile Club of Arizona. An official from the Bureau of Public Roads will be designated by Thomas H. McDonald, chief of the bureau. This speaker will also have for his subject the question of "Permanent or Temporary Roads."

The association is representative in its character, its board of directors consisting of fourteen members, one from each county of the State. The acting president of the association is Gustav Becker, the well-known good roads booster of Springerville, Apache county. Springerville is on the National Old Trails Highway, where it enters Arizona at the eastern boundary. Other officers of the association are T. G. Norris of Prescott, vice-president; A. J. Chandler of Chandler, treasurer, and Harry Welch, secretary of the Phoenix Chamber of Commerce, its secretary. The fourteen counties of the State are represented as follows: Gustav Becker, Apache county; J. J. Bowen, Cochise county; Fred Garing, Coconino county; L. D. Van Dyke, Gila county; W. W. Pace, Graham county; J. P. Hodgson, Greenlee county; A. J. Chandler, Maricopa county; W. B. Stevens, Mohave county; C. E. Owens, Navajo county; Monte Mansfield, Pima county; Sam Baille, Pinal county; L. M. Mix, Santa Cruz county; C. C. Stuckey, Yavapai county, and O. T. McCoon, Yuma county.

Gustav Becker has invited every commercial organization in the State to have a representative delegation on hand at this important conference. Counties, cities, and towns are entitled to five delegates and commercial organizations are entitled to two delegates each. The last meeting of the association approached the 300 mark, but considerably over that amount are expected to attend the Douglas meeting.

SAFETY IN THE AIR

There are said to be approximately 1400 airplanes flying in the United States for civilian passenger and freight carrying. During the month of August there are probably more airplanes in the air at one time than at any other season of the year, according to the chairman of the Aeronautics Executive Organization. It, therefore, is understandable that there should be more accidents during that season. An authority on flying has recently given out the following figures on its commercial development:

"During the year 1921 there were twenty-five established aircraft companies operating from 500 to 600 two and three-place machines; 130,736 flights were made, covering 2,907,245 miles and carrying 122,512 passengers. There were in all only twenty-four accidents, of which three were due to stunting, which should be forbidden; two to carelessness on the field, which could have been avoided, and one to storm. Not a single person, passenger or pilot, lost his life in straight commercial flying. With Federal regulation, controlling stunting and inforcing proper field policing and protection, it is believed certain that most of these fatalities would have been avoided."

The eyes of snails and slugs are perched right on the ends of their feelers, so that they can look in every direction without moving.

The Charles Weeks Poultry Colony
No. 2, at
OWENSMOUTH, CALIFORNIA
Founded by CHARLES WEEKS

The regular bimonthly meetings of the colonists grow more intensely interesting as our large community family grow better acquainted with each other and with the ideals of the co-operative colony plan. Papers of the actual experience of the individual settlers are read and discussed covering all the topics of intensive production in Poultry Farming, Strawberries, Raspberries, Blackberries, Family Orchard and Gardening.

Enthusiasm runs high at these meetings and we not only gather the facts concerning the highest science of intensive farming, but we have that finer brotherly companionship that fills the social hunger in each human heart. At each meeting many new families are introduced to their neighbors, which helps to take away the usual homesick feeling for old friends left behind.

I believe my work of building co-operative, intensive, self-supporting Little Farms Communities is the greatest economical work of the age, bringing peace of mind, health of body and an abundant living to thousands bound in slavery by wage earning or too much business.

I have a far greater work than the mere subdivision of land.

I am building an ideal community made up of successful people who wish to live this natural, healthy life close to Nature in a neighborhood of uniform, symmetrical, harmonious garden homes where the highest science of intensive production is common knowledge to all.

Each settler buys direct and pays cash for his land and gets a deed and certificate of title for same. This protects the buyer and ensures a thrifty community without shacks.

Visit me in our home on the Model Acre and I will show you how we keep 2500 hens on one acre and make them net not less than $2.00 each.

The greatest recommendation an enterprise can have is to be imitated. THEREFORE, see ME in person before locating.

In order to give further assistance to the home-building and home-owning movement in the South, the Southern Pine Association announces that its board of directors has voted an appropriation of $250 a month to aid in the extension of building and loan organizations in the Southern States in conjunction with the Southwestern Lumbermen's Association.

PINE INDUSTRY PROGRESSES

Interesting information respecting the gains made during 1922 by the Southern pine lumber industry over 1921 and 1920 and the strong statistical position occupied by the industry at the beginning of 1923, is contained in a letter written by J. E. Rhodes, secretary-manager of the Southern Pine Association, to the editor of Financial America in New York City, seeking correction of erroneous statements contained in an editorial published in that journal on December 12.

Secretary Rhodes's letter under date of December 28, cites figures showing that production, orders and shipments of Southern yellow pine during 1922 were considerably in excess of either of the two preceding years and he mentions that the present strong statistical position of the Southern pine industry is responsible for the optimism with which lumber manufacturers view the new year.

GLENDALE BUILDING SOLD

GLENDALE, Jan. 6.—William and I. H. Gumbiner of Los Angeles have bought the Citizens' Building at 150 South Brand Boulevard. W. B. Kelly, who represented the Citizens' Building Company in the transaction, states that the consideration was $90,000. This is said to be the largest cash transaction made in Glendale for other than corner business sites.

No changes in leases are contemplated by the owners. The building has a fifty-two-foot frontage on Brand Boulevard and is 120 feet deep. The offices of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce and banquet-rooms occupy the second floor, a restaurant and an electric fixture company are on the first floor.

The building was erected in 1921 by a group of business men, including E. U. Emery, T. G. Huntley, C. C. Cooper, J. M. Rhoades, Roy Kent, C. D. Lusby and W. G. Lauderdale.

Glendale stands a good chance of breaking her own building record this year, $40,000 in permits being issued in as many minutes of the first hour of Tuesday. The largest permit was for $20,000 for a seven-unit bungalow court to be erected at 710 South Central avenue.

WILL LET CONTRACT FOR IMPROVEMENTS

The city engineer has approved plans for the Brentwood Terrace streets. Yesterday W. L. Howard of the Howard & Butterbaugh Land Company furnished blueprints to contractors and bids on the paving, curb, gutter and sidewalk work will be submitted in the near future. In fact it is expected that the contract will be awarded before the end of the week and the actual construction will be started at once at the San Vicente Boulevard tract.

Home building activities have already been launched and indications are that the beautiful foothill subdivision will be one of the busiest suburban sections around Los Angeles.

REALTORS TO MEET NEXT MAY

San Francisco Board Will be Host to Local Realty Men at Del Monte

Members of the San Francisco Real Estate Board will entertain Los Angeles realtors May 4, 5 and 6 at the Hotel Del Monte at the spring Hi-Jinks to continue the intercity meetings which have been in vogue between these two organizations for the last three years.

Leslie Burks, secretary of the San Francisco Real Estate Board in a telegram to Tom Ingersoll, secretary of the Los Angeles Realty Board asked if the foregoing dates would be acceptable to the local realtors and immediately a wire was sent to the Bay City assuring the hosts of the spring Jinks that the first week in May would be entirely agreeable.

The Los Angeles Realty Board entertained the members of the San Francisco Real Estate Board at the fall Jinks for the second successive year last October at Catalina Island. More than eighty of the Bay City realtors, headed by President Colbert Coldwell, came to the Southland and stayed for three days as the guests of the local board.

The origin of the custom was the mutual ambition of the real estate men of the two cities to start and keep alive a spirit of friendship and understanding between the leading real estate operators and property owners in the two largest cities in California.

Historical Program At 2 P. M. Today

The cornerstone of the new $500,000 Mission Play Theater near Bradbury Park will be laid today.

At the direction of John Steven McGroarty, author of the Mission Play, an elaborate ceremony will be conducted under auspices of Alhambra lodge of Elks.

A chorus of 150 voices from the L. A. Oratorio Society, under Prof. John Smallman, will be heard in a repertoire of special songs.

The oration of the day will be delivered by the Hon. John C. Mott.

Concert by Elks Band

When you see Bradbury Park you'll say it is just what you want—perpetually restricted—completely improved—surrounded by beautiful homes—far enough from the city to be genuinely home-like—close enough to be convenient—the very heart of a section around which the Southland's greatest residential charm and picturesque beauty has grown. And yet, you can easily afford a lot in Bradbury Park.

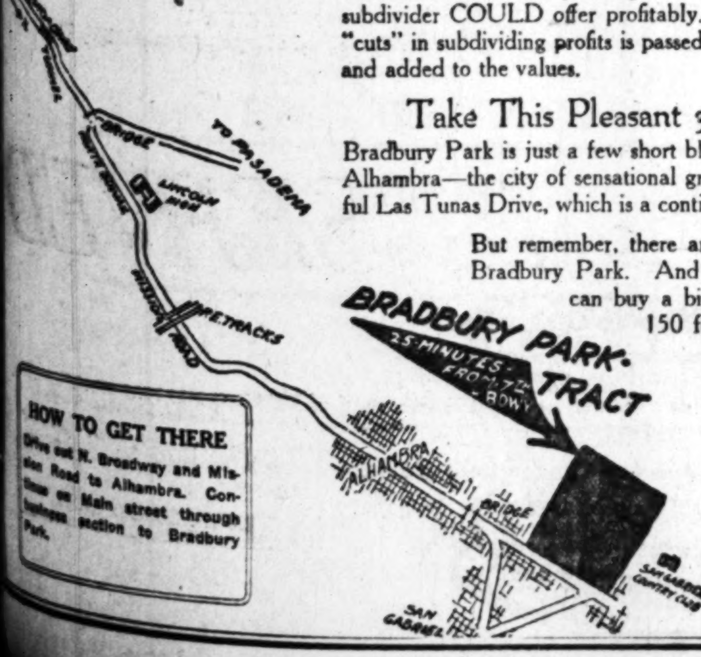
What You Save By Dealing Direct

You pay for ONLY the REAL value of the LAND AND IMPROVEMENTS. There are no extra profits between me as the owner and you as the buyer. I own Bradbury Park and you deal direct with me. I don't have to ask anyone HOW low I can fix the prices or HOW easy I can make the terms. I don't have to depend upon other people's money to improve it. That's the reason I can offer you a greater dollar-for-dollar than any "professional" subdivider COULD offer profitably. And the saving of half a dozen usual "cuts" in subdividing profits is passed on to YOU——slashed from the prices and added to the values.

Take This Pleasant 30 Minute Drive Today

Bradbury Park is just a few short blocks from the thriving business section of Alhambra—the city of sensational growth. It is located directly upon beautiful Las Tunas Drive, which is a continuation of the main business street.

But remember, there are only 140 lots in all now available in Bradbury Park. And when I tell you, for example, that you can buy a big, completely improved homesite—(50x150 feet)—for as low as $900 on the easiest terms—you can appreciate the importance of prompt action on your part.



HOW TO GET THERE

Drive out N. Broadway and Mission Road to Alhambra. Continue on Main street through business section to Bradbury Park.

NEW SUBDIVISIONS APPROVED

Maps of Eleven Tracts Reviewed by City Planning Body at Weekly Meeting; Approval Refused Two Because of Insufficient Street Widths

Of the eleven subdivisions which were presented to the subdivision committee of the City Planning Commission, six were approved conditionally, three approved unconditionally and two were disapproved. The two rejections were decided on because the widths of streets in the tracts did not conform with the standards which the Planning Commission has determined to be necessary. The following is a list of the decisions reached by the committee:

With the provision that all streets be widened to sixty feet and that storm-drain easements be granted, tract 5998, located northerly of Camarillo street and easterly of Pacoima avenue, was approved. Tentative approval was granted tract 5989, located east of Saugus avenue and south of Rita street, on condition that the streets be widened to sixty feet. The map of Urban Heights, tract 5750, was approved with the condition that several streets be widened and that storm drain easements be granted. This property is east of Indiana street and north of Blanchard street. Tract 5990 in Wilmington was approved with the condition that Anaheim street be widened to eighty feet. This property is south of Anaheim street and west of King avenue.

The tract west of Van Nuys avenue at Rosewood avenue was approved on condition that Norton street be widened. Tract 5933, south of Weston street and east of Meyler street, at Harbor City, was approved on condition that Weston street be widened five feet on the side nearest the property.

Unconditional approval was grantd to tracts 5955, 5454 and 5912. The former is south of Sixteenth street and east of Thirty-first avenue; tract 5454 is north of Huntington Drive and north and east of Barrett Road; the latter was given final approval in as much as suggestions, recommended at the time that tentative approval was granted, have been complied with. The property is northeast of Glen Albyn Drive at Forty-first street.

Approval was refused tract 5989 which is east of Barrington street and north of Chenault street, and tract 5746 lying east of Clarington street and north of Washington street.

WILL IMPROVE LINES

Telephone Company Appropriates Money for Extensions

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 5.—The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company plans to expend about $25,000 improving lines, cables and poles within the city limits of Porterville in the immediate future, according to Manager Harry Britton.

Phone wires in the business district have been confined in underground cables and conduits. All extra wires have been put to use by residents of Porterville and before many extensions can be made or new phones installed, especially in the southwest and northern sections of the city, new conduits will have to be laid as feeders.

All day and night service is now being considered for the Springville exchange, according to Mr. Britton, especially in the summer season when the mountain resorts are filled with summer vacationists.

A crew of men is working at high speed on the lot at the corner of Main and Morton, where the Elks' $88,000 home is to be erected. The building committee announces that the structure will be completed and ready for occupancy in 150 days. Arrangements are under way for laynig the corner-stone, to which ceremony B.P.O.E. of the valley will be invited.

SOUTHGATE SCHOOL

Contract Let for New Six-room Structure

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON PARK, Jan. 6.—Within the next few days work will be started on a new school building in Southgate, which, when completed, will represent an expenditure of at least $35,377. The general contract has been let to Lewis A. Geissler, of Huntington Park. The new building will be a six-room, one-story structure of tile and plaster construction. It will be erected on the three acres of ground on which the four two-room school bungalows in Southgate are now located.

The building is to be completed within 100 days, according to the contract. There are 300 school children attending the school now in that district.

BIG YEAR FOR TAFT IS ENDED

Building Total Exceeds Six Hundred Thousand; Many Homes Erected

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TAFT, Jan. 5.—Faith in the future prosperity of Taft and the surrounding oil fields by the citizens of the community is shown by the vast amount of building activities that have taken place during the year just ended. Nearly three-quarters of a million dollars in building permits have been issued and this amount represents not only business houses and school buildings, but substantial homes of the better sort, which indicates an intention on the part of the citizens to make this a permanent dwelling-place. The total for the year is $681,916.

The general trend of affairs on the west side is indicated by the fact that a large part of this sum of money went into homes and additions to homes already standing.

A brief survey of the year shows that two new modern grammar school buildings are being erected at a cost of more than $300,000, that Taft will soon be the possessor of a new State bank and that a modern business block has been added to the business district in the newly completed Parish-O'Brien Building, located at Fourth and Center. Building activities have already been started at the Taft Union High School that will involve the expenditure of more than $300,000.

With the exception of these large buildings and a few smaller business houses, the building has been mostly in the residence section. Heretofore, the temporary house has been a rule on the west side, the kind known as "shack" being deemed satisfactory for a transient home. That the future of the community is considered assured is indicated by the well-finished houses that are springing up in all quarters of the city.

The totals of building permits for the twelve months of the year are as follows: January, $5590; February, $9075; March, $32,051; April, $62,610; May, $7225; June, $15,340; July, $10,000; August, $95,890; September, $298,900; October, $40,000; November, $73,675; December, $1980.

WILL MOVE HOTEL

The Alhambra Hotel is to be moved from its present site to a new location on the corner of Broadway and California street. The Kress House Moving Company submitted the lowest bid for the job, their figure being $53,770.

Goes East to Get Settlers for Colonies

Charged with the task of bringing back settlers for 3000 acres of land comprising eighty farms in the State land colonies at Durham and Delhi, George C. Kreutzer, Durham colony superintendent, left San Francisco yesterday for Chicago. Mr. Kreutzer's mission is part of a quick-action selling campaign planned by Dr. Elwood Mead, chief of the division of land settlement. It is the first State authorized land selling mission to invade the Middle West and considerable importance is attached to its result. Californians, Inc., the new State promotion and development organization is co-operating with Dr. Mead in the project.

"We are simply going straight to the discouraged farmers of the Middle West" Dr. Mead said in announcing Kreutzer's mission, "to tell them by word of mouth that California has escaped and is immune from the farming depression of the Middle West, a depression which has led to the abandonment of thousands of farms in the past year. In Michigan alone 40,000 acres have been abandoned because crops did not pay the cost of production. So far as the farmer is concerned the depression has had no parallel since the Civil War. It exists more or less everywhere except in California where the nature of our crops and our unique marketing facilities make the California farmer the most prosperous in the country. The advertising campaign recently started by Californians, Inc., is awakening the disgruntled eastern farmer to the opportunity offered him in California and we do not expect much difficulty in quickly securing enough colonists to fill up Delhi and Durham, where recently a large additional acreage has been thrown open to settlement."

On his trip Superintendent Kreutzer will visit Denver, Des Moines, Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Paul, lecture on California land and crops and get in personal touch with thousands who have made written inquiries concerning land here. It is expected that the full quota of new settlers to fill the two State colonies will be secured before the middle of next summer.

NEW OFFICE OPENED

The William Wilson Company, local real estate firm, announces the opening of a branch office in the new building which has been erected on the northwest corner of Western avenue and Sixth street. This is the second office that the firm has opened in this section of Los Angeles, the other is at the corner of Santa Barbara and Normandie avenues.

MANN IS WITH REALTORS NOW

W. I. Hollingsworth & Co. announces the segregation of its real estate and insurance departments. The latter department will be known as the W. I. Hollingsworth & Co. Insurance Agency. It is to be directed by W. I. Hollingsworth, B. O. Miller and Leland Mann. Mr. Miller and Mr. Hollingsworth will continue the realty department.

Mr. Mann has for a number of years been connected with the Aetna Life Insurance Company and its subsidiary organizations.

Mr. Mann, on being interviewed yesterday, said: "I found that Mr. Hollingsworth and Mr. Miller, like myself, were impressed with the idea that the general public required special service to solve these individual problems intelligently and this partnership resulted. In other words, I have become convinced that I can fulfill a much larger field of usefulness in this way than I was able to do in my old position."

MORGAN PLACE APARTMENTS

An apartment-house, to cost in the neighborhood of $60,000, is to be erected on Morgan Place, just north of Hollywood Boulevard, for Mrs. J. Mayfield. It will be a three-story structure, and will contain sixty rooms. It will have a frontage of 42 feet by 125 feet, and will be brick construction with facings of pressed brick and terra cotta.

LARGE NEGRO HOTEL

A class A hotel, eight stories in height, is being constructed on the corner of Twenty-third street and Central avenue, for the exclusive use of negro guests. It is to contain 200 apartment suites and 100 single rooms, and will be erected at an approximate cost of $850,000. Parkinson & Parkinson are the architects.

Factors Fixing Value of Land Are Described

Land values are fixed by various influences. Here are just a few, compiled by the bureau of research of the California Real Estate Association, according to a recent announcement by the association news department:

"Population is one factor. Location is another. Accessibility is very important. Improvements also count for a good deal. Probable future use of property must be considered. Its adaptibility for different uses must not be overlooked.

"Depreciation of improvements frequently takes place, and it is often difficult to compute it. Sometimes a neighborhood goes back—values decrease and land sells for less than it formerly did. Usually, however, land increases in value.

"It takes a very wide knowledge of values and a broad experience in buying and selling real estate to be able to definitely determine values. This is termed appraising real estate."

Members of the California Real Estate Association, embracing leading realtors of California, with local boards in 102 cities and towns, give particular attention to the appraising of real estate. Local boards generally make a specialty of this work, and in many cities local boards do the public appraising. Recently the State association directors voted to co-operate with veterans of the World War in appraising for veterans' lands and homes they desired to purchase. This appraisal is to be free of charge to the veterans.

Stock Yards Speed Harbor Development by Increasing Shipments to Orient and East

SSIBILITIES OF LOCAL STOCK YARDS DESCRIBED

fficials of Enterprise Explain What Manufacturing District's Allied Projects Mean to Southwest

What the Los Angeles Union Stock Yards, the Central Manufacturing District of Los Angeles and the Los Angeles Junction Railway mean to the business development of Los Angeles was told Thursday to the directors of the Huntington Park Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon in their honor at the new Stock Yards Inn. The Stock Yards Inn adjoins the administration building of the Union Stock Yards which has just been finished and from its windows the guests could look out over the Central Manufacturing District industrial sites where half a million dollars is now being spent for street work.

This was the first of a series of luncheons which are to be given at the Stock Yards Inn for local business men. The inn, which is modeled after the famous Stock Yards Inn of Chicago, has been [illegible] by Mrs. Leta Van Matre of Huntington Park, and is to be the scene of many midday conferences designed to bring a realization of the tremendous development in the southeast section to the civic leaders of Los Angeles.

[illegible] OF EXPORT TRADE

The certainty that a large export business in meats may be developed by broadening the basis of the live-stock industry in the Southwest, was discussed by J. A. McNaughton, general manager of the Union Stock Yards, while F. L. S. Harmon, manager of the Central Manufacturing District, discussed transportation questions, finance and industrial service as these will contribute to development of the Central Manufacturing District.

"Railway service," Mr. Harman pointed out, "is the most vital factor in developing industry. Our business men in Los Angeles do not seem to realize this as fully as those in Chicago. Our Los Angeles Junction Railway, like the Chicago Junction Railway, is a belt line. It has a neutral position and serves with impartiality the four trunk lines.

"So long as an industry is simply using materials, it may be all well and good to be located on a single trunk line, but when export business comes to be considered a connecting link with all trunk lines is very important, and I have already told Chicago business men with whom we have been in contact to locate on some belt-line railway, if not on our own belt line in the Chicago Central Manufacturing District.

TO OPERATE SOON

"The Los Angeles Junction Railway will be in full operation within [illegible] months, with roundhouse and rolling stock and trackage. [illegible] now a mile and three-quarters of track laid around the stockyards and Central Manufacturing District, all ballasted and ready for service.

"Last year we handled over our [illegible] railroad 100,000 carloads of freight and 600,000 tons of less than-car-lot freight in little shipments going to points all over the country.

"The outlook for the Los Angeles Junction Railway and Central Manufacturing District looks much brighter to me than the outlook at Chicago in 1908, when we started to develop that manufacturing district. We will have every facility out here that could be convenient to an industry located at Seventh street and Broadway.

INDUSTRIAL OPPORTUNITIES

"There are any number of opportunities for industries out here, utilizing raw materials produced in the West and shipping to the Atlantic seaboard by way of the Panama Canal or by railway trunk lines. Our factories can make clothing from the wool produced in our plains or from cotton grown in the Southwest. We can make boots and shoes from hides off the beef 'critter.' I could enumerate scores of items upon which industries might be based.

"No sites in the central manufacturing district can be sold without an iron-clad agreement to erect a building. Buildings and sites may be leased. We are not in the real estate business, but rather in the business of supplying service to industries. The important thing to us is to develop traffic for our belt-line railway and we extend the service that will develop it most rapidly.

"It means a great deal to us to have the moral support and co-operation of such civic organizations as the Huntington Park Chamber of Commerce. Huntington Park and other surrounding communities must become the residence places of the people that are employees in the industries of this section and must be the sources of supply for many necessities."

Speaking from the standpoint of the Union Stockyards, J. A. McNaugton, vice-president and general manager, pointed out that in August the site of the stockyards was a potato and cauliflower patch. Chief Engineer Hegel mapped out the work and Superintendent of Construction "Billy" Neil tore up the ground and created the stock yards ready for opening November 1, with administration building all ready but the finishing touches. Explaining the function of the stockyards, Mr. Naughton said:

The Union Stockyards is simply a hotel for live stock. The stockyards do not buy or sell cattle, but provide facilities where trading may be done on the competitive basis under government regulation. We have a bank and a newspaper, a telegraph office and other conveniences. Our bank in less than a month has over $600,000 deposits. This institution makes it possible for a rancher to buy live stock for feeding and to borrow money to finance his operations. A value is placed on the stock by the trading at the yards; it can be inspected at once and the loan closed immediately. This is the thing that is going to make it possible for the live-stock industry of the Southwest to flourish by providing a channel through which feeder cattle may be disposed of in a convenient and orderly manner, then later brought back as finished live stock ready for slaughter with the certainty of finding a cash market at a price in keeping with its condition and quality.

MAKE NEW ADDITIONS

"We have confidence in the future. This is the basis that induced us to come here. We are putting in all the facilities that go with a stockyard. We are in addition constructing a large dairy barn and sales pavilion, the frame-work of which is already up. This is for dairy cattle sales which will be entirely distinct from the trading in the stockyards, the dairy cattle going into pens in their own section, separate from the stockyards.

"It costs $2 for the packer to buy each head of stock in the country and only 25 cents at the yards. There are eleven so-called packing plants in Los Angeles and twenty-five to thirty country plants. These are really no more than killing plants. There is no meat canning industry here and no real utilization of the byproducts of the industry. It is our function to broaden distribution and markets for finished products by concentration; to provide for the packing industry a steady supply of live stock that can be made the basis of large, efficient plants that can reach out to greater markets in competition with other producing centers. We must provide a surplus of supplies to do this. We can only provide the basis for such a development by having a central market for trading in live stock. Every co-operation that is extended by producers and others to build up this central market tends by that much to stabilize conditions and bring about permanent prosperity for the live-stock industry. The stockyards are essential to industrial development. The first step is a constant supply of live stock.

SHIPMENTS MAY CHANGE

"We have shipped each year from this section 250,000 head of lambs on the hoof to Chicago and other Eastern markets to be slaughtered and sent to the Atlantic seaboard as dressed meat. They might just as well be slaughtered here and freight paid on the dressed meat alone. It might be sent to the east coast through the canal, bringing more money to the producer. California can raise the best cattle in the country. Our cattle, fed on alfalfa and barley, have taken the prizes at the Chicago International. There are centers here where the very best live stock is produced. We can expand those centers through the stockyards and the feed lots and what is true of export shipments of mutton can be made true of export shipments of beef."

Locklath

is fundamentally a plaster base made of non-combustible plastic mineral substance. This is molded into sheets of uniform size—16x48 inches—with dovetailed grooves and treated paper or felt faces. When the plaster is applied, it interlocks with the Lock-lath and is held securely in place on the wall. This construction is strong, forming a universally recognized mechanical bond. The method of application and the long-wearing qualities make it especially economical. The principles upon which it is built and the materials used provide a durable fire-resisting and weather-proof wall.

COST OF LIVING MUCH DEFLATED

Statistics Encouraging, Even if Prices Aren't

Food in Los Angeles Shows Substantial Decline

House Rents, However, Not Falling Precipitously

Gradually the inflation is oozing out of old Col. Hicosta Living, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, whose figures show that food costs have decreased 9 per cent in the year from September, 1921, to September, 1922.

However, the combined costs of forty-three articles of food show that they cost 36 per cent more in September, 1922, than the same articles cost in September, 1913, which leaves room for further improvement.

An interesting tabulation shows the changes in the cost of living in nineteen cities from December, 1914, to September, 1922 with percentages of increase based on prices existing in 1914. The increase in prices apparently started during the year of 1916, and jumped to its peak in 1920, after which a sure and steady decrease set in, varying according to locality.

The items in the tabulation are food, clothing, housing, fuel and light, furniture and furnishings and miscellaneous.

FOOD SOARED HIGH

In Los Angeles in 1916, the figures show, food prices had increased only 4 per cent in two years. But in the ensuing year they started to balloon upward until in June, 1920, they were 90.8 per cent above 1914 prices. Then they tumbled from their perch, dropping 30 per cent in six months and 30 per cent more in the next six months. This level, reached in May, 1921, fluctuated, but was reached again by September, 1922, when food costs were 34 per cent higher than in 1914.

The price of clothing here soared even higher and is taking longer to return to normalcy, the prices show, although declines since September are not shown in the tables. Starting briskly in 1916 with a 14.3 per cent increase over 1914, the price of clothing here zoomed upward and onward until in June, 1920, it was 184.5 per cent higher than in 1914. Then it started to toboggan, until in September, 1922, it was 78.2 per cent over prewar prices.

RENTS ARE LOFTY

It took housing costs in Los Angeles longer to start increasing than any other item, the figures show, but they have clung more tenaciously to their lofty perch. In the four years ending December, 1918, housing costs had increased only 4.4 per cent over 1914 costs. In June, 1919, the increase was only 8.7 per cent. But then they got off with a bound, forging upward until in March, 1922, they attained the summit of 96 per cent increase over housing costs of 1914. Having reached the summit, they are coming down again, apparently as slowly as they started up. In September, 1922, they were 94.4 per cent over 1914 costs.

The cost of fuel and light in Los Angeles, while not showing such spectacular increases as other items, was, according to the tables, six-tenths of 1 per cent higher in September, 1922, than in December, 1919, when they were 35.3 per cent greater than in 1914. They reached their peak in June, 1920, when they were 53.5 per cent higher than in prewar days.

Furniture and furnishings, which mounted in June, 1920, to 202.2 per cent increase over 1914 prices, were, in September, 1922, 128.1 more expensive than in 1914.

The total increase in living costs in Los Angeles to September, 1922, was 72.4 per cent over 1914 costs.

DELANO FARM LANDS NOW BEING IMPROVED

LEVELING STARTED ON PART OF BIG VINEYARD; OTHER PROPERTIES PREPARED

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

DELANO, Jan. 6.—Plans for development and improvement of farming lands in this district are coming in from every section, a sign of great activity for this newer fruit section during the coming year.

The Valley Vineyard, owned by Felver & Fairservice, is undergoing some changes. Leveling of forty acres of the 320-acre tract which they secured some months ago from Mr. McBride is under way. A deep well pump is also being driven. This acreage will be planted in the spring to vines, probably Sultanas; eighty acres of the remaining 280 will be planted to barley, which will be irrigated, and the other 200 will be cultivated in some manner, plans for which have not been completed.

John Stintin, who owns a forty-acre tract northeast of Earlimart, will put down a twelve-inch well and plant to alfalfa.

A. B. Scheel of Richgrove has finished leveling and contemplates planting eighty acres to vines and trees. He will also plant eighty acres to grain, which will be irrigated.

X. Carrithers is leveling eighty acres of the 175-acre tract owned by W. H. Heveren at Jasmine. Mr. Carrithers has increased his equipment by another new compressed air land leveler, disposing of his old style float. He has two modern equipments now. He has just finished leveling forty acres for J. Neseka of Pond.

BRANCH NURSERY IS OPENED AT TULARE

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

The Kirkman Nursery Company has opened a branch in Tulare, which is expected to be second to the parent plant at Fresno. The local yard is across the highway from the Tulare fair grounds and about 10,000 trees were put in last spring for the use of the State Nurserymen's Association. J. M. Sponsler, in charge of the yard, speaks optimistically of the future of the fruit industry in this section. He declares that 400,000 deciduous fruit trees and at least 200,000 vines are to be placed here at once. The company expects to make a permanent location here and will erect an office soon.

JOBS HERE ARE IN DEMAND

Applicants for Civil Service Positions Seeking Transfers From All Sections of the Country

As Jacob waiting for Rachael, the numbers of people waiting for openings in Los Angeles equally are patient, judging from reports received at the Chamber of Commerce from several branches of the Federal government using civil service employees.

One applicant under civil service asking for transfer was informed that there were people registered five years ago waiting for the same post, but the eager worker announced that he would wait.

Large numbers of civil-service employees in the internal revenue department of the city fail to move out of the Los Angeles branch fast enough to suit larger numbers applying in every other section of the country for positions here, according to Collector Goodcell, who asserts that they are deluged by letters and personal calls for transfers to Los Angeles. "They never leave this city, once they find positions here, and families of our employees are just as eager to remain as the breadwinners," he said.

ANXIOUS FOR JOBS

Postoffice officials engaging large numbers of workers under civil service rules report that upon the announcement of special and regular examinations the office is flooded with inquiries regarding Los Angeles. At the last special examination in December there were 350 applicants, and 450 were examined in August, whereas even larger numbers took the regular examinations in April. Preparations are being made for still larger numbers at the next regular examinations to be held in March.

In the customs of Los Angeles, large numbers are under civil service, and it is reported by Special Deputy Collector William S. Mahar that not only do they have many applying for Los Angeles positions, but many in the eastern ports offer to begin at the lowest salary in order to have the privilege of living here.

NOTHING VACANT

It is practically impossible to fill positions in the customs of Los Angeles, as in the internal revenue, because of the satisfaction with living conditions here.

No track is kept of the great numbers of personal applications and letters of inquiry regarding positions in Los Angeles by the Federal Civil Service Commission, but Secretary Edward Tynan in the Los Angeles office of the service states that hundreds seek employment through the local bureau. He points out that many tourists, finding the climate and living conditions to their liking, make every effort to secure employment here and become Angelenos. Large numbers are from the Middle West, and ask to be transferred during summer vacations, or others make the trip here for the specific purpose of obtaining Los Angeles posts.

TWO BUILDINGS FOR HUNTINGTON PARK

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON PARK, Jan. 6.—Another new business block is soon to be erected on North Pacific Boulevard, the foundation having already been completed. The building is to be erected by J. F. McSwain, who was foreman of the Clara Phillips jury.

Mr. McSwain states that within the next few days he will begin work on the structure, which will be two stories high and will be most modern in every particular. It will be of brick and there will be two large store-rooms on the lower floor facing the boulevard, while there will be a third storeroom, which will open on to Belgrave.

The second story will be arranged for hotel rooms, with eighteen single rooms, while there will be a three-room apartment also on that floor. One of the storerooms has already been leased for a term of five years.

Mr. McSwain has let the contract to Shaw & Williams. The new structure will cost at least $21,000 when completed.

The work of excavating for the foundation of the new office and storage house for the firm of Benedict & Moorman at 114 East Randolph street here, was started this week. The building will be 50 by 150 feet in dimensions, two stories high, and will be constructed of brick. This building will cost approximately $25,000.

Offsprings from the parent "Delicious" apple tree, number more than 7,500,000, and one expert estimates from the trees that have survived and grown to the producing age that the annual crop of apples brings $12,000,000.

MONROVIA AND SIERRA MADRE SET DIZZY PACE

Progress Made by Two Cities in the Past Two Years Shining Example of Southland's Advance

BY CHARLES F. DAVIS
"Times" Staff Correspondent

Any Monrovian will tell you that his city just naturally had to be called the Gem of the Foothills because like a finely cut and highly polished jewel it caught up and reflected in all their rainbow hues the best and most colorful of life in Southern California.. And he will also tell you, if you press him a little, why this is so, and give you facts and figures and draw a graphic chart to prove that his native place is not only the crowning gem in a scintillating cluster, but the very heart of the Southland, the center and core of every good thing that has come to typify good living. And it is because the world has come to find this out, he says, that Monrovia has nearly doubled in population since the last Federal census was taken in 1920, has doubled her building operations of a year ago and tripled them in two years' time.

Monrovia gives credit to her founder, W. N. Monroe, for having a keen eye at picking a townsite when he came to California from Texas in 1886 and laid out a city upon the northern foothill slopes of the San Gabriel. Every year, on "Monrovia Day," which is celebrated May 17, the aged father of Monrovia, has the place of honor in the parade that celebrates the city's birthday.

THERE ARE REASONS

The rapid growth of Monrovia from a city of 1200 in 1900 to nearly 9000 at the close of 1922 has come, Monrovians declare, from the factors of climate, productiveness of the land, location and the progressiveness of its people. Monrovia's climate is famous even in Southern California, which is high praise; lying at the base of the Sierra Madre Mountains, just the right distance inland and just close enough to the sea, it enjoys the tempered airs from the Pacific and the warm breezes from the hills and valleys. The mean temperature is 65 deg., which is as nearly ideal as possible. The important factor of soil is here highly significant because a dozen distinct variations, from disintegrated granite to loam and silt permit and encourage the growth of nearly every variety of fruit and vegetable. It is the boast of Monrovians that anything grown in Southern California will do well there. The profusion of trees, shrubs and brilliantly blooming flowers that ornament the streets and parkways is proof of the assertion.

Monrovia lies eighteen miles east of Los Angeles, the gently sloping mesa upon which the city is spread commanding a wonderful view of the broad sweep of the San Gabriel Valley. Thirty-five miles away is the Pacific with its scores of beach resorts. Forty-five miles east is San Bernardino and the entrance to the mountain playgrounds of the Big Bear. Monrovia's elevation ranches from 460 to 1100 feet, with an average of 775.

ABUNDANCE OF PURE WATER

Water is important to every Southern Californian, both in its domestic uses and for irrigation. Monrovia as a city owns a $500,000 system of combined municipal wells and highly valuable crystal mountain streams, analyzed as 99.4 per cent pure. Two groups of deep artesian wells offer an auxiliary source of supply adequate for a city of many times Monrovia's size and guarantee the future of plentiful and cheap water.

With climate, soil and water at their best, the range of crop production is practically unlimited. Some of the most famous of citrus groves of Southern California are to be found on the foothill slopes. Oranges, lemons, grapefruit, kumquats, English walnuts, Japanese persimmons, olives, avacados, figs, guavas, limes, tangerines, as well as peaches, apricots, pears, apples and other fruits of the temperate zones bear abundant yield. In the rich valley lands below the city field crops of potatoes, sweet potatoes, winter cabbage, cauliflower, tomatoes and general truck farming is intensively and profitably carried on. Strawberries grow the year round and fresh vegetables are to be had at all times. As an indication of the extent of the citrus fruit industry alone the statistics of the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific railways show Monrovia has shipped 4083 cars of oranges, lemons and grape fruit during the ten years ending Dec. 31, 1921. Eight citrus packing-houses are required to handle the fruit.

But if Monrovia's location is responsible for its ideal climate and living conditions, it is no less a factor in the business and industrial growth of the city. Situated on the Santa Fe, Southern Pacific and Pacific Electric railroads and on two famous motor boulevards, Huntington Drive and the Foothill Boulevard, Monrovia has no transportation problems to solve. Commuters to and from Los Angeles find the calendar week-day round-trip tickets provide them fare at less than 19 cents for the eighteen-mile trip. With the additional express passenger service recently installed by the Pacific Electric, Monrovians find themselves just thirty-five minutes from Broadway, an ideal suburban community with the individuality of their own city in easy distance of the metropolis.

HAS INDUSTRIAL GROWTH

Industrial concerns are finding transportation facilities, ideal living conditions, moderate rentals and food costs attractive features, and as a result the industrial section of the city is making rapid and steady progress. As a typical example of industrial growth the Day and Night Solar Heater Company, a firm manufacturing solar water heaters, gas and automatic heaters, incorporated in 1911, in 1921, did a business in excess of $230,000. This concern has outgrown three factories and has only recently bought an eight-acre tract for its new business home, which will be one of the most up-to-date manufacturing plants in the valley.

Monrovians have for the past week been taking stock of themselves and their city, preparatory to hanging up a few more records in 1923, after smashing all existing marks during the year just closed. And they wrecked quite a few traditions during 1922. They boosted the Chamber of Commerce from a membership of fifty to 600, with a full-time secretary and an active program that has done much to put the city among the most progressive. The year has seen the organization of the Rotary Club of Monrovia and the Kiwanis Club. The new Realty Board has taken an active hand in the development plans, and the citizens, by an overwhelming vote, have purchased a forty-acre municipal playground upon which it is proposed to build a stadium, gymnasium, community house, swimming pool, automobile campground, baseball diamond, tennis and basketball courts. This new park lies at the edge of the city, within ten minutes' walk from the business district, and is studded with beautiful live oaks. The City Council has offered substantial cash prizes to the winners of a contest soon to be closed for the best plan of landscaping the park and arranging the various units. Some of the best landscape architects are entered in the contest.

POSSESSES FRATERNAL LIFE

The fraternal and religious life of Monrovia is typical of the city. There are forty fraternal, charitable, citizenship and religious organizations, with fourteen churches. The new church edifice of the Presbyterian congregation, now nearing completion, will cost in excess of $100,000. The Elks are shortly to commence the erection of a $75,000 clubhouse upon their property purchased several months ago on White Oak avenue. The Masonic order's new clubhouse, to be dedicated early in the present year, will cost $40,000, and will, it is said, be one of the finest in suburban California.

The public schools, including the high school and four grades, are attended by more than 1600 pupils, with a faculty of sixty. So rapid has been the growth of the city during the past year that it was necessary at the opening of the school year to house pupils in churches and offices buildings for classes until work was completed upon the addition to one of the grammar schools. Building of a junior high school is looked upon as an immediate necessity.

Even the most optimistic of Monrovians were astonished when the end of December, 1922, showed that Monrovia's building permits had passed the million-dollar mark with the total of $1,023,793. In 1919 the building total was $158,011; in 1920, $353,132, in 1921, $626,819, a practical doubling of valuations each year. During the past year a significant feature of the improvements lies in the number of business blocks that have sprung up, in almost every case leased from cellar to roof before the foundations were laid. The city's four banks, with resources of nearly $4,000,000, are progressive and staunchly behind every worthy movement to promote the civic welfare.

COAL FOR FUTURE

A new and possibly rich development for the Monrovia district lies in the direction that has made Signal Hill and Santa Fe Springs world famous—oil. Geologists for years have declared that there is every reason to believe extremely valuable oil pools lie beneath the soil of Monrovia and Arcadia. A co-operative company is now in progress of organization, and a test well will probably be sunk within the next few months.

With all its business and industrial progress, Monrovia will never lose its chance as a city of beautiful homes and parks. Library Park, in the heart of the city, is declared one of the most attractive to be found, while the municipal mountain park is one of the most unique in all California, lying as it does a mile deep in the mountains to the north. This canyon playground, visited by thousands of pleasure-seekers every month, is reached by motor highway which quickly transports the traveler into the depths of a magic grotto, fern carpeted and filled with lofty trees, strange flowers and the sounds of birds and flower streams. In dozens of picturesque nooks and corners campers may enjoy picnic dinners at rustic tables and cook upon stone fireplaces.

SIERRA MADRE NOW RIVAL OF MONROVIA

BY C. S. FLOYD,
Secretary Sierra Madre hhamber of Commerce

Sierra Madre, at the base of the Sierra Madre Mountains, has gained 63 per cent in population since the 1920 census and now has a population of 3300. The new residents were attracted to Sierra Madre because of its location which makes it ideal as a residential community. This phenomenal growth is in marked contrast with the increase of 55 per cent in the ten years following 1910, when the census showed a population of 1303. Due to the fact that Sierra Madre is located off the through boulevards, its development in the past two years has not attracted the same attention as has that of the other communities in the Southland.

The 1100 acres of land occupied by Sierra Madre was originally a part of the famous "Lucky" Baldwin Ranch and was founded in 1881 by N. C. Carter. In 1907 the city was incorporated with the commission form of government under which it now operates.

The principal development in the past year has been in the erection of many homes. Since the passage of the building ordinance on Jan. 11, 1922, over $350,000 of new construction work has been started. Just prior to the passage of this ordinance a new business block of eight stories was started on West Central avenue and was completed in April and immediately occupied. This with other construction started at the same time brings the total for the year to over $400,000 in building permits, a per capita rate of more than $120. At the present time more than forty-five homes are under construction.

CHURCHES COMPLETED

During the summer Saint Rita's Parish of the Catholic Church completed the school chapel and rectory units of its building program, representing an investment of $40,000. Fifty pupils are in daily attendance at Saint Rita's parochial school which was opened at the beginning of the school year. Construction work has been started on the Saint Rita's Shrine, a further development of their building program.

Bethany Temple, an interdenominational church, was completed early in the year and has attracted attention throughout the United States because of its beauty and noval architectural features.

The Church of the Ascension, Episcopal, will complete its new parish house in the near future at a cost of $10,000, which will fill a long-felt want in the parish.

HAS COMPLETE SCHOOL

During the summer additions were made to the grammar school plant to the extent of $20,000 and now Sierra Madre has a school surpassing that of many communities of equal or even greater size. The average attendance last year was 415 and to date this term the daily attendance has been 426 despite the opening of the parochial school which drew many who would have otherwise attended the public school. From past experience a greater attendance may be expected in the near future, due to tourists locating here during the winter months. The school has now a full-time staff of sixteen instructors including a graduate nurse, who has charge of the physical instruction and hygienic education of the children. Other features of the school not found in many of the communities is full-time instruction courses in domestic science and manual training under competent instructors. This year an especially constructed and equipped cafeteria under charge of a competent caterer serves hot meals to 225 pupils daily.

Twelve new brick store buildings were built and occupied during the year. This is indicative of the substantial nature of the growth of the city as the local business is primarily only such as is necessary to supply the local daily needs of the residential community with no heavy industrial activities.

To meet the demand for increased banking facilities caused by the growth of business and building activities the Sierra Madre Bank was reorganized last fall as a State bank with commercial savings departments with a paid-up capital and surplus of $49,000. The average daily deposits for the latter part of the year were over $500,000 and at the close of business on Dec. 31, 1922, were $485,543. This is an increase of $92,985 since the beginning of the year over the old First National Bank which had a paid-up capital and surplus of $30,000.

Additional car service placed on the Sierra Madre line of the Pacific Electric Railway last summer furnishes a more convenient service for commuters to and from Los Angeles and has played its part in the development of the city.

The Sierra Madre News, a weekly publication, has doubled its size in the past year, showing the increase in local business as measured by the advertising space used.

WATER PLANT IMPROVED

The city has just added a new 750,000-gallon settling basin to its municipal water plant, insuring an ample supply of pure water to the city for all purposes. The water is pumped from wells in the Little Santa Anita Canyon close to the base of the mountains which assures its reaching the consumers free from all contamination.

The board of trustees have called an election to be held the 30th inst. to vote $30,000 in bonds for the purchase and development of a park in the central part of the city. The property proposed for development is known as the Hart property and is located on West Central avenue between the business and residential districts. The tract comprises two and three-quarter acres and already has a desirable growth of trees and shrubbery rendering it particularly adaptable to park purposes. A large building on the tract may readily be converted into a community house. In addition to the community house the park will contain provisions for athletic and amusement features not requiring a more extended area.

The board of trustees have also retained G. Gordon Whitnall, director of the Los Angeles City Planning Commission, to assist them in zoning the city. The work is well under way and a zoning ordinance developed to meet local conditions will soon be adopted. This will insure the development of the city along proper lines, serve to stabilize property values and protect property interests.

The Chamber of Commerce is progressing satisfactorily with a road project to afford direct communication with Pasadena and Los Angeles, which will also serve to relieve traffic congestion on the Foothill Boulevard. The new boulevard will parallel the Pacific Electric tracks west from Central avenue, connecting with Sierra Madre avenue at Lamanda Park Junction and East Orange Grove avenue in Pasadena.

This development of Sierra Madre is due to more and more people realizing the ideal and unique locations of Sierra Madre for healthful living conditions. With an elevation of 1500 feet, the free interchange of mountain and sea breezes, uncontaminated by passage over other communities, a minimum of fog and frost, the absence of cold canyon draughts and a soil especially adapted to drainage precluding the possibility of mud during the rainy season, renders Sierra Madre unsurpassable for residential purposes.

A 2000-mile Train of Wheat

Canadian authorities are greatly elated at the progress made in wheat raising in that country. This year's crop is more than 340,000,000 bushels. If this enormous amount of wheat were ground into flour and made into bread, there would be enough to supply every man, woman and child in England with a loaf of bread weighing twenty-four ounces every day for a whole year, or to give a single ration to the entire population of the United States every day for a period of four months.

Putting the wheat yield at a minimum of 343,000,000 bushels, statistics show that this quantity is equivalent to 20,580,000,000 pounds of wheat, or 10,290,000 tons, or 73,500,000 barrels of flour, which could be made into 12,862,500,000 loaves of bread, each weighing twenty-four ounces.

An idea of the enormous quantity of wheat produced by Canada this year may be gained by imagining 7350 trains running at intervals of five minutes apart, taking 252 days to pass a given point. That is just how long it would take 257,250 forty-ton grain cars, loaded to capacity, to move Canada's 1922 wheat crop. Placed end to end, these cars would make a train 1946 miles long, extending from New York to Denver, Colo.

EARN WHILE THEY LEARN

The practice of working through college is more in favor at the present time than it has ever been. Not so long ago it was frowned upon in many institutions; in fact, in one or two colleges it was made impossible. At the present time there are 500 students working their way through Princeton University. The earnings of these men in one year represented $161,530.66. During the Christmas vacation of last year sixty undergraduates obtained temporary employment and their earnings for this period totaled $1479. The favorite occupations for those men who earn while they learn is waiting upon the table in the dining-room connected with the university. Another activity which offers great opportunity for the student is the Student Pressing Establishment where 1000 suits are pressed every week. Quite a number of the men find employment in tutoring other students.

WHY HORSES ARE SHOD

The horses which run at large in the plains country, go barefoot, yet they have foot-health. It is only under the artificial conditions imposed by man that the horse requires shoes. A good deal of this necessity for shoes arises from hard pavements and roads which the horse is worked on. But there is still another reason. The stabled horse does not get at night a foot dew bath. He needs that dew bath. The moisture can be supplied, and sometimes is, by packing the foot each night in wet clay, a method so wasteful of labor that it is only resorted to in exceptional cases, usually when the need is acutely manifest. To maintain healthy condition and durable texture, the horse's hoofs must have moisture. This the dew bath, enjoyed by the pastured horse throughout the night, effectually supplies. Night dew is recognized by horsemen as the best of all medicine for hoofs. Soaking in, it invigorates the whole structure. The hoof becomes much tougher, more rounded and better spread. It is not uncommon for horses which are pastured at night through the summer season to stand up under daily work without being shod. The horse which runs constantly in pasture develops sound, tough hoofs, which though lacking shoes, do not chip, break or crack.

Local Realtor Paves Way for Great Expansion by Providing Sites for Industries

DAUM ANNOUNCES PLAN OF INDUSTRIAL TRACT

Subdivision and Improvements Represent an Investment of Three Million Dollars

The Southwest Industrial Gateway Terminal is the name which W. H. Daum, local realtor, has given to the 240-acre industrial subdivision which he will shortly place on the market. This project with improvements, which are to be made on the property will represent an investment of nearly $3,000,000. Of this sum $500,000 will be spent for improvements.

The property extends south from Slauson avenue to Florence avenue and East from South Park avenue to Central avenue. The huge Goodyear factory forms a nucleus about which the tract lies. When the improvements are added to this property it will be one of the most complete of its kind in the Southwest. These improvements include railroad tracks, water, sewer, electricity, fuel oil and paved streets. The property is to be intersected at regular intervals by sixty-foot streets which will be heavily paved so as to withstand heavy hauling. Between these streets there will be alleys through which the railway tracks and other improvements will run. The property has been laid out so that all plants locating in the tract will have frontage on one of the paved streets as well as having access to railway lines and the utility mains in the rear. The alleys at the rear of the sites will be forty feet wide.

GOOD TRANSPORTATION

The tract has the best transportation facilities that may be offered according to Mr. Daum. These include communication with the three steam and electric railways serving this part of Southern California. Main right-of-way lines of these three carriers bound the two sides of the subdivision. Direct communication with these lines will be established by the branch lines which will intersect the property.

Adequate facilities for truck transportation will be provided by the paved highways which will run through the tract. Including the portion of the existing highways which serve the property, there will be in all five miles of paved streets. Because of its location the tract is situated advantageouly for shipment by truck to the Los Angeles Harbor which is fifteen miles distant.

Mr. Daum declared on announcing the plans for the subdivisions that no less than fifteen firms are considering locating in the property. While the names of these firms will not be made known for some time, it is understood that the majority of them will locate here within the coming year. With the buildings which these firms will build the property will represent an expenditure of at least $15,000,000.

LABOR CLOSE BY

Because of the extent of residential districts around the tract it is thought that this will be one of the most popular industrial sites in Southern California. In these residential districts, Mr. Daum, declares, there is sufficient labor to supply all of the plants which will locate in the tract.

The subdivision has been appraised by members of the Los Angeles Realty Board. Mr. Daum said yesterday that he expects to sell the property lower than the figures which have been determined by the appraisal committee. He also declared that sites in the subdivision will not be sold to speculators, but that when a site is sold it will go to a firm expecting to establish a plant here.

Opening of the industrial enterprise is an additional link in the development of the great industrial district of Los Angeles which is made up of the tract near the new stockyards, the industrial property of the Union Pacific Railroad, the Southwest Industrial Gateway Terminal and the many smaller tracts in this district. The fact that development of this district is to be made is demonstrated in the announcement by the Union Pacific that it will soon commence the erection of the first buildings on its property.

MARKS LOCAL PROGRESS

The opening of the new terminal is expected to be one of the most important industrial steps that has been taken locally. The completeness of the property is a tribute to Mr. Daum and the members of his staff.

Mr. Daum has been active in industrial circles in the Southwest since 1904. Since 1907 he has been located in Los Angeles. During the interval between 1904 and 1910 Mr. Daum served as industrial commissioner for the Santa Fe Railroad. In 1910 he established his own office here. During the time that Mr. Daum has been here he has been successful in locating some of the largest industries in the Southwest in Los Angeles.

The members of Mr. Daum's staff are E. H. Miller, J. M. Green, R. T. Richardson and Elmer Enfield.

Will Occupy New Plant on Eighth Street

R. A. Rowan & Co., through its rental department, reports the closing of a ten-year lease on the property at 2416-2418 East Eighth street for the Dorado Club Beverage Company.

A special type of building is now under course of construction covering the entire property, giving a floor space of approximately 15,000 square feet. The property will be served by Santa Fe trackage in the rear, and Union Pacific on the west. The plant, when completed, will be one of the most up-to-date charged water plants on the Pacific Coast.

The company at present has machinery in the neighborhood of $75,000, and additional machinery of the same value is now en route from the East for the new plant. The output of the concern will be 108,000 bottles per day. At present the company is specializing in Dorado Club Ginger Ale and other flavors of soda water under the brand of "Poppy" and "Kellars Mate." Distilled water will be used exclusively in the making of soda waters and ginger ale as this is a vital factor in the manufacture of high-grade soda waters. The concern is headed by W. T. Haman, S. H. Reynolds, J. H. Reynolds and H. J. Howden.

The transaction involves a total consideration of approximately $85,000. V. P. Gilbert has been awarded the contract for the building, which is to be completed within sixty days. P. F. McManus is the owner.

NEW BUILDING WILL HOUSE PAINT PLANT

The rental department of R. A. Rowan & Co., reports having negotiated the sale of ninety-feet frontage at 2215 East Ninth street, by the Hall heirs to Robert J. Hughes, for the reported consideration of $12,500. Mr. Hughes, who purchased the property with a view of immediately developing it, will soon start the construction of a substantial building covering the entire area for the manufacture of paints.

The same company also reports the sale to Vernon P. Gilbert of 280 feet on Porter street by S. Tilden Norton for the reported price of $24,500. The property is unimproved. Mr. Gilbert intends improving this property in the near future with a part one and part two-story building for an eastern concern. The property is served by spur track of the Santa Fe Railroad.

CHICAGO INVASION PAYING DIVIDENDS

A considerable demand exists in Switzerland for American plumbing goods, especially bath tubs, says Vice-Consul Marc T. Greene, St. Gall, in a report to the Department of Commerce. Thus far that demand does not appear to have been met at all, and an almost certain market awaits American manufacturers.

As to their works, shops and houses the Swiss are a people having high regard for proper sanitation, and demanding neatness and cleanliness in all details. There is, perhaps, no country in Europe where, in the houses of the middle classes, is to be found more modern plumbing and more complete sanitary arrangement, and the Swiss are prepared to pay well for such articles of this nature as appeal to them.

Addition to Visalia Stock Corrals to be Built by Railroad

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, Jan. 6.—The Visalia Chamber of Commerce's plea to the Southern Pacific Company for more adequate stock shipping facilities, has been answered by the statement that plans have been in preparation for just such improvements for some time, and will soon be put into execution.

The stock corrals of the company in Visalia are admittedly too small for the growing business and the Chamber of Commerce has held that there would be an increase in business if facilities were increased.

The local corrals are a shipping point for cattle and hogs and have been well filled much of the time lately. Delay in handling the stock by reason of the one chute has caused some shippers to refuse to bring their cattle to Visalia.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Croomer of Fremont, Neb., recent arrivals in California and Visalia, have purchased the Boone Hotel on North Church street from Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Ganaway, who have had charge of the business for a number of years. Mrs. Ganaway will join her husbnd who is in the realty business in Fresno.

PLAN SPINNING MILL FOR CITY

Coburn Will Head Firm Backing Pioneer Project

Quarter of Million Dollars to Go Into Factory

To be Subsidiary of Proposed Worsted Enterprise

Lemuel J. Coburn, president of the Pioneer-Pacific Worsted Company, yesterday announced plans for a subsidiary plant to the worsted mills which are to be erected here that will represent an expenditure of at least $250,000. The new enterprise will be a wool-spinning mill. In this plant all of the processes essential to the preparations of yarn ready for weaving from the raw products will be performed.

This plant when in operation will be the first of its kind in Southern California. It will answer a need, according to Mr. Coburn, which has long been felt in the Southwest. At the present time practically all of the woolen yarn that is used locally is manufactured in the East and shipped to weaving mills in the Southwest.

Because of the abundance of the local supply of wool and the fact that Los Angeles is 3000 miles nearer Australia, whence the better grade of wool comes, it is expected that the local enterprise will develop into one of the largest in the Southwest.

When Mr. Coburn came to the Pacific Coast with the intention of establishing a chain of worsted mills he found that local woolen mills suffered greatly from the delay in receiving material from the distant mills. It is the intention of Mr. Coburn to not only supply the worsted mills which he expects to establish, but also to provide a supply for other mills of a similar nature in the Southwest.

The expenditure for the spinning mill along with that for the worsted mill will approximate $1,500,000, Mr. Coburn said.

The spinning mill will not only work to the advantage of the local weavers, but it will also form a better market for the sheep raisers of the West. It is thought the demand for raw material which this mill will create will prove a valuable addition to the commercial cycle of Los Angeles.

The new mill is made possible through the decision of eastern associates of Mr. Coburn to come to Los Angeles with him to build the new industry.

At present Mr. Coburn is seeking a site for the worsted mill which is to be built in the immediate vicinity of Los Angeles. The company of which Mr. Coburn is the head will require a site of ten acres for this first factory. Though all of the site will not be required for the first building which will be erected, this building is to be designed so that additional units may be added as required. Whether or not the spinning and worsted mills will be located on the same site has not been decided, Mr. Coburn said. But it is certain that both of these plants are to be located in Los Angeles or the immediate industrial vicinity.

Vagaries of London Fog

Although dense fog prevailed over a large part of the London area yesterday, causing considerable dislocation of traffic, brilliantly fine weather with only a little mist was experienced in many of the outlying districts. Throughout the day fully lighted motor cars were to be seen emerging from the deep gloom of the metropolis to the sunlit streets of the northern suburbs. The fog was widespread in southeastern, eastern and central England, and was in some regions accompanied by bitterly cold conditions, the thermometer at Leamington not rising above 36 degrees.—[London Times.

Wouldn't Handicap Himself

Pat and Mike were working on the railroad track. A freight train appeared unexpectedly around a curve. Mike jumped from the track, but Pat dropped his shovel and took to his heels in front of the train.

The engineer whistled, but Pat kept running and finally rolled off the rails just as the train was about to run him down.

"Why didn't you git off the track, ye fool?" demanded Mike.

"Well, ye see," panted Pat, "it was better runnin' on the track."—Exchange.

AUSTRIAN SITUATION BAD

The Austrian political and economic situation has been somewhat improved bgy the final passage of the reconstruction bills by Parliament on December 3, and the reported passage by the British House of a bill ratifying the guarantee of an international loan, says Trade Commissoins W. F. Upson, in a cable to the Department of Commerce. The Austrian bills provide for the execution of interim loans to bridge the gap until funds from the reconstruction loan are available; for the administration, taxation reform, and economy measures which constitute the foundation of the reconstruction plan, insuring a balanced budget within two years; and for the creation of a new national bank.

The continued depression of industry and commerce is forcing a general wage reduction movement, stimulated by a decrease in the cost of living during November, while unemployment is increasing rapidly. Local buyers in view of lowering prices are making only limited purchases; moreover German and even Czechoslovak competition is being keenly felt because these countries are able to undersell in many lines of trade. A favorable tendency is shown by the fact that Austrian currency has remained practically stable since September; and there are indications that the government will attempt to hold the crown for some time near its present level.

Big Cannery to be Erected on Valley Ranch

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TULARE, Jan. 6.—Work is to be started in the near future on erection of a large cannery for the Tagus Ranch, five miles north of the City, on the State Highway. The plant is owned by H. G. Merritt of Los Angeles and is superintended by his son, H. G. Merritt, Jr. The plant will be large enough, according to James Thomas, manager, to handle the 350 acres of fruit which is coming into bearing.

During the first packing, fruit will be packed under well-known brands, but a Tagus brand is planned as soon as the trees commence producing a heavy yield.

This large acreage of fertile agricultural land is under the control of the Pacific States Corporation and comprises about 6500 acres. The location and fertility of the soil promise to make the Tagus lands in the zone of one of the greatest productive areas of the San Joaquin Valley.

Until the last few years the ranch was known as a grain producer, but at the present time hundreds of acres of fruit trees are coming into bearing, assuring one of the most productive fruit centers of the valley. No approximation has been made as to cost of the cannery, but it is said to reach well into the thousands.

THE LARGEST BELLS

The largest perfect bell in the world is undoubtedly that at Mingoon, about nine miles above Mandalay, Burma. This bell is about eighteen feet in diameter and thirty-one feet in height—this latter figure, of course, including the massive erection of metal which takes the place of the shackle. Its weight is about eighty tons. This bell remained for generations half-buried in the ground and silent. Just before the war it was examined by order of Lord Curzon, found to be intact and hung in a handsome belfry. It cannot be rung in the ordinary way as it does not possess a clapper. A heavy picee of wood is used as a ram when it is wished to sound the bell, though a mere rap of the knuckle is sufficient to bring out the strangely thrilling low note of this monster. The largest bell-shaped piece of metal in existence is that in the Kremlin, at Moscow, the Tsar Kolokol. It weighs about 193 tons. But this huge example of the founders' art has a piece broken out of one side of such a size that the bell at one time was used as a chapel with the fracture as a doorway. No attempt has ever been made to hang or ring it.

MAKING A POCKETKNIFE

It takes 107 separate and distinct operations to make a pocketknife. Take the Boy Scout knife for instance. Sixteen operations are required for making the spring actions, with a number of additional operations to put the spring in place and connect it with the frame of the knife. To make the screw-driver that is so important a part of any Scout knife eight operations are needed. Twelve operations go in that of making the tin opener, and six in making the leather puncher. When the knife is completed it is carefully inspected, the blades are glazed and polished. The projecting pins through the handle are rounded, the trade-mark is etched on the blades, and the knives are brushed out and cleaned. A second inspection takes place. Then the points are oiled, the knives are carefully rubbed off with chamois, each knife is wrapped in tissue paper, boxed and packed.

"MISSED" SEVEN DAYS

Fair Passenger on Transport Liked Bridge Better Than Baths

The negro steward on one of the army transports plying between San Francisco and Manila is noted from coast to coast for his immaculate cleanliness, his particular ship being known as the cleanest on the Pacific. Owing to the scarcity of bathrooms on board compared with the number of Army officers and their wives that are carried, there is a set schedule for bathing. Each person, on being assigned a stateroom, is given a specified hour when he may have the use of a bath.

On one of the recent voyages from Manila the bath schedule, as it is known among the passengers, extended until late in the afternoon. It was the duty of our negro steward, whom we will call Sam because it is not his name, to notify each person as the time arrived for his or her bath.

A very heated bridge game was in progress, four of the officers' wives being the players. The stakes were high and there was a considerable gathering of interested spectators about the table.

Sam approached the gathering with dignity. Politely elbowing his way through the crowd, he spoke to one of the ladies.

"Mis' Smith it's fo'-fifteen, which is de time fo' your bath," he announced.

Mrs. Smith turned around slowly. "Really, Sam, I can't leave the game just now." She smiled patronizingly at him. "Suppose we pass it up today?"

"But Mis' Smith," Sam objected, frowning, "dis makes de seventh day what you done passed it up."[North China Herald.

EAGLE CARRIES DOG

New York Crowds Was Thrilled by Unusual Sight

Pedestrians in Riverside Park and along the drive paused the other afternoon to watch what seemed to them an extraordinarily small airplane. It was sharply silhouetted against the clouds at a height of fifteen hundred feet or so, and the astonishment of the observers grew as the "machine" apparently hovered, a thing that airplanes can't do yet, but may when the helicopter has been perfected.

A woman in an apartment at One Hundred and Fourth street and West End avenue, noticing the skygazing crowds, got out a pair of field glasses to gain a closer view of the thing that was attracting their attention. What she saw through the binoculars led her to turn to a telescope, and then she had revealed to her a most unusual spectacle.

The "airplane" was in reality an eagle, riding leisurely on the stiff northwest breeze and bearing in its talons a terrier. Whether it was a small Airedale or an Irish terrier the woman could not be sure, but it plainly was a dog, and as she watch she could see the great bird strike with its beak at the eyes of its prey or at the base of its skull.

For ten minutes the woman watched the strange sight. She lowered her telescope then for a moment and when she scanned the heavens again the eagle was lost in the clouds.—[New York World.

WING'S LITTLE JOKE

Miss Elizabeth has been teaching in one of the mission Sunday schools for several years a class of young Chinese boys. She is very popular with them, and they frequently come in crowds to cal' on her at her home. One young man in particular, Wing Lee, showed a remarkable intelligence and was very ambitious to learn the English language. He came often to see teacher, with a list of words whose meaning he wished to know. One Sunday afternoon he called with a much longer list than usual. Miss Elizabeth took it from him, and began elucidating, but after the first two or three words she stopped, with a puzzled frown. "Well, honestly, Wing, I'll have to admit I don't know the meaning of these words." Just then her brother came into the room. "Here, John, can you tell Wing what these words mean?" John took the list over to the window for a better light, and for a moment he seemed nonplussed.

"Where did you get these words, Wing?" he asked.

Wing smiled brilliantly. "Offee bottles in dlug store," he answered.—[Indianapolis News.

A REAL DEVIL FISH

Victor Hugo's story of a man being attacked by a devil fish (so called) has thrilled the spines of several generations. We now have a confirmation of the grewsome incident, for a fishing boat was attacked by a giant octupus, near the Island of Jersey, or near the exact location in the story. The fight was a heroic one, for one man was dragged overboard and only escaped by chance. The boat was almost capsized by the terrible inhabitant of the sea. Finally, with the aid of knives and boat hooks, the monster released its hold and sank its mutilated remains.—[Scientific American.

HAD WRONG PAIR SHRINKING

She evidently was a new clerk in the department store, and was doing her best to please. The customer asked to see wool hose. Two pairs in a size she wished were shown her. One pair was a trifle larger than the other.

The customer remarked that she liked the smaller pair better, but that she was afraid they were not quite large enough. She wished they were the same size as the others.

The clerk promptly replied, "Oh, that is all right, madam. These, the smaller ones, were made to thrink, and the others were not. They were made to stay the size they are."—[Indianapolis News.

FRUIT GROWERS HIT BY TARIFF

West Coast Ranchers May Sell Produce in Canada

Reciprocal Action May Hurt Sale of State's Products

Gompers Gets Panicky Over Mexican Labor Status

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 6.—Mexican trade interests are very much disturbed over the raising of the importation duties by the United States on such articles of Mexican production as sugar, tobacco, linseed oil, lumber and fruits, the item being the cause of the most criticism and which promises to bring about some form of retaliation, probably directed at California fruits.

The duties under the new tariff schedule are such as to be almost, if not quite, prohibitive, and as the United States has been the chief and, in many instances, the only market for these products, many of the producers feel that it will be useless to attempt to increase their production. In fact, many of the producers who have been relying solely on the United States market are seriously considering turning their attention to other crops, unless the Canadian market can be built up to take their entire production.

BUILD UP CANADIAN TRADE

The Canadian customs regulations do not impose any conditions on the importation of fruit and vegetables from Mexico due to possible infection by pernicious insects, while this is the cause of all prohibition on the part of the United States. Canada is taking immense amounts of Mexican fruits and it is believed that proper propaganda can build this trade up to a point where it will consume the present production, independent of whatever action the United States may insist on.

The announcement that the United States Department of Agriculture has ruled against the importation of Mexican tomatoes, on account of this fruit being supposed to be a carrier of the fruit fly grub, has caused consternation among the growers of the West Coast of Mexico, where the tomato-growing industry has attained large proportions. There, not only many Mexican farmers are engaged in this industry, but a considerable number of Americans have bought lands with the avowed object of raising tomatoes and melons for supplying the Western States of the United States, as the products from this field can be placed on the California and other Western State markets from six to eight weeks before the crop from the extreme south of the United States is ready for shipping.

AFFECTS LARGE TRADE

The exportation of Mexican fruits to the northern republic has attained the very respectable sum of over $2,000,000 per annum and, in return, Mexico has imported California fruits to the extent of several million dollars. The best fruits and vegetables found on the markets of the Mexican capital and most of the central and eastern cities of the republic are American grown, some dealers selling nothing but the American product, in spite of the long haul.

All American fruits imported into Mexico come from California and, as the prohibition against Mexican fruits was the result of a protest of the fruit and vegetable growers of that State, they fearing competition, the natural resentment of the Mexican growers is directed against California. No retaliatory action has been taken as yet against California products, but an agitation is going on which may result in action tending to exclusion of the fruits of that State from Mexican markets.

GOMPERS IS PANICKY

The Mexican national labor headquarters has received notice that Samuel Gompers has determined to make a journey through all departments of the American Federation of Labor, before going to the Pan-American Labor Congress, which is to be held in Guatemala in March. The object of Gompers's trip is to advise his supporters of the dangers of the Fascisti movement, which, he says in his letter to his followers here, threatens the dismemberment of the labor organizations. He states that the movement has made no great headway in the United States as yet, but that a number of Italian Fascisti missionaries have arrived in that country to foment the spread of the society and he fears the results for organized labor, particularly among its Italian adherents.

FEARS AMERICAN INVASION

Gompers states he has heard that the Facisti movement has been enthusiastically received in Mexico and he fears that it will be only a short time before it will cross the northern frontier and invade the great labor centers of the United States where the laborers are not prepared to resist it. He recommends that the members of the Mexican labor organizations, by means of meetings and conferences, combat the movement at any cost, as it is seriously threatening the sovereignty of the laboring classes.

Gompers's letter shows a decidedly panicky feeling and recommendations of combative measures against the new movement, even to the extent of force, can be easily read between its lines. It is probable that he is not building as he wishes, for Mexican labor is feeling decidedly panicky on the Fascisti question and a few more uneasy letters, added to the quite rapid growth of the Fascisti, which the syndicalists cannot understand, will cause a stampede and organized labor will be a thing of the past in this country.

Once Enough

Feeling they had a grievance over a certain matter, the weavers in a mill decided to send two of their number to interview the owner.

He listened patiently to all they had to say, and then talked to them at length, telling them among other things that they were too fastidious.

On getting back to the mill the others at once crowded round them to know how they had got on.

"You can send somebody else next time," they said; "We're not going again."

"Why, what's wrong?"

"Well," came the reply, "when [illegible] us two fat idiots."—[Chicago News.

NO CHANGE IN BALKANS

Little change in conditions in the Balkan states is noted in cables to the Department of Commerce. Business generally is dull. Rumania is making and discussing economic agreements with neighboring countries. Exchange there has declined several points. The Reschitza works have increased their capital The Rumanian cost of living continues to rise. The export of petroleum products and of lumber have fallen off considerably, but there has been a notable increase in grain exports and somewhat less in live stock.

In Bulgaria contracts for the long-talked of grain elevators have been placed with an American firm. Not only is Bulgaria c arellitetao Not only is Bulgaria still desirous of floating a foreign loan in order to promote its reconstruction more rapidly, but reports are heard that municipal loans are also desired. The latter are to be used, if obtained, for various public imporvements, including new construction and the purchase of necessary machinery.

COURTESY RULES ROAD

"Eastern States, headed by Connecticut, are effecting a cordial observation of motor-vehicle laws by adopting an attitude of hearty cooperation toward motorists," says Don P. Smith, general manager of the W. P. Herbert Company, local distributors of the new Chandler and Cleveland cars.

"Officials in some of these States, by their friendly policy and courteous treatment of tourists, are doing more to eliminate violations than is being accomplished in many instances by 'big-stick tactics' elsewhere. I believe our local authorities should look into the Connecticut plan and learn more about what they are accomplishing.

"Upon entering the State of Connecticut the motorist is handed a card which reads: 'Mr. Motor Vehicle Operator:

" 'Your safety and convenience is our duty. We want, need and must have your co-operation to successfully perform that duty. Please assist us to avoid accidents: By staying in line and not trying to pass the motor vehicle ahead. Passing on a curve, at the top of a hill, or where the sight-line is obstructed is illegal, and will be prosecuted.

" 'By keeping to the right of the center of the highway, by remaining a reasonable distance from the car ahead in case of sudden stop, by refraining from cutting in, by having your brakes and other equipment in good order, by keeping your speed to the average speed of the line, by giving proper and distinct signals when stopping or changing direction, by parking your car when it is necessary to stop, completely off the main traveled portion of the highway, so as not to restrict traffic.

" 'By obeying the officer's signals and directions, by being careful and courteous. With your assistance in these things we will move traffic as fast as safety will permit.' "

"Lend me a fiver, will you, old man?"

"I will when I come back from New York."

"When are you coming back?"

"Between ourselves, I'm not going."—Boston Transcript.

Dodge Bros. factories are running at capacity, turning out 625 cars a day. Maxwell, now in full control of Chalmers, is proceeding with a schedule which will show some advances over 1922 on both Maxwell and Chalmers.

Hupmobile sales for 1922 totaled about 35,000 cars. Production figures for 1923 will materially exceed this mark, according to O. C. Hutchinson, general sales manager.

Cadillac Motor Car Company was forced to do away with the usual inventory closing period for the first time in its history, to meet the demand for cars which resulted from the recent price reduction.

In the Flint district Chevrolet, Buick and Dort closed the biggest year in their history and jumped into 1923 production without a break. With the entrance of the new Flint car into the field in the near future, activities in this territory will assume greater proportions than ever before.

"With the completion of the Stutz production plans for 1923, the Stutz Motor Car Company will be placed in a position to exceed all of its previous sales records," declared Charles M. Schwab, controller of the Stutz company.

Mr. Schwab makes it plain that he was not in the Stutz Motor Car Company for speculation purposes, but simply from an operative interest irrespective of Stutz stock activities. He said that he is in business purely as a manufacturer, and that during his forty-three years of industrial progress had never been identified with a business that had failed. He entertains no fear that the Stutz institution will be a failure.

"I have much to achieve in the Stutz," he said, "and I want to have the Stutz business grow and become one of the real factors of the great American industry."

A New Road Piercing the Very Heart of the Magnificent Canadian Rockies

MILL CREEK TO GET FINE ROAD

Construction Work is Now Under Way

Highway is Closed Most of the Time

Will be Finished by Summer at Latest

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

REDLANDS, Jan. 6.—The work of paving the Mill Creek road from the mouth of the canyon to the Mountain Home Canyon control is well under way, and George S. Biggin, county Supervisor, says that it is hoped to get the work done by summer at least.

The road is closed most of the time now so that the work will not be hindered. About sixty men are at work spreading the crushed rock and gravel over the road and a large force is keeping the new rock crusher hot.

The road will be paved that far this year and it is likely that, step by step, the county can pave most of the road into the upper Santa Ana country. The road will likely be paved to Forest Home also, although this will depend on the owners of the resort.

Supervisors agree that the heavy mountain traffic makes it necessary to build better roads in the hills.

The open winter has resulted in heavier and more continued traffic between Big Bear Valley and this valley than for several years, for the desert road was never finer than it is now, according to Guy Daniels, coach of the University of Redlands, who has just returned from a trip to the valley.

"I never made better time on the trip over the desert road," said Daniels. "We went up in less than four hours, not hurrying, but hitting a good gait all the way. And we came down in less time. It is possible only because the roads are in such fine shape. There have been enough rain and snow to settle all the dust, and they are hard and smooth. Even the roads in the valley which in spots are always bad in the winter time are fine this year."

Daniels says that the valley is grand in the summer time, but it cannot compare with the winter time. The hills that rim Big Bear are now covered with snow and the nights are cold and the days snappy. The road out of the valley over the Clarks grade is closed because of snow; it would be passable for a few cars, but is soft and any number of cars going over would cut it up so that great damage would be done. It is not pos-

NEW ROAD MAGNIFICENT

Missing Link of California-Banff Road Completed and Ready for Use

BY ETHEL C. McDONALD

The Banff-Windermere Road; the missing link of the California to Banff bee-line highway was completed September 30. The completion of the road marks an epoch in the Canadian Rockies, for now the heart of these Great Hills is made accessible to motorists. Tourists desirous of seeing this part of the Rockies heretofore had to travel with ponies and pack train over the Kootenay Trail, commonly known as the Old Whisky Trail. This trail ran from Fort Steel to Windermere and across the mountains through the valleys of the Columbia and Kootenay rivers into Banff. The journey took three days, for the distance between postoffices was approximately ninety miles. This distance may now be covered in four and a half or five hours; rather a contrast to the days of the Old Whisky Trail.

J. M. Wardle, chief engineer of the road, drove the first car through on September 17. The last part of the work done in the early autumn was the widening and improving work on the Sinclair and Vermilion Pass Summits. Though the road is not wholly completed at the present time it is passable to motor cars. Surfacing operations will be finished early next year, when it will be in first-class condition for traffic, and it is anticipated that the formal and official opening will be about June 15.

The completion of the Banff-Windermere Road will afford the motorist an opportunity of practically encircling the continent of North America. Cars leaving Los Angeles will go up the coast for several hundred miles, then to Spokane; via Kingsgate and Cranbrook into the valleys of the Kootenay and Columbia to Banff. Banff, apart from the good motor road to Lake Louise, and other districts equally as beautiful, has many attractions, and tourists should arrange if possible to stay at this point for three or four days. From Banff the road goes to Calgary, then south through Glacier Park, Helena, Salt Lake and the Grand Canyon, Arizona, and from here across the desert into Los Angeles.

Practically all scenery is embraced in a town of this kind. The full grandeur and beauty of the Canadian Rockies, unsurpassed the world over, can be reveled in; also the beauty and mysticism of the desert; the ocean and quiet pastoral land can be admired by those who prefer this type of scenery, yet possibly natures' power is more keenly felt in the snow-clad summits of the Rockies, or in the silence of the desert. R. Randolph Bruce, C.E., F.R.G.S. of Invermere, B. C., saw the possibilities of a highway—a good motor road—replacing the old pony trail. Through his efforts the Canadian Pacific Railway and the British Columbia government ultimately took the matter up in 1905. It was not until 1911, however, that work was commenced on the British Columbia end of the road. The work was discontinued in 1913, for a number of years, owing to lack of funds and the war, and it has since been done intermittently. In the summer of 1919 work was again commenced on the road, and it has been rushed through as speedily as possible, with the result that the work is completed a year and a ... vicinity have given the building of this road all possible support, as also the various motor associations, boards of trade and others equally interested.

Getting labor into the work was one of the greatest difficulties in the building of this road, more especially in winter, as the temperature is anywhere from twenty-five to forty below zero for weeks at a time, with bad snow conditions. Another item contended with was the long haul from the nearest railroad, namely thirty-five miles.

To the casual observer (and there are many who thought the road should have been completed long ago,) these obstacles might appear easily surmounted, but take into consideration the hauling upgrade over a new road, or right of way in the heart of the Rockies, to an altitude of 4950 feet, and the difficulties will be appreciated. Then, too, much of this work had to be done during the winter and flood seasons.

The most beautiful part of the road is from Canal Flats—the source of the Columbia River—to Vermilion Pass. It follows the river for some distance, then skirts the shores of Columbia Lake and Lake Windermere; the latter a lovely body of water. Directly from the shores of the lake rise undulating slopes, or benches, well treed with pines, spruces and firs. Open fields—some cultivated—are seen here and there along these benches; above the fields rise the hills well timbered; and above the hills tower the mountains, as if guarding the quiet pastoral lands below from intrusion. Windermere is the oldest settlement in this district, and it is still so new that one feels almost a pioneer. The Northwest Mounted Police were stationed here as recently as 1885 on account of the Indians being troublesome, and the railroad was only built through the valley seven years ago and the trains at present run only twice a week.

From Lake Windermere the road goes through the sleepy hamlet at Atholmere and the Shuswap Indian reserve and follows the valley till Sinclair Canyon is almost reached. Sheer rock walls, of an interesting formation, rise on either side of the tiny creek, and the coloring in these slabs is similar to the Colorado River—brilliant coloring, as if the Indians, wishing to beautify nature, had colored the rocks with pigments.

The road at this point is also interesting from an engineering feat, for it was blasted out of the rock;

CONSIDER LAWS FOR VEHICLES

Legislature to Discuss Numerous Proposed Amendments to Present Statutes

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 6.—Motor vehicle legislation will be among the most important to be considered by the 1923 Legislature which convenes here on Monday.

Many recommendations will be made to amend the motor vehicle law in various particulars and also there will be other legislation that will affect the motoring public of California.

One bit of legislation that is bound to create considerable interest and most likely will precipitate a fight in the Legislature is the proposal to levy a tax of 1 cent per gallon on gasoline used by motorists.

A law along these lines was proposed at the 1921 Legislature, but such a storm of protest was raised against the measure that the legislators refused to force it.

Those in favor of the law contend that the individuals who use the highways the most should be made to pay for their maintenance, and the funds derived from the gasoline tax would be used for that purpose.

Other legislation proposed follows:

Drastic changes in the safety regulations of the motor vehicle law.

Requiring the registration of all automobile drivers.

STUDEBAKER IN YOSEMITE FIRST

The first car to reach the floor of Yosemite Valley for 1923 was a Studebaker big six, driven by H. M. Gregory of the Chester N. Weaver Company, Studebaker distributors at San Francisco. It arrived at Yosemite Valley at 1 o'clock in the morning of New Year's Day and was given the first permit by Chief Ranger Townsley.

To get into the valley over the Coulterville road it was necessary to buck deep snow for hundreds of yards at a time.

Closely following the big six was a Studebaker special six from the Modesto agency driven by William Silva. It checked in one-half hour later.

Last year two Studebakers were first to break an open road into the valley and were followed by a number of other cars in close for-

DEMAND SEVERE PENALTY

Intoxicated Motorists Should Receive Tough Sentences, Says Auto Club

Should there be a more severe penalty than at present for motorists who operate an automobile under the influence of liquor? That there is a strong sentiment for a relentless warfare on such motorists growing in this community, is a report just issued by officials of the legal department of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Some definite consideration should be given to this question at the present time, say the club officials. The judges of the police courts report that about 80 per cent of the reckless driving charges heard by them involve the operation of an automobile by a person under the influence of liquor, but that little, if any, proof of this fact is offered.

And strange as it may seem it is the consensus of opinion of those who have had experience of the working of the law regarding this question that it is too severe. Juries seem reluctant to convict offenders when the penalty is so heavy and judges say that more people would be convicted if the penalty was less severe. As a matter of fact the State of California makes the operation of an automobile while under the influence of liquor a serious offense and provides that one convicted of such an offense may be imprisoned in the County Jail for not less than six months nor more than one year, or that he may be imprisoned in the State prison for not less than one or more than three years, or that he may pay a fine or not less than $500 nor more than $5000.

NEW MODELS SHOW CLASS

Closed Cars Shown in Great Abundance

Display of Sport Models Is Magnificent

Huge Throng Swamps Salon on Opening Night

BY PAUL LOWRY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Occupying the four lower floors of the Grand Central Palace, an area equal to four city blocks, the twenty-third national automobile show opened here this afternoon. It is the biggest and the greatest show in the history of the automobile industry. There are seventy-nine different makes of cars in the palace and an accessory list of nearly 400, the space applications for this latter division of the show being approximately 100 more than for any previous display.

FINE COLOR

The big show is a blaze of red, the gorgeous coloring of the American Beauty rose brought out in velvet and accentuated by touches of gold being the dominant note. Over 350 individual car models are parked on the first two floors of the palace, with three or four manufacturers showing on the third floor. The remainder of the third floor and all of the fourth are filled with accessories.

Refinement, both in design and appointment, makes the 1923 models stand apart from their older brothers and sisters like sunshine from fog. The huge crowd which started streaming in the doors at 2 o'clock was quick to appreciate this fact, and the chattering and gesticulating of the spectators as they dodged in and out told better than words of their responsiveness to the striking creations of the manufacturers.

CLOSED CARS

One of the outstanding features of the show is the plethora of closed and sport models. They vie with one another for popularity and the great number that is shown indicates clearly that the motor-car manufacturer is anticipating an increasing and heavier demand for these two types.

For the first time in the history of the industry manufacturers are seriously considering closed cars for major production with the sport models as a close runner-up and the ordinary touring model being used as a pinch-hitter.

The average manufacturer at the present time is making 35 per cent closed cars; some as high as 60 per cent. This year the averages probably will be around 60 per cent closed, and 40 per cent open cars, it is said.

THE SPORTS

The onward sweep of the sport models is very interesting. In 1921 there were 181 makes of passenger cars and twenty-eight makers of a roadster of the sport type or about 15 per cent. The increase has now mounted to 31 per cent and it is more noticeable when it is considered that the number of makes of passenger cars has decreased to 140.

Another big feature of the models of all types being displayed at

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Occupying the four lower floors of the Grand Central Palace, an area equal to four city blocks, the twenty-third national automobile show opened here thi safternoon. It is the biggest and the greatest show in the history of the automobile industry. There are seventy-nine different makes of cars in the palace and an accessory list of nearly 400, the space applications for this latter division of the show being approximately 100 more than for any previous display.

FINE COLOR

The big show is a blaze of red, the gorgeous coloring of the American Beauty rose brought out in velvet and accentuated by touches of gold being the dominant note. Over 350 individual car models are parked on the first two floors of the palace, with three or four manufacturers showing on the third floor. For the first time in the history of the industry manufacturers are seriously considering closed cars for major production with the sport models as a close runner-up and the ordinary touring model being used as a pinch-hitter.

The average manufacturer at the present time is making 35 per cent closed cars; some as high as 60 per cent. This year the averages probably will be around 60 per cent closed, and 40 per cent open cars, it is said.

THE SPORTS

The onward sweep of the sport models is very interesting. In 1921 there were 181 makes of passenger cars and twenty-eight makers of a roadster of the sport type or about 15 per cent. The increase has now mounted to 31 per cent and it is more noticeable when it is considered that the number of makes of passenger cars has decreased to 140.

Another big feature of the models of all types being displayed at

NEW YORK SHOW IS DUPLICATED

Studebaker Models Displayed in Showroom

Exact Replicas of the Show Cars Are Here

New Closed Car Expected to be a Big Hit

Simultaneously with the New York automobile show a duplicate of the Studebaker six exhibit is displayed in Los Angeles. This is the first time that Studebaker has shown their new season models in Los Angeles coincident with the announcement of the line.

The most marked change in the sixteen models is that shown in the light six touring car, which has a new-style body made entirely of steel and finished in lasting baked enamel. With a longer body, deeper and wider cushions, it accommodates five passengers with added room.

A straight-line body is marked by a line running from the shoulder of the radiator across the hood and parallel with the top edge of the body, curving at the rear to follow the line of the rear panel.

The cushions have been tilted to a comfortable angle for long-distance touring and are built ten inches deep and, in conjunction with the long, flat springs of the chassis, insure a luxurious ease in a lightweight car.

Among the many refinements will be found a one-piece windshield introduced by Studebaker last season on the larger touring models. A quick-acting cowl ventilator has been installed and the side curtains provided with steel rods on three sides, so that they will open and close easily with the doors. The oval glasses in the rear curtain are replaced by a large single plate glass that affords excellent vision toward the rear.

The same advanced type of motor is adhered to, with the inclined valves that give better economy by making passage of gases much easier. Friction of fuel mixture and exhaust gases is also reduced by a machined combustion chamber which insures the same compression space in each cylinder. The chassis continues to be full Timken bearing equipped.

Some changes have been made in the top design which add much to the appearance, giving the car a longer, lower-swung look.

An innovation in the line of Studebakers was the addition of a sixteenth model on the big six chassis. This is a five-passenger coupe with a full-width rear seat for three passengers, an individual seat for the driver and an arm chair for a fifth passenger.

It is predicted for this model that it will be one of the best sellers in the big six line, rivaling in popularity the recently introduced four-passenger speedster with its six disc wheels and full complement of desirable accessories, such as bumpers, trunk rack with weather-proof trunk, locked motometer, automatic windshield wiper and rear-sight mirror. The accessories that have been added as standard equipment on many of the models make a list as long as your arm.

By rushing the shipments of 1923 models by express the Paul G. Hoffman Company was able to stage its display so that the public could see it today, as the store will be open for their convenience and during the evenings for the week.

NEW ROAD IS MAGNIFICENT

the walls of rock allowing only a few feet more than the width of the car. Sinclair Hot Springs, or Radium Springs, are only a few hundred yards from the road, and they are now well known for their curative qualities.

From Sinclair Springs there is a continual ascent of the Brisas Range to Sinclair Pass, altitude 4900 feet, which divides the Brisco and Stanford ranges. Lake Olive, a scintillating sheet of water, lies at the summit. After a few miles have been covered, the road runs parallel with the Kootenay River for a distance of ten miles or more, before it is crossed by a span bridge. It then runs through dense pines and spruces, forty to sixty feet high, and again emerages into another valley following the Vermilion River for a number of miles, when the Simpson River joins it from the east. It was named after Sir George Simpson, Governor of the Hudson Bay Company for Rupertsland, who passed through this district in 1841.

This road has possibly no rival; towering mountains rise in all directions; beautiful river vallies are entered and seen from summits of various passes; rushing mountain torrents find their outlet into these large streams and are crossed and recrossed many times. The road now follows the Vermilion River for miles—so named from the ochre found in the neighborhood—used by the Indians for the manufacture of their paints. Sixteen miles from the junction of the Simpson River, Ochre River joins the Vermilion from the southeast. This district has many rivers, as the Mount Assiniboine and the Palliser Pass district abound in lakes and small streams.

The highest grade of the road is at Vermilion Pass, altitude 5376 feet; at this point Mount Storm is seen, a lovely pile of 10,332. This pass is on the divide and the province of Alberta is entered. At Castle Mountain, the road enters into the Lake Louise road which leads into Banff.

Los Angeles motorists contemplating a trip next summer, will do well to consider this trip to the Canadian Rockies, where, it is an admitted fact by world travelers, the scenery is unsurpassed. This grand circle tour over the California to Banff Bee-Line Highway awaits those who know the lure and charm of the open road, and new districts that have only now been opened to motorists.

A GREAT YEAR IS PREDICTED

dent of the Gray Motor Corporation, announces the prices on two new closed models. The two-passenger coupe price was set at $685, and the four-door sedan at $835. This latest announcement of the Gray company rounds out its 1923 model plans. It gives them a line of five cars—touring, roadster, coupe, coach and four-door sedan. The first showing of these cars will take place at the National Automobile Show, in New York. Exhibits during the month of January will also be shown in Philadelphia, Cleveland, Baltimore, Milwaukee, Chicago and Detroit.

The additions to the Gray closed line are fine examples of motor car building. The doors of the closed model are exceptionally wide, for easy entrance and exit, while broad windows give clear vision and make driving easier and safer.

"Transportation demands during 1923 will be so great and so varied that motor truck manufacturers can expect a greatly increased volume of business," said W. L. Day, president and general manager of the General Motors Truck Company, Pontiac. "I refer to those manufacturers who have builded on a sound basis and can produce in sufficient volume to enable them to supply high-grade trucks at right prices.

"Some experts on transportation have gone so far as to predict that the year will see an actual shortage of motor trucks in the business world. I do not believe that this will come to pass, but I do believe that the motor truck will assume a more and more important place in transportation during the year."

Sales of Hupmobiles for eight of the twelve different months of 1922 were greater than the highest previous monthly sales record of any other year in the fourteen years of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation history, according to announcement by O. C. Hutchinson, general sales manager.

It is officially stated that the output planned for 1923 will considerably exceed that of 1922 and that despite enlargements of its plant in Detroit, now nearing completion, the Hupp Corporation will be forced to operate at close to capacity every month next year to produce the cars its sales organization has figured will be required. Plans are now being made to increase the output up to close to maximum in January and raise it still higher in February for the expected sharp buying demand next spring.

Prominent among big manufacturers mentioned in the annual motor gossip preceding the national shows as likely to spring a real sensation is the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company, which, according to popular rumor, will center its efforts on a new Paige that will be an eight or a twelve. In a denial of the rumor President H. M. Jewett said: "This is not the time to tell the details of our Paige plans, but any report that this car will be anything but a six is unfounded and untrue. This company, for a good many years, has been building nothing but sixes. We have always believed in the six and our belief today is stronger than ever before."

Automotive circles were surprised to hear that John R. Lee had voluntarily withdraw from all interest in the Wills-St. Claire Company and other enterprises at Marysville, the model city.

"In the process of the reorganization work now going on Mr. Lee has made the decision voluntarily to withdraw from all of the C. H. Wills & Co., enterprises," said Mr. Wills in discussing Mr. Lee's retirement. "Mr. Lee's decision to make this step has not changed in any way our relations toward each other, these being, let me say, most cordial and friendly."

To this Mr. Lee, who was with Wills in his office, added:

"I am voluntarily withdrawing from the C. H. Wills & Co., interests but my relations with Mr. Wills and my hopes for Marysville have in no way changed. I will always be deeply interested in the welfare of Marysville and the success of the projects there. I believe in Marysville firmly and I have the deepest faith in the outcome of what is being done there. I believe in Marysville's future and at all times I will do all I can to aid in bringing the success the future holds for it."

For the first time in its history the Buick Motor Company plant did not close for the annual December inventory. In announcing the fact President H. H. Bassett said:

"Owing to the continuous overwhelming demand for our product we were obliged to abandon the annual December inventory. There seems to be no let-up whatever in the volume of orders and a record-breaking December was added to the record-breaking September, October and November that we have experienced this year. Orders for immediate delivery are testing our capacity and we simply could not shut down.

There is little doubt in the minds of leading automobile engineers and manufacturers that the industry as a whole is facing the most prosperous year it has ever known, according to A. B. C. Hardy, president of the Olds Motor Works. This applies especially to closed-car production for 1923, he said.

Acting on the petition of the Parish Manufacturing Company of Reading, Pa., Judge Arthur J. Tuttle in the Federal Court today appointed the Security Trust Company of Detroit as receiver for the Liberty Motor Car Company.

In its petition the Parish company claims it has $5107.03 due it and states that the Liberty Motor Car Company had gross receipts amounting to $2,700,000 last year, and that it has a sales force in nineteen States and 100 cities. Its assets, according to the petition, are $2,400,000, excluding good will and its indebtedness of $1,500,000.

The petition said it asked a receiver so that the company can marshal its debts. It stated that the company had made several ineffectual attempts to reorganize.

Percy Owen, president of the Liberty Motor Car Company, in a statement today, said:

"The inability of the Liberty Motor Car Company to take advantage of the splendid facilities of its new plant to produce cars in quantities sufficient to meet the demand created by the high quality of its product, which was occasioned principally by the failure of large parts makers to deliver materials in quantity as ordered, finally brought about a condition which requires the complete reorganization of the company.

"The friendly receivership will enable this reorganization to be brought about promptly."

the show is the completeness of their equipment. Whereas a few years ago you purchased a car and got just enough to make it run, you now become the recipient of more dudads for the vehicle than it was formerly believed possible to invent. to what was known as standard a few years ago there are at least fifteen to twenty-four different devices on various cars. The manufacturer has about reached his limit in providing equipment aces. Another trend of the times is the clearly developed policy of the manufacturer to take the dear old public into his confidence and show him just why the particular car he is selling is the best. Nearly every exhibit has as its central motif a cutout chassis of some description with motor running and an interesting lecturer on hand to explain all of the intricate points.

Color, too, appears to be coming to the front. Some of the builders apparently got sore at the insinuations of the Europeans that the somber color of our cars makes them look like funeral hearses and have unfurled some amazingly vivid tints.

CLASS TO THIS

Luxurious broughams are being offered by several of the manufacturers. Reo has brought out a four-door one which will comfortably seat five passengers, the choice of colors being a rich maroon or deep gray with black above the belt. It is complete to every detail with a trunk and a tonneau heater as standard equipment.

That the average traveler finds considerable use for a trunk is indicated by the great number of cars which now provide them as standard equipment. In addition there is room for suit cases on many of the cars.

A Peerless brougham, a brand new model, finished in Dorothy blue, is one of the striking cars in this unusually beautiful exhibit.

THE DETAILS

The centerpiece of the Buick exhibition with its line of fourteen cars, is an illuminated revolving chassis with every part in action and visible to the naked eye. It is a masterpiece in engineering so cleverly and completely worked out that not even the least factor of the chassis is obscured. The chassis is so constructed that all the mechanical parts are motor driven from the chassis on exhibition. Current is supplied from storage batteries built integral with the exhibit—the only element not in sight.

Kissel is responsible for a big surprise. It is showing for the first time a new five-passenger, custom-built phaeton, selling at less than $1500 f.o.b., a new advanced sedan style known as the custom-built brougham sedan, and a new improved custom motor guaranteed to climb from five to sixty miles per hour in thirty seconds without the usual vibration. It has only been lately that the results of an increased Kissel program has become possible by the addition of $150,000 powerhouse. The new phaeton at the new price places fine body building and advanced engineering, usually found only in high-priced, custom-built cars, in a new price class.

The new custom-built, six-cylinder motor has reduced piston stroke of 5¼ inches, while the bore of 3 5-16 inches remains the same, permitting the use of a 2½-inch crank shaft.

Wills St. Claire is exhibiting three cars—a striking black and green roadster, a beautiful kenilworth gray brougham and a standard town car.

Seven bodies together with the recently announced new motor which is cooled by the pressure air-cooling system, gives Franklin a complete new line for 1923. Four of these models together with a cutaway chassis are exhibited at the twenty-third annual show. A sedan with four doors and straight type windshield is the newest member of the Franklin line. Then there is a demi-sedan a sport brougham and touring car. The fittings and mountings of Franklin's new line are Gothic in character. Simplicity is the outstanding note in the arrangement of the new instrument board.

The Ford company exhibit boasts five models of the Lincoln line, seven-passenger limousine, four-passenger sedan, seven-passenger touring, five-passenger sedan and four-passenger phaeton.

Velie has a new 58 sport model with an array of equipment that is startling in its scope.

The car comes in either robin-egg blue or sunset red.

Packard offers two new models, a five-passenger sedan limousine and five-passenger coupe, both mounted on single six chassis and except in decorative effects, standard Packard production. A sport touch is added to the coupe by the installation of a luggage trunk on deck at rear over the gas tank.

Westcott has a complete line on display, McFarlan has three cars and Lexington shows five of its series 23 models. There is an absorbing exhibit of Chandler and Cleveland cars, and four brand-new models in the Moon line.

A new sport roadster features the Oakland line. Nash shows a complete line of closed and open models.

The new Paige 6-70, the motor of which is a development and refinement of the Paige 66, is the most fully equipped stock model that could be imagined. It has two

COTTON CROP COMING ALONG

Salt River Valley Region is Productive

Reclamation Project Proves Successful

Better Road System Helps to Boom Things

Continued development of the Salt River Valley of Arizona, where an extensive irrigation program has reclaimed thousands of acres of former desert land, will insure a suitable yield of long-staple cotton, according to P. W. Litchfield, vice-president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, who has just returned from a survey of operations of the Southwest Cotton Company, a subsidiary of the parent Goodyear company.

"We have now 10,000 acres planted in long-staple cotton and 8000 acres of alfalfa in a country which was recently the happy hunting-ground of the rattlesnake and gila monster, and whose only vegetation was prickly cactus," said Mr. Litchfield. "Alfalfa is a splendid ground breaker and preparatory crop for cotton.

"To get the particularly high-grade Pima cotton which we need, selected seeds only are used. With the increase in the demand for cord tires it is essential that we shall always have available a supply of long-staple cotton, which is the basis of long-mileage cord tires and which we use exclusively in our product. No finer cotton than the Salt River Valley is grown anywhere else in the country.

"To guard against the boll-weevil which has ravaged other cotton producing districts, an embargo has been placed on the importation of seeds from other States. None but home-grown seeds are used.

"A big factor in the extension of cotton production has been the steady increase in road-building, fostered by the civic-spirited people of Southwest Arizona. More than $8,000,000 have been spent in the last few years in one county alone in road-building. The difference between the almost roadless condition of the country a year ago and the fine road system of the present day is very marked indeed. Formerly progress was very slow, owing to the heavy dusts or ankle-deep mud.

"The road system will increase the comfort of living and the material prosperity of the valley, and will be the means of attracting sterling citizens who will develop the country's natural resources more than ever."

MANY LAWMAKERS OWN MOTOR CARS

United States Senators and Representatives who will convene in March to form the Sixty-eighth Congress are mostly motorists, according to J. Benj. Fahy, local Ford and Lincoln dealer who has been checking up to see how the wind will blow regarding national automotive legislation.

Both incumbents and newly elected members of the new Congress are partial in the majority of instances to the automobile, Mr. Fahy says, and the largest percentage of them used motor cars in their electoral campaigns.

During the next Congressional session many important questions affecting motorists will come up for attention and with Congressmen familiar through personal experience with what is equitable in automobile taxation and uniformity in highway regulations the motorist should fare well.

A REAL BOOST FOR CAR

The following letter was received this week by W. J. Burt of the firm which bears his name. One a month on this order should make any dealer jump for joy and pat himself on the back for his good judgment in selecting a car which just naturally sells itself. Here it is:

Mr. W. J. Burt,
W. J. Burt Motor Car Company,
Los Angeles, California.

Dear Mr. Burt:

I have just completed a trip from Los Angeles to San Francisco by the Coast Route, returning by the Valley Route, and for the first time kept an accurate record of the cost of gas and oil and the mileage. I was agreeably surprised. The trip was made in an Auburn beauty six, which has been run over 20,300 miles. The round trip with the side trips in the Bay District registered on the speedometer 962 miles, at a cost for gasoline and oil of $14.85, an average of seventeen miles to the gallon of gasoline. There were no other expenses except storage. The auto ran as good as new. As no effort was made to economize on gasoline and oil I consider this an exceptionally good record for any car and thought you would be pleased to receive this unsolicited acknowledgment.

Very truly yours,
S. T. CURSON,

5,285 INSPECTIONS PER CAR

The faithfulness of performance so universally remarked in Dodge Brothers Motor Cars, is due, in no small part, to the thoroughness with which each unit is inspected during the process of manufacture and assembly.

A trained staff of 1100 experts is employed in this work alone, and approximately 5,285 inspections are made on each car.

So exacting and rigid are the standards applied to these inspections that the slightest variation, either in workmanship or material, is sufficient cause for immediate rejection.

Dodge Brothers are almost over-scrupulous in their constant aim to make each car as sound and perfect as is humanly possible.

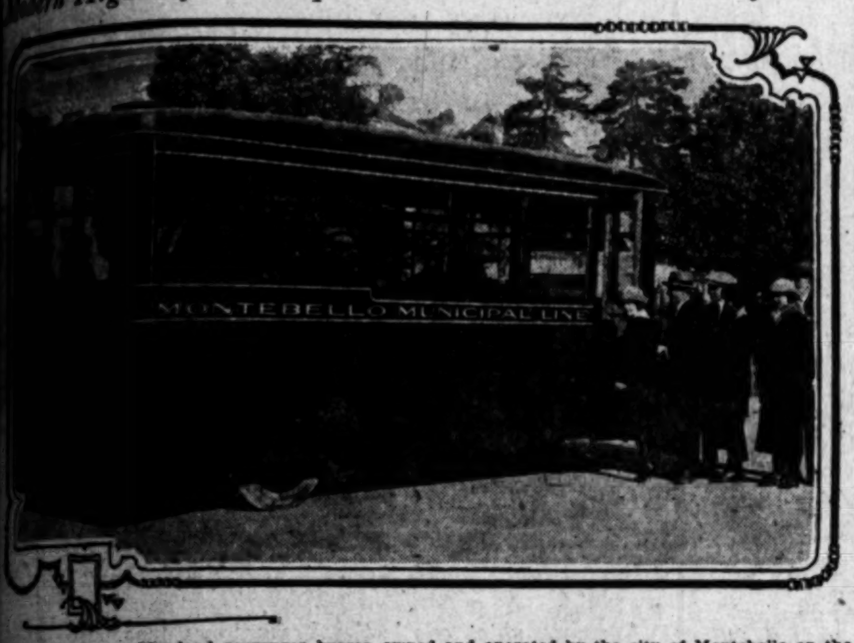
Modern Highway Transportation in Southern California



[illegible] is one of the new Moreland passenger busses owned and operated by the city of Montebello on the much-traveled space between that city and the Stephenson-avenue car line.

LOCAL BUSSES MAKE HIT

Big Highway Transports Are Acme of Speed and Comfort

The Moreland Motor Truck Company, who recently entered the passenger transportation field with new models of the latest design of underslung coach chasses, have just completed delivery of two of their 16-20-passenger street-car models to the city of Montebello.

These motor coaches are to form the first unit of a municipal transportation system operating between the city of Montebello and the terminus of the Stephenson-avenue car line.

When the question of a municipal system of motor transportation first arose, Mayor Fred Beaty appointed a committee, consisting of [illegible] George Wilber, Maj. Cole and [illegible], to decide upon the type of body and chassis most suitable for the conditions under which the transportation line was to operate. During this investigation the matter of safety was foremost in the minds of the committee. After looking over numerous makes of [illegible] and consulting with the [illegible] transportation engineers in the West, they finally decided on the new model CR 16-20-passenger Moreland coach chassis.

"The decision was made," says [illegible] Mallory, general sales manager of the Moreland organization, "after a thorough study of the [illegible] materials and workmanship [illegible] in our model CR chassis. [illegible] our coach chassis, Mr. [illegible] Moreland's first idea was to incorporate more safety features than are found in conventional [illegible] chassis. Realizing that the only way of lessening the danger of overturning was to lower the center of gravity, the low drop frame was adopted after considerable research. This construction, together with the use of the latest type of [illegible] wheels, and 32x6 heavy-duty [illegible] tires, gives a maximum floor height above the ground of completed coach of twenty-two inches."

After seeing the lowness of these [illegible] and realizing the possibilities of the easy entrance and exit, the committee turned their attention to the study of other details of the body. Furthering the idea of safety, the entrance was provided with a single step, and the folding [illegible] door set flush with the body and operated by the driver were [illegible]. In addition to these two features the coach was built with a safety door in the rear, also controlled by the driver and providing an emergency exit in case of an accident. Not satisfied with these safety features, the Moreland engineers adopted "Pyraline," the [illegible] unbreakable window material to overcome the danger of glass breakage in the conventional type of window.

On the initial schedule trip following delivery the passengers expressed great satisfaction regarding the comfort and easy riding qualities of their new coach. The drivers also expressed their enthusiasm regarding the ease with which these coaches were handled.

TIRES GET REAL TEST ON DESERT

Rough Going Covered by the Franklin Camel Calls for First-Class Rubber

Interest in the service record of the Goodyear cross-rib cords in use on the Franklin Camel, now at the 10,000-mile mark, calls for the statement with the exception of of one single tire, the Camel has always been Goodyear shod. The original tires on the Camel, Goodyear all-weather treads, stood up remarkably well, the front tires traveling 15,960 miles, one rear tire 15,392 miles, and the other 9400 miles.

Back in December, 1921, the Franklin Camel made the first of its famous Death Valley trips—a three-day jaunt up through the valley to Stovepipe Wells, thence across the sand dunes in Mesquite Flat, on up Emigrant Wash and home via Trona and Randsburg. Three days is a rather snappy trip for 740 miles of such desert going, and on top of that the Camel conquered the famous shifting sand dunes of Death Valley, following through on what was the old Mormon trail, and later a connecting road between Ballarat, Cal., and Rhyolite, Nev. Along in 1912 the terrific winds played such havoc in Mesquite flat that the route was abandoned, great dunes towering here and there, and the whole a vast waste of shifting sand.

The Franklin Camel holds the distinction of being the only car to conquer this stretch since the sand dunes came walking down the valley in 1912—and not only that, but the feat was accomplished in two hours for the six miles of untrodden Sahara. Just four hours from Stovepipe Wells, and only two hours after emerging from among the dunes, the Camel came to a halt at Emigrant Spring—by far the fastest time made either up or down Emigrant Wash, the great boulder-strewn gash in the Panamints, the plaything of cloudbursts.

In the picturesque days of '49 the Chinese gold diggers in California ate, as an especial delicacy, a dish of rat brains, with garlic and aromatic weeds.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Question: I have a storage battery, the posts of which are not marked. How can I find out which is the positive post?

C. S. E., Anaheim.

Answer: Connect a clean copper wire to each post and immerse the ends in a cup of salt water. The end which bubbles the least is on the positive post. It is well to mark the positive post with a cross after ascertaining what it is.

Q.: Will you be so kind as to tell me in the Questions and Answer column of The Times what makes fuses blow out?

A. D. N.

A.: Fuses, whether on the automobile or elsewhere, blow out because too much electricity flows through them. Any wire or conductor gets warm when electricity flows through it. Fuses are made of an alloy of metals which melts at low temperature, and are put into the circuit to protect the entire system, by melting and breaking the circuit when too much electricity flows through it. The causes for too heavy a flow are many but the most common are short circuits, grounds and high voltage. Shorts and grounds are usually caused by defective insulation, these can frequently be located by an examination of the wires; broken insulation gives a great deal of trouble. Tape all places on the wires where the covering is worn or broken. If the voltage of the generator runs too high have it regulated. There is no voltmeter on the instrument board but if the ammeter reads high it indicates that the voltage is probably high, on the automobile.

Q.: What is the best way to polish reflectors of headlights that are badly tarnished?

J. D. L., Long Beach.

A.: Reflectors are silver-plated and are very easily scratched and injured. In polishing use new, clean chamois, jewelr's rouge and alcohol. If the reflector has been exposed by a broken lens, it is well to wash it first with alcohol applied with a chamois, care being taken to prevent scratching. Wipe dry with a fresh chamois and with a dry chamois apply rouge. The polishing should be done with a rotary motion. Be careful not to touch the polished surface with the bare fingers. This should be done about twice a year. Never run an automobile with a broken lens, it runs the reflectors.

Q.: The battery on my machine, an Oakland six, is in good order and tests high, the generator is working strong, but the starter will barely turn the motor and the headlights burn dimly except when the engine is running, then as I speed up the motor they get brighter. What is the trouble with the electric system?

J. L. G.

A.: Your trouble is a common one, there are corroded or dirty contacts somewhere in the circuit. Probably you will find the place where the wire from the battery is bolted to the frame. You will find this place on the right-hand side of the frame, almost directly under the front seat. Take out the capscrew that holds the wire to the frame, brighten up the terminal of the wire and the place on the frame with sandpaper or a file, apply vaseline to both surfaces and screw up the bolt tightly. While doing this it would be well to go over all contacts in the same way, except do not use vaseline except on the frame and battery terminals.

Q.: Do paraffin or asphaltum base oils deposit the most carbon in the combustion chamber of a gas engine?

AN INVESTIGATOR.

A.: There is a great deal of misunderstanding regarding lubrication of the gas engine. It is immaterial whether cylinder oil is made from paraffin base or asphaltum base petroleum, the amount of carbon deposit depends entirely upon the refining. An oil must have proper viscosity, that is, thickness, at high temperature. This gives it its lubricating value, that is, its ability to maintain a film between the moving parts. Next it must have the proper fire test, that is, it must burn away cleanly after it has done its work. If the flash or fire point is too high it will form a tarry substance which in time burns to a hard carbon deposit. Both paraffin and asphalt are hydrocarbons, and both burn down into a carbon residue, so it really makes but little difference to the consumer which he uses so long as the oil which goes into the engine has the proper viscosity, flash and fire test, low free-carbon content, freedom from adulterants, coloring matter, acid or alkali. There are perfectly good cylinder oils from asphaltum base crude and likewise from paraffin. The one thing to consider is, do you have the proper oil for your engine? The oil for a Ford is not necessarily the best oil for a Franklin, and what is correct for a tractor is probably wrong for an Oakland. Disregarding source of supply, use only the highest grade of oils.

SLIPPERY PEDALS CAN BE FIXED UP

The motorist can't afford to have his foot slip off the clutch or brake pedal in an emergency, and yet this is a very likely contingency if the pedals have become smooth through long wear. W. H. Curtis of the Robert P. Fite Corporation tells what can be done to remedy the condition.

"The surface of the clutch and brake pedal is not impervious to wear just because it is made of iron," he says. "It is well for the car owner to take this fact into consideration, and when his pedals have worn smooth too, either get rubber pads for them or have them roughed up.

"To the man who likes to fix things himself however, I would recommend an ordinary rubber heel. It can be bolted right on the surface of the pedal, and while it will not serve as an ornament, it will meet the need satisfactorily enough."

EX-BIKE RIDERS BUY CARS

H. W. Tuttle, assistant general-manager of the Howard Automobile Company, has found a striking answer to the question, "Where lies the future market for the automobile?"

While driving on the outskirts of the city Mr. Tuttle was interested in observing hundreds of boys leaving schools on bicycles.

"Those are the fellows we are going to sell Buicks to five and ten years from now," declared Mr. Tuttle to Mr. Dixon, the Hollywood distributor.

"Yes, and I will prove your point," replied Dixon. Driving on they came to the University of Southern California, where automobiles were thickly parked — most of them small light cars.

"Those cars are owned by the bicycle riders of yesterday," said Dixon. "Most of them will own higher-priced cars tomorrow."

"Throughout the United States, this situation is duplicated. Thousands of young schoolboys riding thousands of bicycles, each thereby cutting down unproductive minutes, absorbing indelibly the important lesson of economy," remarked Mr. Tuttle.

A CAR WORTHY OF ITS NAME

There was a time when it took a good sport to buy a Rickenbacker. But that is now a long ago yesterday—396 good sports bought Rickenbackers in 275 days of 1922 since our doors were opened.

There was a time when it took a good sport to believe with Columbus that the world was round. That day is just as dead.

Both sports had heads that were more than hat hangers. And now the crowd that follows will say, "they were not sports but wise men." Be that as it may, we have a few cars for delivery.

Studebaker 1923

New York Show Exhibit—Duplicated in Los Angeles

The motoring public was given its first opportunity to view the real 1923 models when the New York Automobile Show opened yesterday.

The Studebaker Six exhibit is displayed simultaneously in Los Angeles by Paul G. Hoffman Company having been rushed here by express.

Motorists and automobile dealers have been keenly curious as to what Studebaker would do in 1923 to hold their dominant position of leadership in the six-cylinder field.

Studebaker dealers were informed as to details of the new models late in December and immediately flooded the factory with telegrams demanding twice as many cars as the factory will be able to produce during the year.

We cordially invite you to view this exhibit of a complete line of complete cars and get better acquainted with the reasons why Studebaker dominates the six-cylinder field.

The store at 1250 South Figueroa Street will be open evenings during the week.

Note—More than 1000 motorists in Los Angeles were disappointed during 1922 because we could not get enough Studebaker Satisfying Sixes.

OLD-TIMER STILL HAS PEP

How many motorists of Southern California would have enough faith in the stability of a motor-car which had been driven 80,000 miles over desert roads, mountain grades and into the wilds of roadless prairies, to start on a 10,000-mile trip from Mexico to Canada and back again? Not very many.—and yet, that is exactly what Mrs. G. N. Marshall and her two sons did. Incidentally they had some exciting experiences with landslides, broken bridges and sandy washes.

The Marshalls recently arrived at the service station of Harold L. Arnold, where instructions were given to have their Hudson greased and oiled. A few inquiries revealed the fact that they are just completing the last of a very interesting journey. Starting from El Paso, they drove to Santa Fe, New Mexico, and then on to Colorado Springs, where they ascended Pike's Peak. In spite of its age, the Hudson performed beautifully, taking the steepest grades with ease and in second gear.

Probably the most dangerous experience encountered was on a steep grade near San Marcial, N. M. A cloudburst overtook them while going over the roughest portion of the mountains and rain poured down so fast that the road was soon like a river. Mud caked on the wheels and dragged so that every ounce of power in the motor was called upon to pull the weight of three people and complete camping outfit. While rounding a curve, Mr. E. K. Marshall, who was driving, saw large cracks in the roadbed and stopped to investigate. Two other cars drew up behind them and, after a conference, the drivers decided to try a dash for the other side of the dangerous strip. Mr. Marshall backed down the grade for a short distance, then came at full speed up the mountain, with the other cars close behind. The Hudson reached safety and stopped to wait for the other machines but, to the horror of everyone, the road gave way and dirt, boulders and automobiles all rolled into the canyon. Fortunately no one was seriously injured, but that portion of the pass was blocked for several days.

After visiting Cripple Creek and the Royal Gorge, the Hudson was driven to Yellowstone National Park, then on to Livingston, Great Falls and into Glacier National Park. From there they went north into Canada, through the Canadian Rockies, visited the parks there and then drove back down into Washington, where they saw all the lakes in the vicinity of Seattle.

The only repair expense on the entire trip was the replacing of two spring leaves which had crystallized during the course of 85,000 miles of pounding. This is remarkable, considering that nearly all of the driving on this trip was on dirt roads, some of which were practically impassible. This car had previously been to Lake Tahoe, Yosemite, over the Apache Trail three times, and to the Grand Canyon, Roosevelt Dam, and the Elephant Butte Dam. It has worn out three coats of paint and two tops, but is still in perfect mechanical condition.

RATTLE REMOVED FROM MOTOR TOP

"The good old summer time may be fine for vacations, but the crisp cold weather we have been having in Southern California during the past few weeks has certainly speeded up the sale of automobile tops," said C. C. Eichenhofer, proprietor of the Atlas Auto Works, makers of Atlas Auto Tops. "Before we perfected our new rattle-proof top we found that the main objection to a top was the fact that it rattled. We are glad to say that our new top entirely eliminates this unpleasant feature of motoring."

Has a Lot of Faith in the Ancient Old Boat

This noble old Hudson Supersix has to date bowled over 80,000 miles and shows no signs of staggering, in fact the owner, Mrs. G. N. Marshall, and her two sons have departed on a 10,000-mile trip.

TRUCKS CARRY THE BIG MILK SUPPLY

"Ninety per cent of the milk supply used by the big cities of the country is shipped by motor truck," says O. R. Fuller, president of the White Auto Company, distributors of White trucks. [illegible] out last week by members of the National Milk Producers' Federation at their convention in Springfield, Mass.

"They said high freight rates had helped the truck to grow by leaps and bounds into a national transportation utility.

"H. D. Allabach of Philadelphia, president of the Interstate Milk Producers' Association, stated that the quantity of milk shipped by truck had increased nearly 500 per cent in the last three years in his territory."

WORKMEN REWARDED WITH CASH

Third Annual Presentation of Awards is Made at Big Eastern Factory

Cash awards aggregating $4000 and ranging in amounts from $400 downward have just been distributed by the Franklin Automobile Company to 250 of its employees. These prizes given by the company mark the termination of the third successful suggestion contest conducted by the Franklin factory.

The contests were inaugurated by the company for the purpose of stimulating interest among employees in the matter of effecting economies in production costs without in any way impairing the quality of the Franklin car. The line of demarkation between groups of employees has been carefully worked out. One group is open to hourly men only, this group including the rank and file of the shop men; another group is open to foremen and assistant foremen only, while the third group is confined to those salaried employees in minor executive positions. Heads of departments are not allowed to compete in any group. Every six months there is a new contest; since the first suggestion contest was started, in March, 1921, a total of $11,600 in cash prizes has been awarded to employees.

The distribution of awards is always a gala event at the Franklin factory, and more than three thousand employees and their families were on hand in the big recreation hall when the checks were handed out to a long line of men on the evening of December 22. William Dunk, production manager of the company, has announced that a new contest will begin in January.

Price Decline Adds Interest in the Stearns

The recent price decline on the Stearns-Knight, as announced by Lynn C. Buxton, has stimulated interest in these cars, judging from the increase in sales immediately following the announcement.

"Now that the Stearns six-cylinder model is offered at a price under $3000, the public is evidencing a great deal of interest in this model," said Lynn Buxton, Southern California distributor. "The workmanship necessary for the proper building of the Knight type of sleeve-valve motor is such that the most skilled men are required and utmost care exercised in the perfect fitting of every part. This sort of work costs money at the outset, but really saves money for the owner in the long run, because it spells freedom from mechanical worries.

"If the same precision and perfection of workmanship was put into the average poppet-valve motor as must necessarily go into the Stearns, the car equipped with that engine would sell at relatively the same price as the Stearns."

GOOD BRAKES ARE STOCK EQUIPMENT

Since the advent of the first foot brakes, motor-car manufacturers have striven constantly to produce brakes that would provide maximum braking power with the least expenditure of physical effort.

D. Gerald Chessman of the H. J. Wurzberger, local distributors for Kissel cars, tells what has been done in the Kissel plant to design such a brake.

"Kissel equips his cars with two sets of double external contracting brakes," he says. "They are fourteen inches in diameter and have a total band width of four inches."

According to M. Chessman brakes of this description are found only on the Kissel car. He claims that they give greater power with less effort because the power is more easily applied.

CHIEF OF SALES IS A BOOSTER

Executive of Big Factory Optimistic About New Car and Prospects for Big Year

R. A. Burke, director of sales for the Peerless Motor Car Company of Cleveland, made a short trip to Los Angeles last week while swinging around western and Pacific Coast territory. He was greeted and shown about Los Angeles by Stanley W. Smith, president of Stanley W. Smith, Incorporated, Peerless distributors for Southern California, and incidentally he addressed members of the local Peerless organizations and dealers at a dinner given in his honor at the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

He told his hearers of the designing and building of the new Peerless eight by Richard H. Collins and his associates, and of the wonderful organization that has been brought into being and of the great Peerless plant in Cleveland.

"Quality and not price will always be the ideal of the Peerless organization," he declared. "If improvements and quality demand a higher price for the Peerless eight, then that rule will obtain. You may take a tape measure and place it on the body of the new Peerless eight and you will find that the measurements will not compare with any other car in the market. Plans contemplate the building of 12,000 cars during 1923, and it is very doubtful if this figure will satisfy the demand."

New Models Demonstrate Adaptability of Modern Motor Vehicle

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—A remarkable demonstration of the adaptability of motor-driven vehicles to modern purposes is shown by the Reo exhibit at the automobile show. Their passenger cars range from roomy sedans and coupes down to the taxicab and the range back to enormous passenger-carrying busses.

In the truck division they show fire apparatus, ambulances, speed wagons adaptable to a thousand lines of business with a variety of bodies available that seem to have no limit and could show hearses and ambulances were it considered in harmony with the big show.

In the passenger-car department the new five-passenger phaeton on the six chassis holds the limelight and gets the big play from the crowd. It looks business like enough for commercial uses, yet has a snappy style that lacks nothing of dignity.

The four-passenger coupe and five-passenger sedans with new lines and finishes are getting a share of the compliments. The new Simplex finish on some of the models exhibited has made a distinct hit with those who dislike to scratch the bright varnish of a car and know that to preserve a brilliant varnish is a matter of great care and lots of work.

The western division of the Reo organization is represented by Byron C. Foy, Los Angeles manager of the Reo branch in that city.

Troy Plan of Used Cars is Big Success

About sixty days ago the Troy Motor Sales Company used car department inaugurated a new phase in merchandising the lower-priced used cars. The idea has been to recondition and refinish cars selling for $500 and under, and place them on a par as far as value is concerned, with the higher-priced cars in the used market.

This plan of selling good, cheap, used cars, backed by a responsible concern, has been a remarkable success. "The 500 Store" has, since its inauguration, sold an average of one car a day. "The showing is highly pleasing," according to E. E. Shenberg, manager of the Troy Motor Sales Company used car department, in view of the fact that the plan was started during the dull season which usually precedes the holidays."

BODY BUILDERS PUT ON A SHOW

BIG ARMORY IN NEW YORK IS FILLED WITH DOLLED UP MACHINES

Debutantes of the motor world will have some rivals during the week of the National Automobile Show at Grand Central Palace in New York, according to latest word received by Robert Thompson of the Robert Thompson Company, designers and builders of special automobile bodies and custom tops.

The body builders have engaged the Twelfth Regiment Armory for their second annual show, which they say will be much more comprehensive this year.

Finest products of the various builders of special bodies are being prepared to be sent to this annual exposition, to demonstrate to what extent the art of dolling up a car has been developed.

Exemplification of modern methods in finish, construction, blending of color and lines and all the arts of the profession will be seen by those who journey to the north side of New York to feast their eyes on the special built beauties of midern motor-car manufacture.

STUTZ IS UNVEILED AT SALON

Six-Cylinder Model Shown for First Time at New York's Great Auto Show

The new Stutz six-cylinder creation will make its debut at the New York show this week and from all advance notices it will be accorded no end of attention because of the position that Stutz has risen to due to its acquisition by Charles M. Schwab.

"Rumors have been rife for months that Stutz was to build a six-cylinder car," said T. C. Whitcomb, general manager of the Stutz-Los Angeles company, "and these rumors are to have their first substantiation at the opening of the automobile show in New York this week.

"When Stutz first brought out the Stutz four-speed car, Walter M. Brown of Los Angeles received the first three cars shipped from the factory, and history is to repeat itself, because the factory heads have assured me that Los Angeles will be the destination of the first three six-cylinder Stutz cars to leave the factory for distribution. Twelve years have elapsed since that time and during all this period the Stutz reputation as a quality car has been maintained.

"The first of the sixes to arrive will be in our showroom according to present advices on or about the first of February, at which time we will have a touring car, a roadster and a sedan for the inspection of the public."

A Nation's Tribute to Buick

There is an inspiring tribute to an industry in the universal recognition annually accorded the National Automobile Shows.

Thousands come to these exhibitions from every section of the continent and from foreign lands as well, and their advent is widely heralded the world over.

In the twenty-third National Automobile Show, just opening in New York, and later in Chicago, the nation is provided with a display of its chief means of personal transportation. This display is so complete and so magnificently set forth that all who come may easily carry away a perfect picture of the latest accomplishments in motor car building.

Year after year the national shows receive the homage of the entire country. Year after year they mark by their own increased magnitude and splendor, the increased growth of the automobile industry.

In occupying first place at both national shows for the fifth consecutive year, Buick continues the position in the industry awarded it by universal public opinion.

NEW CONCERN MAKES DEBUT

Durant-Steves Company Will Get on Job

Steves is Example of Great Drive to Fame

Old-Timers Combine in Strong Organization

Another motor car concern has invaded the Los Angeles territory. The Durant-Steves Motors, Inc., has been formed to distribute the Durant line in Los Angeles county. The sales force has been mustered and the new company has opened quarters on Grand avenue, near Pico street, just a block away from the spot where R. C. ("Cliff") Durant started in business nine years ago upon his arrival on the Pacific Coast.

When C. M. Steves, who is associated with Durant in the new venture, was in Los Angeles last week completing the details of the organization, he stated that the Packard and Durant business had developed so fast that the Earle C. Anthony organization, formerly handling the Durant here, had found it advisable to separate the two lines. After a conference with Earle Anthony it was decided to form a new company rather than have the Anthony interests build a separate selling force for the Durant, which would be housed in a building outside of the present Anthony organization. The Durant-Steves company came into being immediately, and the Anthony concern will devote the entire building to the interests of the Packard, while Earle Anthony personally remains financially interested in the Durant Motor Company of California, the manufacturing organization of the Durant interests on the Pacific Coast.

GREAT PROGRESS

The story of the rise of C. M. Steves from a clerkship with Durant nine years ago to the position he now holds as vice-president and sales manager of the Durant factory at Oakland, is full of romance; but the linking of Steves's name with that of R. C. Durant in a corporation to distribute the product in this territory is the realization of a dream that Steves has cherished from the day he entered Durant's employ at $55 per month. In those days the present manufacturer and sportsman, recognized as one of the leading figures in the motor car industry of America, was finding it hard to keep his doors open, and Steves went through all the early grief of the Durant interests on the Pacific Coast with the son of the famous W. C. Durant, who is recognized as the "wizard of the automobile industry."

When Steves joined with "Cliff" Durant to build for the future, he was a youngster fresh from Polytechnic High School, where he had to work hard after school hours and on Saturdays in order to earn the funds necessary to carry him through. His first position was that of combination office boy, janitor, stockroom clerk, stenographer and book-keeper. When the sales force, Durant himself, was absent, Steves went in as a pinch-hitter salesman and it was this early training that enabled him to climb to the place he now holds.

When Durant's business interests began to develop, Steves went up by slow degrees until he was active sales head of the Chevrolet on the Pacific Coast, serving as personal representative of Durant and his chief executive. As soon as the new Durant Motor Company was announced, Steves immediately resigned from the Chevrolet institution to go into the new field with the man he had served so long; and when the Durant Motor Company of California was formed Steves was elected vice-president and general sales manager.

Steves will remain with the Durant factory in his present executive capacity; but he will also devote much of his time to his newly acquired interests in Los Angeles. And it is with pride that Steves calls Los Angeles his "home town." It was here that he started on the road to fortune and he has always looked forward to the day when he could become associated with Durant in a corporation with headquarters in this city.

ANOTHER VETERAN

Another man long associated with Durant is in the newly formed Durant-Steves Company. A. L. Warmington, treasurer-comptroller of the Durant factory, has been named treasurer of the new Los Angeles company. Warmington first became associated with "Cliff" Durant in 1916 when he came out from New York to become comptroller of the Chevrolet plant which young Durant had just completed in Oakland. Like Steves, Warmington resigned from Chevrolet to join Durant in the new venture when the new company was announced two years ago.

Before leaving for New York yesterday, Steves and Durant announced that their local house would be under the management of a veteran motor car man well known in Los Angeles. The final choice of a local manager has not been announced, but the decision has already been made and only the final details of a contract remain to be completed.

In becoming interested with Steves in the new company, Durant is not relinquishing any of his other interests here. He will remain as president of the Walter M. Brown company which handles the Star car here and will continue to serve as head of the Durant factory at Oakland.

Steves stated that he and Durant had decided to open a selling branch at Oakland, thus giving the Durant-Steves Motors, Inc., two houses with the possibility of at least two more in large Pacific Coast cities within the near future.

Officials of New Organization

When C. M. Steves, shown in the lower photograph, started in with the Durant interests he was probably the only one that ever thought he might be a vice-president, but here he is with two of his associates above him, R. C. Durant at the left and A. C. Warmington, treasurer of the concern, at the right.

ONE FLAT RATE FOR MOTORIST

Repair Jobs on Motor Cars Cost the Same in All Parts of the Country

The United Motors Service, with general offices in Detroit, has put into effect the flat rate repair service in its twenty-one branches in the principal cities of the United States and Canada for maintenance, repair operation on the electrical equipment it serves—Delco and Remy starting, lighting and ignition systems, and Klaxon horns.

The maintenance repair at the rates established is available at these branches to any car owner or to the trade.

This is undoubtedly the first flat-rate service put into effect by any large company, with wide distribution, giving service on motor car electrical equipment.

The electrical equipment of a motor car is a mystery to most automobile drivers, and the prices often seem unreasonable because the motoring public understands the electrical equipment on their cars less than any other mechanism.

The schedules of this company are designed to give the customer:

(1). A flat rate on his job, which includes both repair charge and material.

(2.) A uniform price on the same job at any branch.

(3.) A price based exactly on the condition of his job and the

NEW HOME IS READY FOR CARS

Old-Time Firm Prepares to Move into Splendid Building

All is in readiness for the big event in the history of the California Oakland Motor Company which two years ago succeeded in name only the Hawley King & Co., a firm that had been a business landmark in the upbuilding of Los Angeles. This concern is about to move in its new home on Figueroa street just south of Washington and take its place among the famous few who have continuously handled one make of car almost since the inception of the motor-car industry in Southern California.

"We have handled the Oakland for more than twelve years," says Reeve Gartzmann, president of the California Oakland Motor Company, "and have shouldered its ups and downs just as have all the other old-timers with the lines they have handled. We are now ready to launch into the great future that this territory holds for the motor car and our new home is receiving its finishing touches before we move in.

"The moving into new quarters also means the welding of our retail and wholesale interests so that we may more closely watch the trend of the times and better serve our substantial dealer organization as well as the individual owner. Just what date we will be ready to welcome our friends to our new home is still a matter of conjecture and will be definitely announced later."

Body Builders Cannot Supply Great Demand

By being the world's largest producer of closed cars with Fisher bodies, Chevrolet, the local dealers say, has a distinction and individuality to live up to in the rest of the car.

The Fisher Body Corporation, a division of General Motors since 1919, is by no means a new organization. Fisher has been building exclusive coaches for many years. Having factories in a number of cities the body builders have enjoyed a marked prosperity and given to their stockholders enviable returns.

When General Motors bought out control of the Fisher Body Corporation a contract was let giving to the automobile concern all the bodies that it would require and that Fisher could furnish. Chevrolet, being the largest producing unit of the parent concern, naturally created the heaviest demand on Fisher.

OIL YOUR SPRINGS AND SAVE TROUBLE

Oil your springs every two thousand miles or so. This advice is offered by H. R. Leonard of the Watson Stabilator Company. "I've installed stabilaors on cars of every description," Leonard said, "and from my own observations I can say that I don't know of any one thing which is more generally neglected by motorists than proper care of their springs. Water and grit collecting between the leaves rusts the ground surfaces that carry the load. The action of the springs is consequently greatly reduced. They lose suppleness and resiliency.

"When we sell stabilators," Leonard continued, "we always tell our customers to keep their springs oiled but to leave their stabilators alone. Stabilators require no adjustments or oiling no matter how long they have been in use. However they give greater satisfaction when the springs are kept in good condition. The braking resistance which they offer to spring recoil is automatically set by each spring

MOTOR OUTLASTS WATCH

Running like a watch. This simile is often made in reference to the satisfactory performance of an automobile engine; but some of the boys down at the Lexington-Los Angeles Company, where the Minute Man six, Ansted motored, holds forth, took exception to it the other day for the sake of argument, contending that the automobile engine was in reality much more potent, efficient and durable, comparatively speaking, than the motive power of the finest timepiece.

The watch champions drew forth pencils and tore off yards of paper and launched their attack, and this is what they evolved.

A watch ticks 60 times in a minuse, 3600 times in an hour, 86,400 times in a day, 31,536,000 times in a year, and 630,720,000 times in twenty years.

Then the backers of the Ansted motor took their adding-machines in hand and proceeded to overwhelm the attacking party.

They set their goal at 50,000 miles. Figuring that the motor turns over 3213 times every mile, they found that there would be 9639 separate explosions, or approximately one explosion for every six inches of distance covered.

By the time the car completed a 50,000-mile jaunt the motor would have exploded 481,950,000 times, this in a period of about seven months almost constant travel, showing that a car would make more explosions in one year than a watch can tick in twenty.

AUSTRALIANS IN RELIABILITY RUN

The longest and the most difficult reliability trial in the world has been promoted also this year by the Australian Motor Club over the Alps of Victoria.

Eighty-four competitors entered for the competition which began on November 16 and it is taking place on a course of 1013 miles, the greater part of which winds in and out over forest paths with gradients reaching over 6000 feet.

During this arduous course different trials of speed reliability and fuel consumption, carried out under special regulations, will take place.

"Just a real good car"

SUBWAY GIVEN AS SOLUTION

New York Thinks This is the Only System

Elevated is Unsightly and Unsatisfactory

Los Angeles May Have to Try the Same Scheme

By watching and studying New York in her solution of traffic problems Los Angeles may be able to arrive at an ideal solution of local conditions, says Fred S. Albertson of the Albertson Motor Company, Dodge Brothers dealers here.

Police Commissioner Enright advised "digging in" in a recent statement.

"No use trying to go up any farther," he said. "Elevateds are unsightly, unsatisfactory over a long period of year, and it is impractical to think about building our streets up in tiers to meet the needs of the 500,000 automobiles that swoop in upon us every day."

Enright believes the one solution is to dig tunnels, and more tunnels for automobiles. Mr. Albertson points out that local congestion is fast making an imperative bid for similar relief.

Some talk has been made about elevated roadways here, at least for streets cars, but New Yorkers warn against it after their experiences, explaining that ground-floor business along the line of any elevated is next to ruined by such a procedure.

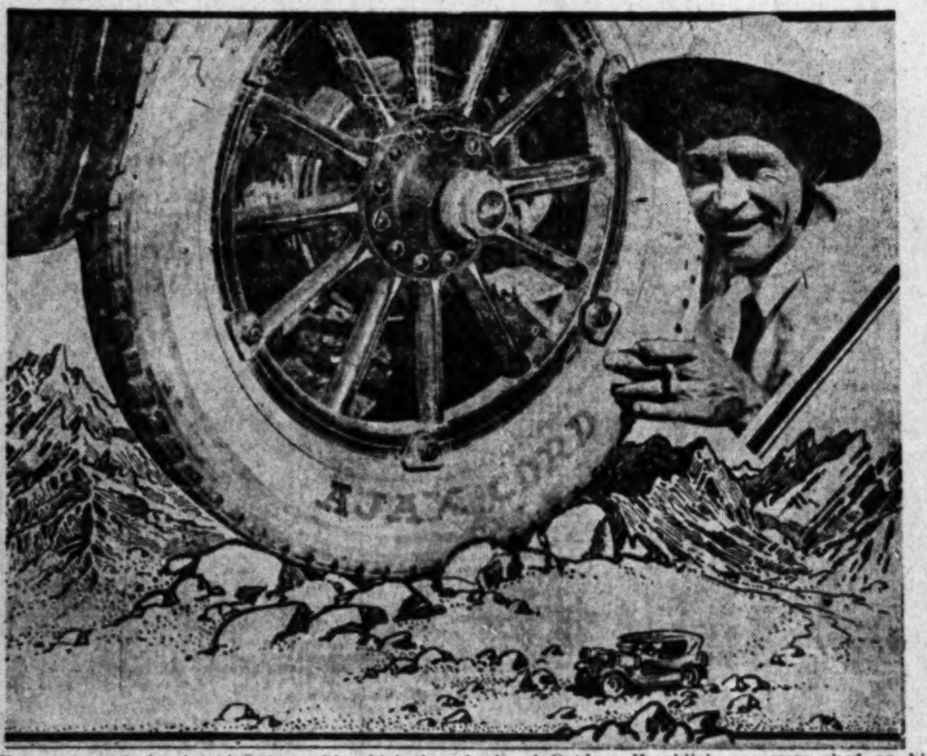
Commissioner Enright points to the successful operation of three underground traffic lines on Forty-second street, with a surface line and "L," which he believes should be removed and buried even deeper than the present tunnels.

Enright says the early Dutch settlers are to blame for New York's present problem to a large extent, for they didn't use their brains in laying out the city. He says Washington is laid out on an ideal plan, and urges every city to establish a traffic board with power to put streets through where needed despite all protest. New York may soon be a buried city, what about Los Angeles?

SNUB SELLS ONE

When Miss Marie Mosquino of the cinemas confidede to her fellow-player, Snub Pollard, that she was in the market for a motor car, Snub recommended the Buick. He knew just what he was talking about, for he has driven Buicks for seven years. Miss Mosquino placed her order accordingly.

Tire-Prints on the Sands of Death Valley



They were made by the Ajax tires with which the wheels of Outdoor Franklin's car were shod on his recent trip.

DEATH VALLEY TOUGH ON TIRES

Motorists read in last week's Times of the remarkable trip "Outdoor" Franklin, nationally-famous stunt driver; Charles Owens, well-known artist, and Capt. Davis, feature-story writer, made into Death Valley in a Buick six.

The trip was a comparatively short one, covering less than a thousand miles, but the conditions encountered made the trip into the "hell-hole" of the world a nightmare from start to finish.

The three who made the journey have solemnly sworn that they will hereafter shun Death Valley as they would a scorpion. According to all parties, too great praise cannot be given the sturdy Buick, which never faltered during the terrific grind into and out of Death Valley.

Those who have viewed the Southwestern Desert from the luxury of a Pullman car can possibly grasp what it means to cross such a God-forsaken area in a motor car if they multiply their idea a hundred-fold—then, perhaps, they might realize what Death Valley really is. Blistering sands, shifting sands and nothing but sand, burning the very heart out of the tires. Rocks cutting and grinding the tires at every turn of the wheel. It is hard to imagine any vehicle or tires being able to stand the racket of pounding over every shape and form of rock and boulder for thirty-five miles, a distance which took two days to cover, and yet this difficult feat was accomplished.

The Buick "Outdoor" Franklin drove was shod with Ajax cords overall. No higher praise can be given any tire than to be trusted on such a strenuuos trip, where tires spell success or failure. In talking over the trip into Death Valley with E. Boal, manager of the Los Angeles branch of the Ajax Rubber Company, Franklin said, "As usual, Ajax cords stood the gaff splendidly. I have taken many severe trips but the recent journey into Death Valley was the hardest on both car and tires I have ever experienced. It would not be possible to expect greater service from any tire than Ajax cords delivered."

According to Charles Owens, the artist of the trio, who has made numerous trips in connection with his work (why an artist takes these trips, God only knows—but Charlie is that kind of a fellow,) the jaunt into Death Valley, especially for wear and tear on man, car and tires, was the most strenuous he had ever taken.

Cause of Varicose Veins

A medical authority in Europe claims to have discovered that varicose veins are the result of improper breathing. It is a fact demonstrated by investigation that this malady is more prevalent in a business community where the individuals are more or less confined than in the agricultural districts, which is taken to bear out the theories advanced by the authority referred to above. In this disease, the little valves located at regular intervals along the length of the veins do not act efficiently and the blood is allowed to lag and stagnate which causes the painful swelling.

TOURISTS ARE STILL COMING

Bad Weather Doesn't Seem to Bother 'Em

Stream of Motor Cars Seen From the Train

Overloaded Vehicles Carry Whole Household

Everything from the dog to the kitchen stove is en route Californiaward aboard the family automobile, or vehicles said to faintly resemble the conventional motor car that manager to get along by some internal inspiration, according to O. R. Fuller, president of the White Auto Company, local Stephens six distributors, who has just returned from a trip to the factory in Moline, Ill.

Somebody discovered, probably more by accident than design, that the family, luggage and all could be loaded into the buzzabout and transported to Southern California for the winter at an expense about equal to the railroad fare for one person.

Now motor cars of every description from the sedate sedan to the chuckling chugger with domestic impedimenta suspended from every corner are advancing upon Los Angeles and vicinity, making up the annual trek that follows the migration of the birds.

Motorists are trickling through the gateways to this sunny southern clime at the rate of one every thirty minutes, it has been estimated.

Mr. Fuller said he noticed the parade every time he came up with a transcontinental highway. Some of the vehicles evolved are highly original in design and appointment. One favored by many of the migrators is a chassis with a one-room house upon it fitted out with everything from improvised stationary wash tubs to upholstered rocking chairs.

The most popular conveyance seems to be the time-tried flivver with wayfaring necessities attached in grotesque decoration including the proverbial "hay-burning" lantern suspended from radiator or trunk-rack and a comprehensive collection of utensils tied on to suit convenience. And the best part of it is they are all welcome.

SERVICE COMPANY IS BUSY

Huge Stock of Bearings Kept in All Big Cities of the Country

An important improvement in the servicing of Timken tapered roller bearings went into effect on January 1, when the Timken Roller Bearing Service & Sales Company started to function.

This new company adds the final link to the chain of complete control which The Timken Roller Bearing Company exercises over its product from the raw material to the sale and maintenance of the finished bearing. The company owns and operates complete steel, rolling, and tube mills, thus assuring the quality of the electric steel from which Timken bearings are made.

The source of supply is protected both in this country and abroad by five complete factories located at Canton, Ohio; Columbus, Ohio; Birmingham, England; Paris, France; and Walkerville, Ontario, Canada.

The new Timken Roller Bearing Service and Sales Company brings the servicing of Timken bearings also directly under the supervision of The Timken Roller Bearing Company. Thirty-two direct factory branches are maintained in the leading cities of the country, including, of course, Los Angeles.

In addition, a country-wide organization of registered, authorized distributors is maintained in the smaller cities.

A complete stock of all sizes of Timken bearings is kept at each station—carrying out the Timken policy that at no point in the United States need users of bearings be more than a few minutes distant from a Timken bearing.

Walt Mason Is Excited About His Limousine

Tributes to their cars from satisfied owners are something that every motor-car dealer is rejoiced to receive, not matter what form they come in, but John Moynahan, Packard dealer in San Diego, received one last week from La Jolla that he is going to have framed and hung in his office. It was couched in "Rippling Rhymes" and bore the signature of none other than Walt Mason, famous newspaper poet, who now makes his home at La Jolla, and who some four months before had purchased a Packard single-six sedan-limousine from Moynahan. Here is what Walt had to say about

"OUR PACKARD"

By Walt Mason

When we're riding in our Packard
With her fenders nicely lacquered,
And her cylinders all hitting, fine and true,
When she's going like the devil
Up the hills or on the level,
Then the world seems pretty good to me and you.

Oh, she does it all so easy,
And she jaunts along so breezy,
And she cuts out all the jolts and bumps and jars,
Going slow or in a hurry
There is no excuse for worry,
And we say she is the queen of motor cars.

In her looks she is a beauty,
And her horn is good and tooty,
And her cushions are as soft as feather beds,
She is full of pep and sassy,
She is up-to-date and classy
From her bumper and her head-

ACTUAL CAUSE OF ACCIDENTS

Incompetence of Drivers is the Main Thing

Motor Transport Officers Discuss Matter

Strict Regulations Needed for Drivers

Incompetence, not speeding, is the greatest contributor to automobile accidents in Los Angeles, according to statements of former Army motor transport officers interviewed by Lieut. Herbert S. Marshutz, of the Four Hundred and Twenty-eighth Motor Transport Command, a local reserve corps unit, while taking applications for reserve commissions in this branch of the Army reserve.

Marshutz, an optometrist by profession, studied motor transport work with many other Southern Californians at the officers school established by the government in 1918 in Jacksonville, Fla. Knowledge of cars, rules of the road, and driving ability, he asserts, were the basic points required of chauffeurs in the Motor Corps. Physical examinations eliminated those mentally sluggish, too light or frail to handle a car quickly, as well as those whose vision could not be corrected to accepted standards with glasses.

Unlimited speed is permitted under motor corps regulations, officers declare, and due to the ability of drivers, accidents were practically unknown.

In Los Angeles, where any person, school boy, or girl, woman or man, no matter how frail, or handicapped by defective hearing, vision or physical deficiency, can pilot a car through crowded streets, it is surprising that more accidents do not occur, these former army men believe. Tests both for driving knowledge and physical fitness, such as required of motormen and railway engineers, should be made of every person prior to the issuing of a license, according to statements of motor transport officers.

AUTO CLUB REPLACING OLD SIGNS

Warning Posts Being Put Up Along Mexican Boundary in Imperial

Owing to the rapid development of Los Angeles, the Auto Club of Southern California is now engaged in replacing scores of fifteen and twenty mile speed limit signs on the city streets.

The club is also engaged at this time in sign-posting the road from Coachella into Mecca and Blythe by way of Desert Centre as well as signing the route from Blythe to Imperial by way of Ripley-Wiley well.

Sign-posts are being erected along the Mexican boundary in the Imperial Valley so that American travelers will not stumble into Mexico by mistake and get themselves thrown into the jail at Mexicali.

Actual signing work has started on the inland route to San Francisco as far as the Fresno county line. This is in replacing the old signs already there with new, shiny ones. By the middle of the week, all the new signs will be erected in Ventura county for the guidance of motorists.

Another truck from the Auto Club sign-posting department is busy signing the Tehachapi route to Bakersfield and a part of Tulare county. New signs are erected on the road connecting the coast and inland routes between Famosa and Paso Robles.

BATTERY BUYER SAVES BIG EXPENSE

GUARANTEE TO PURCHASER IS SURE TO CUT COST OF CAR UPKEEP

"We can absolutely guarantee that anyone purchasing a Gill battery will never have the expense of reinsulation, which is an expense almost inevitable in any separator-type battery," says Eugene Clark, local dealer in Gill batteries. "The only product of its kind on the market, and incidentally the only one that has successfully eliminated separators.

"From the standpoint of the economical operation of an automobile, this feature is of vital importance to the motorist. A reinsulation job costs on the average from $9 to $15 according to type repaired, and when you consider that the Gill battery absolutely removes the necessity of such work the saving can readily be realized.

"Gill batteries, which are manufactured in San Bernardino, Cal., have been on the market for more than two years and the guarantee has been more than justified in actual service."

GOOD OIL CHEAP AT HIGH PRICES

CORRECT LUBRICATION PLAYS IMPORTANT PART IN LIFE OF CAR

"The motorist cannot be sure when he buys oil from a drum that he is getting what he asks for," says A. A. Derry, manager of the Los Angeles Motor Supply House, Inc., distributors of Veedol products.

"Apart from selecting the right oil and buying in tins, the motorist must employ the oil so it will not have to lubricate under adverse conditions. Clean oil must be kept clean. If you use oil that has accumulated dirt, water, carbon and mixed sediment, the solid matter works into the oiling system and cuts moving surfaces. The water mixes with the oil and forms an emulsion of reduced lubricating qualities as compared with uncontaminated oil. If the motorist will change the crankcase oil every 500 miles, each time removing the oil pan and cleaning it, the utmost lubricating efficiency will be ob-

Seven-Passenger $1485
At Factory

Here is the result of eighteen years careful study and development by the Reo Motor Car Company.

This seven-passenger Reo Six is light enough for economy such as is expected of smaller cars with a sturdiness and power that carries it smoothly and surely when loaded to its full capacity.

Into it has been built all of the experience of Reo. Because it is a Reo built by Reo it sells for much less than would be expected of a car of such quality, comfort, economy and beauty. At $1485, at the factory, it represents a value that cannot be matched in the seven-passenger car field.

There cannot be a premium charged for beauty or everlasting goodness, such as this Reo has, for every dollar represents the finest of material and workmanship fabricated for a fair profit.

Your first half-hour at the wheel of a Reo Six will be more convincing of its quality of performance than any words we can say and so we invite you to test its performance and examine the workmanship, we know that you will admire its appearance and desire possession.

country is better equipped to show the building of an automobile from the raw material to the finished car. All but the most minor units are built in this 200-acre plant.

"While the foundries, the various parts factories, the chassis assembly and the body-building departments are all portrayed, including the working of some of the most modern machinery in existence, yet the film is so cleverly staged, and the titles so pat, that it never becomes tiresome," says an official of the Buick.

IGNITION TROUBLE CUT OUT

Simplified System Makes It Easy to Locate Source of Your Troubles

Ask any motorist what is the most prolific source of petty troubles and annoyances, of mysterious refusals to function properly at the time he needs his car most, of consequent lost of time and delays. Nine times out of ten, if he is motorwise, he will tell you it is in the electrical wiring—due to the prevalence of short circuits and the difficulty of locating them.

But "shorts" — those bug-bears of the average motorist—hold no terrors for the owner or driver of a Wills Sainte Claire car. For Mr. C. Harold Wills, when he designed the Wills Sainte Claire, incorporated in it an electrical system so simple and convenient, so easily accessible and so thoroughly practical, that wiring troubles are well night eliminated altogether.

In the first place, all the wires are covered with heavy rubber insulation and a woven cotton jacket and are inclosed in flexible metal conduits, which protect the wires from moisture, excessive heat and mechanical injury and reduce to a minimum the chance of short-circuits. However, as a rule short-circuits occur where wires are joined, so the Wills Sainte Claire is equipped with junction boxes where these connections are quickly and easily reached. This is a well-established principle of electrical engineering, but applied to the motor car for the first time by Mr. Wills.

However, in spite of all precautions, a "short" sometimes will occur, and with the average car this frequently means a day's job to find it, by testing or tearing out all the wiring in the car. But with the Wills Sainte Claire nothing like this is necessary, no long delays with your car out of commission.

The "saddle" of the Wills Sainte Claire changes all this. This "saddle" is the assembly, the union of all the conduits carrying the ignition wires. The "saddle," which is a triangular frame, can be lifted out with all the wires attached by the removal of three bolts, and easily tested in a very short time.

This construction clearly means time saved and uninterrupted motoring. Every driver of a Wills Sainte Claire makes substantially the same comment on the electrical system—"why hasn't it been done before?"

FINE EQUIPMENT IN NEW BUILDING

The Hillcrest Motor Company, which handles the Cadillac in Hollywood, has moved into its new sales and service building at 6154 Hollywood Boulevard. This gives the Cadillac agency of that district a large salesroom and an increased space for service and repairs.

The past year has been the biggest season Cadillac has enjoyed in Hollywood and Manager Ray Elliott predicts an evenbigger year in 1923. The showroom of the new building is being redecorated and new machinery and every modern equipment is being installed in the shop.

OPEN CARS SELL FAST IN WINTER

The gorgeous Tournament of Roses held in Pasadena New Year's Day offers native sons another opportunity to compare California's sunny clime with that of other States. According to H. J. Wurzburger, local distributor for Earl cars, a winter climate which permits such a floral display as that held in Pasadena does not dictate to the motorist that he buy a closed car for winter motoring.

"It's true," Wurzburger said, "that more closed cars are sold in the winter months than the rest of the year taken together. I, myself, have sold more closed cars this winter than ever before, but what comes as a surprise is the fact that there is no abatement in the sale of touring cars and roadsters." The Earl roadster is especially popular among California winter motorists, according to Mr. Wurz-

SALES SURPASS RECORD

The Moon Motors Company, Southern California distributor of the Moon, has broken all previous records for the sale of the Moon car in this territory since it was organized last year, and its officers look forward to 1923 as a super-banner year.

The new 6-40 and 6-58 models of the 1923 vintage which have made such a strong impression in Los Angeles and Southern California since they first appeared several weeks ago, are keeping the concern on its toes in order to make deliveries. Ten dealers have been appointed in this territory and there has never been a week of late that one or more is not in Los Angeles urging the delivery of certain popular models of the line, according to an official of the company.

The Moon factory in St. Louis has already arranged to operate on a greatly expanded schedule this year, because of the popularity of the new models, both in this country and abroad, according to advices that have been received here. The Moon-Motor Car Company is in a very strong financial condition.

WENDEMUTH'S BOOK

Frank R. Wendemuth, the genial checker editor of the Chicago Daily News, has published a new book entitled "F. R. Wendemuth's Checker Companion."

It is a good sized book—6 by 9 inches—and has 168 pages of checker lore. In the first part of the book, Harvey L. Hopkins's lecture is republished, then comes four short lessons on checkers followed by some play by Alfred Jordan showing some famous positions and strokes and illustrating how they can be brought up in actual play. Then comes eighty pages on the two-move restriction openings, followed by 138 selected problems.

The book is well worth the price asked—$1.50 for a cloth-bound copy. You may order through the editor of this column or write direct to Mr. Wendemuth.

THE BINGVILLE CHAMPION

BINGVILLE (Cal.) Dec. 29, 1922.

Checker Editor, The Times:

Dere Mister Editor: As I notiss yu air okashunaly recordin championship maches in ur checker colyums, thot I had beter rite and let yu no that the peepel uv this kommunity had a championship checker mach on the day uv Christmas.

Wun uv the fellers, hoose name is Mister E. Z. Den, wuz a tryin tu take away the champeenship from me, and as I happened ter be wun uv the principels in this hear mach.

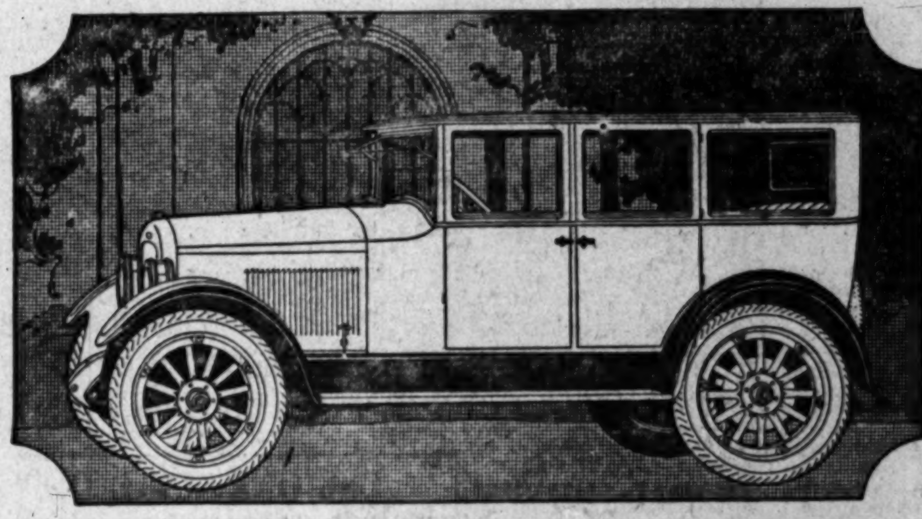
Well ennyway the following game wuz the 100th and konkludin game uv the mach and is the only game I remember. Yu see the peepel around hear beleeve in playin a long windid mach all in wun sittin at the rat uv 12 to 15 games an our and so it is prittie hard tu keep track uv all uv the games. Well as I wuz about tu say my opponent in this partikular game had the black men and me the whites. He opens up with 11-15 as usual when playin the black side. As a keerful player he has the world beat as I can never seem tu hurry him to make enny kind uv his fust move. Wun uv them city chaps who wuz a witnessin this mach told me, konfidenshul like, I ort to play the two move restrikshun on him or suthin like that. Gess it must be a sort uv slite uv hand performance, just like with cards. As near as I kan figure it, yu move twict in kwick sucession without ur opponent ketchin on, so as to change the proceedum uv moves and ur opponent still thinks he is playing the black side when really he is playin the white side with the blacks. Sum trick that is. Gess I'll hav tu prakticé it fust tho before springing it. Well as I started tu say he opens up with 11-15 and I goes 22-18, then comes 8 11, 22-17, 15 18. Sum city feller told me wunst, this last move formed the Center openin. Spose it is called Center because it is the center uv acshun. Leastwise that wuz plenty uv acshun in this game. By the way, I kudn't find this hear center game in that book called Mysteries and so gess it oughtent tu hav ben played in a championship mach like this. Well ennyway I busts into the center with 10-15, 16-19, 24-8, 4-11. Huh, sez my opponent, now what yu goin tu do. Wait and see, sez I. I goes 17-14. Yu can't fool me that a way, sez he, and he goes 9-18. Then we goes along frenkwill like with [illegible], then he remarks sez I'll do a little hustlin myself and goes 11-15, 19-10, 6-15. Think ur prittie smart, don't yu, but yu jest watch me, sez I, and I goes 30-26. Gosh yu kant play checkers sez he and goes 2 6. Mebbe I can't, sez I sort uv grim like, but my name ain't E. Z. Den and I moves 26-22. He follers with 6-9 and great cohoorfat! I prittie near falls outn my chare when I see how things is goin to wind up and so I gives him 22-17, 13-22, 27-24, 20-27, 31-24, 18-27, 25-2, 9-18, 32-14, 2 8, 24-19, 8-11, 29-25 and, skunked by gum, sez he.

The next mach for the championship uv Bingville will take place on New Year's Day when I expect tu battle with Mistur M. T. Flask.

As I hev sed before,

I. BEETUM,
Champeen checker player uv Bingville.

Look at This Beautiful Sedan



It's the Jewett Six for Year 'Round Comfort

Think of your family snugly riding along in weather you'd rather not talk about. All steel panel, weather-tight, Jewett body construction protects you. Roomy seats and easy cushions make you comfortable. Soft toned upholstery delights the eye.

The silent, well-oiled Jewett motor tells its presence only by the smooth movement of the car. You slow down at a crossing — almost stop. But you never think of the gear lever. Just the slight pressure of your foot and the Jewett Sedan is again going 25 miles an hour in seven seconds.

A hill looms ahead. You need run no risk by dashing up it, a little more pressure from your foot and the still quiet motor carries you up without slacking speed. How comes the Jewett by such ability?

Such unusual ability can have but one source — unusual power compared to weight. Jewett has 20% more power than any car its size. Its silence comes from a thoroughly lubricated motor. Jewett high pressure oiling system sends three gallons of oil per minute through all main and connecting rod bearings.

Silent efficiency—freedom from motor trouble—long motor life—are thus insured in the Jewett as in no other small car. Long life to the whole car is insured by rugged construction. It is the heaviest car of its size—not a flimsy light six.

Bring your family in to look over this Jewett Sedan. Ride in it. Drive it yourself. Feel the thrill of its big-car performance. Note the riding comfort of its rugged construction. It means much to own the only small six built by a maker of a leading big six.

EUROPE WILL REDUCE DUTY

New American Tariff Must be Reciprocated

Motor Car Official Returns With Some Facts

Says the Paris Auto Show is Very Interesting

H. H. Rice, president of the Cadillac Motor Car Company, and also treasurer of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, returned recently from a long European trip, during which he visited both the French and English shows, held conferences with General Motors foreign representatives and distributors and discussed the American tariff with some of the foreign car manufacturers.

Returning with him were E. W. Seaholm, Cadillac engineer; E. A. De Waters, Buick engineer, and C. R. Short of the General Motors Research Corporation. R. S. McLaughlin, head of General Motors Canadian plants, who was in the party, followed on another steamer.

In speaking of his trip, Mr. Rice said:

"Our new tariff was a matter of great interest abroad and the subject of considerable discussion. I found sentiment divided, but it would seem to me that we are making progress and that it is possible that a uniform tariff will prevail eventually. I noted in Paris several newspaper articles advocating that the French government take action and reduce the French duty in accordance with the American.

"Our duty provides for 25 per cent with those countries reciprocating. It works automatically in that when a car-manufacturing nation meets our 25 per cent duty we give the same rates. The President of the United States does not have to take any formal action. At the present time Belgium, Spain and Switzerland are below the 25 per cent. England charges 33 1-3 per cent and France 45.

"I found both shows interesting, indeed. From an engineering viewpoint Paris probably was the better because there many chassis were shown, while the English ran more to displays of finished vehicles. Another phase was that for the first time since the war the engineers had a chance to show the new things upon which they have been working.

"While the gasoline plays so important a part in the British motorists's life, still I find that the English engineers have not paid so much attention to carburetion as we have over here. In the first place they get better gasoline, because of the high price of motor fuel over there and then again the English will permit an engine to run long enough to warm up before starting, whereas over here we expect it to start functioning properly almost immediately."

HOW TO BANDAGE BLOWN-OUT TIRES

SIMPLE DIRECTIONS PREVENT NECESSITY OF COMING IN ON RIM

A good tire seldom blows out, but it is an undeniable fact that even the best tires do, sometimes. It depends largely on the abuse they receive. This is the opinion of Max Shiffner of the Commercial Tire Company.

"There is no particular reason," Shiffner said, "why a motorist who has had a blowout on a lonely road, and who has no spare tire should be forced to come in on the rim. With a little trouble he can make a temporary bandage for his injured tire."

Mr. Shiffner tells how to go about this.

"Patch the tube," he says, "or slightly inflate a spare one. Then bind a strip of canvas — use unstretchable cloth if you have it—around the tube in the form of a bandage. See that the center of the bandage is opposite the hole in the cover, and that it is pretty tight."

A piece of waterproofed canvas should be placed between the bandage and the cover when the tube is put back in the casing, Shiffner said. Mr. Shiffner explained that bandaging a tube in this manner prevents any bulge in the tire after it is inflated to the proper air pressure, as the bandage prevents the tube swelling out at the weak spot.

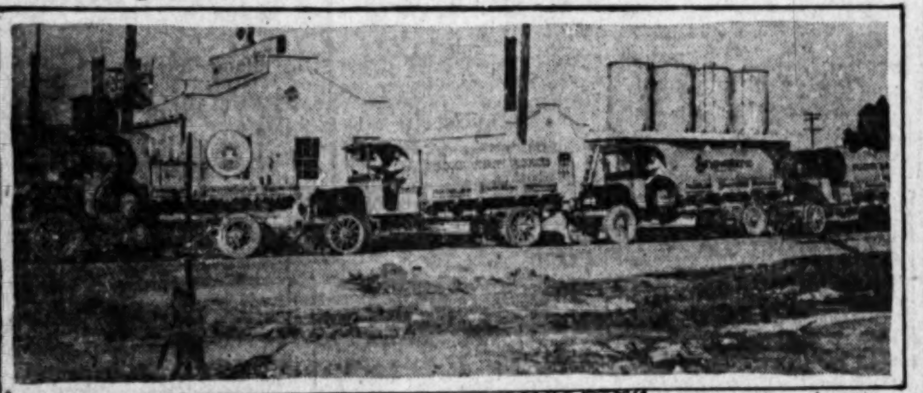
Got Right on the Job With Standardized Equipment



One of the newer refining companies in the local field, the Angelus Snowolene Company, has standardized its equipment by purchasing a flock of Garford trucks, some of which are shown above.

FORECASTS POPULARITY FOR SPORT

Open and Closed Models Predicted to See Great Vogue Coming Season

That 1923 will see the greatest period of popularity for sport model automobiles, both open and closed, that the industry has yet experienced, seems to be a general forecast in the automotive trades, and many manufacturers are concentrating their efforts along lines of turning out quantities of the latest offerings in sport cars.

Consistent with other correct forecasts on the trend of the automobile trade, the Haynes Automobile Company of Kokomo, Ind., through its local distributor, the Los Angeles Haynes Company, stands prepared to meet the increased demand with the new Haynes 55 sport sedan, the latest 1923 model, certain to ride in high favor because of the universally manifested demand for a combination, in closed sport models, of comfort, utility and luxury. "In the new 1923 Haynes 55 sport sedan the Haynes Company has not only met all requirements of utility and luxury, but in addition provides all the accessories and special equipment so necessary to satisfy the demand of sport-loving motorists," says J. A. Benell, general manager of the Los Angeles Haynes Company.

"The new sport sedan is a five-passenger and one of a series of four new sport models, including the new sport roadster, three-passenger sport coupelet and the new five-passenger sport touring car as well, all mounted on the famous Haynes chassis, powered with the 55 light six motor. "All the interior refinements are included in the construction of the Haynes 55 sport sedan, declared to be one of the most beautiful cars ever put on the market by the Haynes Company. Built on a wheelbase of 121 inches, supreme travel comfort is assured."

State is Well Provided With Alemite Help

Looking toward the future in building up the distribution organization of one of the most popular equipment features in the history of the industry, executives of the Alemite Producing Company have created what is probably the greatest single dealer combine in the world, and each State distributor has contributed largely toward the success of this venture in building up his own dealer territory to a point where the maximum of distribution and service could be rendered.

Probably the biggest State unit in the country is found under the California distributor, the Alemite Lubricator Company of California, of which C. A. Roesch of Los Angeles is head. With direct branches of the company in Los Angeles and San Francisco, the dealers throughout the northern and southern sections of the State have been materially added to until there is Alemite representation in every city and town in the State.

"This means that the owner of an Alemite-equipped automobile no matter in which direction he travels, can obtain Alemite service on the road throughout the State, and the same condition prevails outside of California," says Roesch. "While California may have more dealers than other States, there is equally good distribution in other sections of the country, but we speak of this State because of the knowledge of local conditions encountered in building up the system."

USE ONE MAKE OF TRUCK

A new refining company, which entered the local field this week, is one of the latest fleet owners to standardize on Garford trucks. Says Mr. Rhodes, manager of the Angeles Snowolene Refining Company, "In adopting the Garford trucks, we did so because we wanted trucks we could depend on for the same degree of reliability that our Peacock quality gasoline and motor oils give."

Any day now you may meet one of these trucks on the highway painted a rich apple color and trimmed in apple green, with the beautiful trade-mark of the company, a peacock, reproduced in full color on the end of each tank.

This refinery, which is the first of a series to be built, was designed and erected under the personal direction of Mr. F. E. Snowden, who has a splendid record as a successful refining engineer. Peacock quality gasoline and lubricating oils are produced under the semicontinuous distillation process from uniform high gravity oils. This process is said to secure the maximum of "gas" from the crude oil, as well as maintaining a uniform quality.

Mr. John (Jack) McKeon, one of the best-known drillers in the Southwest, is president of the company, and through his connections they are assured of a continuous supply of oil from the Santa Fe Springs region.

Construction of Body Finds Little Change

Motor body construction which to the eye has changed enormously in a decade, in reality is changed very little in several hundred years as far as the principles of body framing and bracing are concerned. Methods of manufacture, of course, have been vastly improved and thoroughly modernized, in America at least, to meet the demands of large scale production; appearance has been altered so that beauty, durability, and utility for all types of services, are well combined.

That was the statement of N. W. Goodwin, consulting engineer of the Maxwell Motor Corporation's body division, in information received by C. A. Doyle, sales manager of Union Motors, Inc., Southern California Maxwell distributors. Goodwin has just returned from two months in Europe, during which time he visited the Paris and London shows and the factories of leading motor car manufacturers and coach builders in England, France and Belgium. He also visited the museums which hold examples of fine coach work.

HOW TO KEEP OUT OF JAIL

Periodic brake examinations by car owners themselves is the cheapest and easiest measure for avoiding accidents and keeping out of trouble with the police, in the opinion of J. W. Perry, general manager of the automotive department of Johns-Manville, Inc., who outlined yesterday a dozen simple rules for keeping brakes in good working order.

(1.) Adjust the brakes every thirty days, maintaining between the brake-lining and the drum, all the way around, a clearance of about 1-64th of an inch.

(2.) Keep the right and left wheel brakes operating with equal pressure. To test this out, jack up the rear wheels, start motor, and with the car in high gear, apply the brakes. Both wheels should slow down uniformly.

(3.) Keep the brake lining clear of oil, road grit and metal particles.

(4.) Clean the brake lining with kerosene once every two or three months.

(5.) Remove glazed spots on the brake lining by roughening the surface with a round or half-round file.

(6.) Tighten regularly all lock nuts and rivets, to avoid loosening the turnbuckles and scoring the brake drums.

(7.) Keep the foot pedal and hand lever in proper position so that the foot pedal will never go down far enough to strike the floor board, and so that the hand lever will never pull back and strike in its slot.

(8.) Test both brakes before starting.

(9.) Apply the brakes slowly.

(10.) Never let the tires slide.

(11.) Use the motor as a brake, on hills.

(12.) Try out your brakes, under various conditions, and see how quickly the car will stop. Then in service always add a liberal margin of safety.

LOW UPKEEP COST VERY ATTRACTIVE

Promotion and dissemination of facts about automobile upkeep are taking a nation-wide trend since Willys-Overland dealers began to show the people what could be accomplished in the case of the Overland car in the way of a full year's service guarantee at a specific minimum cost. Bridge-Bullock, Inc., local dealers in Willys-Knight and Overland automobiles were first in Southern California to put upkeep insurance plan on a practical working basis.

Now comes news from Boston that the Willys-Overland representative there is conducting an "Automobile Clinic" for New England dealers at which both the Overland car and the one year's service plan are carefully dissected before their eyes and each minute detail thoroughly explained and demonstrated.

Factory experts are imported to lecture on each salient point of the cars' construction to the outside dealers so that he in turn may have a thorough understanding of the product he is marketing and be able to help and advise his

California Top Meeting With Much Success

California is on the national automobile map in more ways than one. Of course you know that more cars are sold here in proportion to population; that California threatens to outrank every sister State in the union, regardless of population, in the number of cars owned; that more automobiles are running than in any other State and all the year round; and that we have the greatest number of miles of paved road.

But did you know that practically every manufacturer of a motor car selling above $1100 is building a model with a California top?

"It is true," says Clair R. Savage, sales manager for J. W. Leavitt and Company, Oldsmobile and Columbia distributors here and throughout the State. "The permanent tops, such as those built on the popular Oldsmobile model, are called California tops because they were invented and perfected in California, and right here in Los Angeles, besides.

"The first car that used the California top idea, with sliding plate glass window system was displayed at an automobile show here a little more than four years ago.

Apperson Apt to Launch a Big Sensation

There are certain to be some few of the 10,000,000 or more automobile owners in the United States, and certainly every member of the automotive trades in all of their branches, interested in the coming few weeks of automotive happenings, because of the many expected changes in the industry and the 1923 offerings of the motor car manufacturers.

For the past three or four weeks, an air of mystery has prevailed even this far from the annual New York automobile show, where these announcements are expected to be made, and the local automobile row is as much in suspense over what may or may not happen as are the motorists themselves.

According to Harris M. Hanshue, manager of the Apperson factory branch here, the Apperson Motor Car Company, not a few of these rumors have reached the ears of his organization because of the fact that the Apperson factory has been one of those mentioned as likely to spring a sensation in the motor car world.

While nothing definite is known by the local men, despite the fund of information that comes from outside sources, it is expected that the new sales and service policies inaugurated by the Apperson factory at Kokomo, Ind., is having something to do with the rumors that have concerned Apperson during the short time past.

Conservative Ever Willing to Bide Time

Experience has taught the automobile trade that the more conservative of automobile buyers will, to use a common expression, sit tight, and wait for dealer approval, and the approval of other owners of a new model car before passing judgment on it themselves.

In the case of the Columbia Light Six, public acceptance was almost immediate because the car was not in any sense an experiment and the wider distribution of these models is causing the few people who conservatively have watched the car perform in daily service, to inspect the new models. This feature is emphasized by distributors in placing orders for increased allotments of cars during 1923, according to word received locally by L. V. Starr, manager for J. W. Leavitt & Co., Columbia light six and Oldsmobile distributors for California, from Walter L. Daly, vice-president and director of sales for the Columbia Motors Company.

The signing of many new dealer contracts by the factory in newly developed sales territory brings out strongly the fact that every major unit in the light six chassis established itself long ago as the standard of the industry — that there

DEVELOPMENT AT ITS HIGHEST

Last Season Sees Racing Auto at Best

Camshaft Improvements Help Do Work

Los Angeles to Have Only Two Races in 1923

The automobile industry witnessed the highest development of the racing car during 1922, with the high average speed of 114.6 miles an hour being achieved by Jimmy Murphy at the Los Angeles Speedway on Dec. 3 in the 250-mile championship event that completed the year's program. This speed was more than four miles an hour faster than the best previous mark for that distance and yet it was achieved with comparatively slight changes in motor and chassis design.

Improvement in the overhead camshafts to permit higher speeds without the valves sticking or failing to function rapidly enough to keep up with the speed of the car itself probably had more to do with the success which attended these victors in the important races of 1922 than any other factors, although slight changes in body design, oil and water cooling systems, and elimination as far as possible of suction by finer streamlines of the body and tail undoubtedly were contributing factors.

CREATES STIR

Murphy created more than a sensation when he drove his Duesenberg Special to victory at Indianapolis at around the ninety-five-mile an hour mark. Milton had shown what he could do on the Los Angeles track in February, and later made new records for the twenty-five and fifty-mile distances of 115.2 miles an hour. The Indianapolis mark was nearly six miles an hour better than De Palma's previous record on that two-and-one-half-mile brick oval made in 1915 with one of the first of the 183 cubic-inch cars, which were then considered the babies of the race track.

Now comes the announcement that Los Angeles is to have only two races during 1923. The first event is to be over the 250-mile distance and will be held on February 25. Manager A. M. Young declares the directors have decided there will be no sprint race program to follow as in the past and that the next event will be on Thanksgiving.

CAUSES FLURRY

The word that Harry Miller is building an even half dozen 122 cubic-inch racing cars for the 1923 season created a momentary flurry in Coast racing circles as it was thought the new baby cars might be christened in the February race, but Miller declares it will be impossible to get the cars ready by that date and further that they are being built principally to conform to the new ruling at Indianapolis limiting piston displacement to that figure.

There is considerable question in the minds of the drivers and of engineers interested in the study of racing cars and racing conditions regarding the speed that these new 122-inch cars will turn up. At Indianapolis it may be that their reduced weight, lower center of gravity and saving on tires may permit an increase in average speed for a 500-mile event. The Indianapolis course is rather rough and with the heavier cars Murphy's ninety-five miles an hour was considered marvelous. On a two-and-one half-mile board oval it is conceivable that average speeds up to 125 miles an hour or even higher could be maintained with the 183-inch cars, but the smaller jobs will have to be thoroughly tried out before Pacific Coast fans will consent to spend their money to see them perform.

IS CONFIDENT

Eventually Designer Harry Miller is confident that the smaller cars will be capable of doing 115, 120 or even 125 miles an hour, but he declares he does not think they will compare with the new Miller 183-inch cars for speed until they have been thoroughly tested out. Perhaps that may come to pass before the year is out. At any rate by next Thanksgiving the new cars will be well enough known for the fans to pass judgment upon them and they may develop as fast as their predecessors, which increased their average speeds for the longer distances from 103 to 110 miles an hour within the year, and their lap averages from 110 to 118 miles an hour.

It is interesting to know that the board-surfaced track has come to be accepted as the ideal tyne for real speed. These board speedways cost to erect, in addition to the leasing or purchase of the land, improvement of streets and parkways, fencing, etc., from $200,000 upward. The Los Angeles Speedway, for instance, cost its owners close to a million dollars invested, including of course, the 225 acres of land upon which it is located. The cost of the track, concrete tunnels and grand stands was much higher than the average, owing to the large amount of concrete work in the tunnels and grandstand foundations, and the size of the stands which seat between 25,000 and 30,000.

NO DIVIDENDS

The fixed charges on this plant, including interest, taxes and depreciation, will run well over the 200,000 mark annually, without considering the cost of maintenance or of staging the actual race programs. This explains why the Los Angeles Speedway has never paid a dividend since the first race Feb. 28, 1920, in spite of crowds that have attended each event running from 40,000 to 80,000 paid admissions.

Attendance at the races during 1922 showed a marked improvement over the preceding years and it is generally predicted that 1923 will witness a still greater increase in the number of fans who follow the fortunes of the "knights of the roaring road."

As a final survey of the season just past, it might be interesting to see how the various drivers finished in the A.A.A. championship for 1922. The order in which they finished, together with their point standing, is as follows:

Jimmy Murphy	3420
Tommy Milton	1910
Harry Hartz	1748
Frank Elliott	890
Bennett Hill	436
Eddie Hearne	338
Earl Cooper	260
Art Klein	220
Joe Thomas	124

OFFER A PRIZE

The A.A.A. governing body in charge of all automobile racing in America requires that each race promoter offer a prize amounting to at least $100 a mile in each event he stages. This prize money is required to be posted with the referee or representative of the A.A.A. contest board in advance of the race as a protection to the contestants, but of course other monetary prizes, medals, etc., do not come under the jurisdiction of the American Automobile Association.

A definite program has not been made public concerning the sanctioned races for 1923 although a majority of the dates have been set tentatively. A check of the probable dates and events, however, promises an unusually successful racing year and the practical assurance that several foreign race drivers will be seen in action, not only at Indianapolis, but out here on the Coast, will add considerable interest to the season's activities.

INDUSTRY ON SOUND BASIS

Price Advance on Tires Puts the Business on Best Footing Since 1916; Bank Loans Repaid

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

AKRON (O.) Jan. 6.—The price advance which became effective in automobile tires during the week places the automobile tire industry on the most sound footing since 1916 according to the general consensus of opinion among the producers here.

The past two and one-half years have stripped in the industry of every ounce of surplus weight and left it one of the most efficient and compact industries in the country.

Thousands of workmen, or rather employees, with comparatively nothing to do found their way into the organizations during the war and post-war period. Hundreds of varied efforts were made in many directions by the industries which did not pertain to the production of automobile tires.

CONTINUAL DROP

Efficiency through the entire industry continued to drop after the declaration of war. The past two and one-half years have obliterated this inefficiency completely. At the same time the has liquidated it until there is no "water" left in the industry.

Assets, which have been carried at the war-time basis for some time, have been cut off. Bank loans have been repaid. Inventories have been reduced. Committments have been worked off or accommodated. Cost systems have been revised and improved. Useless and weak salesmen have been thrown out of the organization.

BATH OF FIRE

So that the year is entered by the industry stripped for action as perhaps has never been the case in the industry. It is doubted if the abuses which crept into the industry will ever be repeated. The rubber industry has gone through its bath of fire and has come out healthier, stronger and on a more sound foundation.

In spite of low prices the larger companies showed profits for the past year. These profits were possible in the face of prices only because of the revolution which had taken place in the industry during the past two years. Now, however, with an additional margin of from 12 to 15 per cent in prices of tires the larger producers face the year with every prospect of good showings.

IS ACCEPTED

That raw materials will continue to advance is generally accepted. That some adjustment upward will have to be made in wage scales also is taken fro granted. But the sides to be a necessity for more than six months. While the larger producers face the year with prospects of prosperity hundreds of smaller companies which were being driven to the wall by the prevailing price levels and were beginning to admit this condition toward the end of the year face the year with new hope.

As pointed out in these columns the larger producers were finally practically deciding to squeeze the smaller manufacturer out of the industry. Month after month this process has continued but the pressure on the larger producers finally became so great that the pressure was released and the larger margin of profit assured life to the many small companies who were compelled to buy their raw materials on a rising market while the larger companies were protected by contracts.

SUBJECT TO CHANGE

While the new price lists have not ben completed and may be subject to change the following table gives some idea of the new prices as compared with those of previous years The 30x3½ prices are for fabrics of one of the larger companies while the other prices are for cords since the time cords became generally used:

	30x4	30x3½	33x4
1923	$23.50	$11.65	$49.06
1922	20.05	10.95	44.60
1920	23.35	15.25	49.53
1919	[illegible]	17.61	55.55
1918	29.25	22.50	63.35
1917	29.56	17.95	49.95
1916	25.65	15.60	43.45
1915	27.36	14.20	39.59
1914	37.05	22.10	55.50
1910	30.30	33.90	82.70

APPROVE DIVIDEND

Several days after the annual meeting of the General Tire and Rubber Company, where earnings of $100 a share on common stock for the year were announced, it was officially stated by William O'Neil that a stock dividend of 100 per cent on common stock had been approved by the stockholders.

The directors acted on this stock dividend in November but every effort was made before and after the meeting of both the directors and stockholders to prevent publication of this stock dividend until after the first of the year.

Unless all indications are wrong this is the only stock dividend to

Auto Club of Southern California Begins Taking Number Applications

Anticipating an unprecedented rush for California State licenses this year all branch offices of the Automobile Club of Southern California have started taking applications for the new license numbers.

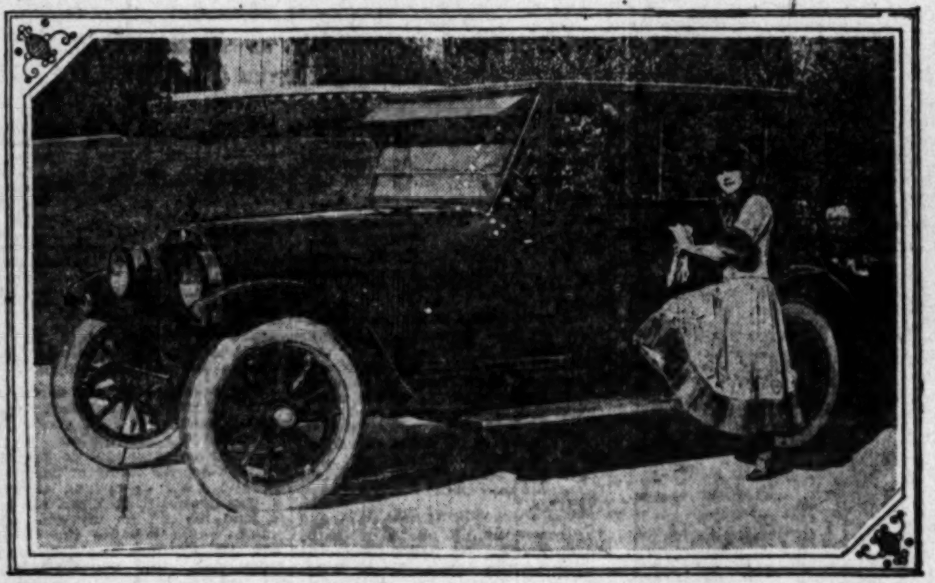
Every motorist who is a member of the organization in this locality is urged to apply at once at the nearest club office for the proper application blanks and not to delay until the last minute. If all auto owners do wait, there will be a final jam which will prevent the smooth handling of the situation at the time when the plates are issued.

Eastern visitors who have been touring California and whose cars were registered during 1923 in another State and who now wish to take out a 1923 registration here should procure a certificate of registration from the State whence they came and be prepared to prove ownership of their machine when application is requested for registration.

Early application of club members is urged particularly in the branch office districts as these applications filed at the branch offices will have to be forwarded to club headquarters to be rated and checked for clearance.

Do not forget that if your certificate of ownership has been lost, destroyed or so mutilated that it cannot be read, you should go at once to the club branch and procure a fresh duplicate.

They Travel in Style These Days Out in Hollywood



When Patsy Ruth Miller was almost late to Charley Ray's party for the christening of the Mayflower she saved herself from embarrassment by having a Jordan brougham which took her there in a hurry.

DEALERS ARE HOT AFTER MORE CARS

At this season of the year when manufacturers are usually pressing distributors and dealers to take cars for storage, it is refreshing to hear from the Buick factory that the pressure is still from the other end. R. R. McVicker, Buick branch manager at Pittsburg, was in Flint last week, avowedly for the purpose of influencing, if possible, the immediate shipment of three train loads. Harry Noyes, Jr., of the Noyes-Buick Company of Boston was another visitor in quest of an increase in his December allotment. And there were many others from all sections.

CLOSED CAR NO LUXURY

"It's all a big mistake to consider the closed car as a luxury, while the open touring car is listed as the car of greatest utility," said Miss Patsy Ruth Miller one day last week as she climbed behind the wheel of a new Jordan Silhouette Brougham and hastened to the Charles Ray studios in Hollywood where Ray was having a party to celebrate the completion of the exact replica of the Mayflower, which has just been built at the Ray studios. Miss Miller was leading lady with Ray in the filmization of James Whitcomb Riley's "The Girl I Loved," and is to be cast in several other new adaptations of Riley's poems.

Her choice of a Jordan brougham is due to the fact that the car combines the very top notch of motor style with all of the comfort and luxury of the very highest priced cars, according to Harry Lord of the Lord Motor Car Company, Jordan distributors.

"Miss Miller is wholly right in listing the closed car as being outside of the class of luxuries," said Lord. "For it is today the one car wholly suited to everyday use. This is less true in California, of course, than in most of the East, but with our cool evenings the enclosed car is a distinct advantage here all the year-round. In many parts of the East the touring car can be used freely only for about three months of the year, while the closed model can be driven during every month on the calender," said Lord.

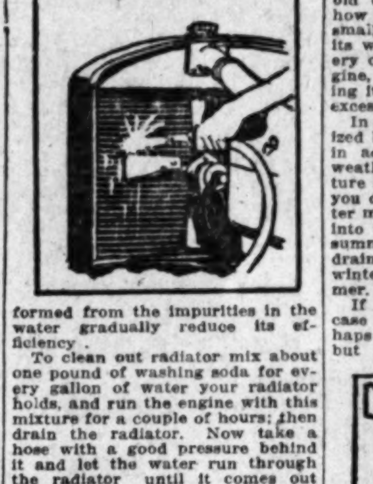
Always keep the radiator filled with clean water, rain water if you can get it. At least twice each year give the radiator a thorough cleaning out, as rust and sediment formed from the impurities in the water gradually reduce its efficiency.



To clean out radiator mix about one pound of washing soda for every gallon of water your radiator holds, and run the engine with this mixture for a couple of hours; then drain the radiator. Now take a hose with a good pressure behind it and let the water run through the radiator until it comes out clean and clear.

If you have an engine fitted with a water pump it will be necessary to keep the engine running all the time the water is going through the radiator. If you have no pump, but have an engine cooled on the thermo-syphon principle, you can stop the engine and just let the water run.

If the radiator core passages are clogged with dirt or mud clear them by flushing with the hose. Open up the hood and squirt the water through from the rear of the radiator, but be careful when you are doing this that you do not wet the ignition system.

There are few automobile drivers who realize how necessary it is to drain all the oil out of the crankcase every 600 miles in winter and every 800 miles in summer.

Here's why it pays to drain your old oil off regularly. No matter how good your piston rings are a small amount of raw gasoline finds its way into the crankcase on every compression stroke of the engine, diluting the oil and destroying its lubricating properties; then excessive wear takes place.

In summer the gasoline is vaporized better than it is in winter, and in addition, during the winter weather you run on a richer mixture and use the choker more than you do in summer, so that in winter more raw gasoline finds its way into the crankcase than it does in summer, hence the reason for draining more frequently in the winter than you do in the summer.

If you do not drain your crankcase regularly you will save perhaps $10 a year on your oil bill, but your repair bills will be at least $50 more than they would have been if you had drained off your old oil at regular intervals. At the end of three years your engine will be rapidly nearing the junk pile, whereas if you had attended to the above it would probably still be in good shape.

PAIGE TO STICK TO THEIR SIX

Motor Car Company Still Thinks Sextet of Cylinders Proper Thing

In time-honored style, December motoring gossip all over the coun- model changes and the corresponding unveiling ceremonies which, to the industry's inner circle, are always, as this year, the most fascinating features of the National Automobile Show opening this week in New York City.

Prominent among the manufacturers mentioned as likely to spring a real sensation was the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company, an organization, which, through one of the veterans of the industry, has never allowed growth and prosperity to hamper aggressive and dramatic merchandising. The big sensation of the 1922 New York show was the unveiling of the Paige-built Jewitt six, an elaborately staged event so impressively managed as to be actually memorable in show annals.

REPORT UNTRUE

In a letter to the local representatives, H. M. Jewett, president of the parent company, had the following to say about the new plans: "This is not the time to tell the details of our Paige plans, but any report that this car will be anything but a six is unfounded and untrue. This company, for a good many years, has been build- belief is today stronger than ever before.

"As we see it, and our experience permits us to speak as six-cylinder specialists, the six is the simplest and most effective method of developing balanced and overlapping power. The world's finest automobiles have always been and we believe always will be, sixes. We have no quarrel with the manufacturers who wish to multiply cylinders, but we are not moving in that direction."

Eight-Cylinder Construction in High Favor

Concrete evidence of the growing popularity of eight-cylinder-in-a-line motor construction is presented in the doubling of manufacturing facilities by the Duesenberg Automobile & Motors Corporation, pioneer in applying the straight-eight principle of engine construction. According to word received by Shafer-Harrigan-Cleveland, Inc., Duesenberg straight-eight distributors for Southern California, the work is rapidly proceeding at the present time.

To the rear of the present Duesenberg plant, an addition almost as large as the original plant is nearing completion.

The new structure is of the most modern type, concrete and steel being used exclusively, with large window spaces and ample skylights. It will be used primarily for the assembly of motors,

EFFECTIVE NOW

The tremendous increase in Hupmobile production—100 per cent in the past two years—and greatly enlarged factory facilities, have created a manufacturing saving that is passed on to the public through these reductions. The high standards of Hupmobile engineering methods, quality and manufacture remain the same.

From a humble beginning in 1909, the Hupmobile has steadily advanced until it now stands ninth in number of cars sold (exclusive of Ford) among all those manufactured in this country, and the list includes almost one hundred. It is a literal truth that Hupmobile reputation is based on the fact that it is built to render continuous service at a minimum of cost and last longer than the ordinary—and that it does so.

PRICES TAKE A TUMBLE

Announcement was made last Sunday by the Hupp Motor Car Corporation of Detroit of a reduction in price of all models. "The price reduction has brought a flood of inquiries and many orders, both wholesale and retail," stated Billy Williams, head of the company's Hupp retail-sales department. "The year just passed has been a record-breaker for us and the Hupp Motor Car Corporation, and with the price reduction and the wonderful popularity that the car has achieved everywhere, it is already evident that 1923 will be another record-breaker.

"The reception accorded by the public to the specially equipped Hupmobile touring and roadster models anonunced in November has been so enthusiastic that it has been found necessary to devote nearly 50 per cent of the open-car output at the factory to these two models. The factory is besieged with orders from dealers from all parts of the country to increase their allotments, is the information we have received."

The 1923 output already scheduled for the Hupp factory calls for 40,000 cars of all models, and there is little doubt that this number will be exceeded.

RIDGE ROUTE A FINE TRIP

Crisp Wintry Air in Higher Altitude is Fine

Scenic Beauty is Wonderful at This Season

Road in Great Shape Except at Repair Points

Now is the time of year for a most delightful Sunday trip over the Ridge road to Tejon Pass and the Grapevine grade that winds down into the great San Joaquin Valley south of Bakersfield.

The recent rains have brought the first blades of grass peeping through the sod, and the giant trees bereft of their foliage stand gaunt and threatening to the motor wayfarer as he slides along beneath the spreading boughs.

Last week F. T. Mansfield and a party of friends in a new Dort six-cylinder car made a picnic trip from Los Angeles to Fort Tejon and back the same day, and according to Mansfield, he never experienced a more delightful ride since he came to California.

"We left Los Angeles fairly early in the morning," says Mansfield, who is wholesale manager for the Mission Motor Company, Dort distributors, "and we just rolled along at a leisurely pace out through San Fernando, where we paused for a short time to peek around among the remains of the old mission there. This historic pile, thanks to some far-seeing public-spirited people, is to be restored and maintained for the benefit of posterity.

"Farther on we climbed the Newhall grade that has long since supplanted the old Fremont Pass, and darted through the tunnel into Newhall, and then to Saugus. Beyond this railroad town in the lowlands the mistletoe grows in mammoth clumps among the topmost branches, and there were eager people gathering it for holiday romances.

"And then we reached the Ridge road, the most wonderful of all engineering feats, and we marveled at the ease with which the Dort wound its way around the upward swings until we spun along on the very ridge of the mountain from which the route takes its name. The speed limit is fifteen miles an hour, and we stayed well within that limit all the twenty-eight miles, and yet we never shifted gear except when we stopped to take pictures.

"Except for several miles of reconstruction work on the highways in the upper reach of the Tejon Pass, the highway is in wonderful shape for all the ninety miles to Fort Tejon. Crusher rock and gravel are piled high on one-half the highway up the Tejon Pass, and considerable confusion results from the mad scampering of cars dodging into the openings between piles to permit approaching cars to pass."

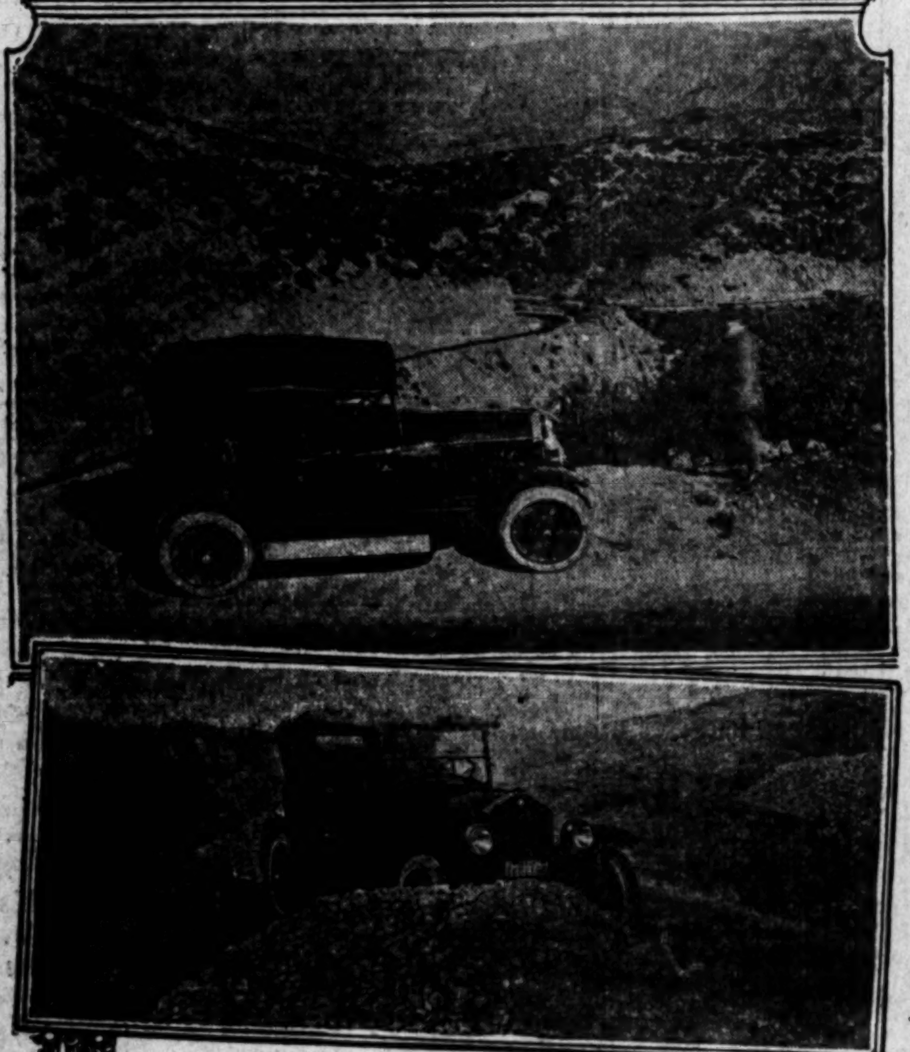
ALL DOLLED UP

P. A. Renton, one of the sales force of Stanley W. Smith, Inc., Peerless distributor, and one of the city's veteran automobile-salesmen, won a high-grade suit of clothes offered as a prize to the salesman who sold the largest number of cars during December. His sales totaled $24,000.

WISDOM GOES NORTH

P. W. Wisdom, western sales manager for the Moon Motor Car Company of St. Louis, is in the northern part of the State on a business trip.

Keeping California's Prize Roads in Shape



Up on the Ridge Route they are putting the much traveled highway in the best of condition and the above photographs show a new model Dort on the twisting road. The lower photograph shows some of the repair work on Tejon Pass.

SHETTLER TAKES IN SHOW

Among those Angelenos going to the New York National Automobile Show was Leon T. Shettler, president of the local firm that distributes Rickenbacker cars for Southern California.

Shettler left last Tuesday for the eastern exhibit and from New York will go directly to the Rickenbacker factory in Detroit. While at the factory he hopes to arrange for a greatly increased allotment of cars for his territory.

The Rickenbacker Motor Company will more than double its production of cars for 1923 over last year and it is planned by Shettler that this territory get the lion's share of this increase.

As the local organization led the whole country in the sale of cars for 1922 with the sole exception of Detroit, Shettler expects a little better than usual consideration from production managers at the Detroit plant.

Before leaving Shettler predicted that the New York show would reveal many makers following in Rickenbacker's footsteps especially in the matter of two-flywheel motor design. He reiterated the fact that there would be no radical changes in the Rickenbacker models this year.

Shettler will return to Los Angeles on January 20 prepared to push the local distributing organization from second to first place, he said.

NERNEY WILL SELL CARS ON OWN HOOK

Mr. S. S. Nerney, who has been employed by the William L. Hughson Company for a period of twelve years, has been appointed Ford and Lincoln dealer, and has opened temporary quarters at 7518 Santa Monica Boulevard. Work will commence at once on the new building at Ogden Drive and Santa Monica Boulevard. This appointment is in recognition of Mr. Nerney's services in distributing Ford products while in the employ of the William L. Hughson Company.

Ray F. Chesley, who has been on automobile row in Los Angeles for the last nine years, has been appointed manager to succeed Mr. Nerney. He was formerly with the Nash and Marmon agency and is conversant with all ends of the business.

Proper Oiling of Car Stops All Worrying

You never know you have a stomach until it begins to ache. And the motorist seldom realizes his car has a differential, transmission, wheel bearings, etc., until something goes wrong with them, according to D. R. McBryde, proprietor of the McBryde Lubricating Service here.

"Driving a car is a good deal like living," he claims. "The less conscious you are of the actual functions of the different parts, the more you enjoy it.

"Naturally the degree of pleasure depends upon the degree of peace of mind. And such a peace of mind is impossible for the motorist when his car springs squeak, when the transmission and driving gear grind, and when the 'purr' of the engine becomes a combined cough and growl.

"Proper lubrication, regularly from the time of purchase, on, should make the carr un so smoothly that the old question of 'what's the matter now?' will never once plague the straining ears of the driver or the passengers."

CHRISTEN FLYING BOAT

British Governor Assists at Festive Occasion in Nassau, Bahamas Capital

The christening ceremony of the latest flying boat of the Aeromarine Airways, Inc., which has been specially detailed for the Miami-Nassau air service, was performed recently when His Excellency Major Sir Harry Edward Spiller Cordeaux, K. C. M. G., C. B., Governor of the Bahamas, formally gave his name to the craft in Nassau Harbor.

According to C. F. Redden, president of the Aeromarine company with executive offices in the Times Building, New York, Gov. Cordeaux broke a bottle of champagne, which was tied with the international colors, red, white and blue, over the bow of the beautiful craft with the words, "I name this flying boat the Cordeaux and trust that under the guiding hand of Providence she may make many successful trips."

Thousands of people watched the ceremony, a guard of honor from the Bahama police under the acting commandant, C. J. Whebell, was drawn up opposite to the landing and the band played the royal salute on the arrival of the Governor, who was accompanied by Lady Cordeaux, Roland Rohlfs, manager of the Miami division of the Aeromarine Airways, who came over to attend the christening ceremony, Hon. H. E. W. Grant, C.M.G., Colonial Secretary, the Hon. P. W. D. Armbrister, Receiver-General and Treasurer, the Hons. Sir James P. Sands, G. H Gamblin, G. H. Johnson, J. R. G. Young, members of the executive council, the Hon. Harcourt Malcolm, C.B.E., K.C., Speaker of the House of Assembly, the Hon. Lorin Lathrop, American Consul, and Mrs. Lathrop; Kenneth Solomon, chairman of the development boards, Miss Moseley, editor of the Nassau Guardian, Mrs. Boyce, wife of the American Vice-Consul, and Sidney Farrington, late of the Royal Air Force, and local agent for the Aeromarine company.

In a speech after the ceremony, Gov. Cordeaux expressed what great pleasure it had given him to accept the invitation of the Aeromarine Airways to perform the naming ceremony of their latest and most up-to-date aircraft. It was always a pleasure for him to lend his aid to any enterprise which would benefit the colony. Few among them would have any doubt that the institution of a regular air service between Nassau and Miami would greatly facilitate relations with their friends and neighbors across the Gulf Stream. He would not care to be associated with any enterprise which was not entirely sound and reliable, but in this instance he had not the slightest hesitation in accepting the compliment which the Aeromarine Airways had paid him by suggesting that their craft should bear his name.

As a proof of his confidence in the company he accepted an invitation to go for a flight and with other members of his party made an inspection trip of Nassau from the air.

At its conclusion the band played the "Star Spangled Banner," three cheers being given for His Excellency the Governor at the instance of the American Consul.

Used Cars Go Fast Toward End of Year

The close of the 1922 season saw all records broken by the Don Lee used car department. Manager Felix Guinney reports the sale of more than $107,000 worth of used cars during the month of Decemebr.

The grand total for the last three months of the year was in excess of $260,000. This is the biggest three months' business and December is the largest single month's business in the history of the Don Lee organization.

The increased business in this department is due to the steadily growing demand for rebuilt Cadillacs and the class of cars that are usually traded in on new Cadillacs. Manager Guinney makes a specialty of entirely rebuilding and refinishing Cadillacs and usually has a demand in excess of his supply for certain models.

Real Good Tires

A Sure Non-Skid

A tube with every tire has been the most popular tire proposition we have offered our customers. We can't tell you just how long we can extend this offer, for tire men say prices will go up soon.

Cord Tires

Western Giant Cords are backed up by the whole "Western Auto" organization of 60 stores. The responsibility of the house selling you tires is of greater importance than the "brand" on the tires.
You will be highly pleased with the service they give.
A Jumbo Tube is given with every Cord tire.

Fabric Tires

Our fabric tires are carefully built, non-skid, strong and resilient. We have handled these tires for several years and are glad to back up the mileage guarantee. Choose your tires now—while this offer lasts—at the "Western Auto" store nearest you. A Blue Ribbon or Nebraska tube given with every fabric tire.
